GERMANY MAY REFUSE TO WITHDRAW BOY-ED.

Kaiser's Government is Expected to Adopt Defiant Attitude.

Entente Allies Decline to Afford Safe Conduct to the Two Attaches Whose Recall is Demanded by President Wilson — Serious Break is Threatened — Whitlock's Status Also Causing Worry.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 4.—Serious tension developed today over the demand that Capts. Boy-Ed and Von Papen be recalled, and late tonight there were indications that an actual break might come with Germany. Germany is likely to insist that safe conducts for new attaches must be given before she will recall the men who have become persona non grata, and also to demand a bill of particulars as to the charges against them.

Both of these demands are contrary to all precedent. Under diplomatic usage the mere word of a government that any man accredited to it is unwelcome has always been enough to insure his recall. If Germany, therefore, insists on these points, officials admit a situation novel in diplomacy and charged with all kinds of possible trouble will develop.

The replacing of the two German attaches, it is understood, will be considered by the State Department as something entirely apart from their recall, and Secretary Lansing is expected to insist that the recall be given before any other matter is taken up. The State Department has the power to return their passports to both diplomats, thus automatically ending their right to remain in this country, and then to insist that they leave.

It is hoped that no action will be necessary, as it would be certain to deepen the friction with Germany which the department has gone to great lengths to avoid. The State Department was worried today at the revival of rumors that Germany might bar Minister Whitlock's return to Brussels. The possibility of such a complication with the Lusitania case still unsettled and with the dispute sure to arise over the Ancona, as yet in its initial stages, is admittedly worrying Washington officials.

Germany's defiant attitude today largely overshadowed the question of what further action this government plans toward wiping out the system which Boy-Ed and Von Papen organized.

WIDE INQUIRY PROMISED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Developments which have followed the request for withdrawal of Capt. Boy-Ed and Capt. Franz von Papen, naval and military attaches of the German Embassy, indicated today that the State Department would conduct a wide investigation of foreign consular officials in the United States, whose suspected activities, in some instances, are looked upon with extreme disfavor.

Should the investigation disclose that any of the officials have acted in a manner considered improper, their exequaturs will be cancelled or the State Department will find other means of having them discontinued in the offices they hold.

It was said at the department tonight that no decision had been reached in the case of Alexander von Nuber, Austro-Hungarian Consul-General at New York, whose name frequently has been mentioned in connection with the activities of Boy-Ed and Von Papen.

The Entente allies, it became known today, probably will refuse to COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

There have been no military events of importance in the Balkans since the fall of Monastir, which was discounted. Recent reports make Rumania loom unusually large on the Balkan horizon, and that country is generally accredited with the intention either of joining the allies or at least stretching her neutrality to the point of allowing the passage of Russian troops. There has been, however, no confirmation of the report that Russian troops have already entered Rumanian territory. Rumania's declaration that after tomorrow she will commandeer all ships anchored in Rumanian ports, is regarded by some as proof of Rumania's intention to abandon her neutrality, but the British press and public in general, which have grown skeptical over premature announcement of changes in the policy of the Balkan states, show little disposition to take a favorable issue for granted until it is established beyond the possibility of a doubt.

The money problem is becoming acute in Mexico owing to the fact that the various pretenders to fame and power down there have flooded the country with paper. Fighting has been renewed near Agua Prieta. No great importance is attached to it, however, save and except that it shows Villa means to die hard.

At the left is shown Mrs. Whitlock standing beside Brand Whitlock, who has represented this country in Belgium before and since the war. The picture was taken upon their arrival in the United States on a visit to Mr. Whitlock's mother. Although Whitlock looks tired, it is stated he was not ill. The State Department announces he will return to Brussels December 28, on the steamer Rotterdam, though it is declared the Military Governor of Belgium has recommended the legation be transferred to Havre, the seat of the Belgian government. Washington claims to have no intimation to this effect.

FIFTY-SEVEN SCRIBES ON FORD PEACE SHIP.

Laureates of the Self-appointed Mission Almost as Numerous as the Official Members of the Party—Farewell Statement of the Jitney Man Issued Before the Oscar II Left the Dock.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—Henry Ford and more than eighty peace advocates sailed today on the steamer Oscar II for Christiania, Norway. The party was accompanied by fifty-seven newspaper correspondents and photographers, and more than twenty general assistants, secretaries and stenographers.

Before sailing Mr. Ford issued what he called a farewell statement.

"I am sailing with the firm belief," he said, "that a great good will come of this mission. It will keep alive the thought that peace is possible as well as desirable and so long as that is done hope of peace exists.

"I know little of the details of the working plan of the peace conference, but I do know that every effort will be made for an honorable and early peace. If this conference succeeds only in bringing about a beginning of negotiations for peace it will have accomplished a good work.

"My heart is in this work for peace and it is for this reason that I have stood behind the ship and helped the people to reach a common meeting place to discuss the possibilities of peace with the representatives of other neutral countries.

"We are leaving on time, and leaving with the feeling that those parts of the world now at peace and at war have heard of the plan and are in sympathy with the move, and that the best wishes of the great majority go with us."

The sailing of the Oscar II, scheduled for 2 o'clock, was delayed some time by the unexpected arrival of fifteen persons who had been invited by Mr. Ford, but had not indicated they intended sailing. The examination of the baggage, passports and tickets of the fifteen late arrivals, as well as the final clearing of the ship of all but persons who held tickets took up considerable time.

William Jennings Bryan and Thomas A. Edison arrived at the dock an hour before the steamer sailed to bid farewell to Mr. Ford. Mr. Bryan spent a half-hour with Ford.

THEY'RE OFF.

The steamer sailed at 3:15 o'clock, one hour and fifteen minutes later than the scheduled sailing hour.

Mr. Bryan spent some time on the ship bidding "Godspeed," as he termed it, to the party.

"There is some chance for the mission to succeed," said Mr. Bryan. "That's all I care to say now except that I wish them every good fortune."

Just before the gangplank was pulled up, a cable messenger rushed on the ship and it was reported that Ford had received a message from King Haakon of Norway, stating the Ford party would be courteously received in Norway.

EXCITEMENT.

Much excitement prevailed on the ship and the dock for some time prior to the sailing. This, in addition to the fact that fifteen of the party ar-

STANDARD OIL METHODS ADOPTED BY THE CHURCH

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 4.—The teachings of the Standard Oil Company are responsible for the methods and efficiency of a revival campaign which begins today in six of the parishes of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Chicago. The Rev. R. W. Patton of Atlanta, Ga., leader in the movement, yesterday paid that compliment to the Standard Oil Company.

"While I was engaged in missionary work," he said, "I wondered why the church was not more efficient. I inquired of a Standard Oil representative how it was his company could succeed in pushing its goods where we could not seem to get.

"'We try to make the people see they want the goods we have and then we make it easy for them to obtain them,' he said. I made up my mind I would try to make the people see the value of the church and make it easy for them to engage in its work."

PEACE TALK IN BERLIN.

Kaiser's Terms are Amended.

Evacuation of France and All of Belgium Except City of Antwerp.

Momentous Decision to Permit Reichstag to Discuss the Matter.

Food Problems of the Central Empires Reported to be Serious.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The momentous decision reached by the German government to permit the discussion of peace in the Reichstag is regarded here as the clearest indication that Germany is prepared to lay down arms if acceptable conditions can be obtained. The government's decision, following the authorization given to the German press for a free discussion of peace possibilities and the discussion of an almost unanimous desire to end the war, along with the governmental sanction of the Socialists' plan to bring about a peace debate in the Reichstag, lends to Thursday's session of that body an importance which it is impossible to overestimate.

The entire world is awaiting eagerly the speech of the Imperial Chancellor. Meanwhile, the wildest rumors are current.

The latest of these, coming from The Hague and obviously from a German source, is to the effect that the Kaiser intends to proclaim peace on his arrival at Constantinople.

It is asserted on the "highest authority," according to the rumor—but the name of this "highest authority" is not given—that the Kaiser will send a letter to President Wilson urging him to accept the role of mediator. The letter, the rumor goes on, will declare that Germany did not want the war, which, the letter will say, was forced by England and Russia. Atrocities will be denied energetically. The hour is at hand, the letter will continue, to stop the bloodshed and permit Europe to heal her wounds with a bountiful peace.

Germany will offer, through President Wilson, to evacuate the invaded departments of France and all of Belgium except Antwerp and to negotiate with Great Britain regarding the possession of Antwerp. Poland will be declared autonomous, the invaded provinces of Russia will be restored and Serbia's independence will be guaranteed.

On the other hand, the "freedom of the seas" is to be guaranteed and special privileges are to be granted to German commerce. In case of a refusal of these terms, according to the rumor, Germany is determined upon a war of extermination.

THE FOOD PROBLEMS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (via London, Dec. 5, 2:16 a.m.)—The Budget Committee of the Reichstag is devoting several days to the discussion of food problems. The Socialists are taking a leading part, two having spoken on Thursday and three on Friday.

These Socialist speakers fully approved the government's measures to protect consumers and secure a better distribution of supplies, but demanded that the government must go even farther and apply the card system to meats, lard and virtually everything else and wholly eliminate the middleman. One Socialist demanded that the government carry out the resolution already unanimously adopted by the Reichstag, providing for the establishment of a central government officer having complete control of food supplies.

A conservative speaker pointed out that the prices of feed have risen more than the price of meat and milk. He said that the production of a litre (1.06 quarts) of milk now costs 15 pfennigs (1¾ cents) more than in normal times. He recommended that the governments of other states follow the example of Prussia, which proposes to devote 100,000,000 marks ($25,000,000) to procure supplies of feed for fattening swine.

Owing to the difficulty experienced by the people in obtaining sufficient butter the Berlin municipality has organized a so-called butter bureau in the City Hall. The function of this bureau is to distribute in Berlin and vicinity the quotas of butter assigned to the territory by the central buying agency, which is an organization operating under the auspices of the government.

It is charged in some quarters that the butter famine of the past few days has been due to the holding of butter by the producers. It is admitted, however, everywhere, that the shortage of feed is the chief cause. An alleged contributing cause is that imported butter can only be sold through the central selling agency.

BERLIN DENIES PEACE PROPOSALS.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (via Sayville, N. Y.)—Further denial of peace proposals reported to emanate from Germany was made today by the Overseas News Agency.

The agency also contradicts the assertion that Emperor William will go to Constantinople and says that reports regarding the mission of Prince von Buelow to Switzerland are invented.

CITRUS CROWN GOES TO KERN.

Gets Exposition Orange Award. Historic Ranch Produces Winning Fruit.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EXPOSITION GROUNDS, SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—First honors for navel oranges exhibited at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition go to Kern county, which, according to the decision of the horticultural judges, is given the gold medal betokening the highest award in this section of the citrus display. The fruit which won the prize came from the Tejon, San Emigdio and Edison districts. The Tejon may be said to be the oldest and the youngest of the orange-growing centers of Kern county. It is the oldest because the first oranges grown in the county are believed to have been planted on the 100-acre plot surrounding the old Tejon ranch headquarters. In point of actual development the district is the youngest, for it is only in the infancy of its possibilities. More than 275,000 acres, a domain as large as Rhode Island, are comprised in the group of Spanish grants which form the Tejon Rancho. Conservative estimates place the area of the ranch having the same elevation, exposure and soil as that portion which has produced the prize-winning oranges at not less than 50,000 acres in one body. Other scattered lands adapted for citrus fruits bring the total much higher. Prior to the acquisition of the ranch from the heirs of Gen. E. F. Beale by Southern California investors a few years ago, the property had been used almost entirely as a cattle range. The present holders have already begun intensive development of the property and are understood to have comprehensive plans for the future.

WOMAN DISARMS A BIG BANDIT.

AND FIRES A SHOT TO HURRY HIS DEPARTURE.

Auto Robbers Leap from Machine, Hold up Husband and Wife and are About to Get Away with Small Change When Amazon Takes the Upper Hand.

Wrenching a revolver from the hand of a bandit who, with another, had just held up her husband, Mrs. C. D. Mueller of No. 238 East Forty-second street late last night fired a shot point blank at the largest of the robbers and then chased the two men back into a small automobile in which they had driven to the scene.

After the bandits had fled, Mrs. Mueller and her husband walked to University Station and there reported the matter and turned over to the police the revolver. Mrs. Mueller declared one of the bandits was wounded by her shot.

According to the story told the police by Mrs. Mueller, the bandits, both masked and one of them armed, jumped from an automobile and ordered her husband and herself to put up their hands, at Woodlawn avenue and Forty-second street. The bandits then searched Mr. Mueller and took 21 cents.

"Just after one of the bandits searched my husband," declared Mrs. Mueller to the police, "I got mad and jumped on him. I pulled the revolver from his hand and told him to get back into the automobile. He did not move fast enough to suit me, so I took a shot at him. He moved a lot faster then. I believe I hit him, as I saw him start."

"No," declared Mrs. Mueller, "I was not frightened at all. You see it was this way. When the hold-up men ordered us to throw up our hands, it was all right, as I knew my husband did not have much money in his pockets. After they took the 21 cents I thought they might get angry on account of the small amount, and so to prevent them from harming us—well, I just took the revolver away from them."

The bandits escaped.

"NOTHING NEW," VIENNA HEARS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA (via London) Dec. 4, 11:09 p.m.)—The following communication was issued today:

"Russian war theater—There is nothing new.

"Italian theater—The enemy's attacks continue against the bridgehead at Gorizia and the northern part of the plateau of Doberdo. Weak attacks and attempts to approach near Oslavia and before Podgora were repulsed. The bombardment of Gorizia continues. Strong Italian forces attacked Monte San Nickele and in the neighborhood of San Martino, but were repulsed.

"Southeastern theater—Our troops early yesterday morning stormed the heights south of Plevlje. Near Tresnievica, southwest of Sienica, the Montenegrins were also defeated. West of Novipazar armed Mohammedans drove off plundering Montenegrin bands. Near Novipazar and Mitrovitza 2000 prisoners were taken."

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—The world bade the Panama-Pacific International Exposition farewell today, and the closing day marked a new record in its attendance history.

From dawn, when a salute of twenty-one guns from the Presidio marked the beginning of the end, until evening, when the towers and minarets of the exposition began to glow for the last time, steady streams of humanity passed through the turnstiles. At 6 o'clock tonight 298,610 visitors were recorded, 2000 more than had been admitted at the same time on San Francisco Day, November 2, when the record of 348,372 was hung up.

RECORDS ARE BROKEN.

At 8 o'clock tonight 350,735 persons had passed the turnstiles admitting to the exposition, the total breaking the record made on San Francisco Day.

At 8 p.m. on San Francisco Day 309,993 had passed the turnstiles, and from the fact that tonight's attractions were more elaborate and more spectacular than on November 2, officials based predictions that the 400,000 mark would be passed on closing day.

At 6 o'clock tonight the ten main exhibit palaces of the Panama-Pacific Exposition closed their doors for the last time, so far as the public was concerned, six hours in advance of the formal closing exercises at midnight which marked the termination of the exposition period.

The formal ceremonies retiring the different palaces from service were held during the afternoon on platforms erected at the various portals. President C. C. Moore, accompanied by Capt. A. C. Baker, director of exhibits, and others of the exposition management, officiated.

Immediately following these out-of-door exercises "town criers," ten in number, invaded the exhibit palaces and informed the throngs that "at 6 o'clock this building must be vacated for all time."

MOORE'S STATEMENT.

During the night President Moore made the following announcement to the world:

"The end of six years' earnest endeavor has come. California has fulfilled the trust imposed upon it by the national government to hold a universal exposition to celebrate the completion by our country of the Panama Canal, the world's greatest engineering achievement.

"While the exposition could not have been the symmetrical success it has proved without the earnest and enthusiastic co-operation of so many of our sister States that have recognized it as a celebration of the American people, and without the splendid participation of so many foreign countries, that realized its world's purpose; yet the burden has been upon California to carry on the work, and most nobly has the entire State responded to the responsibility it sought and eagerly accepted.

"While undoubted and incalculable benefits from this gathering of the peoples of the world with its rich tuition, artistic, educational and world fraternity, will result alike to our visitors and our own people, I hope we will be allowed a pardonable pride in the thought that local interest has always been subordinated to our responsibilities as representatives of the government and the people of the United States to hold a great international celebration with world purpose for the betterment of humanity.

[Signed] "C. C. MOORE,
"President, Panama-Pacific Exposition."

TOAST OF WILSON.

The toast of President Wilson was received by wireless at noon, and immediately after there was sent back to the President the following reply from Charles C. Moore, president of the exposition:

"Hon. Woodrow Wilson,
"White House,
"Washington, D. C.

"Your inspiring sentiment has, at the appointed time, been received. The enthusiasm with which it was received was expressive of our hope

BRITISH AGENTS WORKING FOR US

Furnished Evidence Against Baron Von Brincken.

Arrest is Most Important Made in Plot Inquiry.

Plans to Blow up Munitions on Verge of Collapse.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Investigation as to Baron von Bricken's activities in San Francisco are said to connect him with allegations of breaches of neutrality in connection with outfitting ships for supplying German expeditions at sea. Much of the evidence upon which the judicial authorities are acting was gathered first by British agents.

As an attache of the German consulate, the Baron enjoys no immunity whatever such as surrounds a diplomatic officer, and he is subject to arrest, indictment or other judicial processes which are barred when attaches of embassies are concerned.

After weeks of investigation covering the entire country, Department of Justice officials were convinced tonight that they had under arrest most of the men implicated in plots to interfere with American commerce in munitions of war.

ARREST IS IMPORTANT.

The arrest today in San Francisco of Baron von Brincken, who claims to be connected with the office of the German Consul-General there, is regarded here as one of the most important made in several weeks. The Baron, according to the information here, was a prominent figure in the plans of C. C. Crowley, arrested in the same city, charged with plots against munitions factories. More arrests are to be made in the Crowley case, and important developments are looked for when all the witnesses the government is seeking reach San Francisco and give their testimony.

Although officials would not admit that direct connection has been established between the Crowley plots and those in which Lieut. Robert Fay and his accomplice were implicated in New York, it is understood many facts point to such a conclusion. If this proves true, the department expects within a few weeks to have completely defeated plans nationwide to interfere with munitions shipments in the East to England, France and Italy, and in the West to Russia.

HEAD IS IN DOUBT.

Who the head of the suspected conspiracy was, or whether it had any one head, is not discovered, but in gathering up the threads in the Crowley and Fay cases the department has laid its hands on information which may develop along that line.

Baron von Bricken's name does not appear here in the records of the State Department, but it was explained tonight that despite this fact he might be legally attached to the German Consul-General's office. He would have no immunity from prosecution, and in keeping with the policy of the Department of Justice will be prosecuted vigorously.

Germany May Refuse.

grant safe conducts for the return to Germany of the two German attaches.

POSITION OF ALLIES.

Great Britain and France, it was stated authoritatively, may take the position that safe conducts willingly would be granted if the two men were civil attaches, and were not actively connected with the fighting forces of Germany.

The attaches, it was pointed out would be free to proceed to Mexico. Should they be allowed to return to Germany, however, they might not only take part in the hostilities, but impart to German officials information which might prove of great military value.

It was made clear at the State Department today that to have the attaches remain in this country even as private citizens would be undesirable. The government has ruled that they are persona non grata, and wants them withdrawn entirely from the United States.

Secretary Lansing said he had received a stenographic report of the testimony and remarks of counsel in the conspiracy trial of the officials of the Hamburg-American line in New York and that it showed that Assistant United States District Attorney Roger Wood had not gone as far as press dispatches indicated in his reference to Capt. Boy-Ed. Secretary Lansing was of the opinion that some accounts of the trial which reached Washington were made of "whole cloth." The references in the government attorney's speech most complained of applied not to Boy-Ed but to other persons, the Secretary said.

Capt. Boy-Ed came to Washington today from New York and conferred with Count von Bernstorff. Officials of the embassy declined to comment on the State Department's action against the two attaches.

TRY TO SEE LANSING.

It became known that a number of attorneys, among them counsel for the defense in the trial of the Hamburg-American officials, had called at the State Department late yesterday and asked to see Mr. Lansing. The Secretary declined to receive them and they were directed to the Department of Justice. There they conferred at some length with Asst. Atty.-Gen. Warren, who has charge of the government's investigation of neutrality cases. The purpose of their visit was not disclosed.

BERNSTORFF NEXT, THINKS LONDON.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Dec. 4. — "Gratification that Germany's diplomacy has been officially condemned," as the Evening Standard puts it, is the keynote of the brief references in the London evening newspapers to the request of the Washington government for the recall of Capt. Boy-Ed and Capt. Von Papen.

The Evening Standard suggests that the next chapter may concern Ambassador Bernstorff himself.

The Pall Mall Gazette thinks that the recent trial in New York will open the eyes of Americans to the "real nature of the German campaign in their midst conducted with the active connivance of the German government."

The Globe says that the evidence against Capt. Boy-Ed and Capt. Von Papen is so overwhelming that "Germany can do nothing but accept the snub with what grace she may."

Retribution.

PENITENTIARY FOR DR. BUENZ.

With Two Associates He is Given Year and Half.

Hamburg-American Official is Admitted to Bail.

Appeal to Supreme Court is Allowed by Judge.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Dr. Karl Buenz, George Kotter and Adolph Hachmeister of the Hamburg-American line, recently convicted of conspiracy to defraud the United States government, were sentenced today, to serve one and a half years in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta. Joseph Poppinghaus was sentenced to one year. The Hamburg-American line was fined $1.

All the defendants were admitted to bail pending the suing out of a writ of error in their behalf.

Bail was fixed at $10,000 in each case and was furnished by a surety company.

Sentence was pronounced after Judge Howe had overruled motions by William Rand, Jr., chief counsel for the defense, for dismissal of the verdict on the ground that it was contrary to the evidence and law in the case. In making his motion Mr. Rand said he had little hope that it would be entertained by the court.

PLEA OF PROSECUTION.

United States District Attorney H. Snowden Marshall, in moving for sentence, said it was "his painful duty to ask for substantial punishment, not so much for its effects on the defendants, but to serve as a warning to others."

None of the defendants showed any emotion when sentence was pronounced. Prior to the opening of court they were surrounded by a number of sympathizers, with whom they chatted freely. Dr. Buenz told his listeners that his only regret was that the American people should believe he had done anything to injure them or had ever had anything but the kindliest feeling toward this country.

Through Mr. Rand, the aged director of the Hamburg-American line asked Judge Howe to take into consideration that his three co-defendants were his subordinates and that if any offense was committed they were merely acting under his orders.

EXPLAINS NOMINAL FINE.

The nominal fine imposed on the Hamburg-American company was explained by Judge Howe as due to his wish to free the case as far as possible from "the odor of money." He said there was no evidence to show that the company, as such, had entered into any conspiracy and that it was improbable that Dr. Buenz alone had any power to bind it in any of the proceedings complained of.

The lighter sentence imposed on Poppinghaus was in recognition of the fact that he occupied a subordinate position and merely had carried out the orders of his superiors without having an active part in the planning of the conspiracy for which they were convicted.

In sentencing Dr. Buenz, Judge Howe announced that if the sentence was confirmed in the higher courts he would be willing to support any move to obtain clemency on the ground of the advanced age of the prisoner.

SUGGESTION OF COURT.

"This case," said Judge Howe, "will probably be taken to the Court of Appeal and to the United States Supreme Court. If sentence is affirmed and it is claimed that imprisonment would be a peril to Dr. Buenz on account of his advanced age, the case will be referred to the executive department of the government. This court will be willing to take any action that may be desirable in support of such a move."

The maximum penalty which could have been imposed on the prisoners under each indictment was two years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000. Each was indicted on two counts, but Judge Howe declared that he considered both indictments to cover one offense.

ONLY OFFICERS ENTER MONASTIR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—It was officially announced that only German, Austrian and Bulgarian officers have entered Monastir, no troops accompanying them, says a Reuter dispatch from Athens. The flags of the three nations represented by the officers who entered the city were raised over the government house, the dispatch adds.

TEUTONS CAPTURE MORE SERBIANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (via London.)—Capture of more than 2000 Serbians by Teutonic forces is reported in today's official statement by army headquarters. The captures were effected in engagements with scattered bands in the mountain regions.

VOTE CONFIDENCE IN GOVERNMENT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME, Dec. 4 (via London, Dec. 5.)—The Chamber of Deputies today voted confidence in the government by an overwhelming majority. The vote was taken after a debate on the recent statement of policy by Baron Sonnino, Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, and a speech by Premier Salandra, who said that the government was fully aware of the gravity of the international situation, but that its confidence in final victory was in no wise shaken.

FRESH SUCCESS FOR TURK ARMY.

AMSTERDAM (via London) Dec. 5.—A message from Constantinople claims a fresh success for the Turkish army in Mesopotamia, stating that it has captured two additional British gunboats equipped with 15-centimeter guns.

A Turkish official statement received here Saturday by way of Berlin mentioned the capture of two British supply ships and two gunboats. Whether the above dispatch refers to these vessels already reported or to others, is not clear.

SINK TWO MORE BRITISH SHIPS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Two more British steamships have been sunk in the Mediterranean by submarines. They were the Middleton and the Clan MacLeod.

Four men on the Middleton were killed and one was wounded. Nineteen were landed at Malta.

NO WORRIMENT ABOUT GREECE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (via London, 5:30 p.m.)—Despite the probability, according to the indications, that the Entente powers have attained favorable concessions in their negotiations with Greece, the situation as regards that country apparently is causing little anxiety in German circles.

There seems to be no disposition here to criticise Greece harshly for yielding, to a certain extent, to the demands of the Entente, averse as they are to the central powers and Bulgaria, since the position of Greece, with her exposed coast line, is realized.

ANCONA SURVIVOR REACHES NAPLES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—American Ambassador Page at Rome reported today that Irelando Patittivo, 17 years old, was the only American survivor of the Ancona disaster who so far had arrived at Naples. He is the son of a naturalized American citizen. Ambassador Page did not say whether a deposition had been secured from Patittivo, but it was presumed by officials here that one from him would be forthcoming.

The State Department has received no reply to its inquiries for details of the Austrian version of the sinking of the Ancona, made through Ambassador Penfield at Vienna.

Railway Service Continues from Monastir City.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—A dispatch to the Temps from Milan says that a special correspondent of the Milan newspaper Secolo, who was present at the evacuation of Monastir, had sent the following story from Florina, Greece, under date of Thursday:

"The Serbs held back their adversaries throughout Wednesday, but the pressure of the Bulgarians descending from Kichevo threatened the road of retreat from Monastir to Resna and forced Col. Vassititch to abandon the city. Wednesday, at 10 p.m., a Serbian battalion passed through the city in retreat, taking the route to Resna. The Serbians gave an impression of resolute heroism. They defiled through the streets in good order and in absolute silence.

"The Mayor and the Prefect organized an improvised police service hospital containing about 300 wounded, above which was hoisted the American flag. Col. Vassititch gave to the American mission for distribution among the poor 400,000 pounds of provisions. Col. Vassititch remained almost until the last. He left at 12:30 a.m. in an automobile, with the officers of his staff. The colonel made this statement:

" 'If the Bulgarians succeed now in cutting the route between Resna and Monastir they will be able to march upon Ochrida and cut the retreat of the Serbian Army of the North, which is retiring toward Struga and Elbasan (Albania.) We now have a mission to defend the defile of Resna. I hope that up to the last minute we shall be able to make of the River Cerna a new Yser. We have resisted to the last extremity, but it is impossible to withstand the greatly superior forces. We will fight to our last man, sure of the final victory of the allies, sure of the resurrection of Serbia.'

WAR IS COSTING BRITAIN MILLION DOLLARS AN HOUR

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—Half the population of England is engaged in producing war munitions to aid the 3,000,000 men in the fighting lines in a war which is costing Great Britain $1,000,000 an hour, the Hon. R. H. Brand, financial agent of David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, told business men at a luncheon here today. Those present included the Duke of Connaught, Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

"The war," continued Mr. Brand, "will be a long one and no one can tell how much more England, Canada and other parts of the empire may have to do before it is successfully ended, but, of all the things to be done to win, financial operations the most important."

National economy will win the the speaker added, and he urged nadians to practice the most economy in order to provide greatest possible aid to Great Bri He expressed appreciation of Ca decision to make financial adv to England and promised the such loans would be repaid er the close of the conflict.

GERMAN BARON ARRESTED IN ALIEN PLOT INQUIRY.

George Wilhelm von Brincken, Who Claimed Immunity from Arrest as Military Attache of Consul-General, Surrenders to the Federal Authorities — Is Charged with Attempting to Destroy Munitions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—Baron George, Wilhelm von Brincken, who claimed immunity from arrest as military attache of the German Consul-General here last night, surrendered early tonight to Federal authorities and was charged with attempting to destroy commerce with the allies. He was released on bail bond of $10,000.

The arrest of Von Brincken was in connection with the alleged conspiracy to block traffic and destroy vessels carrying food, clothing and ammunition to the allies in the European war and associated him with Charles C. Crowley, a detective, and Lewis J. Smith, Crowley's alleged accomplice, in the handling of German funds for destruction purposes.

TO PRESS OTHER CASES.

The Federal authorities also indicated the intention of pressing other neutrality cases by ordering service of a subpoena upon Robert Capelle, agent of the North German-Lloyd Steamship Company.

The complaints against both Baron von Brincken and Crowley alleged that the Baron paid Crowley $845.80 at the Palace Hotel August 1 in furtherance of the alleged conspiracy to destroy commerce, and that $250 and two payments of $50 alleged to have been made by Crowley to Lewis J. Smith were given to Crowley previously by Von Brincken.

Baron von Brincken has been a prominent figure in San Francisco society. He and Miss Milo Abercrombie recently were married here.

AN INDEPENDENT AGENT.

According to Mr. Preston, Von Brincken was an independent agent in the United States. He said that, so far as he could learn, the German officer had no connection with the embassy at Washington, the consulate-general here or other German consulates in the country.

Von Brincken and Crowley were charged in the new complaints with "interference with and attempts to destroy commerce between citizens of the several States of the United States and foreign countries."

Baron von Brincken asserted last night, according to Federal authorities, that he was military attache of the Consul-General's office here, when Don Rathbun, special agent of the Department of Justice, and J. B. Holohan, United States marshal, called on him with the warrant at Von Brincken's hotel apartments. The officers withdrew without serving the warrant.

The orders to investigate the alleged activities of Von Brincken and others came from Washington, John W. Preston, United States District Attorney, said. When the warrant was not served last night, authorities at Washington were informed, and today Mr. Preston received word that Von Brincken was not a diplomatic agent.

CAPELLE, SOUGHT IN PLOT, HIDES ABOARD A BARK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—Robert Capelle, agent for the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, sought for ten days as a witness before the Federal grand jury in connection with alleged violations of American neutrality by German agents, was reported today to have sought refuge on the interned four-masted German bark Ottawa, off Sausalito.

Capelle, it was said, left home several days ago and went on board the yacht Cyprus, owned by D. C. Jackling of San Francisco, whence he was taken at night in a small boat to the Ottawa. It was reported he had gone East.

Deputy marshals were instructed today to serve on him a subpoena to appear before the grand jury, probably Monday.

Capelle was ordered summoned particularly with reference to indictments returned against prominent shipping men and firms charged with issuing false manifests for the steamer Sacramento, which was alleged to have taken supplies to German warships off the Chilean coast a year ago.

Capelle was to be questioned also, it was reported, concerning the activities of German agents in other directions.

German funds amounting to $750,000 were sent here for use in work similar to that done by the Sacramento, according to testimony given at New York recently in the Hamburg-American case, in which verdicts of guilty were returned and sentences imposed.

THOUSANDS LAUD MEMORY OF BIG EXPOSITION.

Chamber of Commerce Sends its Congratulations to Directorate of Big San Francisco Show—Many Here Drink Toasts at High Noon While Whistles Blow.

In restaurants and cafes, private homes and clubs, as well as the usual places where liquid refreshments are served, thousands of Angelenos drank a silent toast at high noon yesterday to those who made possible the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

Lead by The Times' siren, hundreds of whistles started blowing as clocks indicated the noon hour, while church bells were rung all over the city, and in many places traffic stopped for a full two minutes.

At the Chamber of Commerce the members of the directorate assembled especially for the occasion and drank a silent toast. Immediately afterwards the following telegram was sent President Charles C. Moore of the exposition company:

"Board of directors Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, in special meeting assembled at noon today, have drunk with utmost enthusiasm a toast of heartiest congratulations to you and your associates and city of San Francisco for splendid consummation of your fondest dreams of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, which will live as one of the great achievements of all time and is now so gloriously passing into history."

At the City Hall, Mayor Sebastian drank a silent toast at the noon hour, while members of the City Council, at the suggestion of President Betkouski, joined in a toast to both the exposition and San Francisco.

GERMAN CONSUL HIRELING ABOARD THE MINNESOTA?

San Francisco Representatives of the Great Northern Steamship Company Admit a Man Named Martin is Under Arrest Charged with Crippling the Vessel—May Require Month to Put Her into Shape Again.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 4.—San Francisco representatives of the Great Northern Steamship Company tonight reluctantly admitted the reported presence of a man of the name of Martin aboard the crippled steamship Minnesota, who is suspected of being a hireling of a German consular agent and that Martin boasted in Seattle that the vessel would never reach its destination.

This information is said to have been turned over to officials of Balfour, Guthrie & Co. at Seattle today by British secret service men, and forwarded to the general offices of the steamship company in St. Paul.

Martin is said to be a water-tender aboard the Minnesota, and is reported to be a prisoner by order of Capt. Thomas W. Garlick.

A dispatch from St. Paul received tonight stated that the general officers of the Great Northern Steamship Company in that city had been informed that three men, supposed to be German spies, are in the ship's brig, charged with having attempted to wreck the vessel and having succeeded in crippling it.

C. W. Wiley, port captain of the steamship company in Seattle, who has been in San Francisco for the past three weeks, tonight confirmed the report that British secret service men in Seattle had informed the company about Martin, the water tender, and his boasts.

"The boilers were inspected and found to be in good shape before the vessel left Seattle," said Wiley. "It was decidedly to the interest of the company that everything should be in good condition, because delay means a heavy financial loss."

According to Port Captain Wiley, the Minnesota was about 600 miles south of this port at 8 o'clock tonight and was making four knots under her own power. The tugs Dauntless and Iaqua, which left here at 4 o'clock last Friday evening, are expected to meet the Minnesota off the coast of Southern California early Sunday morning. With their assistance, the Minnesota should reach here some time next Thursday.

Upon arriving here, the Minnesota will go into drydock. It is indicated that it will require a month, possibly longer, to make the necessary repairs.

CLOTURE RULE IS ABANDONED.

Democrats Give up Attempt to Commit Senate.

Possibility of Fight Upon Floor is Dispelled.

Revolt of Claude Kitchin on Defense Passed Over.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The fight to commit Senate Democrats to a cloture rule, which began immediately after the ship purchase bill was filibustered to death in the Senate at the last session, practically was abandoned by its champions at today's meeting of the Democratic caucus, although it was agreed that a non-partisan effort should be made during the session to correct abuses that have made endless filibusters a matter of frequent practice.

It was declared to be the sense of the caucus that revision of the rules should not be a partisan question, and that the whole subject should be referred to the Rules Committee. A resolution to that effect will be introduced at the opening of Congress Monday and the Rules Committee, of which Senator Overman is chairman, will endeavor to get the co-operation of Republican members in recasting the methods of Senate procedure.

OWEN GIVES UP.

Senator Owen, chairman of the special committee, which submitted a cloture rule to the caucus, withdrew the committee report today after several days' spirited discussion of the threatening subject. The step dispelled the possibility of a fight on the floor of the Senate Monday, which might have delayed organization of the Senate for many days and preventing delivery of President Wilson's adress on Tuesday as planned.

In view of the harmonious ending of the Senate caucus, Majority Leader Kern telegraphed Vice-President Marshall that his presence in Washington on Monday would not be required. The Vice-President had wished to remain in Indianapolis for another week because of the illness of Mrs. Marshall.

TO ELECT CLARKE.

The Senate therefore will be called to order by Secretary Baker, and the first order of business will be the election of Senator Clarke of Arkansas as President pro tempore. The old rules will prevail and the question of whether the Senate is a continuing body will not be pressed.

HOUSE CAUCUS.

Democratic nominations for House committees announced today and which will be laid before the House Monday, assured support for President Wilson's national defense programme. Republicans on the committees will be announced later.

Five of six new members of the Naval Committee are "big navy" men. Oscar Callaway of Texas, named to succeed the late Representative Witherspoon of Mississippi, is opposed to any material increase in the navy. Witherspoon was of the same conviction, and the naming of Callaway was in recognition of how Witherspoon would have voted if he had returned to Congress. The new members of the Military Affairs Committee are said to be unanimously in favor of a large army.

Claude Kitchin, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, is opposed to the programme of preparedness, but he said today that he was satisfied with the personnel of the committees. No opposition developed to Kitchin continuing to head the Ways and Means Committee.

These are the Democratic designations to the Army and Navy committees:

Naval—Padgett, Tennessee, chairman; Talbott, Maryland; Estopinal, Louisiana; Riordan, New York; Tribble, Georgia; Hensley, Missouri; Buchanan, Illinois; Gray, Indiana; Callaway, Texas; Hart, New Jersey; Connelly, Kansas; Oliver, Alabama, and Liebel, Pennsylvania.

Military—Hay, Virginia, chairman; Dent, Alabama; Fields, Kentucky; McKellar, Tennessee; Quin, Mississippi; Gordon, Ohio; Littlepage, West Virginia; Shallenberger, Nebraska; Farley and Caldwell of New York; Wise, Georgia; Olney, Massachusetts, and Nichols, South Carolina.

The chairmanships of the larger committees remain unchanged from the last session. Representative Ragsdale of South Carolina, who figured prominently as an insurgent of the Banking and Currency Committee last year, was not renominated to that committee, but was placed on the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Thirteen Democrats and eight members of minority parties will compose each of the larger committees.

PRESIDENTIAL WEDDING DATE.

CEREMONY AT THE HOME OF MRS. GALT.

Formal Announcement at the White House that Mr. Wilson will be Married on Saturday a Week Before Christmas — Honeymoon will Probably be Spent in South.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Extreme simplicity will be observed at the wedding of President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt, which the White House announced today will be solemnized December 18, two weeks from today, at the home of Mrs. Galt here. The arrangements virtually have been completed.

The President will have no best man at the wedding, and Mrs. Galt will not formally select a maid of honor, although one of her sisters, probably Miss Bertha Bolling of this city, will escort her during the ceremony.

The announcement at the White House that only members of the two families and the President's immediate household would attend the wedding and that no formal invitations would be issued surprised official Washington. It had been expected that at least a few of the President's friends would be invited.

The Rev. Herbert Scott Smith, rector of St. Margaret's Protestant Episcopal Church here, which Mrs. Galt has attended in recent months, has been tentatively selected as the officiating clergyman, although it is possible that the Rev. Sylvester Beach, pastor of the President's church in Princeton, may assist. The President is a Presbyterian. The President and Mrs. Galt spent practically the entire day together today discussing final arrangements for the wedding. They played golf together this morning and went for an automobile ride this afternoon.

The wedding ceremony will be held in the drawing-room of Mrs. Galt's home, where a temporary altar will be erected. The ceremony will be an evening affair. There will be no large reception afterward, but official Washington will have an opportunity to extend personal congratulations at the Pan-American reception, the first of the formal social affairs of the White House social season, which will be held January 7.

Plans for the honeymoon trip are being kept secret, but it is known they plan to leave Washington shortly after the ceremony. The Mayflower, the President's yacht, is being kept here and it has been reported that at least a part of the trip may be made on water.

In spite of intimations that the President and Mrs. Galt did not expect many wedding presents, a number of officials and close friends are planning to send them gifts.

AWAIT EXPLANATION OF SHIP SEIZURES.

American Authorities Uncertain What to do in the Premises of the Impressment of American Vessels by the British Until the English Make Clear Their Purposes and Intentions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Pending receipt of Great Britain's official explanation, State Department officials still were uncertain tonight just what attitude the department would adopt regarding British requisition of the American steamer Hocking and other vessels of the American Trans-Atlantic Company without prize court proceedings. It is expected a protest will be sent to London; but Secretary Lansing wants to know, before determining its form, the grounds upon which Great Britain expects to justify the action. Inquiries have been made through both the British Embassy here and the American Embassy in London, but no reply has been received.

Officials would not comment on press dispatches indicating the British explanation would be that these ships were merely being held without proceedings so that their cases might be transferred from the prize courts on this side of the Atlantic to the more important court at London. It was pointed out, however, that the generally accepted rules of prize courts required that seized vessels be taken before the nearest courts, and that due regard shall be had for the convenience of the owners.

It generally is expected among officials here that Great Britain will endeavor to discredit affidavits being collected by the American Trans-Atlantic Company in an effort to prove that the corporation is owned wholly by Americans. It is recalled that when the company was in process of formation last May the British government called the attention of the State Department toward what is regarded as suspicious circumstances connected with the purchase of vessels. The suggestion was made by Great Britain that at least a part of the money with which the line's ships were bought and registered under the American flag came indirectly from the German government.

DOCTOR ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SENECA (Kan.) Dec. 4.—Dr. Herbert R. Marshall, who was arrested at Sabetha, Kan., yesterday on a charge of murdering his wife in Salt Lake City last Sunday, shot himself in the head in the County Jail here this afternoon, according to a statement by the jail officials. His condition was said to be dangerous, although the bullet did not touch the brain.

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR CROSS, SICK FEVERISH CHILD

Look, Mother! Is tongue coated, breath hot and stomach sour?

Harmless "fruit laxative" best to clean tender liver and bowels.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

DICKENS IS HELD AS A PATRICIDE.

SON OF MURDERED MAN IN COLORADO IS FORMALLY ACCUSED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOULDER (Colo.) Dec. 4.—Rienzi C. Dickens today was charged with the murder of his father, W. H. Dickens, in a complaint filed with J. E. Bemis, justice of the peace. A direct information will be filed in District Court Monday, according to George Pomeroy, Deputy District Attorney. The complaint today was filed, according to officials, to prevent any possible effort to secure his release.

The elder Dickens was killed in his home at Longmont Tuesday night by a shot fired through the window.

The son was taken into custody yesterday after the funeral, after a number of detectives had unearthed evidence which they claim was sufficient to connect the son with the murder.

The prisoner maintains his innocence and is supported by members of the Dickens family.

The will of the murdered man, a banker, and reputed wealthy, has not yet been found.

I.W.W. THREAT TO COME HERE.

Riff-raff from Seattle may Settle Down Upon Us.

Anarchists and Undesirables Defy Law and Order.

Trouble for Los Angeles if Red Gang Arrives.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SEATTLE, Dec. 4.—The Reds, the I.W.W. and the anarchists who have jointly maintained a befouled nest here for some years are to migrate to Los Angeles, according to a recent announcement. What Los Angeles may expect may be gathered from the experiences of Seattle with these undesirables.

Open and organized defiance of the law and the Constitution, and publicly-expressed desire to overthrow the institutions of this country, mingled with denunciations of the American flag, have marked the progress of the Industrial Workers of the World since it rose in this section less than a decade ago and, after a brief period of apparent success five years ago, now is in decline.

The death of Leonard Olsson, who committed suicide in Tacoma, November 26, 1911, illustrates the decadence of the organization in this section. Olsson was a member of the I.W.W. and a longshoreman, who gained fame four years ago when former United States Judge Cornelius H. Hanford deprived him of his citizenship papers because he had denied being a member of any organization opposed to the present form of government of the United States. While it was charged later that Olsson was a Socialist at the time he was admitted, Representative Victor Berger (Socialist) of Wisconsin was interested in Olsson's case and precipitated a Congressional investigation. During the investigation Judge Hanford resigned his seat on the bench.

CAUSED GREAT FUSS.

Although the radicals made a great fuss over Olsson's death, four years ago last month, when he lay a corpse in Tacoma, neither the Socialists nor the I.W.W. made any move to care for his body and he would have gone to a pauper's grave had it not been for the longshoremen.

The I.W.W made an abortive attempt to save the life of Joseph Hillstrom, who was executed for murder in Utah recently, by means of an affidavit, which the authorities here declare was a palpable fake. The affidavit signed by "William Busky" was strenuously urged by the local I.W.W., but without effect. Efforts of the police to locate Busky failed. The police insisted it was a fraud and dropped the matter in order to avoid giving further publicity to the I.W.W., that organization thriving on publicity and endeavoring by all means in its power to get into the limelight.

During the winter of 1914 and 1915 gangs of I.W.W.'s raided a number of Seattle restaurants, snatching food from the counters and causing considerable damage. Buildings occupied by the Salvation Army were also invaded by mobs of I.W.W.'s. In one instance a general fight between the rioters and a small band of Salvation Army workers occurred, which resulted in the lawbreakers being taken to jail. About thirty I.W.W.'s were arrested as the result of these riots. After they had been taken to the City Jail they renewed their activities. Making hard balls out of plaster, which they tore from the wall, and water, the prisoners pelted the jailers whenever they tried to quiet them. The rioters were only subdued after the jailers, on instructions from the Chief, turned the hose on them. All of the I.W.W.'s were given stiff sentences at the county stockade and warned by the police judge that the penalty would be doubled if they were brought in for any similar offenses. For a time this put a quietus on the pernicious activities of the I.W.W. organization.

ANARCHIST COLONY.

The anarchist colony at Home, near Tacoma, has steadily dwindled in importance for the past five years. During the search for Kaplan, the Los Angeles dynamiter, he visited Home frequently, and was also entertained in the homes of Seattle anarchists. W. C. Owen, for years editor of the Magon Revolutionary Mexican paper at Los Angeles, has spent much of the year at Home colony and Emma Goldman pays annual visits. Jay Fox, editor of an anarchist paper at the colony, and who had been convicted of publishing obscene matter, was saved from a jail term by a pardon from Gov. Lister recently. It is said that less than two hundred persons now remain in the colony.

But the I.W.W. met their severest defeat in July, 1913, when they tangled with Uncle Sam's soldiers and sailors during the Seattle Potlatch celebration that year. For weeks street speakers had been making incendiary speeches unmolested on the principal street corners of the city, through the general policy of Mayor Cotterill not to make what he considered unnecessary arrests.

When the Potlatch festivities began, the Pacific reserve fleet with 2000 sailors and the soldiers stationed at the forts guarding Puget Sound were brought to Seattle to participate in the festivities. The street speakers immediately turned their vituperative attacks upon the men in uniform.

Wednesday night, July 16, two soldiers and sailor who were passing a group addressed by one of these haranguers, were insulted by the speakers and then attacked by the men in the crowd. Before the soldiers could escape two of them were severely injured.

SAILORS GET BUSY.

The news of this attack caused great indignation among the men of the fleet and on Friday night when they were given shore leave groups of sailors, reinforced by indignant civilians, fell upon the establishments maintained by the Industrial Workers, completely wrecking them. The movement was well organized and the men took care not to damage property other than that used by the I.W.W. and the Socialists. And the police, realizing their inability to cope with the soldiers and sailors, made no attempt to disperse the mobs, believing it wiser to let them destroy the property used by the I.W.W., than to force an armed clash with possible loss of innocent lives.

The mobs held full sway until near midnight when patrols sent ashore from the fleet rounded up the sailors and sent them back to their ships.

The excitement continued next day when Mayor George F. Cotterill closed the saloons and forcibly prevented the Seattle Times, which championed the cause of the sailors, from publishing its early editions because the Times would not submit its proofs to the Mayor for censoring. Late in the day the Times obtained an injunction restraining the Mayor from interfering with publication of the paper and the late editions were issued as usual.

I.W.W. NEARLY QUELLED.

The sailors' attacks took the starch out of the I.W.W. and although they continued to wage an aggressive street-speaking campaign they were much milder in their utterances and their activities soon began to wane. There was a spasm of street speaking, mainly by Socialists, when the late Judge John E. Humphries, whose injunction prevented Mayor Cotterill from interfering with the Times, began to throw the street speakers into jail for violating orders he issued restricting their activities and for a time it appeared that trouble was to break out anew. But Gov. Lister effected a compromise as a result of which 100 street speakers who had been imprisoned were released and street speakers were confined to a few isolated corners where traffic and business were not interrupted. This arrangement is still in force and the activities of the I.W.W. now are confined to the lodging-house district below Yesler Way.

The city of Spokane, as a municipality, had the most serious clash with the I.W.W., agitators of any community in the Northwest. At the dull seasons in the mining camps and the off seasons for harvesting, Spokane is the gathering place for itinerant workers from the Coeur d'Alene, the Kootenay country and the Inland Empire. Idling in Spokane in the fall and winter of 1909 and 1910, these gangs of men furnished large and willing audiences nightly for numerous soap-box orators. These street speakers, preaching the revolutionary I.W.W. propaganda, became so violent in their utterances and their ever-increasing crowds on the most prominent street corners in Spokane's business district became such an offense to the business men and other good citizens of the city as to cause a general outcry against street speaking.

STOP STREET SPEAKING.

The Spokane City Council promptly passed ordinances forbidding street speaking. The police announced that they would rigidly enforce the ordinance by arresting the speakers, and the police judge announced that he would give every speaker so arrested the limit, which would amount to some sixty days in jail.

This action met with a defi from the I.W.W. agitators. They sprung up on street corners in ever-increasing numbers, boasting that they would literally fill the jails to overflowing and thereby force the public to house and feed them during these oncoming winter months. From all over the Northwest the agitators hastened to Spokane to get in on the jailing and free feeding. They more than made good their boast, although charges of inhuman treatment and cruelties in the jails and stockades indicated that their boast of getting free food and housing was not all that they had hoped for.

COMING OF TAFT.

The coming of President Taft and W. J. Bryan to Spokane while this controversy was in its most bitter stage added interest to the quarrel, for both were billed to speak from street corners. The I.W.W.s started to raise the question of law-violation and demand the arrest of the President, but were dissuaded from doing so. With Bryan, however, they did so raise the question, but succeeded only in making newspaper stories and comment.

The fight dragged through the winter and the I.W.W.s actually made the citizens tired of threatening to throw them into jail and after a fight that had lasted months, a truce was finally patched up whereby street speaking was permitted on certain street corners.

A fight for the privilege of preaching their revolutionary doctrines on street corners, something similar to that at Spokane, occurred shortly afterwards in the Gray's Harbor lumber-manufacturing district in Southwest Washington, five years ago. The fight finally reached the stage of a strike of unskilled labor which lasted several weeks, but which was an utter failure. This strike marked the downfall of the I.W.W. attempt to control the lumber workers. For several days after the men in the Gray's Harbor mills went out, no demands were presented, the leaders being unable to decide how much they could squeeze from the employers. The mill owners refused to deal with the I.W.W. and after a few incipient riots were quelled by the use of fire hose and water, weapons most detested by the industrial workers, the men, abandoned by their leaders, returned to work and there has been no further trouble in the lumber camps.

BLAME THE I.W.W.

Conservative Socialists also blame the I.W.W. for disrupting their organization. Three years ago the Socialists of Washington mustered 40,000 votes, but the Industrial Workers, with their incendiarism and direct-action propaganda, invaded the party and drove from its ranks the conservative Socialists who favored constructive measures obtained by the ballot, until today it is doubtful whether the Socialists can muster a fourth of the votes they polled in 1912.

LUMBER COMPANY WINS.

Suit to Recover Over Half a Million Dollars at Portland, Or., Dismissed Without Prejudice.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Dec. 4.—The suit brought by Parker Stenick, trustee in bankruptcy for the E. H. Dodge Lumber Company, to recover $614,000 from Willard N. Jones, Fred A. Kribs and their corporation, the J. K. Lumber Company, was decided in favor of the defendants by the State Circuit Court here today.

The court dismissed the case without prejudice and suit may be brought again. In his decision Judge John P. Kavanaugh stated that the accusations seemed ample to bring suit to recover the amount of money expended by Dodge in his purchase of the timber lands, but that substantial evidence of fraud was lacking.

SCORES THE RAG MAN.

Declared to be Enemy of the W Grower and not the Low Ta Charles Coopey.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PENDLETON (Or.) Dec. 4.—The rag man, not a low tariff, is the enemy of the wool grower, declared Charles Coopey of Portland, who addressed the annual convention of the Oregon Wool Growers' Association here to-day. He asserted that the truthful branding of fabrics would in a short time at least double the wool production of the Northwest.

"What wool men need," he said, "is not tariff protection, but protection against old rags, the old rag man being the chief competitor of the w grower."

OIL VICTORY AFFIRMED.

United States Circuit Court of Appeals Decides in the Kern C Cases.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—The government's victory in the first the important oil suits to oust operators from Kern county oil was affirmed today by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in taining injunctions granted operation of Kern oil wells by El Dora Oil Company and the way Oil Company granted by United States District Court. The lands involved were valued at than a million dollars.

The Circuit Court upheld the government's view that the suits properly brought in a court of equity. Upon this, it was said, depended question of whether or not these many similar suits would have to be retried in a court of law.

"If the nature of an injury goes the substance of an estate," the Circuit Court decision said, "to prevent irreparable mischief, equity will interfere and not require the party to resort to a court of law."

The lands in question were withdrawn from entry by the Department of the Interior in 1908, it was shown, and later were included in the withdrawal order of 1909. The government contended that wells not bored on the lands until January 1, 1910.

MERCHANT MARINE BILL.

Prospects for the Administr Measure Said to be Better Clarke is for It.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Pro for the administration merchant marine bill at the coming session of Congress were enhanced tonight w became known that Senator P. Clarke of Arkansas, who Democratic revolt against the purchase bill in the last session, with favor upon the new proposed by government heads.

Senator Clarke, who was inated for president pro tempo the majority caucus after a fight against him based on his sition to the ship-purchase bill, be known that he would not the new merchant marine drafted after conferences be Secretaries McAdoo and Redfield.

The Arkansas Senator, during debate in the Democratic caucus day, was asked by several adm tration Senators for his opinion new bill. He frankly stated th saw no objection to it and could it his support.

His opposition to the bill last s he said, was because of its gov ment-ownership feature. The now proposed by Secretaries Mc and Redfield contemplates a auxiliary merchant marine wh could favor, and provides for ment ownership of stock only private capital is lacking, thus inating the dominant government poration feature of the old bill.

Senator Clarke's attitude wa matter of optimistic comment administration Senators tonig said it had been influential in structing a harmonious Senate preventing a struggle over clot the opening of Congress next day.

CHEAP MONEY BELOW BORDER.

Now Most Serious Problem in Republic of Mexico.

Arredondo may be Ambassador to United States.

Fighting is Again Started Near Agua Prieta.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LAREDO (Tex.) Dec. 4.—Passengers arriving here today from points as far south as Mexico City said that, although industrial and commercial conditions have commenced to improve, many foreign-owned plants were being operated solely to retain their concessions, rather than to obtain a profit. Cheap money has become a serious problem throughout the republic, it was said.

At Monterey the public utilities plants, owned by a Canadian corporation, are being operated at a great loss, according to the travelers. As an example, they said, telephone service is rendered at a rate of three pesos a month, or 18 cents gold. Other corporations desiring to protect their concessions are doing business on a parity.

Carranza is at Monterey, enveloped in administration affairs. Persons close in touch with the first chief expect him to make an announcement soon regarding the appointment of an Ambassador to the United States. The name of Eliseo Arredondo, Carranza's personal agent at Washington, continues to be mentioned prominently.

The military campaign against Chihuahua state has commenced, but the troop movement is slow. Passengers from Torreon said that city was almost deserted.

Travelers direct from the capital said it was impossible to exaggerate health conditions there with epidemics of smallpox, typhus and other diseases prevalent.

MORE FIGHTING NEAR AGUA PRIETA

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) Dec. 4.—Advices received tonight from Agua Prieta, Sonora, opposite here, stated that fighting had started between the Carranza forces, guarding the Nacozari railroad, and the Villa troops of Gen. Jose Rodriguez, who are trying to break through the Carranza lines between Fronteras and Esqueda. Agua Prieta was almost stripped of guns and soldiers to send reinforcements to the Carranza forces.

Gen. P. Elias Calles, second in command of the Carranza forces, who arrived in Agua Prieta late today, hastily gathered early tonight all available soldiers of the garrison and left for the scene of the fighting. He was said to have taken nearly every machine gun in the town with him.

A short time later, reports received here said, a special train loaded with artillery left Agua Prieta for Fronteras.

The few soldiers remaining in the Mexican town were stationed near the international boundary line to strengthen the Mexican guard there. Neither the Mexican nor United States authorities would allow persons to cross the international line in an effort, it was said, to conceal the movements of Carranza troops.

Arrivals here tonight from the State of Chihuahua stated that Villa forces had confiscated all live stock of Mormon colonists in the Casas Grandes Valley and that they had threatened to destroy all property if driven from that section by Carranza soldiers.

The colonists, it was said, were compelled to haul lumber and perform other tasks for the Villa soldiers. They were given for their work, green hides from their own cattle which had been seized.

At various towns in the district, the arrivals declared, Villa authorities had commandeered stocks of grain and merchandise valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars, threatening with death those who opposed their wholesale confiscations.

Gen. M. M. Dieguez, the Carranza commander who has been operating in the vicinity of Hermosillo, capital of Sonora, was said here to be due in Agua Prieta tonight or tomorrow, supposedly for a conference with Gen. Alvaro Obregon.

STOPS ORGAN OF CARRANZA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MATAMOROS (Mex.) Dec. 4.—The first official act of Gen. Alfredo Ricaut, newly-appointed commander of the Mexican border from Piedras Negras to the Gulf, was to order the suspension today of publication of El Democrata, the Carranza official organ here. Its editors, recently ordered discharged for publishing articles which the authorities regarded as encouraging the bandit troubles on the American side, were removed today.

Today's edition was found to contain article strongly upholding the retring editors' actions. All copies were destroyed. The paper will resume publication when new editors arrive.

TEXAS RANGER FOUND GUILTY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Dec. 4.—H. L. Roberson, formerly a sergeant of the Texas Rangers and later foreman of Morris and Company's T O. ranch in Chihuahua, Mex., was found guilty here today of the murder of H. F. Boykin, a ranchman. Boykin was shot last January at Sierra Blanca, Tex. Walter Sitters, a friend of Roberson, also was killed by a shot directed at Boykin.

Punishment was fixed at twenty years in prison.

The arrival of large bodies of troops at Juarez today from Chihuahua City was taken locally to indicate the evacuation of the capital had begun. Gen. Luis Herrera is reported occu Santa Rosalia, Chihuahua, about 100 miles south of the capital. Santa Rosalia was evacuated by Villa forces Thursday.

MRS. MISKINOFF ACCUSES PRINCE.

FORMER MRS. CROCKER GOURAUD REPLIES TO HIS SUIT FOR SEPARATION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 4.—An answer filed in the Supreme Court today by Mrs. Aimee Crocker Gouraud Miskinoff, in which she asks for separation from Alexandre Miskinoff, calling himself a Russian Prince, contains the first admission by the former Mrs. Gouraud that she married the alleged Prince in London last year. The answer also discloses that Miskinoff has sued for separation on the ground wife abandoned him July 1 last and has refused to return to him.

Mrs. Miskinoff asks for separation on the ground of cruelty by the alleged Prince and because he "misrepresented his social position and condition in life." She also asks the court to embody in the decree in her favor the finding that there has been no issue of her marriage with Miskinoff.

Mrs. Miskinoff stated that she married the plaintiff on June 11, 1914, in London.

Making further accusation against her husband, the defendant said:

"Immediately after our marriage plaintiff began to pay court to a young girl, then 15 years old, and neglected and abused me. He devoted himself completely to the young girl, for whom he declared most violent affection, attachment and infatuation, and who, as a result of his assiduous attentions, returned his affection and agreed to marry him."

LOS ANGELES MAN PRAISES AN-URIC

Every day Dr. Pierce's personal representative meets many people and many are the stories of suffering told to him. Men and women who for years suffered from kidney trouble, backache, dizzy spells and rheumatism now come to Dr. Pierce's headquarters at the Sun Drug Co. Store, northeast corner of Broadway and Fifth street, and praise An-uric for the real good it is doing and has done for them.

Frequent cases of chronic rheumatism have been conquered by An-uric where all other medicines have failed. Here is a signed statement given by a Los Angeles railroad man, who was benefited by An-uric when nothing else would help him:

My work requires good health and steady nerves and until six weeks ago I found nothing that would bring me relief from spells of rheumatism, backache and dizziness. I was told by our family physician that I had uric acid and a form of Bright's disease, but no prescription helped me. Then I read of Dr. Pierce's An-uric and took but one bottle of the tablets when I found much relief. I have taken, all told, three bottles of Dr. Pierce's An-uric Tablets and now feel entirely free from my old troubles and am able to perform my work each day.

(Signed) EDWARD ADAMS,
437 W. Eighth Ave., Los Angeles, Cal.

Dr. Pierce, of the World's Dispensary Medical Association of Buffalo, N. Y., has made safe, reliable family remedies for over forty years. Recently his study and effort discovered An-uric, which has proven itself to be a mild, harmless remedy, non-injurious to any part of the body, but a positive enemy to uric acid.

When your system is full of dangerous uric acid your kidneys can no longer properly cleanse the body—backache, dizzy spells and rheumatism are the first danger signals.

To overcome all this trouble, ask your druggist for a package of Dr. Pierce's An-uric Tablets. They will at once convince you of their value by getting rid of uric acid and rheumatic pains. Dr. Pierce's personal representative has headquarters at the Sun Drug Co. Store, northeast corner of Broadway and Fifth street (the Green Front Store.) He daily meets the people and will be glad to explain the merits of Dr. Pierce's medicine and give you helpful hints to regain your health.

Mail orders for Dr. Pierce's medicine receive prompt attention.

Samuel Western's Profit from Alfalfa Seed on 25 acres of Pahvant Valley Land

Western Securities Co.,
710-712 Hollingsworth Bldg.,
Los Angeles.

Gentlemen: I produced 80 tons of alfalfa from my 40 acres last season; I let 25 acres go to seed, from which I got 330 bushels of strictly high-grade seed. It went 14 bushels to the acre, from which I received 11½ cents per pound, uncleaned. My net profits from seed amounted to $2350. My hay at $9 a ton was worth $720. I watered my field about the 1st of May, giving it one irrigation. I cultivated merely with a common harrow. This is the best and surest alfalfa seed country that I know of. That I feel 71 years young I ascribe to the high elevation, pure air, perfect climate, and pure water of this valley.

This is certainly an extra fine sugar beet country, and for hogs and dairying it cannot be excelled.

Congress.

OUR DEFENSES CHIEF PROBLEM.

Sixty-fourth Congress will Convene Tomorrow.

Wilson's Address is Expected at Noon of Tuesday.

Will Give Special Attention to War Revelations.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—National defense and the means of providing money to carry out the administration plans, admittedly, are the chief problems which the Sixty-fourth Congress will face when it assembles at noon Monday.

Democratic leaders who had hoped to make military preparedness a nonpartisan question are not confident of success, notwithstanding the widespread indorsement given President Wilson's programme by prominent members and organizations affiliated with minority parties. The chief stumbling block is the method of raising the enormous revenues which will be needed.

Certain Republican leaders have indicated they are ready to make political capital of the Democratic dilemma should the party in power find itself compelled to resort to a bond issue or any of the tariff measures hitherto condemned by them. With leaders of both parties looking toward the national campaign next fall the session promises to be of unusual interest.

Washington is enlivened tonight with the last of the arriving members of the new Congress, all of them aware of the huge legislative tasks ahead. The nation's law making bodies have not been in session for nine months, the longest legislative hiatus in the last two administrations, during which problems of supreme importance to the nation have arisen.

President Wilson will outline the salient needs of the country in a personally-delivered address to Congress Tuesday noon, after which committees will be organized and actual legislative grinding initiated. In his opening address the President is not expected to present in detailed form all of the legislation the administration has in mind, but as Congress proceeds he plans to send messages on special subjects.

The President's first communication probably will concern chiefly the needs of the army and navy, giving especial attention to revelations and responsibilities growing out of the European war and what may be done to finance a plan of preparedness to assure continued safety of the nation.

The new Congress is still Democratic, but not so overwhelmingly as it has been on previous occasions when President Wilson addressed it. In the Senate the party has a slightly-increased majority, but political fortunes have reduced the almost unwieldy force in the House that came in on the Democratic landslide that elected Mr. Wilson, so that now the party will have only a majority over all of twenty-five votes. This is regarded as a narrow margin in a body composed of 435 members, requiring a party deflection of only thirteen votes to defeat a measure.

THE CLASSIFICATION.

The new House as officially classified will consist of 230 Democrats, 197 Republicans, 6 Progressives, 1 Independent and 1 Socialist. In the Senate there are 56 Democrats and 40 Republicans. Republican ranks in the House have been swelled by the return of many familiar political figures who were leaders in the long period of Republican supremacy. Among them are former Speaker Joseph G. Cannon and William B. McKinley, former chairman of the Republican Legislative Committee, both of Illinois; Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, son-in-law of Col. Roosevelt; William A. Rodenberg of Illinois; Ebenezer J. Hill, for years a Republican power on the Ways and Means Committee, and John Q. Tilson, both of Connecticut; George E. Foss of Illinois, former chairman of the Naval Committee; Cyrus A. Sulloway of New Hampshire, former chairman of the Pension Committee, remembered as towering above the heads of all other members; George W. Loud of Michigan, Benjamin K. Focht and Daniel F. Lafean of Pennsylvania and many others. Prominent members of the Sixty-third House who do not reappear at this session are Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, who now is a Senator; A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania; Robert F. Broussard of Louisiana, who also went to the Senate; Charles L. Bartlett of Georgia, Timothy T. Ansberry, Robert J. Buckley and Stanley J. Bowdle of Ohio, Jeremiah Donavan of Connecticut, H. Robert Fowler of Illinois, Henry George, Jr., Lathrop Brown, Herman A. Metz, Frank E. Wilson, Henry M. Goldfogle and Jefferson M. Levy of New York, Richmond Pearson Hobson of Alabama, who has led the fight for national prohibition; C. H. Burke and E. W. Martin of South Dakota, Victor Murdock of Kansas and many others.

New Democrats in the Senate are Mr. Underwood of Alabama, James D. Phelan of California, J. C. W. Beckham of Kentucky, Mr. Broussard of Louisiana, Edwin S. Johnson of South Dakota and Paul O. Husting of Wisconsin. On the Republican side the new Senators are Charles Curtis of Kansas, formerly a member; James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York and Warren G. Hardin of Ohio. Senators who have retired after years of service include Root of New York, Burton of Ohio, Perkins of California, Thornton of Louisiana, Bristow of Kansas, Crawford of South Dakota and Stephenson of Wisconsin. Others who retired after short service are White of Alabama and Camden of Kentucky.

In relative importance on the administration's legislative programme, the army and navy increases in the five-year plan for perfecting the national defenses come first. Allied with them is the revenue problem, which involves consideration of many subjects. Re-enactment of the war tax which expires by limitation, increasing the income tax, amending the tariff to retain the duty on sugar, which otherwise would go on the free list next year, bond issues, some sort of tax on incomes from the manufacture of munitions of war, and an inheritance tax, all involve serious problems and there is great diversity of opinion as to what should be done.

THE WOOL DUTY.

Republican leaders who are expected to favor generally a large army and navy increase, will seek to restore protective tariff rates, and prolonged discussion and vigorous political scheming are expected when once the tariff is opened. Some Democrats think the duty on wool should be restored.

The inheritance tax has many advocates and there are some who would amend the war tax materially by assessing all liquors heavily. Others would revive the agitation to tax gasoline and automobiles.

Already Democratic opposition to the President's army and navy programme has developed, and the defection of Majority Leader Kitchin, who will succeed Mr. Underwood as head of the majority party in the House, has been widely heralded. The administration, however, will not be embarrassed for adequate marshals on the floor of the House. Chairman Hay of the Military Committee will lead the fight for the army bill; Representative Padgett will guide the destinies of naval appropriations, and they will be aided by Representatives Sherley, chairman of the Fortifications Committee; Fitzgerald, of appropriations, and Speaker Clark, himself, who is steadfastly an advocate of reasonable preparedness.

In connection with the preparedness programme, complications are expected to involve proposed investigation of organizations which are urging Congress to make heavy appropriations. Lobby committees of Senate and House expect to have plenty to do. Their inquiries may lead into the realm of foreign relations, for there have been predictions that Congress would demand information of the government's investigations into bomb plots, attempts to cripple munition plants in this country, and of other operations growing out of the European war.

IMPORTANT MEASURES.

Important measures which will be urged upon Congress include:

Laws to extend the American merchant marine; rural credit improvement through establishment of farm loan banks, upon which a joint committee has been working for many months; Philippine self-government and ultimate independence; revision of the trust laws to prevent dumping of cheap foreign products in American markets after the war and to permit American manufacturers to establish collective selling agencies abroad; national prohibition, prohibition for the District of Columbia, a Federal amendment for woman suffrage, amendments to the bank law, modification of the seaman's law, a national child labor law, conservation legislation to provide a new system for water power sites and mineral resources of the country; a law to provide for regulation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the issuance of railroad securities, and many other measures.

The majority in the Senate will try to overturn precedent and establish a cloture rule, thus making endless filibustering impossible. Senator Owen, chairman of a special committee to revise the rules, will submit a report at the outset of the session and an effort will be made to adopt a modified cloture rule before anything else is done.

The long-delayed treaty with Colombia, including an expression of regret for the partition of Panama, and providing for payment of $25,000,000, is still pending. The Nicaraguan treaty proposing payment by the United States of $3,000,000 for another canal strip and naval station rights is in the Senate and the new treaty for a financial protectorate over Haiti will be sent in at once. It is the purpose of the majority to force all the treaties to a vote.

Nothing you could think of will make such a delightful Christmas gift and save so many steps in your kitchen! Seated before this fine new Hoosier, your Christmas Dinner may be prepared in half the time, but remember

You Must Act Quickly!

If you want to share in the free distribution of Iris Products, which apply only to the first fifty memberships.

The Famous Hoosier $1 Plan

1. One dollar puts any Hoosier you select in your home.
2. One dollar weekly dues quickly pays for it.
3. The low price fixed by the factory prevails absolutely.
4. The sale is under direct supervision of the Hoosier Company.
5. When this allotment is taken, the sale closes.
6. If you are not DELIGHTED with your cabinet, we gladly will refund your money.

You can have your cabinet delivered the day before Christmas if you like, but you must join now to share this offer.

Think what a splendid Christmas gift this Hoosier cabinet filled with Iris Products will make!

Someone will act in your place if you do not.

You realize, of course, that this liberal offer can only be made on a limited number of cabinets. When these memberships are taken—

1. The offer of Iris Products free will end without further notice.
2. The "Hoosier Plan" terms will be withdrawn.
3. Our regular terms will then prevail. It cannot take you ten minutes to decide, once for all, whether you intend to purchase now or later—and you are deciding, remember, whether or not you will save miles of unnecessary steps you now take.

But unless you at once decide you may decide too late to own this greatest of all Hoosier Cabinets on this liberal HOOSIER PLAN. You should without fail grasp your opportunity and see this cabinet tomorrow.

TELLS HOW AN AEROPLANE SANK A GERMAN U-BOAT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Dec. 2, 4:55 a.m. (delayed in transmission.)—On their return to Paris from Dunkirk today, Lieuts. Vieny and De Sincay told of the destruction of a German submarine by an allied aeroplane, announcement of which had been made previously by Field Marshal French on November 29.

The Overseas News Agency of Berlin yesterday denied any German submarine had been sunk by an aeroplane.

"It was at noon on Sunday," said Lieut. Vieny. "For a half-hour we had been searching for undersea boats.

"We were 10,000 feet up when we sighted two submarines five miles off shore west of Nieuport. It was an ideal spot for our purpose. The water was shallow, giving the submarines little chance of escape. Plunging in wide spirals, we came down to about 300 feet above the sea. One of the boats got away, but the other remained.

"When we were certain of not missing we let go the first bomb and had the satisfaction of seeing we had made a hit.

"We circled around twice more over the doomed submarine. A second bomb did the rest of the work. She broke in half and sank."

Lieut. De Sincay has been recommended for the Legion of Honor. It is understood Lieut. Vieny will receive the Victoria Cross.

The storm, which began Friday night and brought a heavy rainfall early yesterday morning and intermittent showers later in the day, is passing eastward and the Weather Bureau predicts clearing weather. It is probable most of today will be bright and sunny.

This storm brings the rainfall for the season up to a figure slightly more than for the same period last year. The rain just at this time is expected to give impetus to growing pasturage and has put the land in good condition for the plowman.

Practically no troubles were caused to the city's street department by this storm, although for a while early yesterday morning the fall was very heavy. Much debris was washed onto paved streets and, although Saturday is usually a half holiday for the street department and the employees do not work on Sundays, they were kept employed yesterday afternoon and will work today to put the paved streets back into their usual presentable condition.

The central portion of the southern area of the storm was over Nevada and the movement was eastward.

TREES AND POLES GO.

POMONA FEELS A GALE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Dec. 4.—A heavy windstorm, which uprooted trees and telegraph poles preceded the hard rain which visited this community before dawn today. The rain continued throughout the day with intermittent showers. Electric light and telephone companies report considerable damage to their lines throughout the city and valley as a consequence of the gale, but aside from trouble of this sort the rain was only of benefit. The soil has been very dry the past fortnight. A shower came down gently and nearly all of it soaked into the earth and also washed from the citrus trees a great deal of dirt and smut caused by recent fumigation and spraying. This will cut down the expense of washing the fruit at the various packing-houses this winter.

SNOW IN HILLS.

ROAD PROBABLY CLOSED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Dec. 4.—The San Bernardino Mountain Range is covered by snow ranging up to eighteen inches in Bear Valley, the Santa Ana Canyon road is hopelessly blocked by snow and probably is shut to travel for the winter, while the valley is soaking under a fall of rain, as a result of the first real storm this winter, which started early today and continued until late this afternoon.

Driven in from the southeast early today, the rain descended steadily. Temperatures in the mountain sections dropped at once and the snow began to fall. The Santa Ana Canyon road, the short line from San Bernardino to Bear Valley, is filled with drifts and travel into the valley for the rest of the winter will probably be over the long desert highway through Victorville. The snow means the beginning of picture-taking by several movie companies in the valley.

For the ranchmen the rain means softening of the ground for the beginning of the winter plowing and grain sowing.

FOOT OF SNOW.

SLIDES ON TOLL ROAD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Dec. 4.—Rain, accompanied by a high wind, fell heavily here last night for several hours and although it slowed up, it did not stop until about 9 o'clock this morning.

A foot of snow covered Mt. Wilson this morning and will delay the work of the twenty-five carpenters who are engaged in the erection of the new hotel there. Manager Cory, with ten other men, was kept busy all day clearing the toll road, which was blocked by four slides caused by the rain and snow. The big boulders which obstructed the way had to be removed by dynamite. There was no snow at Switzer's, but it rained there in torrents.

For more than an hour last night, several streets in Pasadena were a foot under water and the fire department was called to a Belfontaine-street residence to pump out the water which filled the basement of the house. The velocity of the wind was [illegible] miles an hour more than it has been for a long time.

WHIMSICAL STORM.

HEAVY FOR BRIEF TIME.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 4.—High winds and blinding rains swept the county between midnight and 5 o'clock this morning and the storm cleared with daylight as suddenly as it had come. A few trees blown down by the wind is the sum total of damage reported from all over the county. The storm has proved of much benefit, according to ranchmen. The sun has shone all day, but a very low barometer indicates another storm brewing. At 2 o'clock this morning every street in Santa Barbara was awash. The run-off from the streams was so rapid that no damage was done.

At Santa Maria the Santa Maria River rose so rapidly that auto traffic across the bridge to San Luis Obispo was stopped early, as it was feared the bridge might go out, but these fears were baseless.

A light snow has fallen on the interior range of mountains.

SHIPPING DELAYED.

BY STRONG HEAD WINDS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Dec. 4.—Steamers arriving from the north today were delayed by the strong headwinds, as a result of the southeast gale that has been raging along the coast. The Pacific Coast liner Congress was two hours late and did not arrive from Seattle and San Francisco until 6 p.m. The Yale, from San Francisco, was over an hour late.

The big blow hit this section at midnight and for two hours the southeast wind kept the Weather Bureau wind gauge at the South Coast Yacht Club spinning at the rate of forty-eight miles an hour.

Some High Water.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Dec. 4.—Moisture much desired by grain, sugar beet and lima bean growers fell copiously today, more than an inch putting the soil in excellent condition for plowing. In the beet-sugar district to the northeast of the city many ranchmen, attracted by the satisfactory price of barley, will plant this cereal on their acres as soon as the ground is in condition. The downpour flooded several street intersections and the wind blew down signs and a few trees in the city. The Los Angeles River was high at Los Cerritos, and inundated much of the country west of that place. The teams hauling to the city dump were forced to discontinue on account of the rising waters which surrounded the two houses there. No damage was reported along the ocean front.

Wires Suffer.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Dec. 4.—Accompanied by unusually high wind, a roaring rainstorm hit this city early this morning, temporarily putting out of commission a great number of telephones, and interfering with the telegraph and electric light service. Tons of sand were washed out upon the streets from the mountains. Rivulets formed in an hour and flowed bank full, but as far as can be learned no material damage was done.

Moisture Soaks In.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, Dec. 4.—Rain that came today was accompanied early in the morning by a heavy windstorm, but very little damage was done in Redlands, some telephone wires being broken and awnings blown away. Though it was a hard rain, most of the moisture was conserved, so that it will make the fall plowing and planting easy for the farmers. There was a heavy snow in the mountain districts, about six inches at Oak Glen, while the foothills are covered.

Unusual Wind.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COVINA, Dec. 4.—The velocity of the windstorm that accompanied the rain was greater than has been experienced here in years, but did practically no damage. The splendid rainfall has made hopes for a fine Washington navel orange season even brighter.

Irrigation Forestalled.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 4.—The downpour of the present storm was most timely in this county, saving the citrus growers the necessity for irrigation and giving the newly-sown grain a good start.

Very Heavy Shower.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HANFORD, Dec. 4.—Following the first genuine storm of the season, which broke here Friday night, the rain gauge showed a measurement of 1.75 inches. This is the heaviest single shower for this time of the year ever recorded in Kings county.

Wind Does Damage.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 4.—Wind last night blew over several oil rigs, tanks and houses, being at its height almost a hurricane. The Beatty store was unroofed and stock damaged $2000 by rain.

Delay in Citrus Groves.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PORTERVILLE, Dec. 4.—Rain that broke an unusually long dry season fell last night and today throughout the Porterville district. The general average for Tulare county was about 1.20 inches. The showers will delay orange picking somewhat.

Everyone Pleased.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA ANA, Dec. 4.—The rain came when everyone wanted it. It will start the ranchmen to plowing. All crops are benefited.

Early Seeding Possible.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

OXNARD, Dec. 4.—Hay and beet growers are pleased with the heavy rain of last night. Early seeding will be possible now for both crops. Plowing will be helped.

About Barstow.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BARSTOW, Dec. 4.—More than an inch of rain fell today in a wide region about Barstow and will benefit materially the winter crops and forage.

RARE FORAGE SEEDS.

Given by Government to California Congressman for Distribution to Farmers of this Section.

In arranging for the distribution of new and rare field seeds, the United States Department of Agriculture has assigned to Congressman Stephens: 300 one-pound packages of Sudan grass seed, 500 five-pound packages of feterita seed, 120 four-pound packages of milo seed and fifty four-pound packages of Peruvian alfalfa seed. The government asks that the above seeds be placed with farmers who will be interested in testing one or more of these crops.

Not more than one package each of two varieties will be mailed to one address. Full instructions will accompany each package.

All persons residing in the Tenth Congressional District who would like to plant some of the above seeds should send their names and addresses to Congressman William D. Stephens, Washington, D. C.

STOPS DRUGS BY MAIL ORDER.

TRAFFIC FORBIDDEN IN THOSE CONTAINING HABIT-FORMING CHEMICALS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

COLUMBUS (O.) Dec. 4.—Medicines containing habit-forming narcotic drugs, traffic in which is forbidden by the Harrison law, cannot be sold through a mail order business, Judge J. E. Sater decided in the Federal District Court here today. He dismissed a suit brought by the Dr. Nathan Tucker Asthma Specific Company of Mount Gilead, O., to enjoin B. E. Williamson, Federal internal revenue collector, from seizing the plant.

The court's decision declared medicines containing narcotic drugs may be prescribed by physicians only after a personal examination of the patient before each prescription. Diagnosis by mail is held illegal.

The decision is considered of far-reaching importance, since it is said many other proprietary remedies contain narcotic drugs or their derivaties, and are sold by the mail order system.

MILLION STOMACH SUFFERERS EAT BIG MEALS NOW

No fear of indigestion, gas, sourness, heartburn or acidity.

"Pape's Diapepsin" is quickest, surest stomach regulator known.

Every year regularly more than a million stomach sufferers in the United States, England and Canada take Pape's Diapepsin and realize not only immediate but lasting relief.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach five minutes afterwards.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and eat a few of these candy-like tablets just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, no fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, no nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin promptly regulates out-of-order stomachs, because it neutralizes the acids in the stomach and digests your food just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to thoroughly overcome any case of dyspepsia, indigestion or any other stomach disorder.

And Digest It Easily If He Will But Try.

FREE DIGESTIVE TABLETS.

Don't be afraid of your meals. The reason you have dyspepsia is that something is lacking in your digestive apparatus necessary to the stomach's work.

A perfect stomach loves to work. Perfect digestion is not afraid of any meal and benefits by its consumption of food the whole machine of man.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets make easy the work of digestion, because they combine active fruit and vegetable essences which are needed by the stomach.

These essences are so powerful they digest food without aid from the stomach. They have done this with a meal encased in a glass tube.

We will send a trial package to any one free for his name and address.

Eat what you will or when you will, then take a Stuart Dyspepsia Tablet and see how you will digest that meal. In a short time your stomach will have a natural supply of gastric juices and your whole system will be able to take care of digestion easily.

Ask any druggist about Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. His answer will tell more than we can say. Ask him how they sell. If you want to buy them give him 50c. FAREWELL SIGNALS.

Hundreds of thousands of incandescent lights twinkled and trembled the farewell signal a few minutes before midnight, and at 12 o'clock the lights went out for the last time. The exposition of 288 days' duration officially was at an end, though the farewell carnival continued in the morning hours.

With the extinguishing of the electric lights there was a flash in the sky of thousands of rockets, bombs and star shells. More than half of powder was used to hurl them the air, making a salvo which W. A. Ryan, the director of illum said was the heaviest and most orate pyrotechnic display ever tempted.

Hundreds of searchlights which pointed to the art of the sculptor shone on the Tower of Jewels and domes and minarets each night February 20, when the exposition gan, were also dimmed in the moments, and for thirty seconds 635 acres of exposition grounds in total darkness. Then patrol here and there along the avenues byways and in the courts began glow so that the thousands of makers could make their way Throngs remained to go on with dances in the open spaces and in courts, and to wander about grounds in the farewell festivities.

The carnival spirit prevailed keeping with the decree of President Charles C. Moore and the exposition directors, who said: "Let there cheers instead of tears. The tion has been a success."

In a financial way it is expected exposition will show a profit of thing like $2,000,000—perhaps All indebtedness was paid before exposition was two-thirds over expense of preparing the site and buildings for the opening day said to be approximately $50, There was no Federal appro for the undertaking, although rious departments of the States government made displa which $500,000 had been allo maintenance.

CALCIUM LIGHT UPON JOBBERY.

Tricky Tactics About Civil Service Plum Shown.

Aspirant for the Job Poses as Prohibitionist.

But that Party Repudiates Earl-Unionite Man.

A piece of attempted political jobbery which will be brought forcibly to the attention of the Board of Supervisors tomorrow morning is the proposed appointment of John B. Reeves to succeed Ira J. H. Sykes, president of the County Civil Service Commission.

Reeves is the candidate of E. T. Earl and the labor unionites together with the master plumbers, of which he is a member. This combination has compelled Supervisor Norton to "put him over" and the Supervisor has so far fooled his colleague, Mr. Hamilton, into supporting Reeves.

Reeves, according to the story told by Supervisor Norton to Supervisor Hamilton, and which later investigation proves to be willfully false, is a party Prohibitionist, and since the county charter provides that no two members of the Civil Service Commission shall be from the same party, much stress was laid upon the pretended party affiliation of the plumber.

Here is Mr. Reeves's record, taken from the official documents in the office of Registrar of Voters:

John B. Reeves was born in Canada and became a fully naturalized American citizen April 21, 1914. On July 11, 1914, he registered as a voter. When asked his party affiliation he took oath that he belonged to no party. He therefore was marked "Party not stated."

STATUS DISPUTED.

When the attempt was first made to appoint him, he asserted he was a Prohibitionist. This is denied not only by those who know him, and who say that he worked and voted for Gov. Johnson the year he was naturalized, but is vehemently denied by Newton H. Culver, Prohibition county chairman, who has written a letter to the Board of Supervisors, protesting the appointment of a man who declares he is a Prohibitionist. Chairman Culver's letter declares Reeves is not and never has been a Prohibitionist and that there is no record in the party's files to show that he is.

It so happens that the resignation of President Sykes of the commission was placed in the hands of Supervisor Hamilton. He kept it six weeks, as he had done the resignation of Dave Evans, the member who was virtually fired out of the job.

While holding the Sykes resignation, Mr. Hamilton was looking around for a successor. The union-labor bosses had no trouble inducing Supervisor Norton to stand for Reeves. Reeves has been an ardent laborite for years. It was he who helped job through the Council an ordinance requiring the registration of all plumbers and making it a violation of the law for any property owner to readjust the nozzle on his garden hose without first obtaining the advice and consent of a licensed plumber.

The day the matter came up in conference with the Board of Supervisors J. A. Timmons, one of the notorious red bosses of Central Labor Council, was closeted with Norton.

That same day a hurry letter from E. T. Earl was delivered to Supervisor Woodley. The letter and the labor boss were driving at the same end, the appointment of Reeves.

Supervisor Woodley is now on his way to Washington and will not be present at the meeting tomorrow, when a successor to Mr. Sykes is discussed.

TO FASTEN GRIP.

The purpose of placing Reeves on the Civil Service Commission is to keep that body entirely under the control of Supervisors Hamilton and Norton.

Mr. Hamilton, it is understood, is having a lot of trouble with his Prohibitionist constituents in trying to put over a fake partisan and then tell the Prohibition party that one of its members has been "honored" with office.

A protest has been wired to Supervisor Woodley against permitting this political trick.

The Prohibition party is making a hot protest against the appointment of Reeves. They declare he is not a Prohibitionist and he has been an American citizen only a little more than a year.

Chairman Pridham balked the Norton-Hamilton trick last week by demanding more time to look into the Reeves record. Since that time a mass of protests loomed large in the Supervisorial chamber and the prospect is that Mr. Reeves will be disappointed in his ambition to serve his benefactors on the Board of Supervisors as a member of the County Civil Service Commission.

SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR.

Rector's Guild of Christ Church Close Three Days' Affair at Alexandria Hotel.

Members of the rector's guild of Christ Church last night closed a most successful three-days' bazaar held in the Alexandria Hotel. Each afternoon and evening entertaining programmes have been given, and the booths where Christmas articles were offered have done a rushing business.

The programme last night included the presentation of two acts from the play, "California as It is, or Opening of the Panama Canal," by Florence Marie Flackenstein of this city.

Numerous children took part in the programme, and each won much praise for their dainty dancing and tableaux work. A feature of the programme was the singing of "Peace Time in America," written by Mrs. Baker P. Lee, and sung in public for the first time with Miss Flackenstein's play given at the Juvenile Exposition.

In the portions of the play presented last evening the various countries were represented by girls as follows: England, Ruth Liebfried; Germany, Margaret Cunning; France, Mae Freedman; Russia, Margaret Bell; Austria, Helen Gibson; Italy, Marie Paterson; Serbia, Patty Magee; Turkey, Ruth White; Belgium, Laura La Plante; Poland, Virginia Wells; "Uncle Sam," Edward Qually; "Spirit of Peace," Helena Heller.

Thirty-seven Years' Practice and record of unbroken success. Established headquarters for the past twenty-five years at his present suite of offices and laboratories in McVicker's Theater Building, Chicago.

—You don't put off your visit to the dentist until it is too late to save your teeth! Nor should you put off until too late the examination of your hair and scalp—if you have—

Dandruff!
Oily Hair!
Itching Scalp!
Dry Hair!
Falling Hair!
Brittle Hair!
Faded Hair!
Split Hair!

—See Prof. Austin now—don't wait for baldness to overtake you—take action while yet there is hair to save—arrest your hair troubles before they can become deeply seated—this week—tomorrow—Prof. Austin presents this opportunity to you—Free!

—Prof. Austin says the use of dandruff cures, mange cures and hair tonics is like taking medicines without knowing what you are trying to cure. The particular trouble with which your scalp is afflicted must be known before it can be intelligently treated.

Free Microscopic Examination of the Hair and Scalp of Men, Women and Children

Prof. Austin Says:

—I do not use an ordinary microscope. I use one of the most powerful optical machines known to science. There is no microbe so small that its presence cannot be detected. Once the cause is known the cure is a matter of course. But you must be fair with me, with Nature and with yourself. You must not wait until you are entirely bald. That means that the parasites have done their work. There is nothing left for me or for Nature to work on. The hair roots are dead. It is when the hair begins to fall that you should seek help.

—Let me destroy the bacteria before they destroy the hair roots. Nature will fight long and well, and if given help at the right time will replace the lost hair with new, stronger, thicker and more beautiful hair. I have cured many cases of complete baldness where the papilla, or hair root, was still alive, but it meant a longer and more tedious battle. If taken in time, I can positively cure you. If you wait until you are bald I MAY cure you.

—No one wants to be bald. In not one case out of a thousand is there any necessity for it. No disease that man is heir to gives more warnings. From the very first, Nature sounds her warning. Dry, brittle hair, a scaly scalp, itching, bald patches, one warning follows another. Each more imperative than the last. Is there any excuse for your going through life bald? For thirty-seven years I have given my time and labor to the discovery and cure of hair troubles.

—I have built a reputation little by little until I stand the acknowledged authority on hair and scalp troubles. Can I afford, either as a scientist or on a purely business basis, to make statements that are untrue? Can I risk the loss of a reputation that has taken over a quarter of a century to gain?

—I do not guess at your hair troubles. I MUST KNOW. Not only that your hair is falling out, but THE CAUSE. The particular trouble with which your scalp is afflicted must be known before it can be intelligently treated. No reputable physician ever attempts to treat a case without diagnosis. I respect the ethics of my profession fully as much. When I take your case I first look for the cause. And in order to locate the trouble quickly and surely, I make a thorough examination under a most powerful, scientific microscope.

What Prominent Physicians Have to Say About Prof. J. H. Austin:

Dr. J. H. Macdonald, Atheneum Bldg., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I have been personally acquainted with Prof. J. H. Austin for some years and know him to be a master of his profession. I have such confidence in his ability that all of my patients afflicted with hair diseases are referred to him."

Dr. Edw. J. Nickerson, 1209 Champlain Bldg., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"Not only have I taken many of my patients to you for examination and treatment, all with satisfactory results, but, as you know, my daughter, who had very thin hair and was losing it, used your treatment, with the result that the hair stopped falling and new hair, which is now 16 inches long and much thicker than before, has grown in.

"I consider you the best authority in the United States on diseases of the hair."

Dr. John Higginson, 910 Stewart Bldg., State St., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I believe him to be a man honorable to a fault and the most competent man I know as a scalp specialist.

"Personally, he is the only man who ever benefited my scalp."

Dr. N. E. Wood, President of the Christian Hospital, 1555 La Salle Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I have been personally acquainted with Prof. J. H. Austin for 35 years, and know him to be an authority on the hair and scalp."

His First Hair Cut In Twenty Years!

—Olive Gray in the Los Angeles Times, November 7th, 1915.

It was in truth, twenty-two years since he had his hair cut, but that title is too long for my paragraph. No! You have guessed wrong—he did not thus deny himself on an election bet. He simply had no hair to cut. He had become almost resigned to this condition when, about three months ago, he heard of that hair specialist who really does. Although, many years ago he had given up consulting specialists, he decided to make one final struggle. Imagine his joy when, after having his scalp microscoped and after using the remedies prescribed for less than three months, he began to discern a fine fuzz on his head. When, last week, he had enough hair to pay him to pay a visit to a barber, he was about the happiest man in Southern California—and you know Southern Californians are pretty happy! He is so happy in fact that he really enjoys exhibiting his new head of hair to whoever wishes to see it. He is in one of the big Broadway stores where it is easy for those interested to take a look.

Hamburger's Ladies' Rest Room.
Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 19, 1915.

Last March I had two large bald spots on my scalp. After using your remedy for six months, patches of hair as large as the palm of my hand have grown, and in the natural color.

This seemed almost impossible when I began treatment.

Very truly yours,

Has Faith In Remedy

Mrs. H. S. Carlson of Wakefield, Nebr., testifies to the relief she experienced from the use of Fruitola and Traxo:

"I used Fruitola and Traxo with very good results, having passed almost a cupful of gall-stones with the first bottle. My skin is clear now, and I have a good appetite. I have lots of faith in Fruitola and Traxo."

Fruitola is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs, softening the hardened particles that cause so much suffering and expelling the congested waste in an easy, natural manner. A single dose is usually sufficient to clearly indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a splendid tonic-alterative that acts on the liver and kidneys, stimulates the flow of gastric juices to aid digestion and removes bile from the general circulation.

For the convenience of the public, arrangements have been made to supply Fruitola and Traxo through representative druggists. In Los Angeles they can be obtained at The Owl Drug Co.'s Stores.

movement. Daily demonstrations of the transcontinental telephone were given in the Palace of Liberal Arts, where audiences listened to a speaker in New York reading headlines from the latest editions of the newspapers.

FOREIGNERS THERE.

Thirty-nine foreign nations participated officially in the exposition, several of the warring nations of Europe, chief among them being France and Turkey, having buildings. Thirty-seven States of the Union were represented, virtually all of them having their own State buildings.

It was estimated there were 80,000 different exhibitors, the displays of which were valued at something like $350,000,000.

With reference to some of the benefit to be derived by San Francisco as a result of the exposition, the foreign trade department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce has issued a circular which says:

"Without taking into consideration the millions of dollars spent in San Francisco for the construction of the exposition, and the further millions spent by those who have come here to see it; without considering the educational advantages afforded, the exposition has more than justified its construction for the benefit it has been to San Francisco from a 'foreign commercial' point of view. It is not to be expected that the beneficial results will all make themselves apparent at once; it may take years for some of them to develop, but the seed has been sown in fertile soil and the returns will be large and certain even though slow.'

Most of the exposition buildings are to be demolished. A movement has been started, however, to preserve the Palace of Fine Arts, perhaps the most imposing building of them all, which stands on government land.

As for the majority of the other buildings the management is under contract to clear the land within four months, and the workman's hammer will echo in the courts after tomorrow instead of the bands of music which have been there for the last ten months.

MILLION DOLLARS FOR SMITHSONIAN.

BIG BUILDING TO BE ADDED FOR THE COLLECTION OF PAINTINGS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. — A new million-dollar building is to be added to the Smithsonian Institution here to contain the collection of paintings, engravings, porcelains and bronzes given to the institution from time to time by Charles L. Freer of Detroit.

Mr. Freer has given $1,000,000 to the institution for the new building, plans for which now are being drawn. It will be located on the Smithsonian grounds in the Mall, which extends from the Capitol to the White House and which contains the Washington monument, the botanical gardens, the National Museum and other structures of national importance. Secretary Walcott of the Smithsonian, announced today that it was expected work on the building could be started during the coming spring.

The Freer collection represents periods of art beginning before the Christian Era.

GERMAN WIRELESS AT MAGDALENA?

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 4.—A report came to the State Department today from a source that was not disclosed that a German wireless station was said to be in operation on Magdalena Bay in the Mexican State of Lower California. The State Department sent the information to the Department of Justice for investigation.

Traffic.

AUTO PROBLEM WORRIES PARIS.

Cause of More Nervousness than the Germans.

Are so Few in Numbers as to Handicap Theaters.

Between Morning and Dusk Driver Reaps Harvest.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Nov. 15. — The 4500 taxi autos in Paris are at present the cause of more nervousness than the Germans, who, according to an expression that has become habitual, "are still at Noyon."

The taxi autos with 2000 horse cabs seem to be ample for the daylight traffic, but reduced competition enables them to make a fair day's profit before dusk. Then most of them leave the streets and boulevards to a limited number of "scorchers" that are seldom to be found when most needed, yet are always running down someone who is not looking for them. They are so few in number as to greatly handicap the theaters. The majority of playgoers are either inaccessible or antagonistic to the subway; consequently, as soon as the curtain falls on the last act there begins a rush for cabs that, in the war-time obscurity of the streets, resembles at the same time a game of blind man's buff and an obstacle race. The garbage boxes, brought out at 10 o'clock in a considerable portion of the theater district and always placed in the deepest shadow of the buildings, must be cleared by the man running for a cab in the darkness at the risk of his shins, or he must take to the street with many chances of being run down.

When one finally discovers a cab not loaded it is a question, debatable generally from five to ten minutes, whether the driver will condescend to take him as a passenger. He is the master of the situation and all depends upon whether before the argument is finished another passenger does not offer himself for a shorter trip and a bigger tip.

Between morning and dusk the average taxi auto driver makes 11 francs besides his tips, probably [illegible] francs clear a day in all. That is good enough for a Paris cabman and it makes him sufficiently independent to demand concessions for later service. Some have insisted that the night tariff of 10 cents per trip extra be applied from 11 o'clock instead of from 12:30, as at present.

Companies exploiting taxis are said to be making money for the first time since the city became overrun with them. Of the thirty-seven important taxi companies organized in Paris from 1904 to 1914, thirty-four failed. Not one has failed since the war began.

KAISER THANKS GRAND DUCHESS.

BERLIN (via London, Dec. 4, [illegible] p.m.)—Emperor William, in thanking the Grand Duchess Louise of Baden for the gift of an etching entitled "Silent Heroism," portraying women tilling land while the men are fighting at the front, today sent her the following telegram.

"Your appropriate gift has just been received, for which I thank you heartily. The German woman has proved herself equal to the limit of her tasks, as pious, strong and confident in all matters, and active in following the example set by Germany's wonderful princess. May God bless your work.

(Signed)' 'WILHELM."

INSURANCE MEN GET A WARNING.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Dec. 5, 12:17 a.m.—The British Admiralty to prevent leakage of information regarding war works and materials has warned insurance companies against communicating particulars of risks on government works to foreign companies with which they have been in the habit of effecting reinsurance. Several insurance companies also have been stricken from the list of those eligible to participate in government insurance, and the others now operating have been warned that failure to safeguard with secrecy the particulars respecting government work would be liable to prosecution.

"BAD WEATHER," FRENCH REPORT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Dec. 4, 10:35 p.m.—The following official communication was issued tonight:

"Bad weather continues to impede the operations. An intermittent cannonade has occurred at divers points along the front. Mine fighting of quite a spirited character has occurred in the Argonne and Haute Chevauchee and Les Eparges.

"In the Woevre our artillery by a well-regulated fire demolished a large gun which an observer had reported near Woinville, to the east of St. Mihiel."

The Belgian official communication reads:

"The unfavorable weather interferes again today with our actions."

FIERCE BATTLES IN TONALE ZONE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME (via London) Dec. 4.—The following official statement was given out today:

"There were encounters between detachments in the Tonale zone, and we repulsed enemy troops near Sanbar, Tolmino, Hospite and in the Ledro Valley where the enemy delivered an attack on our positions north of Pre which we recently captured.

"On Thursday night after concentrated artillery operations with guns of all calibers, dense masses of infantry, advancing like waves, charged our trenches in the Mrzli redoubt on Monte Nero. Notwithstanding the destructive effect of our accurate and rapid fire, parties of the enemy penetrated our lines in a few places from which they were driven out after violent hand-to-hand fighting. After a desperate fight, the enemy was compelled to flee, leaving in addition to 500 dead on the field, 131 prisoners, including three officers.

"In the San Michele zone and on the Carso, we also repelled an enemy attack."

RUSH TO KILL DANCE "VIPER."

Pastors up in Arms Ag Cafe Suggestion.

Club Women's Proposition Mayor Stirs Storm.

To be Denounced in Pulp of the City Today.

"We'll scotch the viper befor raises its ugly head." Thus one the city's leading pastors expre himself yesterday in regard to movement to permit general danc in the cafes of Los Angeles.

A proposition placed before Mayor by certain club women of city, as exclusively told in The Ti a few days ago, is that dancing by trons of cafes shall take the place the cabaret entertainments now p alent.

Mrs. E. R. Brainerd, president the Woman's City Club, and Mrs. C. McCan, former president of Friday Morning Club, were the spo women who presented this subject the Mayor. They declared they rep sented the sentiment of the majo of the women's clubs of the city, it was suggested that were the patr of the cafes allowed to dance would drink less liquor and the d ing would add to the gaiety of cafe entertainment.

Now comes the Church Federati aroused by the fear that some legi tion is about to be enacted on the ject, and its opposition will be in many pulpits of the city today.

Dr. A. B. Prichard, president of Church Federation, has written sonal letters to each member of City Council, stating the objection the churches to the proposed inno tion and urging that there be no islation on this line. He has also w ten Mayor Sebastian urging the Ma in strong terms to throw his influe against dancing of any kind in c and to veto any measure that allow this.

Among the pastors of the city will speak on this subject today Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher of Tem Baptist Church, Dr. Charles Edwa Locke of the First Methodist Epis pal Church, Dr. Geissinger of Boyle Heights Methodist Episco Church, Rev. Charles C. Seleeman Trinity Methodist Church, South, A. B. Prichard and others.

Tomorrow the Ministerial Union also take up the subject and ado resolutions regarding it.

"We understand some proposed l islation will be before the City Coun Tuesday regarding letting down bars for the cafes," said Dr. Prich last night. "We understand it p poses to permit the appearance dancing girls in the cafes, and possibly it will permit of the pro cuous dancing of the patrons. are opposed to dancing in any in the public cafes.

"If it were possible for par go together to cafes and there by themselves, some elementa jection might be removed, bu dancing is allowed it is easy that the consequence would be a miscuous mixing of people that conducive to good morals. It bring the menace of vice and

"We believe that dancing cafes is simply a lure to many girls and is pandering to vice crime, and that it is our duty to a firm stand in this matter imm ately. I should object to allow dancing girls in the cafes, I also sh object to allowing the patrons dance there. Its tendency is tow a 'wide-open' movement for Los geles, and we shall unalterably pose it."

On the other hand, it is under the subject is to be discussed in various women's clubs of the city that among the membership of clubs there is a strong sentiment favor of allowing patrons to dance the cafes. Various reasons are giv for this sentiment, one of them that there would be less drinking the patrons were allowed to da and another is that young peop would be better protected while da ing than while sitting at tables dri ing. It is declared drinking would reduced by half were the patrons p mitted to dance while in the cafes.

As to proposed legislation, Coun Clerk Carrol said last night he has knowledge of any measure to co before the Council on this subj Tuesday, nor of any such matter ing in any of the Council committ for consideration.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS ARRIVE ON TIM

MAKE LONG TRIP AROUND THE HORN TO REACH LOS ANGELES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

THE HARBOR, Dec. 4.—The steamer Columbian, arriving from New York, had the weather in favor and reached port early with the largest cargo of New freight ever discharged here. 3500 tons of merchandise for Angeles merchants, including a quantity of Christmas merchan that was delayed by the closing the Panama Canal.

The Columbian had to make long voyage around through the gellan Straits and was forty-eight on the way from New York. the third American-Hawaiian v reach port this week, and their gate cargoes for this port total 6000 tons.

The American-Hawaiian line move its general offices back to Angeles the first of the year. the Panama Canal opened and company discontinued the practi absorbing the rail haul betwee port and Los Angeles, the were moved to the company's terminal at Pier A.

While the billing will hereaft done from the Los Angeles offic terminal will remain at Pier A shippers will have the option of ing freight on the wharf or hav forwarded by truck or rail li Los Angeles. To absorb the rail would make the steamship comp rates subject to the jurisdiction the Interstate Commerce Comm as a partly-by-rail-and-partly-by rate. The commission has no diction over the all-water rate.

The office of the operating ment under the name of W Diamond & Co., general agents for Pacific Coast, will remain wharf.

The Charter—Mr. Gibbon's Views.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4, 1915.—[To the Editor of The Times:] When a man has for twenty-seven years been a subscriber of a newspaper, he naturally takes some pride in the reputation of that paper for accuracy, and he may possibly be excused for calling the paper's attention to that fact.

This is apropos of the comments upon the charter just been completed by the Board of Freeholders in your issue of yesterday morning. In that article the statement is made that by the provisions of the charter in order to consolidate the assessment and collection of city and county taxes a vote of the people will be required, but that other functions of the city and county government may be consolidated without the vote of the people. In point of fact the provisions of the proposed charter are exactly contrary to this statement. Recognizing the fact that the greatest economy can be attained by the consolidation of the assessment and collection of city and county taxes, the Board of Freeholders included in the charter, a provision which, if the charter is adopted, will permit this consolidation to be made by action of our city council. At the same time the charter provided for other consolidations of city and county administration, but provided that this could only be brought about by a vote of the people, for the reason that these other matters had not received the free discussion that the consolidation of the assessment and collection of taxes has received in the past and the people have had, therefore, no opportunity of expressing themselves upon them.

Your article further stated that the charter was permeated throughout by the influence of Dr. Haynes and seemed to imply that he was responsible for a large portion of it. In point of fact, Dr. Haynes's principal interest in the make-up of the charter was directed to its provision concerning Civil Service, a matter with which he has been intimately connected in this city for a number of years. He was prevented from giving attention to a good many matters embodied in the charter by his absence from the meetings of the Board of Freeholders occasioned by his being out of town and his being unwell during a portion of the time when the sessions of the board were being held.

The fact is that the proposed charter as it was presented to the city does not represent the fads of any particular person. Necessarily every instrument of this sort formed by a body of men whose ideas upon municipal government are each distinct in some way from the ideas of his fellows on the board is the result of the principle of give and take, and the disposition of all the members of the board to consider every phase of every question broached and of each member to concede something of his own conviction in the interests of harmony was one notable characteristic of the body whose work was concluded on last Thursday night by the signing of the draft of the charter.

While the charter, as it will be submitted to the voters of the city, will undoubtedly fail to represent fully the ideas of any one member of the Board of Freeholders, I believe every member of that board is convinced that it contains many things which make it very much superior as an organic law of the city to the patchwork charter under which the city is now operating.

As a long-time subscriber and a real friend of The Times, I trust that the charter will be carefully studied by you before it is condemned, and that if you find that, taken as a whole, it is distinctly superior to the charter under which the city it at present working, you will support it, notwithstanding the fact that you may, in doing so, have to do as each member of the Board of Freeholders did—concede something of your convictions in the interest of harmony. It seems to me that, after all, the main question is—is the proposed new charter a better organic law for the city than the one under which we are operating? I am quite sure that a reasonably careful study of the instrument will show you that it is.

Very sincerely yours,
T. E. GIBBON.

SUDDEN CLOSING OF ACTIVE LIFE.

BUSINESS MAN AND MASON IS CALLED BEYOND AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS.

Cylos Taylor Dunsmoor died at his residence, No. 2821 North Griffin avenue, at 8:15 o'clock yesterday morning after a brief illness following a stroke of paralysis. He had been prominent in business circles in this city for twenty years, being at the time of his death secretary of the jewelry house of Brock & Co.

Mr. Dunsmoor was 37 years of age and leaves a widow and three children, the eldest of whom is 10 years of age. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Dunsmoor, live at No. 2843 North Sichel street, and he also leaves two brothers.

He was a Native Son and a member of Pentalpha Masonic Lodge, Al Malaikah Temple, and the Knights Templar Commandery No. 9, under the auspices of which the funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow from the Masonic Temple, Figueroa and Pico streets.

The remains will be cremated at the Pasadena Cemetery.

The store of Brock & Co. will be closed tomorrow as a mark of respect for the memory of Mr. Dunsmoor.

Cylos Taylor Dunsmoor,
Whose death yesterday after a brief illness ended a business career of about twenty years in Los Angeles. The funeral services will be conducted by the Knights Templars tomorrow at the Masonic Temple.

DENTISTS CONFER.

Technical Subjects Topped off with Athletic Events Occupy Time at a Two-day Session.

A joint meeting of the Alumni Association of the College of Dentistry, University of Southern California, and the Southern California Dental Association came to a close last night after a two-day session at the College of Dentistry of the University of Southern California, Sixteenth and Los Angeles streets.

A general meeting and business session was held Friday. Yesterday morning a series of treatise on technical topics were presented and discussed. Among the papers presented was an essay on "The Dental X-ray Laboratory, Its Requisites and Utility in Practice," by Dr. James D. McCoy. "Crown and Bridge Work; Is it a Menace?" was discussed by Drs. Julio Endelman and J. D. McCoy. Both articles were illustrated with stereopticon slides.

Yesterday afternoon ten of the clinics pronounced the most interesting on display at the Panama-Pacific Dental Congress in San Francisco two months ago were repeated at the College of Dentistry. The session ended last night with an elaborate banquet and smoker at the University Club, at which wrestling and boxing bouts were a feature. Dr. John D. McCoy was elected president of the Alumni Association of the College of Dentistry, and Dr. Leland D. Jones of San Diego president of the Southern California Dental Association.

SERIOUS STABBING.

Frank Ries, a Mexican living at No. 1672 Glenn avenue, Pasadena, was probably fatally wounded early last night when he was stabbed by Julio Lidro, also a Mexican. Ries was taken to the County Hospital. According to his story, the fight was the outcome of a quarrel between the two over money. Police detectives were unable to find Lidro.

OUCH! LUMBAGO! RUB PAINS FROM SORE, LAME BACK

Rub Backache away with small trial bottle of old "St. Jacob's Oil."

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or may be from a strain, and you'll get relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on your back and out comes the pain. It is harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest, "St. Jacob's Oil" from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

Make Money—Raising Hogs at Corona Farms

This is the big money maker today—do you realize that Los Angeles is importing about 80% of the hog products consumed annually in this city?

Now is the time to get in—two recent buyers at Corona Farms are today securing more land to raise hogs on. Ten acres with 20 brood sows should make you $2000 annually. Your hogs should pay for your entire acreage in four years and give you a good revenue on the side. What others are doing—you can do—and the profits are quick. The average hog is ready for the market in eight months. Start now—one hour and twenty minutes from Los Angeles—one and a half miles from city of 6000 people—5, or 10, or 20 acres, just as much as you can handle—

As Low as $275 an Acre
On Easy 8-Year Terms

Abundance of water—rich fruit, vegetable and grain soil. In the center of a famous lemon district. Come to our office—get new illustrated folder—ask about the hog raising profits. Call, phone or write—TODAY.

I CURE PILES
Fistula and all Rectal Diseases
WITHOUT an OPERATION
By MY PAINLESS DISSOLVENT METHOD

For twenty-five years I have been curing diseases of the rectum and lower bowel. During that time my experience as hospital and railroad surgeon, as college lecturer and professor, has enabled me to develop a method that is superior to others.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment" but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic conditions in my office.

I solicit old, severe and obstinate cases of fistula, prolapsus, fissure and ulceration that have heretofore resisted all treatments employed. If you are a sufferer from rectal trouble I invite you to investigate my method thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients. If you will call at my office I will be pleased to give you the names and addresses of many well-known Los Angeles people I have cured, whom you may interview in regard to my treatment.

I keep a trained lady nurse constantly on duty in my office for the convenience and comfort of lady patients.

WELL-KNOWN SANTA MONICA MINISTER CURED.

This is to certify that Dr. C. H. White has cured me of a distressing hemorrhoidal ailment of 25 years' duration. His method of treatment is effective, but not severe. He has the appliances, the knowledge and the skill born of many years of specialization in this fruitful source of physical disease. He accomplishes all his claims in his advertising, and at reasonable expense.

I take pleasure in heartily commending the man and his methods.
WESLEY K. BEANS, Pastor First Methodist Episcopal Church, Santa Monica, Cal.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPERINTENDENT CURED.

My Dear Mr. White: I am thankful for the privilege of bearing witness to your ability to treat, without pain, and with success, the delicate and disabling diseases which result from sedentary work. To all who need the services of a skillful, sympathetic and experienced specialist in your line, I heartily commend you. Very sincerely yours,
ERVIN S. CHAPMAN, D. D., LL. D., Superintendent State Anti-Saloon League.

PRESIDENT OF WHITTIER COLLEGE CURED.

For more than ten years I was a sufferer from a painful affliction, which nearly ruined my usefulness as an organizer and teacher. Dr. C. H. White of Los Angeles has completely cured me by a process that was painless and rapid, and I desire to go on record as recommending the Doctor in diseases of his specialty.

HEADACHE FROM A COLD? LISTEN!

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends severe colds or grippe in few hours.

Your cold will break and all grippe misery end after taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.

Coughs and Colds are Dangerous

Colds are called minor ailments, but they are serious and often dangerous. "Oh, it's only a cold!" is a common remark, but many such cases prove serious. Colds are often the beginning of fatal diseases, such as pneumonia, diphtheria, fever, and throat and lung troubles. An almost imperceptible chilling can start a cold that lasts weeks, even months, before the health is completely restored, and the loss of time, energy and money is considerable. When the system is fortified and strengthened by the judicious use of reliable tonic-stimulant such as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, coughs and colds are often prevented and broken up. It is an absolutely pure malt whiskey, made for medicinal purposes only, and has proved invaluable to sufferers from throat affections, bronchitis, grip and all deep seated coughs and colds. It should be in every home, for people who "Get Duffy's and keep well" are seldom troubled with coughs, colds or grip. It's better to take Duffy's than to wish you had, so get a bottle of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey today. Sold by most druggists, grocers and dealers, $1.00. If they can't supply you, write us. Useful household booklet sent free. The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

Ford Peace Ship.

rived less than five minutes before 2 o'clock, held up the work of examining passports and tickets and other matters incidental to the sailing.

Officials of the line, fearful that the steamer would not be able to leave the pier until after dark, held a hurried conference. As a result of this, a representative of the line boarded the vessel and sailed, for the purpose of checking up all the persons on board.

It was then said by the line officials that the Ford party would probably total 175, but the exact number will not be known until a wireless is received tonight from the representative aboard.

All of the saloons and many of the cabins on the steamer were decorated with palms, ferns, flowers, flags and streamers representing the national colors of about seventeen countries. Red, white and blue predominated.

Two large white doves, which had been carefully mounted and bearing olive branches, were suspended from the ceiling of the main saloon and excited considerable comment.

FORD GETS ON.

Henry Ford boarded the steamer at 1:05 o'clock accompanied by several friends and three policemen. The latter held the crowd back while Ford posed for a score of moving-picture cameras and more than seventy-five other photographers. Ford carried a tattered American flag, which he waved with one hand while he repeatedly doffed his hat to the cameras.

Fifteen minutes before the ship was scheduled to sail, a messenger boy riding in a taxicab drove on to the pier. The boy carried a large covered cage which was believed to contain a live dove. When the cage was uncovered, however, it was found that the occupant was a large grey squirrel. This created much merriment and one of the secretaries placed the squirrel directly under one of the mounted peace doves.

MUSIC.

Two bands played constantly during the last forty-five minutes before the ship got away. The crowd, both outside and on the dock steadily increased, and some difficulty was experienced in clearing the ship of a hundred or more persons who were there to bid friends good-by.

One of the diversions during the last hour was the marriage on board the ship of Miss Marion Rubincom of Philadelphia and Berton Braley of New York. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones of Chicago, who was a member of the peace party. The bride and groom also sailed.

The crush of belated passengers at the sailing pier of the Oscar II was almost equalled by an eleventh hour rush at the office of the Scandinavian-American line in lower Broadway. Beginning shortly before noon trains arriving in the city brought prospective peace advocates and newspaper correspondents by the score.

Passports previously ordered from Washington were in the hands of a representative of Mr. Ford, who was on hand to see that they went to the proper parties.

As the hour of sailing drew near all those at the office were directed to go to the ship and complete their arrangements there.

An hour before sailing time the crowd at the dock became so great that police reserves had to be called to keep the gangways clear for passengers and for porters carrying aboard the baggage.

After the ship had been cleared of visitors and the captain was waiting the word to cast off, the crowd that filled the large pier gathered as close to the ship as possible and either sang patriotic songs or cheered for the success of the venture.

THE PRESENCE.

Cries for "Henry Ford" were responded to by Mr. Ford appearing at the rail. His voice was not sufficiently strong to make himself heard to the great crowd, so one of his friends volunteered to act as his spokesman He said:

"Mr. Ford asks me to assure you individually and collectively that he appreciates this demonstration and that he thanks you all for the interest in the mission."

Mr. Ford nodded in approval as the volunteer finished speaking.

When the steamer had backed from her pier and headed down the Hudson River a number of tugs, each loaded with friends of the Ford party accompanied her until the Oscar II was well past the Battery. River craft gave the peace ship a parting salute with whistles and sirens as the vessel swept down the bay.

To accommodate a number of peace advocates who arrived too late to sail on the Oscar II, it was announced at the Ford peace headquarters here, that reservations will be made for them on the Frederick VIII of the same line, which sails on December 8. This second party may number a dozen and it was announced will include three Governors who did not go on the Oscar II. Their names were not revealed.

Included among those who missed the Oscar II was Frederick Bruce Davis, a Yale student, who after a hurried trip from San Francisco sacrificed his ambition in order to save Mrs Alice Park of Palo Alto, Cal., a suffrage worker, the disappointment of being left behind. Davis helped Mrs. Park to get her ticket and after he saw her safely aboard the ship returned to purchase his own ticket, only to reach the pier a moment too late.

OLD FOLKS NEED "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER, BOWELS

Salts, calomel, pills act on bowels like pepper acts in nostrils.

Enjoy life! Don't stay bilious, sick, headachy and constipated.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store.

MAYOR'S ELECTION ANNOUNCED AMID MUCH FANFARE.

Powers, Baseball Man, Chosen by Cohorts of the Athletic Club City to Struggle Under Mythical Title. Corking Programme Marks End of Merry Contest.

After a vigorous campaign enshrouded with all sorts of mystery John E. Powers, the baseball magnate, was elected mayor of the mystic city of Rowansburg last night by a majority of 16,032 votes at the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Election returns revealed the fact that Mr. Powers was given 55,972 votes and his opponent, C. C. C. Tatum received 39,940 from the enthusiastic electors who espoused his cause.

Oratory, songs, music and cheers by cohorts of the mayoralty candidates were features of the banquet which marked the close of an interesting battle for votes. Members of the rival factions clasped hands and enjoyed one of the best programmes ever given under the auspices of the club.

Results of the election were announced by Frank M. Hauser, retiring mayor of Rowansburg, who escorted the candidates to a platform where they made brief speeches thanking the constituents for their support. Charles Murray, the toastmaster, introduced the numerous speakers.

The mayor of Rowansburg and his cabinet of ten members handle the entertainment programme of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. Mr. Powers's term of office will expire at the close of next year.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Dec. 5. — Although dancing was not a part of the entertainment scheduled to follow the banquet given at Hotel Maryland last night by the college of law of the University of Southern California, an institution of Methodist persuasion, the future young legal lights surprised Dean Frank M. Porter, and all others who might have objected. Before the dean could recover from his surprise the students and their sweethearts were in the midst of one of the most brilliant balls ever held in the big hostelry. Exhibition dancing was one of the features.

The big dining-room, dressed up in yellow and black, the class colors, was never more beautiful than it was last night for this banquet, where wit and sparkling repartee abounded.

The toastmaster was Harold C. Morton, while Hon. Frank Short of Fresno was the principal speaker. The only girl lawyer present, Miss Florence Danforth, vice-president of the student body, attracted much attention by her unusual charm and keen wit.

Other speakers included Hon. Frank M. Porter, dean of the college of law; Dr. George F. Bovard, president of the University of Southern California; Gregory M. Cuntz, president of the senior class; Paul Lowenthal, president of the junior class, and Victor H. Koenig, president of the freshman class.

This was the annual banquet given by the students in honor of the freshmen and was the first affair they have ever held in Pasadena. Among the students present last night were twenty-five girls.

SURE-'NOUGH BLACK.

"Like taking coal to Newcastle," was the way guests at the Hotel Green lobby dance last night expressed themselves when they saw Manager Bradbury F. Cushing blacken the faces of his negro orchestra with burnt cork.

The Nubian orchestra was imported from Los Angeles especially for the week-end dance, and Mr. Cushing was anxious to have them dressed up for the occasion. So he decked them out in frills and ruffles and big, white flaring collars, but the finished product did not please him. "Not black enough," was his verdict.

"When I hire a negro orchestra I want the real article," said the manager, and he forthwith applied a generous coating of black cork.

"Fo' de Lawd's sake, man," said the blackest musician, "dis am de first time we all has ober been mistaken for white folks." The mistake seemed to please him immensely, however, for his chucklings were liberally interspersed with his playing.

The lobby dance was the first of a series of informal dances which will be a feature of the entertainment at the Hotel Green next winter. The dancers circled the beautiful fountain in the hotel lobby, the smooth marble floor proving ideal for the dancing. The next dance of this series will be given next Thursday night, with the same Nubian orchestra that proved so much of a novelty last night.

Among those present at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neustadt, Mr. and Mrs. William Grattan, Mr. and Mrs. Royden Berkley of Castle House, New York, who will be social aids at the Green this season; Miss Pauline Harris, Miss Isabel Kenedy, Miss Irene Grosse, Miss Lillian Kenedy, Messrs. Crane Gartz, Crawford May, Briggs Keck and many others.

BELIEVED RINGLEADERS.

Curtis Smiley, Vernon Fabrick of Pasadena, W. Buckingham and Reed Haas of Los Angeles, who were arrested here yesterday, are believed by the police to be the ringleaders of one of the gangs of automobile thieves operating on the Coast.

The men were arrested at No. 1068 North Lake avenue, where they have a garage, which is believed to be the headquarters for the exchange of stolen cars.

They confessed to Officers Betts and Kaighan that they had stolen several cars, including that of C. A. Lovitt of Long Beach. When arrested the men were ready to leave in a machine and were heavily armed.

LAND ARGUMENTS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Dec. 4.—Arguments have been completed in the case brought by the heirs of Horace Whittaker, late of Dinuba, against the regents of the University of California to recover title to redwood timber lands east of here to the value of $250,000. Shortly before his death Whittaker deeded the property to the State institution on the condition that it should be used for scientific and experimental purposes and that certain improvements in the tract should be made. The heirs claim these conditions have not been met. Judgment will be rendered by Judge Allen.

ORANGE GROWERS MEET AT COVINA.

RAIN POURS OUTSIDE, BUT INSIDE ALL PROVES MERRY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COVINA, Dec. 4.—With the rain working for them while they gathered at their annual meeting, the members of the Covina Orange Growers' Association heard one of the most optimistic reports for several years at an all-day meeting today.

The members of this association predict about 70 per cent. of a normal crop of Washington navels for this winter's yield, with fruit in excellent condition, well-sized, and with an indication that there will be early shipments just after the holidays. "Dollar net navels" is an expression that is being universally adopted in connection with the coming marketing season.

The board of directors chosen is as follows: L. L. Ratekin, R. M. Douglass, H. M. Houser, J. O. Houser, A. R. Evans, Thomas Traweek, S. Aschenbrenner, Louis Harris, R. T. Vining, F. R. Greenleaf and George Kellar.

CITY TO PROTEST GAS-RATE RAISE.

LONG BEACH TO RESIST ACT OF RAILROAD COMMISSION.

Will Protest Increase and Endeavor to Lower Old Figures—Injunction may be Asked to Prevent Collection at New Rate—Burglars Loot Store During Rain.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Dec. 4.—This city will resist the order of the State Railroad Commission in allowing the local gas company to raise its rates 25 cents per 1000 feet. City Attorney Hoodenpyl was instructed by the City Commission today to prepare papers in a strenuous protest against the raise, and make an application to have the old rate of $1 per 1000 feet restored pending the hearing of the city's application for a readjustment of rates.

If the protest fails of its purpose an injunction will be asked of the Superior Court. The City Attorney will endeavor to prevent by this means the collection of the additional money until the hearing on the original application.

This afternoon a special meeting of the commission was held to consider the unexpected phase of the gas situation. It was decided to carry out the original plans of the commission and fight for a lower rate than $1 a thousand feet, and still retain natural gas.

Manager F. A. Green of the local gas company explained that the Railroad Commission acted upon a showing by the company that it would mean a financial loss to continue the service of natural gas under the dollar rate. He presented figures which tended to prove that the residents would not pay any more under the experimental rate of $1.25 than under the old rate of $1, using manufactured gas.

BURGLARY IN RAIN.

Loot valued at $250 was taken from the jewelry store of G. W. Weber & Sons, at No. 112 West First street, by burglars early this morning, while the rain was falling in torrents. Watches, rings, lavallieres and a valuable collection of moonstones were taken by the thieves. Entrance was gained by breaking a pane of glass in a rear window.

It is thought that the burglary occurred between 4 a.m. and 6:20 a.m., between visits of Patrolman Brown to that vicinity. Chief of Police Cole is engaged in an effort to rid the town of all suspicious persons.

SUBMARINES RETURN.

Their crews swollen by orders of Secretary of the Navy Daniels, the submarine flotilla, consisting of the monitor Cheyenne, and submarines H-1, H-2 and H-3, arrived at this port this evening. The extra men are being trained for service on the submarines which are being rapidly finished at the Craig shipyards.

The flotilla will remain here for over three months, constantly engaging in target practice and making the municipal docks their berths.

FIRE AT MARICOPA.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 4.—Fire at Maricopa at 3 this morning caused a $20,000 loss. It evidently started in the West Side meat market, which lost $8000. County Supervisor Bush owned this building, worth $6000 and insured for $2000. The chief loss was the Lucas and Carter garage, amounting to $15,000, fourteen automobiles belonging to local men being destroyed.

A severe rainstorm had stopped before the fire started.

San Diego.

OFFICIAL ACT REOPENS FAIR.

Another Year's Exposition at San Diego.

Millions in Exhibits to be Held Over.

Opium Found on Accused Border Smugglers.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 4.—Official announcement that the Panama-California Exposition which was opened here January 1 of this year, will continue throughout 1916 as the Panama-California-International Exposition, was made today by G. A. Davidson, president of the exposition, who has accepted the presidency of the new project.

The 1916 exposition will open January 1, 1916, the day following the official closing of the 1915 fair. Thus there will be a continuity of operation and for the first time in history of a two-year exposition.

Foreign exhibits valued at several million dollars from the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, just closing, will be brought here, President Davidson said in his announcement. He has just returned from San Francisco, where he was given official promises of participation by those in charge of the best foreign exhibits.

SECURES EXHIBITS.

"Two of the largest exhibits at the San Francisco Exposition," he said, "the Canadian and the Italian, have been secured for next year and we anticipate that the French exhibit also will be installed here. We hope to obtain the Philippine exhibit and the Philippine Legislature has been asked for an appropriation to cover the expense.

"Other exhibits practically assured are the Swiss, Spanish, Netherlands and Russian. We have been informed that displays will be made by the Hawaiian and South Sea Islands, New Zealand and Australia. We are negotiating for the Chinese exhibit. There will be also many commercial exhibits made by American manufacturers. States which are represented here now will continue their displays next year.

"It is expected the buildings will be large enough to house the exhibits but it may be necessary to build additional ones. The operating and guaranty fund for 1916 has been raised in Los Angeles, San Diego and other parts of Southern California. There has been a tentative agreement with transcontinental railroads regarding rates.

"With Europe closed to travel on account of the war, we expect the attendance will be many times greater than that at the present exposition. From a recent conference with traffic experts we believe that the 1916 travel to the Pacific Coast will be unprecedented, and in announcing plans for the Panama-California International Exposition, we have met with much encouragement."

POSSESSED OPIUM.

L. H. Jackard and Joe Vavren, who were arrested last evening by Deputy Collector W. B. Evans and Immigration Inspector Fred Jacks, at Third and A streets, with thirty tins of opium in their possession, were arraigned today in the Federal Court by United States Attorney Charles E. Burch, and the hearing set for Tuesday morning, December 7.

Jackard's right name is J. L. Presley and he practically admitted at the hearing this morning that he had been in the business of opium smuggling for some time. He claims to have come originally from Missouri but has lived in Arizona and California.

Joe Vavren, an Austro-Hungarian, according to his story, claims to be the goat and that he was inveigled into this business not knowing what it was. He is highly educated and the officers are inclined to think his story has a grain of truth in it. Vavren is endeavoring to get in touch with the Austro-Hungarian Consul at San Francisco with a view to obtaining assistance.

DEFIES THE DOCTORS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Dec. 4.—County Hospital authorities today were forced to call upon the Sheriff for help in committing Miss Ethel Green of Los Angeles to the Southern California Hospital at Patton. Openly defying the doctors and resisting efforts to strap her to an ambulance cot, the young woman protested until Dr. J. W. Callnon called Deputy Sheriff McCarty. The officer administered a "fatherly" talk and finally persuaded her to obey the order of the hospital, where she will attempt to cure her craving for morphine contracted in a Los Angeles hospital while administering drugs to unfortunates as a nurse.

Ocean Park.

JOVIANS SPARK UNDER AN ELECTRICAL SPELL.

OCEAN PARK, Dec. 4.—Epitomizing the "electrical" idea tonight at a big ball given at the Pavilion de Danse in honor of the Jovians and the Los Angeles Ad Club, brilliant illuminations and electrical effects featured an event fraught with many sparks of electric ingenuity.

The buzz-buzz and crackle of a wireless station gave out messages for the various prominent Jovians and, during the temporary lulls on the programme, kept the brilliant assemblage in an uproar.

Harry Pieper, general agent of the Southern California Edison Company at Los Angeles, former president of the Los Angeles Ad Club and prominent Jovian Congressman, and Henry Holland, president of Jovians, were the center of an allied attack of wireless messages from the front.

The affair, which was attended by members of the organizations in whose honor it was given, and Rotary Club members and employees of the Harry H. Culver Company, aside from its social nature, was an acknowledged success. Mayor Gerety of Venice, Mayor Dudley of Santa Monica, the City Trustees of both cities, representatives of all three Chambers of Commerce, including President Jones of the Ocean Park Chamber of Commerce, and Secretary Hadden were in the receiving line.

The Pavilion de Danse was the center of attraction on the bay, the city being unusually lighted and the pier ablaze with lights and vari-colored illuminations.

The Municipal Band furnished a special musical programme, and every effort was made to give the Jovians a welcome that will not soon be forgotten.

As the concluding event of "Electrical Prosperity Week" at Los Angeles, the ball here was particularly apropos, according to Jovians, who attended tonight under a clear sky.

The wireless apparatus, which was erected in the center of the dance floor, soon became the center of attraction, and the crackle made the electrically-inclined Jovians feel at home.

Among the special features on the programme were the butterfly dance, the firefly dance, the dance of the will o' the wisps and the rose dance, all presented with unusual electrical effects.

FORBIDS THE USE OF CERTIFICATES.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE SAYS THEY'RE MISLEADING TO THE PUBLIC.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTERVILLE, Dec. 4.—By the terms of a decision of the United States Department of Agriculture the Bureau of Chemistry forbids the use of "certificates of maturity" with shipments in interstate commerce of oranges which do not come up to the eight-to-one test announced early this summer. This in effect was the sense of a telegram received here today by W. L. Crowe, secretary of the Tulare County Protective Association, from Secretary of Agriculture Houston.

The telegram declared that a so-called certificate of maturity, which had been issued by a fruit company after resignation from the association, is "misleading to the public" and its use is ordered discontinued forthwith. The company has been shipping oranges without respect to the eight-to-one test and its certificate set forth the alleged fact that the fruit was shipped as picked from the trees, and therefore "conforms to the requirements of the Department of Agriculture."

The decision also has the effect in practice of giving an official status to the certificates which are being issued by the protective association.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

25-cent bottle of "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy and wavy.

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and luster, and try as you will, you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits every one who tries this.

EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD.

New Year's Plans.

A formal New Year's Eve dinner and dance will be held at the Jonathan Club the evening of the 1st inst. The invitations for the affair were sent out yesterday.

New England Feast.

The New England Society is making preparation for their annual banquet at the Gates Hotel, Saturday evening, the 18th inst. An attractive programme is being arranged.

Nurses' Meeting.

The Los Angeles County Nurses' Association will meet in room A, Times assembly-rooms, Tuesday, at 2:30 p.m. Dr. C. C. Browning of this city will give an illustrated lecture on tuberculosis. All nurses, whether members of the association or not, are invited.

At Trinity Tonight.

Lord and Lady Aberdeen will be the guests of Trinity Church this evening and will speak briefly on their efforts for civic betterment work. Lady Aberdeen's campaign against tuberculosis, against crowded and unsanitary tenements; her crusades for pure milk supplies, playgrounds, child welfare centers and open markets for home products, are considered masterpieces of social work.

Long-Distance Query.

Cabling its inquiry at a cost of $30 and expressing a willingness to pay for the reply, a request for the name of some Southland manufacturer and samples of thick, concentrated tomato paste was received yesterday by the industrial bureau of the Chamber of Commerce from a concern in Stavanger, Norway. Until the war broke out, Italy and France supplied the world's demand for tomato paste.

Get Together.

Superintendent Whalen of the Los Angeles division was the principal speaker last evening at the second "get together" meeting of the Southern Pacific Employees' Welfare Association in Blanchard Hall. Music and stereopticon views of the Yosemite Valley preceded Mr. Whalen's talk. It was followed by dancing, with the Southern Pacific dance orchestra furnishing the music.

ADDS TO SITE.

Owner of Wilshire Corner Increases Size of Lot Preparatory to Building Large Residence.

The R. C. Mitchell Company reports the sale of a twenty-five-foot lot on Normandie avenue, just north of Fifth street, for I. W. Edwards to Horace Boos, for a consideration of $100 a foot, cash. This gives Mr. Boos a lot 100x150 feet, as he originally owned seventy-five-foot site. He has just had plans drawn for a large residence.

The same agents report having sold a fine place at No. 544 South Manhattan place for C. C. Cobb to F. R. Steward, a retired lumber and grain merchant from New England. Mr. Steward has bought the place for a permanent home and will occupy it in the near future. The purchaser was represented by F. M. Farrand. The consideration is given at $9500 cash.

SILENT BUT EFFECTIVE.

Without Saying a Word Highwayman Holds up and Robs Car Men at Terminal of Line.

A silent bandit early last night held up and robbed the crew of Homeward-avenue car No. 615 just as it reached the south end of the line at Edna street and Moneta avenue. Without speaking a word the bandit, who was masked and armed, robbed Conductor H. M. Kinne of $17 and Motorman W. B. Ader of 25 cents, all that he had.

According to the car men the bandit stepped from the shadows near the end of the line just as the street car came to a stop. After taking their money the bandit waved them into the car and fled.

CANADIANS TO ENTERTAIN.

The Canadian Society of Los Angeles will give an entertainment and dance the 21st inst., at 8:15 p.m., in the Independent Foresters Building, No. 246 South Hill street. Invitation is extended to all Canadians. A programme said to be the best the society has arranged, is to be offered. New members are sought in anticipation of the annual election of officers in January.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, Dec. 4.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.76; at 5 p.m., 29.91. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 53 deg. and 55 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 92 per cent.; 5 p.m., 73 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northeast, velocity 3 miles; 5 p.m., northwest, velocity 10 miles. Highest temperature, 59 deg.; lowest, 50 deg. Rainfall for season, 2.72 inches; last season, 2.56 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The barometer is high and the weather generally fair east of the Rocky Mountains. The temperatures are above the normal. Friday's well-marked depression developed into a trough of low barometer with centers over Montana and Nevada. This gave the Pacific Coast the most important precipitation of the season.

LOCAL FORECAST.

For Los Angeles and vicinity: Showers, probably ceasing Sunday; southwesterly winds, veering to westerly.

For Southern California: Fair Sunday.

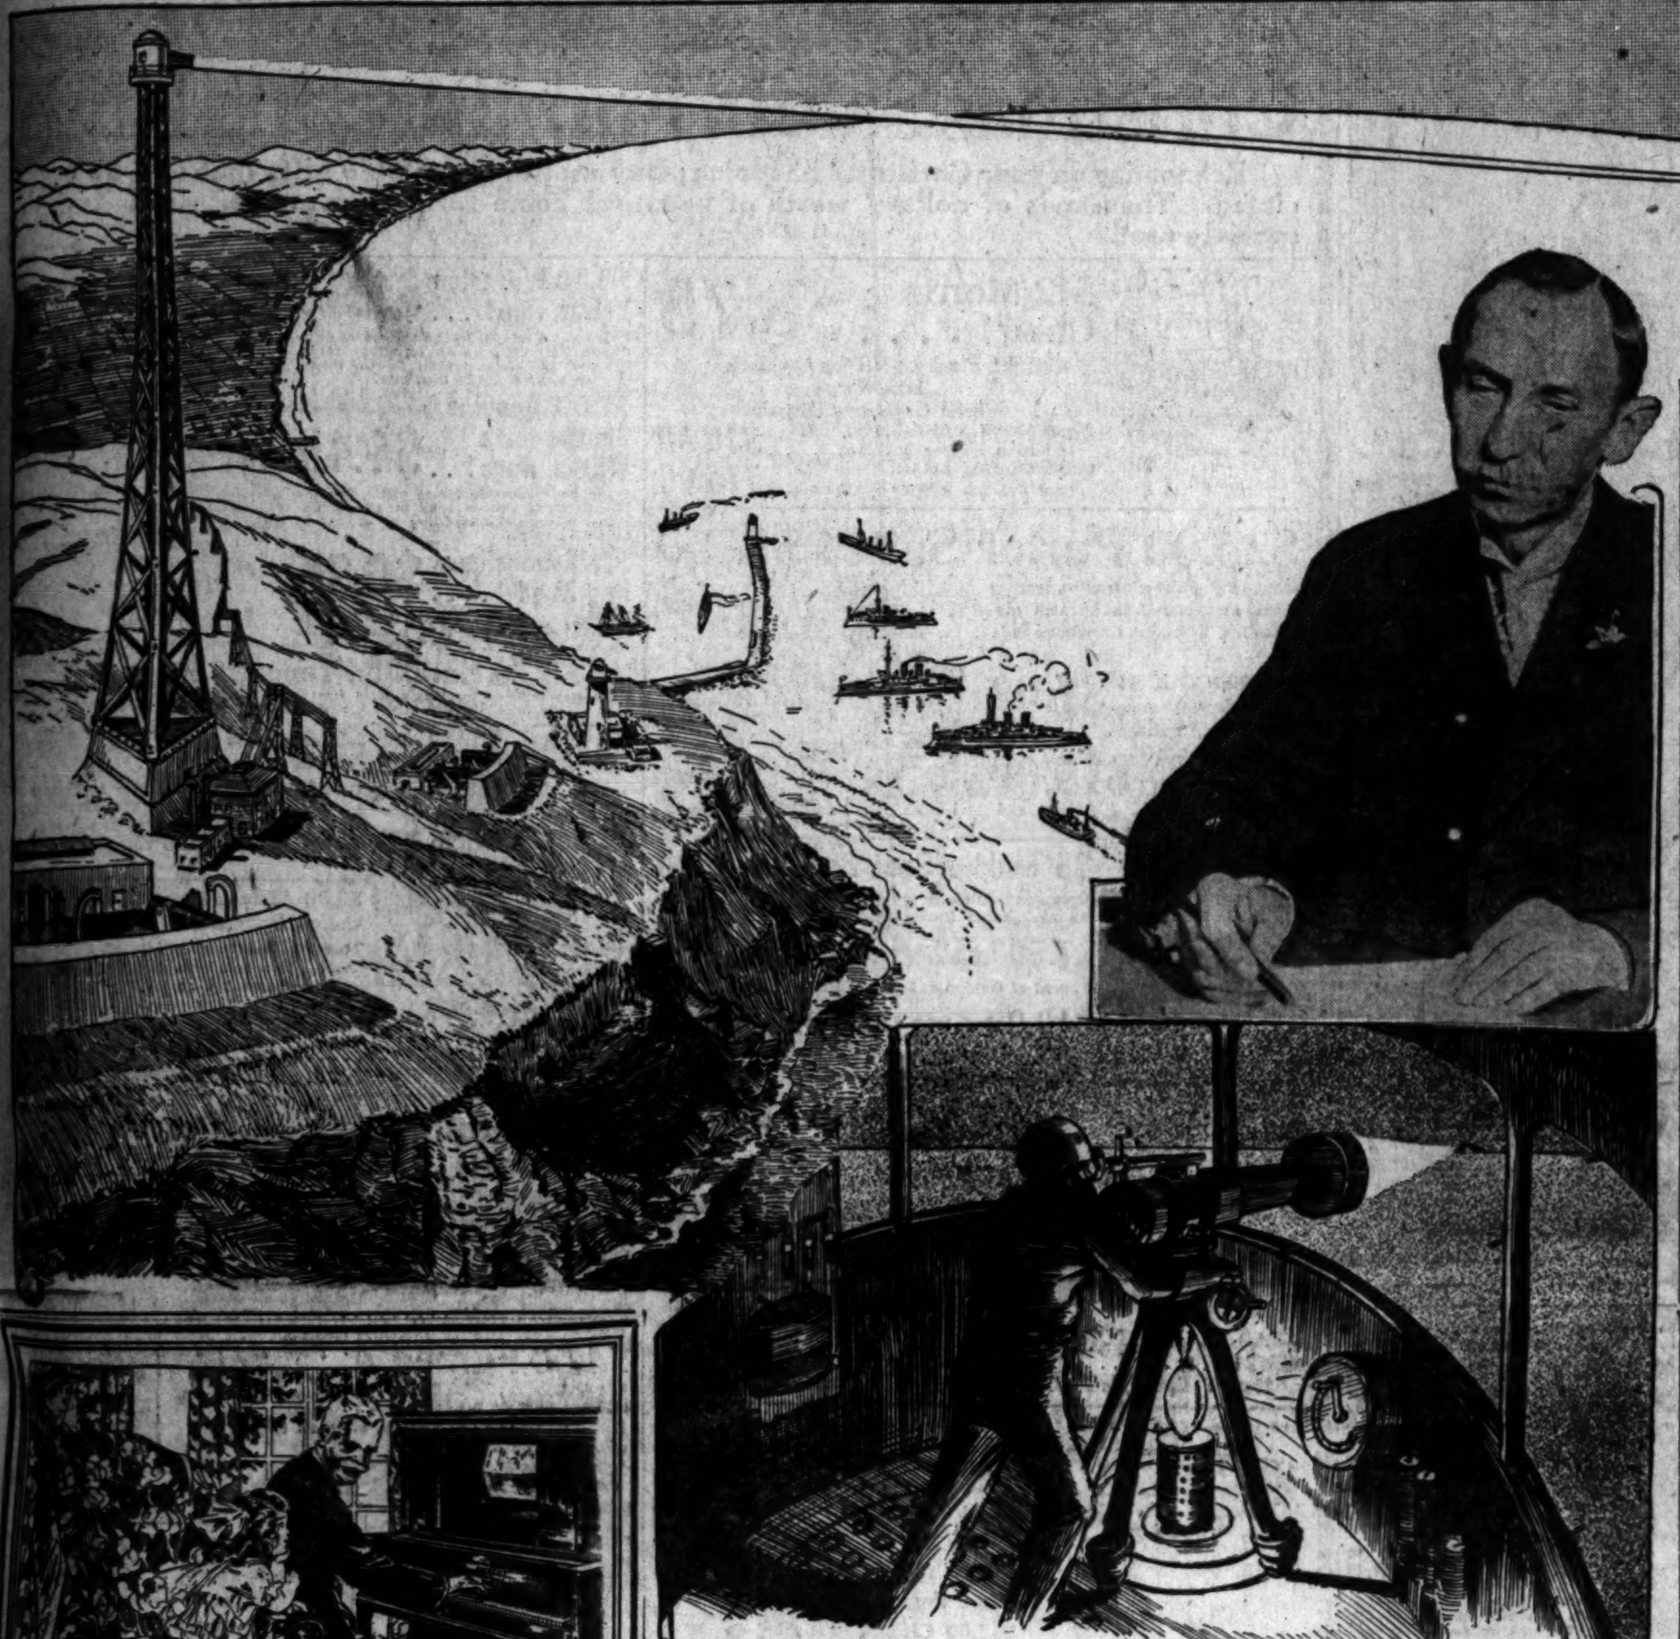
ANGELENO'S WIRELESS BOLTS TO MAKE AMERICA IMPREGNABLE.



Sure and simple electrical annihilation of a hostile fleet

By a mechanic in a projecting tower, and Charles R. Harris, the Los Angeles genius, who announced the perfection of his remarkable invention yesterday. The tower used for the purpose of illustration is on the Ft. MacArthur site at this harbor, and the warships have just rounded Santa Catalina Island. Projected wireless bolts reach farther than the greatest guns ever constructed.

"As a Finger of Flame in the Night."

INVENTOR TAMES LIGHTNING FOR COUNTRY'S DEFENSE.

Invading Fleets or Armies at the Mercy of Electric Currents Riding Focused Aero-Waves and Reaching Farther than Any Guns.

POWERFUL ELECTRIC currents, riding the focused aero-waves of the wireless, will repel the fleet invasions and annihilate the armies of the future, making the United States absolutely impregnable, at a minimum of expense, through an apparatus which was given a successful demonstration near this city last week, according to Charles R. Harris, consulting engineer of national note and perfector of this and more than 200 other inventions.

"It is for the use of the United States alone, and only in time of national peril," said Mr. Harris, discussing the wonderful invention yesterday.

Jealously guarded in a safety deposit vault of this city, the plans of the machine to hurl Jovian lightning on hostile sea or aerial fleets are of the simplest, according to Mr. Harris.

"The machines can be built for $5000 each. They can be used wherever 10,000 or more volts are available," he said. "Within thirty days the General Electric, Western Electric, and Westinghouse companies could turn out sufficient machines to protect the entire coast line of the country. The only thing requisite for their use is a tower, building, or other elevation of 266 feet or more."

Making "preparedness" merely a matter of voltage, the best-prepared country that in which the arts of peace have been most assiduously cultivated, the invention revolutionizes the usages of war. It assures the throwing of a wall of electric flame around this country in time of need and the raking of the skies with a hand of fire before which nothing could live.

Mounted on a 266-foot tower on the Fort MacArthur site at the harbor, one of these electric "guns," connected with the steam plant of the Southern California Edison Company at Long Beach, could annihilate a hostile fleet rounding Santa Catalina Island at the behest of a mechanic in the revolving turret of the affair. It makes gunpowder merely a memory as an engine of destruction.

Whether Mr. Harris has apprehended the secret by which nature hurls a voltage, greater than that generated by all the power plants of the world, in living stream across unfathomable space, or has recaptured and sequestered the elusive, death-dealing violet ray, is a question that must remain unanswered.

"It is wireless transmission of electrical energy on a scale never before dreamed of, and as such has a distinct commercial value, but the secret will never be made public until wars and rumors of wars have ceased or the United States is attacked," he said.

On the Job.

CAPABLE MAN RETAINS HIS IMPORTANT PLACE.

Effort of Juggled Civil Service Procedure to Oust County Registrar of Voters McAleer Fails and Court Rebukes the Would-be Grabbers — Triumph Comes After a Fight of Two Years.

Thomas McAleer,

County Registrar of Voters, who wins his two-year fight to retain the office to which he was appointed.

THOMAS M'ALEER, registrar of voters, yesterday won his long fight for the office to which he was appointed when Judge E. P. McDaniel, sitting in extra sessions, dismissed the quo warranto proceedings brought to oust him and place D. B. Lyons in his job.

The ruling of Judge McDaniel is a signal victory not only for Mr. McAleer, but for all those who have been at the mercy of a juggled civil service procedure for years. Further, the decision is a direct rebuke to the County Civil Service Commission and the three members of the Board of Supervisors who tried by unfair methods to grab the office of registrar of voters.

The proceedings determined yesterday were brought on the part of D. B. Lyons, who claimed he was entitled to Mr. McAleer's place. He had taken an examination for the position, but Mr. McAleer refused to surrender the office pending the decision of the court. The ouster proceedings followed and yesterday morning Secretary Doty of the Civil Service Commission was forced to admit that the examination of Mr. Lyons was irregular.

Attorney Ford, for Mr. McAleer, contended that even if the registrar was ousted, Mr. Lyons could not serve. Mr. Doty was placed on the stand to lay the foundation for an appeal to the Appellate Court. It was while he was on the stand that Mr. Ford forced from him an admission that the rule regarding promotional examination had been violated in Mr. Lyons's behalf.

Dave Evans, former head of the Civil Service Commission, was one of the attorneys for Mr. Lyons. As attorney for a client he made assertions directly in conflict with the stand he had taken while on the commission.

When Judge McDaniel rendered his opinion Registrar McAleer was happy. For nearly two years he had made a fight to retain the job, to which he was transferred by the Supervisors and Civil Service Commission. For more than a year he had drawn no salary and yet he had public sentiment with him. One legal fight after another was precipitated, and even now, with the court ruling in his favor, Mr. McAleer will have a fight on his hands to collect the back salary due him.

"I wish to thank The Times for the loyal fight it made in my behalf," said Mr. McAleer. "I knew I was right and I asked only for fair treatment. I want to thank the general public for its interest in my case. I believe public sentiment was with me from the start. I needed the sympathy and support of my friends, and I want to thank them for the manner in which they stood by me."

Judge McDaniel was not sparing in his criticism of the Civil Service Commission and the Supervisors for the methods used by them against Mr. McAleer. His opinion, in part, follows:

"The court has been a little bit embarrassed in the consideration of this case by the opinion that was rendered by another judge of this department in that it seemed to me upon a careful consideration of that opinion there was some inconsistency between the conclusion reached and the process of reasoning employed. However, I do not regard any decision of a superior court in a different matter as binding upon this court in this case. . . .

"The court finds that after the charter went into effect, but before the Board of Civil Service Commissioners had had an opportunity of providing rules for the holding of competitive examinations, the position of Registrar of Voters was created by the charter. I feel there is no doubt in the world that the office was created.

"I find that after the charter went into effect the Board of Supervisors, the sole appointing power under the charter, upon recommendation, directly from the County Clerk and directly from the civil service commissioners, transferred Mr. McAleer, the respondent here, to the office of Registrar of Voters, he having previously occupied and filled and performed the duties of a deputy County Clerk. The court holds that at the time the appointment was made the Board of Supervisors had jurisdiction of the matter. Their decision, in the absence of any statute to the contrary or in the absence of a statute providing any remedy by appeal, it would seem to me would be and ought to be final.

"It was admitted upon the oral argument that the position of Registrar of Voters was a similar position to the position of deputy County Clerk who performed the duties of a registrar of voters. The Supervisors, in passing upon the question of whether or not they should make this transfer, decided it to be a fact that the transfer of McAleer was not any promotion or any raise of class or grade. I cannot see that this court or any other can go behind that finding so long as the board had jurisdiction in the matter, that the finding should be determinative.

"I think the action of the board ought to be upheld on the grounds of public policy as well as under the terms of the law in general. Mr. McAleer was one of those who had been so long in the county service as to be exempt from civil service examination so far as a position of the same class and grade was concerned, and this particular position was one that may require a sort of expert and peculiar knowledge, so that it follows that the appointment by the Board of Supervisors and subsequent qualification of the respondent McAleer and his occupancy of the office was valid and that he is entitled to hold the position. No vacancy was ever declared, and the Board of Civil Service Commissioners and the Board of Supervisors, after finding what they supposed to be an error, proceeded to simply appoint an officer and they, by their actions, seemed to think that what they had done conjointly in the way of filling this position had been null and void in the beginning and that a vacancy had existed and they proceeded to fill it in accordance with the provisions of the charter and the rules as finally adopted. I think their last action, if the views of the court upon the main question are sound, was simply itself null and abortive and does not affect the incumbency of Mr. McAleer."

Lo, a Star!

BETHLEHEM'S WONDROUS DRAMA MADE OUR OWN.

Artists of the City Give of Varied Talents to Enhance Coming Play of the Nativity, Written for Los Angeles and to be Presented Twice Freely for All at Christmas Season.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK

JOSEPH AND JESUS and Peter somewhere in the maze and death of the battle front while over Los Angeles the Star of Bethlehem and the song of peace and good will!

For years the Passion Play of Oberammergau has been the Mecca of the thousands. This pilgrimage has on occasion filled the eye of the world. Today the men who by a life of training were prepared for their sacred roles are lost in the ranks of the German soldiery and no man may say when, if ever, this remarkable pageant and spectacle shall be repeated.

In a measure the fact just recited may account for the enthusiasm with which local talent of superb value has identified itself with the presentation in Los Angeles this coming Yuletide of a play on the nativity written by Miss Susanne Clayton Ott, head of the reference department of the Public Library, a play that is for Christian, pagan and Jew, because it carries the message of love.

As its directing genius this splendid effort has the great good fortune to command the superior services and fine artistry of Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith, a woman who for the past decade has stood for all that is high and beautiful in the literature that can be enriched by personal interpretation. As directors of the music for this ambitious enterprise are such local authorities as Adolf Tandler, Joseph Dupuy and Carl Bronson. As Mary, mother of Jesus, is no less distinguished an actress than Sarah Truax, who, in addition to having starred for Cort and Morosco, was the leading woman for two years in the "Garden of Allah." All of her work has fitted her for the creation of this part and she has assumed the responsibility in the face of her dear old mother's grave illness, and while carrying the burden of other important work, because she feels that this production is significant to the growth and aspiration of dramatic art in Los Angeles and in America.

PROJECT'S BIRTH.

There is in America a sort of over-soul organization known as the League of Cities, in which Percy Mackaye, Mary Austin and Henry Bruere are interested with many others. Percy Mackaye likes pageants and pleads for them where he is really capable of writing both poetry and plays. Mary Austin is a woman of good literary style, who might write charming fiction and who insists upon posing as an essayist. In view of the charm of her recent volume called "The Man Jesus," she is to be freely pardoned her indulgence in everything discursive. Henry Buere is an artist who is on the safe side. These three people and others called a meeting of the League of Cities at San Francisco several months ago, and Mayor Sebastion appointed Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith and L. E. Behymer as representatives of the city and the Drama League to attend the gathering of artists and idealists in the north.

It was as the result of this meeting that Mrs. Goldsmith asked the Board of Supervisors and the Committee of 1915 to set aside a small sum of money that would make it possible for her and her colleagues to give a beautiful Christmas pageant in Los Angeles free to all persons who would care to enjoy it.

In consequence Los Angeles people are to have the rare privilege of seeing and hearing this beautiful play and pageant, which really amounts to an opera, twice during the holidays, and the seats are absolutely open to the public and without price. One performance will be on Christmas eve at Exposition Park and the next performance will be on Christmas night at the old Normal School grounds at Fifth street and Grand avenue.

There is in the city a club of women devoted to the interpretation of letters and the drama. It has eighteen members and is known as the Channel Club. This organization is in charge of the remarkable production now being rehearsed.

SUPERIOR MUSIC.

They have secured such composers as Frank Colby and Frieda Peycke for special compositions and have such solo talent as Mme. Constance Balfour, who will sing the classic "Holy Night, Silent Night." In one chorus will appear members of the First Methodist Church choir, the Dominant Club, the Lyric Club, the Ellis Club, the musical section of the Wednesday Morning, the Ebell and the Matinee Musical clubs. One entire scene will be taken by the members of the Orpheus Club, under the direction of Joseph Dupuy.

When Mrs. Goldsmith was looking for a pageant suitable for the occasion she never hesitated as to the subject, because she knew that nothing in any book or in any age was so dramatic in its appeal, so potent in its philosophy and so divinely simple or pathetic as the story of the nativity and the life of Jesus. Finding a play or a pageant exactly suitable to her purpose was no easy task. After reading plays on this subject by Lady Gregory, Lawrence Hausemann and Gordon Craig, she decided to try for something of entirely local production and the result was the beautiful offering by Miss Ott, created within two weeks in the face of a world of other work.

Among the persons who are to take part is Max Pollock, who is in the role of the King of the South, who brings riches to the feet of the Christ child. In the opinion of the writer Mr. Pollock more nearly approximates the values of the true artist than any other semi-professional actor in Los Angeles. During the writer's experience as critic and student of our local drama, no other person who is not professionally employed has shown the brilliant promise of this young man. Cecil Irish, always competent and delightful, will be the King of the North, who represents armed strength. Clyde McCoy has with rare satisfaction created the part of the King of Wisdom. One of the choruses will be that of the shepherds and will consist entirely of members of the Matinee Musical Club, with special music by Mr. Colby.

While in the north Miss Arri Rottman attended some of the performances of Margaret Anglin's Greek plays, and from these performances Miss Rottman derived some of the color scheme and the design she has employed in planning the costuming and the stage effects of the forthcoming production of the nativity. Miss Rottman is exquisitely sensitive to color and has the genius for costuming. She is another Angeleno who is certain to be heard from in professional circles.

The people of the play, in the order of their entrances, are:

A woman who speaks the prologue; five shepherds of Judea, Mrs. Alfred Whitney Allen, Miss Dora Holmes, Miss Elizabeth Yoder, Mrs. O. H. Morgan, Mrs. J. B. Stearns; an old shepherd, Mrs. Chauncey L. Higbee; a shepherd boy, Miss Gertrude Comstock; Elezier (his brother,) Master James Bush; the Angel Gabriel, Mrs. Fred Selwyn Lang; the King of the North, Cecil Irish; the King of the South, Max Pollock; the King of the East, Clyde McCoy; angel of the Star of Bethlehem, Mme. Constance Balfour; Joseph, a carpenter of Nazareth, Frederick Wilson; Mary, the Mother of the Child, Miss Sarah Truax; angels in the sky, Senora Manuella Budrow, Miss Bessie Franklin, Rheinhold Oeschler.

The following committees have been appointed by the board of directors of the Channel Club: chairman of the Executive Committee, Mrs. Stearns; advisory chairman, Mrs. Goldsmith, Mrs. Chauncey L. Higbee, Miss Dora Holmes and Miss Comstock; chairman of music, Miss Frieda Peycke; chairman of printing, Mrs. Alfred W. Allen; chairman of costumes, Mrs. O. H. Morgan; color artist, Miss Arri Rottman.

Sarah Truax as Mary the Mother of Jesus.

Max Pollock as King of the South.

Two Kings of the Orient—Cecil Irish and Clyde McCoy.

"BOBS."

[London Express:] It will be a year tomorrow since Lord Roberts died, as he would have wished, among the sound of the guns in France. It will be many years, many generations, and many centuries, before he will be forgotten. Indeed, so long as the British empire remains or its memory prevails, the name of Lord Roberts will stand out gloriously as an example to all men. He had the bitter disappointment of knowing that his warnings, born of knowledge that comes from military intuition and ripe experience, had fallen on deaf ears, and that his was a voice in the wilderness. Roberts was the very antithesis of a scaremonger. He was a serious, clear-brained soldier and patriot. Insults were heaped on him. The sneers of the politicians, who now cry out that we must make every sacrifice to beat the German aggressor, left him undaunted, and merely served to nerve him to greater effort. It was a pathetic yet heroic figure in our history. The man who a decade before, riding through the streets on his white charger, had driven London delirious with enthusiasm, the demigod had become a mere bore. Just think of it—this senile dodderer wanted us to prepare for war! He wanted every man to be fit and able to repel an enemy. He had the audacity to suggest that there should be compulsory national service for our young men. Did you laugh? He never faltered. He was an octogenarian, full of honors, and he might have died in a halo of domestic sanctity. Instead of that he made fervent speeches, he wrote letters of appeal and articles innumerable; he even sank so low in the estimation of his political opponents, who were unfit to tie his bootlaces, as to buttonhole editors in his efforts to cause the nation to open its eyes to the German peril.

This is no time for vain regrets; yet we cannot help feeling that all would have been different if the warnings of Roberts had been heeded; that the hosts of our glorious dead need not have been sacrificed on the altar of unreadiness; that, indeed, there would have been no war, for the Kaiser would not have dared to face a great British army of trained men. It was the antagonism to Lord Roberts's suggestions that caused us to be only half armed for the fray and gave the German hope to crush us in our unreadiness. Have we learned the lesson? Are we profiting by it? Lord Roberts, old as he was, died a youth in energy, in keenness of mind, a giant in spirit. His was the soul of victory. It would be an insult to his memory if the very humblest of us did not try the most there is in us to live up to his great precepts.

POINSETTIA FETE.

Committees Maturing Plans for Brilliant Events of Three Days at Hollywood This Week.

All committees are busily engaged in perfecting plans for the three-days' Poinsettia Fete to be given Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons and evenings on the grounds of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Hollywood.

The judges of the poinsettia displays were appointed yesterday. They are the Mayor, Judge McCormick, Jesse Lasky and H. O. Davis. Silver cups are to be the prizes. Motion pictures are to be taken of the display and the awarding of prizes.

Thursday evening the entertainment will be given by members of the Lasky Company. Friday night the programme will be in charge of stars of the Keystone Company, including Billy Mason, Tom Shirley and William Clifton. Saturday night the Universal folk will hold forth.

Saturday afternoon Miss Lois Weber will give a talk to girls on "How to Get into the Movies," and in the evening the Carter de Havens will give their new "Poinsettia Dance," and comedy will be staged by Max Asher and Lee Moran.

FOR MAIL THEFTS.

Alleged Looter of Letter Boxes Held on Charge of Stealing Three Post-office Keys.

John Rose was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hammack yesterday on the charge of stealing three keys belonging to the postoffice at Venice. In default of $2500 bail, he was committed to the County Jail.

The arrest of Rose follows many complaints of missing articles from the mail at various beach cities, Redondo, Santa Monica, Ocean Park and Venice. It is claimed by Postoffice Inspector Lowe that Rose was able to unlock boxes not only in the postoffice, where it is known he secured a number of checks for small amounts, but also to purloin mail from the street boxes. It is also known that he took letters and packages from the deposit box in Santa Monica, says Mr. Lowe.

Says Woman's Beauty Depends Upon Heal

Health and Vigor Necessitate Regulation of Organs of Elimination.

Skin foods and face creams and powders cannot make a woman beautiful, because beauty lies deeper than that—it depends on health. In most cases the basis of health and the cause of sickness can be traced to the action of the bowels.

The headache, the lassitude, the sallow skin, and the lusterless eyes are usually caused by constipation. An ideal remedy for women, and one that is especially suited to their delicate organisms, is found in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a mild laxative compound, pleasant to the taste and free from opiates and narcotic drugs of every description. Mrs. Gertrude Jordan, 522 North Liberty street, Indianapolis, Ind., says: "It is simply fine; I have never been able to find anything to compare with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I started using it for the baby and now it is my family standby in all cases where a laxative is needed."

Linens

For Christmas Gifts

Once a year the world stops and thinks more about other people than of itself.

Gifts are chosen for their quality — a smaller gift and finer quality — that's the spirit of Christmas. And so we will display tomorrow the finest linens we have—linens you'll be proud to give as gifts.

We chose them with the greatest care from the best mills of Ireland, Scotland and Germany months ago, when linens of all kinds were much lower in price than they are today.

Hand-embroidered Madeira tea napkins, $4.75, $6, $7.50, $8.50 a dozen.

Silk Stockings Make Splendid Gifts

No woman in all the world ever had enough. If you know that she wears black stockings, that's a sure sign she always needs more black stockings, and every woman can use white stockings with her evening clothes.

Silk stockings good enough to give as Christmas gifts start at $1. Others are $2.50, but if you want to give a really beautiful pair of stockings, pay $5 and let them have that touch of novelty that is so well thought of this year.

Novel Waists Make Wonderful Gifts

At $5, competition is very keen. We can only do better by having a greater variety than you find elsewhere, but at $8.50, $10, $12.50 and $15, all you have to do is to look at the waists to know why we lead as we do.

Such waists are composed—they are cut and designed and put together with a main idea not only as to color, but as to line and ornamentation. Such a waist is fine enough to give as a gift to the most particular woman.

"Substitute" Pearl Necklaces

In the East and Europe, where the richest jewels in the world are owned by wealthy American women and the noblewomen of Russia and England, the genuine jewels are often locked in a safety deposit vault, while jewels that look like the genuine are worn instead.

These "Substitute" pearls are so good — so like genuine — that a French woman of Los Angeles who owned a very rare string of genuine pearls, had added some of these "substitutes" to the original string. And her friends were unable to tell the two apart!

It takes a long, long time to make such pearls, but when they are finished they are wonderful! Strings of them are $35 to $100, and they are very beautiful indeed.

French Novelties
In the Art Needlework Section

The most beautiful, inexpensive, artistic of gifts will be found—sometimes made of brocade combined with gilt braids or cretonnes combined with gilt braids—made into boxes and trays of a hundred sorts. There is every sort of vanity bag in this section, too, from a 50c bag up to the most elaborate and costly.

Sewing boxes, glove boxes, baskets for indoor growing things—the most fascinating variety of mere things that beckon to every woman with the slightest taste for feminine accessories.

Christmas Cards, Tags, Etc.

Just about the center of the store there are two or three booths so busy selling Christmas cards that you might think it the day before Christmas.

Somebody has done these useful and necessary things up in little transparent paper packages. He considers that he has just enough of each thing in each package. The packages are 5c and 10c; the loose tags can be bought in any quantity, just as the stamps or Christmas cards can be—10c apiece, 25c apiece, 5c apiece—any price you want to pay.

There are some delightful cards—as simple and good-looking as you can imagine—for 10c.

Fine Handkerchiefs Make Splendid Gifts

Our patrons deliberately choose to pay 50c and $1 for perfectly plain linen handkerchiefs with narrow hems—instead of more, or less, for fancy. Half a dozen such handkerchiefs could scarcely be excelled as Christmas gifts.

Guaranteed Silk Petticoats For Gifts, $5

Guaranteed to remain perfect for four months, and made in all the colors that are worn.

This is a royal gift—for to be certain your gift is right and will stay right, is part of the happiness of Christmas giving.

Crepe Georgette Underclothes

The camisoles start at $3.00 and they are nothing but a cobweb with an occasional flutter of lace. Exquisite, delicate, wonderful, fabulous! The sort of gift any woman who cares at all for clothes adores.

Nightgowns of Crepe de Chine, $3.85 and up.
Nightgowns of Pussy Willow, $6.00 and up.

Gloves

No woman ever has enough. Street gloves make good gifts—evening gloves make better gifts, and if you don't know her size, send her a Merchandise Certificate and she will choose her own size.

Long, soft, white suede gloves to wear with evening dresses.

These make the finest of gifts, and the sort that few women ever have enough of without feeling, perhaps unconsciously, extravagant.

Liberty Velvet Hand Bags $7.50

These are made of the softest velvet in rich, soft colors, and are exquisitely lined with silk. The fittings are fine and the bag is an excellent gift.

Silks for Holiday Gifts

Why not a silk dress or waist pattern? The following assortment is rich in suggestions:

THE POLITICAL WATCHTOWER

In October, when the people voted against the obliteration of party lines in California, they had an idea that the expression was definite and final. The proposition was put before them squarely, they decided it as squarely, and it was then the duty of the powers that be to abide by the will of the people and make the election laws conform to that verdict.

The political confidence men, who breeze around under the banner of reform, yell themselves hoarse with "stop thief" and in the ensuing excitement pad the pay roll and build up a political machine for themselves, are now trying to defeat the lately-expressed verdict will of the voters.

Fifteen of the fifty-seven varieties of county clerks in California, calling themselves the County Clerks' Association, met at San Francisco at the invitation of Speaker Young of the Assembly and other Johnson gallery slaves. The visiting clerks were worked into good humor by several dinners and a series of entertainments and when they were feeling right, Speaker Young spoke his piece.

He told the minority of county clerks that it would be well for them to decide to accept the new registration, beginning in January, without the affidavit of party affiliation, which means that, if the scheme is placed in operation, Republicans and others will be barred from declaring their party loyalty. Following the speech of the author of the no-party law which was ignominiously defeated October 26, the handful of county clerks decided to obey orders. They have advised all other county clerks that unless there is a court decree to the contrary, it will be the "part of wisdom" for them to prepare registration oaths with the party affiliation missing.

Speaker Young hinted there may have to be an extra session of the Legislature after all. In which event he had the "conference" of clerks urge that the old direct primary law be amended so as to eliminate the declaration of party affiliation in registration affidavits.

This bold piracy exposes the whole scheme. The people voted against just such a practice, after it had been held up by referendum. Now it is proposed to circumvent the people by going through the same old process.

Any one who recalls the decisive results of the election last October must have a vivid impression of the intent of the people. In defeating the attempts to wipe out all political parties except that which holds office, the people wrote their approval of the party declaration method, and their disapproval of crooked politics which the active Mr. Young seems very anxious to continue.

The Republicans of the Eleventh Congressional District are going to make the fur fly next Wednesday at Riverside. A meeting at the Glenwood Inn of delegates from every county in the district will be the opening gun in the Congressional campaign in the district. It so happens that State Senator Lyman M. King, one of these zebra politicians who runs under any party banner to get the votes, is aspiring to go to Congress from that district. Those who have been Republicans all the time, who have avoided the cross-breeds and the deserters, expect to have something to say about it. They don't want Mr. King, and you can't blame them. They want a Republican and there are plenty in the district who would make excellent Congressmen.

Congressman Kettner, the incumbent, is said to be aspiring to the United States Senatorship. His Democratic friends in the Eleventh don't want him to run for the Senate and they are getting up a mammoth petition urging him to run again for Congress.

Supervisor Pridham is entitled to four years of peace. He is about to conclude his term as chairman of the Board of Supervisors, and he has made one of the best officers this county ever had. It has been a fearful trial upon him to remain at the head of that warring board, and a sacrifice to his dignity, his business and his family. Sidney Butler, another capable man, resigned from the board because he could not stand the constant bickerings. The pest of the board is Supervisor Norton, aided and abetted by Supervisor Hamilton. Mr. Norton takes delight in being unpleasant. His idea of serving the fake reformers, labor unionites and others with whom he is aligned is to be as boorish and unbearable as it is possible for any human being to be. Since he has been on the board he has been insulting to Chairman Pridham and other members who reserve the right to think for themselves. Day after day Mr. Butler listened to him. When assault and battery seemed justifiable Mr. Norton escaped by the width of a table and a pair of agile feet.

But because Mr. Butler thought life was too short to tolerate that kind of nonsense he resigned. Mr. Pridham has been no more patient, but he has been more hopeful. It is very likely that he will be able to serve through four years of peace, for all signs point to Norton being defeated next fall. Mr. Pridham isn't anxious to seek re-election, for fear he might win. If he wins and goes back to find Norton in the same job of official heckler he will be loser.

Tom McAleer, Register of Voters, has won his long fight to hold his position. Public sympathy has been with him for two years when he first found two or three hungry Supervisors trying to beat him out of his salary and a hungrier Civil Service Commission trying to ram their own candidate into the job. Through it all, Chairman Pridham and Supervisor Hinshaw stood with him. Three members of the Supervisors fought him, the Civil Service Commission fought him and finally the matter dragged through the courts. The decision yesterday is one that will be regarded as a rebuke to peanut politics. Since Mr. McAleer's salary was tied up for nearly a year and he was forced to pay out of his own pocket the cost of a lawyer to help him get justice, it is suggested that the actual cost of the legal fight to oust him be borne proportionately by the three Supervisors who were so anxious to get him out.

Mr. McAleer is an efficient officer, has saved the county thousands of dollars and has stood between the people and the invisible government that tried to puddle up the election machinery and put their own friends in posts of power.

Pete Wilson, who served several terms on the Board of Supervisors years ago, is mentioned as a possible candidate in the Fourth Supervisoral District again next year. He has lived at the corner of Vermont and McClintock avenues for a quarter of a century and has a great many friends who would like to see him in the race.

The Warren Williams boom for District Attorney assumed more definite shape during the week.

D. F. McLaughlin, a candidate for Supervisor in Mr. Hinshaw's district, is making an effective campaign at the beaches. Supervisor Hinshaw will seek re-election and expects to win. Dr. F. C. Langdon, now a Councilman, is out for Supervisor in the Norton district. It won't require a very strong man to beat Norton, but several strong men are expected to appear in the race shortly.

THE WATCHMAN.

Sentence Cut for Daring.

[Washington Post:] "Any man with nerve enough to jump off an elevated train while it is in motion, in order to escape from the police, has nerve enough to make good at something worth while," said Magistrate Barlow in Yorkville court this morning. He was talking to Fred Collins, 28, who had been arrested for jostling in a Third avenue surface car June 24 and later endeavored to escape by leaping from a moving elevated train.

"Inasmuch as you are an escaped prisoner," the magistrate said, "I cannot let you go scot free, but I will cut the usual sentence in half and give you forty-five days."

OIL IN STOVE COSTS A LIFE.

HASTE AFTER OVERSLEEP HAS DIRE CONSEQUENCES.

Failure of Alarm Clock to Waken Family Leads to Rush Which Causes an Explosion, Fatally Burning Woman and Disabling Hands of Her Husband.

The failure of an alarm clock to operate early yesterday morning resulted in an explosion that fatally burned Mrs. Josie Cucio as she was hurrying the preparation of her husband's breakfast in the kitchen of their home at No. 419 South Avenue Nineteen. She died later at the County Hospital. Her husband, who valiantly fought the flames enveloping his wife, is at the same hospital, severely burned. His hands will be useless, the surgeons say.

Mr. and Mrs. Cucio and their five small children overslept yesterday morning, owing to the ineffectiveness of their alarm clock. When the man finally did wake up, he discovered he had but a few minutes in which to get his breakfast before leaving for work. He started to dress the children while Mrs. Cucio went into the kitchen to prepare the meal.

The rain had saturated the fire wood. Hurrying too quickly, Mrs. Cucio used up a box of matches, without obtaining a light. Then she thought of coal oil, and emptied the contents of a near-by lamp over the damp wood. Then as she struck a match, the oil exploded, enveloping her clothes in the blazing liquid.

The husband dropped the child he was dressing and rushed to her assistance, snatching a blanket from the bed as he ran. Desperately he fought the flames and finally beat them out. But Mrs. Cucio was frightfully burned on almost every part of her body.

TAKES JOB-SEEKERS' MONEY.

Young Man Arraigned on Charge of Operating Employment Agency Without License to do so,

A young man who repeatedly declared he felt more like a "goat" than a malefactor, appeared before Police Judge White yesterday morning to explain why he should not be incarcerated for apparently operating a get-rich-quick scheme in a livery stable at No. 225 South San Pedro street. Thirteen men were present and each man demanded either the return of $2 which they had paid down in order to get a lucrative job in Oatman, returned, or be permitted to take tht money out of the defendant's hide.

The young man gave his name as Earl Clark. The specific charge stated he was conducting an employment agency without a license. The charge accuses Mr. Clark of having advertised in the daily papers for men to work in Oatman, offering $2.50 per day and railroad fare.

Clark explained that a chance acquaintance had placed him in charge of the agency. The acquaintance had a name that sounded like "Rollings" to the apparently mystified Clark. Judge White held Clark in default of $500 bail for a hearing Thursday.

AN EXPLANATION.

Pasadena's free nursery is a success. This is not a place where you can get trees and shrubbery for nothing, but only a house where you may leave a little limb of your family tree and find it sprouting with health and happiness on your return.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

Some young law students spent a whole evening and many words debating the comparative virtues of buttermilk and grape juice, the question being as to which beverage is most beneficial to the human system. Our first impulse would be to say that we would take no chances on any beverage that had produced William Jennings Bryan, but upon reflection we see how it is possible that William Jennings merely happened to light upon grape juice. Buttermilk has this against it. They say that if one drank enough of it he would live forever, and surely no one could desire such a monotonous experience.

MORE TRUE THAN PLEASANT.

Hooray—at last the man who has seen into the present war and has guessed wisely concerning the significance of conflict! Wonder of wonders, this man had every chance to be ruined by academics, yet escaped. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, says that if free governments cannot organize and maintain as effective armies and navies as autocratic governments can, then democracy fails. In that sentence may be found much of the meaning of this war. Victory on the part of the Germans would not necessarily mean the death of democracy, but it would mean that democracy must become intelligent, alert and efficient if it hopes to survive.

NO ALLIANCE.

Baron Shibusawa, the Japanese Ambassador, proposes a peace alliance of six powers, comprising France, Italy, Japan, Great Britain, Russia and the United States. That is to say, he proposes that the United States shall join the allied nations in a league from which Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey shall be excluded.

The proposed peace alliance would be apt to result about as did the partnership of Wickelhausen and Recknagel in the dry goods business. "When we went into business," said Recknagel, "Mr. Wickelhausen had the capital and I had the experience. Now I have the capital and Wickelhausen has the experience."

We want no entangling alliance with any European power. All that we ask of any of them is to keep hands off.

FALSE EXCUSES FOR FOUL ACTS.

It is claimed by both Britain and Germany that the seizure of American vessels on the high seas, or even in neutral ports, on the ground that, although ostensibly bound for a neutral European port, the ultimate destination of their cargoes was a belligerent port, is justified on the assumption that during our Civil War the United States pursued a similar course with vessels loaded with munitions and supplies for the Confederacy.

The United States did nothing of the kind. All its seizures were of blockade-runners caught in the act. The one case in which it stopped a British ship on the high seas was the case of the Trent, and Secretary Seward promptly and unequivocally disclaimed the act and apologized for it.

From both Germany and England we have had thus far for these outrages scant apologies, promises—which have not been kept—of a discontinuance of them, renewed assurances of distinguished consideration and an agreement that if their own prize courts, picked and packed by themselves, shall decide against them they will sometime or other, somehow or other pay—on the day of judgment—any judgment that may be awarded. Great Britain, however, makes such ultimate payment conditional upon our loaning her the money to pay with.

The European belligerents appear to be engaged in a protracted effort to induce or force the United States to engage in a contest not unlike that of Midshipman Easy's triangular duel as described in Marryat's novel of that name. Germany and England shoot at each other, both shoot at the United States, England insists that the United States shall join her in shooting at Germany, and Germany claims that it is the duty of the United States to shoot at England.

If the United States, all unprepared as it is for war, should suffer itself to be forced or coaxed into the arena it might have to say, with Mercutio, "A plague on both your houses."

WHAT A MONSTER!

Pursuing, to some extent, the line of observations contained in the editorial published yesterday under the caption of "Anniversary of The Times," we now add some further observations in considering the important matter expressed in the words of the law, "with good motives and for justifiable ends."

The Times is not, as was represented by Joe Scott and his Arizona attorney, Ross, in their arguments before the jury in both trials of Scott's libel suit against the Times-Mirror Company, a gigantic newspaper Minotaur, hiding in the Cretan labyrinth or "fort-like structure" at the corner of First and Broadway—a monster pulling into its relentless maw not only youths and maidens, but also full-grown alleged lawyers who exploit divorce suits, and Progressive politicians and other vermin, and who—

"be they alive or be they dead, Grinds their bones to make its bread."

The Times is not a steam roller engaged in crushing even those whose conduct has not been such as to endear them to its responsible editor. His conception of the duties of a great newspaper is that it is a sentry standing upon the outer ramparts to give warning of the approach of public enemies, whether such enemies appear in the thinly-veiled guise of subsidy seekers, swindling promoters, fakirs, or fomenters of domestic discord, or assassins of character, or villains of any kind.

It is the right and duty of a great journal like The Times to review and criticise the public acts of public officers, to keep the public informed of their bad acts as well as their good deeds; of their sins of omission and commission as well as of their services. It is the duty of a great journal to expose fakirs, pretenders, law-breakers, dishonest demagogues, and enemies of public order. The Times has always aimed to do this, and will always aim to do it.

The happenings of the world from Labrador to Patagonia, from the Pillars of Hercules to the Indies, from Cape Cod to Alaska—public happenings in every land and on every sea—are flashed to The Times and laid before its readers with the rising of the sun every morning.

The utterances of great statesmen and orators, the songs of great poets, the discoveries of scientists, the achievements of inventors, the marching and counter-marching of armies, plowing of vast oceans by great navies, the progress of the world in letters, arts and arms are recorded in The Times.

In its editorial columns will be found the unfettered comments of the responsible editor and his talented staff on the foremost occurrences of the day.

The Times recognizes the fact that the prosperity and progress of the city in which it is published, and the stability and growth of the nation, are largely dependent upon its active and results-producing citizens, whether they labor with brain or brawn, with pen or with hammer. It has ever been their best and most steadfast friend. It demands for every man the right to labor in whatsoever vocation he chooses to pursue; to labor by agreement for whomsoever he will, for so many hours in each day or week as he may be willing, and for such wages as he and his employer may agree upon, independently of unwarranted interference from unauthorized outsiders; and The Times has arrayed and will continue to array itself in unrelenting hostility to all dynamiters, boycotters, picketers, closed shoppers, walking delegates and grafters who would interfere with men's rights.

The Times believes in protection to American industry, in restoration of our commercial ocean marine, in the repeal of meddlesome laws, in economical government—national and State—in lower taxes and in efficiency on the part of public servants.

The Times has no enemies except those who are enemies of the State and nation—enemies of the public welfare. It pursues offenders against either the statute or the moral law, because it would help to make life cleaner and men better. If it shall ever be misinformed, or badly advised into doing through its columns an injustice to any man or any woman, it will stand ready, after being convinced, to make amends.

The Times will continue to pursue the course it has followed for three and one-half decades. It rejoices, first, in the army of its friends and, second, in the corporal's guard of its enemies. It hopes to continue to receive the commendations of the former, and it would feel that it had somehow been neglectful of duty if it failed to be the recipient of the lies and hatred of the latter.

When examined in the true light of the actual facts of its long and open journalistic career, how different is the attitude, standing and character of the Los Angeles Times from the untrue and unsupported representations made by Joe Scott and his man Ross in two conspicuous Superior Court cases, when these special pleaders were suffered to do their worst in their demagogic efforts to conceal the truth and poison the minds of the juries against The Times and against its actual motives, course, career and journalistic record!

It was a reckless and a desperate effort to make the jury believe something besides the truth and to bring in a verdict not in harmony with the facts and the merits of the case at issue—an effort that brought the plaintiff to the very ragged edge of failure.

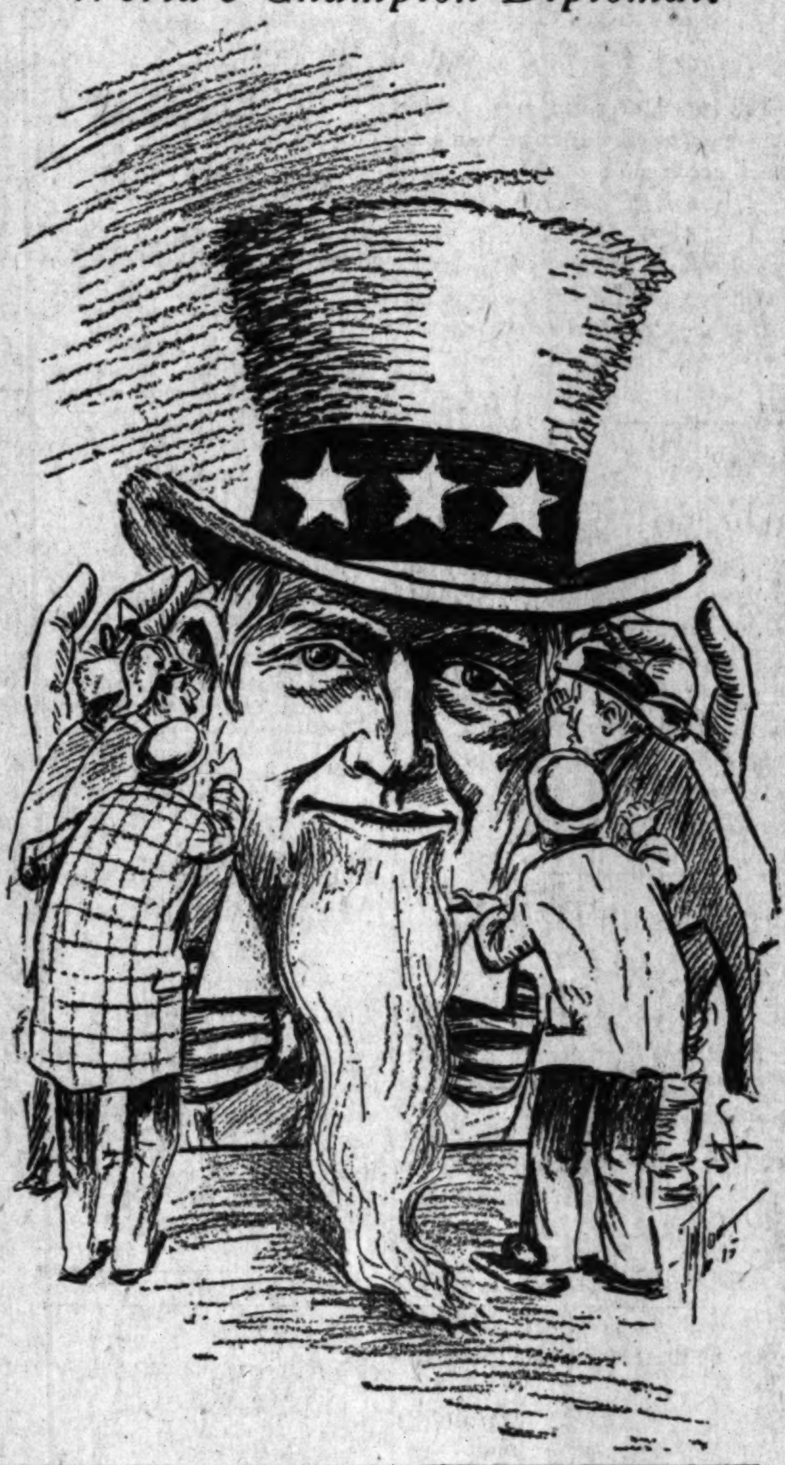
CREME DE LA CREME.

Prospects for San Diego enjoying "a Happy New Year" were never rosier than at the present writing. The Southland is lined up solidly to make it the world exposition city of 1916. Funds have been liberally subscribed, the best of the exhibits from the big San Francisco collection have been promised, the progressive little wonder city near the Mexican line has stirring times ahead.

San Diego should have everything coming its way when it starts the biennial of its contribution to the art, progress, architecture and education of Southern California. Summer and winter tourist travel to the Pacific ever increases, the competition of the big northern exposition has disappeared, the cream of this year's two expositions will next year be concentrated at the Silver Gate.

Thousands of our own citizens will visit or revisit the scenes of last year's triumphs, enhanced by so many fresh features; thousands more from other States and other countries will swell the eager crowds pressing through the gates of the enlarged exposition. No better start was ever made for the second part of a great programme nor one that promises to close in a fuller blaze of popular satisfaction.

World's Champion Diplomat.



MEDDLESOME GERMAN OFFICIALS. "RAUS MIT EM!"

The person of an Ambassador, a Consul, a naval or military attache or other representative of a foreign government is, under the law of nations, immune from arrest or detention on civil process. He cannot be sued for a board bill, or for breach of promise of marriage, or for being a dirty super-serviceable spy and instigator of plots against the neutrality, and abuser of the hospitality, of the government to which he is accredited.

Yet the law of nations has provided a simple and adequate method by which an offended government can rid itself of such vermin. It can, for cause sufficient to itself, which cause it is not compelled to make public, or even to state to anybody, declare the obnoxious official "persona non grata" and request his government to divest him of the official garment behind which he skulks, and to recall him, and do it p.d.q.

The difference between certain Englishmen and certain Germans, who in their zeal to serve their country transcend the law of nations in America, seems to be that the former act defiantly and openly and sometimes insolently, while the latter act secretly and sneakingly.

If Dr. Dumba had not been an Ambassador; if he had been a hyphenated American, or a foreigner without official status, he might have been indicted and tried and punished as an accessory before the fact for violating the criminal law by endeavoring to induce Austrians employed in munition factories to blow up the establishments in which they were employed, or engage in criminal activities of a kindred character. As it was, President Wilson promptly protected his country by informing Dr. Dumba that for what he had done, and for what he was preparing to do, he was "persona non grata" and requesting the Austrian government to recall him, and, if it needed an Ambassador in his place, to send a gentleman who would not violate the exterior decencies and obligations of diplomatic intercourse.

Undeterred by what had happened to Dr. Dumba, Capt. Karl Boy-Ed, the naval attache, and Capt. Franz von Papen, the military attache of the German Embassy at Washington, engaged in improper activities in this country in connection with naval and military matters. Their conduct was brought to the knowledge of our government at Washington. As they were not subject to the jurisdiction of our courts, and did not need to avail themselves of the services of a Tombs shyster to twist a verdict of not guilty or a disagreement from a befogged jury, it was not necessary for our government to state in what their violation of neutrality consisted. It was sufficient to declare them persona non grata and request Count von Bernstorff to divest them of their official status and to require them to leave the country. When Archibald was searched in England a letter from Von Papen was found on him in which he referred to members of the Washington government as "those idiotic Yankees."

But it was not this that caused him to be declared "persona non grata." It was because he and his associate, Capt. Boy-Ed, had been busy secretly fomenting strikes in munition factories and aiding to supply German warships with coal, ammunition and provisions.

The prompt and manly action of President Wilson and Secretary Lansing in inviting these meddlesome German officials to get out of the country will be commended by American citizens of all political parties.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

THE OLD VIRTUES.

The old-fashioned virtues are not out of date; they'll never relapse to abandoned estate. The records will show you that honesty pays, as much as it did in the halcyon days. And industry brings reputation and scads, the same as it did in the times of our dads. Sobriety helps us to lay up a wad, the larder to fill when the wolf is abroad. The silver-tongued speakers are jaunting around, and filling the air with a riot of sound, instructing the people just how they should vote, if they would be sure of retaining their goat; they're talking of creeds and of isms and things, and nothing of value the spell-binder brings. The world would be better if speakers would boom the old-fashioned virtues, and keep them in bloom, and say to the people, "Don't worry, don't fret, be honest and sober and keep out of debt." Oh, that is the counsel the plain people need; it's better than platitudes going to seed. The old-fashioned virtues much sustenance give; when they are adhered to, they teach us to live; and when we are ready to murmur good-by, they show us how sportsmanlike delegates die.

Getting On.

[Judge:] When your sixteen-year-old boy takes you out on the tennis court and puts it all over you;

When the street urchin on roller skates bowls you over on the avenue and stops to assist you to rise with a "Sorry, Old Top!"

When you receive that notice from the secretary that your college class will hold its twenty-fifth anniversary;

When your daughter's son is said to resemble his grandfather;

When you are content to sit in the tenth row instead of the first at the musical comedy;

When your tailor suggests that the plaid suiting you have selected is just a bit youthful for you;

When you stop reminding people of your birthday;

When your first sweetheart presents you to her third husband;

When you overhear your partners, who entered your employ as boys, remark that your business methods are "old-timey"—then you say to yourself, "Yes, I'm getting on!"

How Soldiers Make Fashions.

[Boston Transcript:] Soldiers have helped to set many fashions of the world. It is not generally known that buttons on the sleeves originated in the French army, and were placed there, it is said, to prevent the soldiers from wiping their mouths with the sleeves.

The frock-coat is a descendant of the wafenrok, a long garment falling below the knees to cover armour, and slit up the back for riding. The two purely ornamental buttons which adorn the back of some modern frock-coats were at one time supports for the sword-belt.

The Norfolk coat was designed from the chain-mail hauberk fastened round the waist with the sword-belt. The peak-cap is a copy of the helmets worn by soldiers up to the time of Cromwell. Heels were placed on shoes to prevent the feet from slipping through the stirrups.

We're Long on Patience.

CHILE CON CARNAGE.

Being the Personal Opinions of Don Yo de Chiltepin.

They used to call Massachusetts the State of Mind. But there will have to be a reclassification of nearly all the familiar old pet names.

California causes all their old pre-eminences to fade. It has fallen into a habit of breaking records, so that whatever happens here happens harder than anywhere else. It has the cream of all the States. Never did so many New Englanders picnic together in New England, nor so many Ohioans in Ohio, nor so man Iowans in Ioway, as picnic state-officially in Los Angeles county every year. Nothing like it has ever happened before in the history of human migrations.

And with the brains, the brawn and the soothing bank accounts of this unprecedented immigration, we have bitten off more ideas than we can chew. Kansas once had a reputation for Patent-office Legislation. But Kansas now has to fall back on Corn. The only real reform State is California. "Reform" is as Blessed a Word as Mesopotamia; and our folks are blessed folks; and they like—pardon me, Liked—the sound of it. So we have gone to great expense to buy the Howly of Howlies of Reform. And we have it—bill of sale and all. California ree-joices today in a Progueessive administration of which the world never saw the ancestors. We have more laws, near-laws, fool-laws, mebbe-so laws, than any other commonwealth now extant. The population of China, per square mile, is the only rival of our high-salaried Commissions per square mile. We regulate by law the length, breadth and depth of bed sheets. I am advised that the next Legislature will pass laws fixing the altitude of shimmies and the latitude of didies—with a Commission for each, of course, at $5000 per annum for each of the triplet or quintuplet commissioners. That's cheap enough! Naturally you have to pay for Experts!

I would be last to insinuate that the present State Administration is a Perfect Lady. It might have come nearer to being so accounted if it had been, in 1699, a familiar of that particular wharf in Dear Old Lunnon where the fishwives not only sold herring—and themselves—at the bottom market, but enriched the English language by a now universal word. Their chaste speech was so Progueessive that their foul wharf and fouler tongues are immortalized. It sounds a long way from 1699 to 1915—but not so far from Sacramento to Billingsgate.

And they would also need an olla podrida recipe of Blue-Laws, Tammany, tax-eaters, More's Utopia, I.W.W.'s, and Matteawan. Equal quantities. Stir well. Kick out the cook and let George, the pot-wrestler, do it.

It is related that the great lexicographer himself (Dr. Samuel Johnson) was the only man who ever worsted one of these termagants. He doubtfully smelled her fish—and she belched blue blazes. Dr. Johnson straightened his afflicted frame and roared: "You double-cylindrical, hypercalorical, supergenesian, megalocephalous, polysyllabical, semi-elliptical, craniological——"

But the lady had fled.

Nowadays, of course, Ladies don't use Progueessive language. Even the synonym, "Billingsgate" feels rather shy in modest society (if there is such a thing) and even in society that desires to be deemed modest. What they call a spade, I do not now recall, for it is years since I have visited Boston—but it is something in cotton batting. For they are Refining the language. Of their four branches only two are termed limbs—and L—g is hyphenated, even as D—n.

But the Progueessive administration that California now tries to balance on its proud young shoulders—and never needs to feel to "see if it's on straight" (for it knows ex-officio that it isn't,) is some kind of a lady anyhow, though not perfect. Medical science should investigate this phenomenon. How did it come by a certain anatomy to which no Mere Man has a right?

If you steal a loaf of bread because your wife is hungry—and has a two-fold right to be, since she's "expecting"; or if you snatch a purse from the parading fashion-plate that you may buy medicine for your dying child—God help you! No one else will.

But if your little Mexican wife is so unwifely as to protest against your bringing your male friend to bed, and you carve her up with your machete; or if you murder someone's great-grandmother because she objected to your shameless neglect of the work for which you are paid; or if you tole a weak little boy out into the night from his clerking, and beat him slow to death with the baseball bat you have prepared the day before, to get his $20 to "give a good time" to your trollope—why, then you are safe. And this is not rhetoric. Anyone who reads The Times recognizes these historical cases of recent event. The police may be so rude—as so lucky—as to catch you. You may be somewhat inconvenienced. The courts are sometimes inconsiderate. They might even sentence you to be hanged.

But never fear. Your cell will be a bower of roses. You will be visited, heroed, transformed from cur to lion; sighed over, wept over—and given the Time of your Life.

And if the Law is so mean—after a long-drawn trial, for which we (your less-effulgent fellow-citizens) pay $50,000 to give you "a fair chance" (which you didn't give your victim)—why, if the law is so inhuman, the State Administration will put the law in that pocket which nearest abuts its brains, and juggle you along in comfy-ness at our expense—hoping that we Mere People may sometime vote to abolish capital punishment—and every other sort.

California never knew before so compact, so complicated or so merciless a Political Machine as she has this day. And as it is already a distinction not to belong to some State Commission; and since even the hungry invention of Sacramento is getting stale, mebbe I may suggest. What's the matter with a State Board of Pardoned Felons? If you're too conscientious to be a Bull Nuisance—why, just mince your wife up with any old razor you can spare; or assault (and then murder) some woman child—and you are Made.

CHARTER FILED ON TIME LIMIT.

PROPOSED BASIC LAW BEARS TWELVE NAMES.

Signatures of Mushet, Humphreys and Reed Conspicuous by Their Absence from Document Which will Come Before Voters for Approval or Rejection Next Summer.

The proposed new city charter, bearing the signatures of twelve of the fifteen members of the Board of Freeholders, was filed with City Clerk Wilde yesterday by Secretary Simons. The document was filed at noon, just before the legal time expired. Those who signed the charter are President Harry Andrews, Vice-President C. E. Locke, John R. Haynes, John S. Mitchell, Milbank Johnson, George W. Downing, D. Joseph Coyne, Thomas E. Gibbon, William H. Harrison, George H. Dunlop, S. C. Graham and R. W. Heffelfinger. W. C. Mushet refused to attach his signature to the certificate recommending the adoption of the charter and it is understood that William M. Humphreys, who is in San Francisco, would have refused to sign had he been in Los Angeles. Haines W. Reed, who is absent from the city, is the other member who has not signed the document.

The proposed charter will come before the Council and will be published for fifteen days and the Council will call the special election for June 6, the date set by the Board of Freeholders.

To Explain the Plan.

Councilman Wheeler received word from John H. Humphreys, secretary of the British Proportional Representation Society, that he will come to Los Angeles this week for a series of addresses on proportional representation. Secretary Humphries is on a tour of the world, coming from Tasmania and Australia, where proportional representation is in effect. He will speak at the City Club luncheon next Saturday and arrangements will be made for his appearance before other civic organizations during his stay in Los Angeles.

Lights by the Month.

The Council yesterday decided to arrange for street lighting in the northern and eastern parts of the city on a month to month basis at present rates until these rates are fixed definitely by the State Railroad Commission and the question of authorizing this action by the Board of Public Works was referred to the Public Service Committee. Present lighting contracts with the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation in the Highland Park and Garvanza district and with the Pacific Light and Power Company in the Hollywood district expire at the end of the present month.

Ghost-walk is Delayed.

Members of the police department discovered yesterday that they will not receive their November pay checks until Monday and their protest to the Council was voiced by Councilman Topham, who suggested that the Efficiency Commission has an opportunity to show its value to the city by devising a better pay system whereby city employees may get their money when it is due. Deputy Auditor McQuiston informed the Council that the pay roll for the police department was received from the Civil Service Commission only Saturday morning.

Seek Safety Last.

Representatives of the jitbus drivers' union appeared before members of the Council yesterday with another appeal for modification of the ordinance forbidding them to carry passengers on doors and running-boards. They were told that ample time was given them to procure bus bodies for their cars and that inasmuch as the ordinance is in the interest of public safety, it will be enforced.

Addresses are Changed.

Tangles in street names involving Pritchard place, Pritchard street and Pritchard court and Sierra street were unraveled by the Council yesteday and the old names were given back, with changes in street numbers so that where continuous, these streets will have the same names. By these changes, a part of Pritchard place and Pritchard court become Pritchard street and Pritchard street becomes Sierra street, while parts of Pritchard court and Pritchard street become Flora avenue.

CHOICE HARBOR LAND TO CITY.

WHARF COMPANY LOSES CLAIM TO VALUABLE SLICE.

Lease Made by San Pedro Nine Years Ago is Held Valid Only as to Two-thirds of the Area, While Rest of the Miner's Fill Reverts to Los Angeles.

By a decision of Judge Myers yesterday in the quiet-title suit of the city of Los Angeles against the Outer Harbor Dock and Wharf Company, involving 160 acres west of Municipal Dock No. 1 at San Pedro, the city gets the choice cut of this valuable acreage, about sixty acres, the dock company retaining the wharf franchise, upon which it has a twenty-year lease.

The suit was tried before Judge Myers in July, 1914, and submitted on briefs in June last. The trial consumed four weeks and an additional one and one-half weeks were devoted to the argument. The evidence showed that the dock company obtained a lease of the 160 acres in February, 1906, running for a period of fifty years from the city of San Pedro before consolidation with the city of Los Angeles.

The dock company reclaimed the land and claims to have expended in improvements $5,000,000. It contended that the lease was validated by the act passed by the Legislature. It further set up estoppel on the ground that the city of Los Angeles stood by and watched the dock company spend these millions without objection and could not now be heard to complain.

The city contended that the lease of 1906 was void because the city of San Pedro did not own the land and had no right to make such a lease, if it did own it; that the validity act did not operate in any event to validate any part of the lease, except that part which applied to territory which was within the city limits of San Pedro at the time the lease was executed.

Judge Myers held that the lease originally was void, but that the validity act operated to validate it as to that part of the territory which was within the limits described in the original lease, which validated it as to practically one-third of the land in dispute, which is known as the Miner Fill.

The leased land is bounded by the east and west channels, the Southern Pacific slip, the United States reservation and a portion of San Pedro. The city's share under the judgment is one-third, or the outer end of the wharf. An appeal will be taken from the judgment by the dock company.

MUST PAY RENT. DUE FOR SEVERAL YEARS.

In the good old racing days at Arcadia the Oakwood Hotel was headquarters for the leading horsemen of the country. It looked like a good investment, and Jack Doyle took a chance on a lease. He had ample backing. Then the wets were knocked out, and without liquor the hotel was on the toboggan slide. The $500 a month rent the lease called for was not paid for several years.

H. A. Unruh, executor under the will of the late E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin, brought suit to recover $17,432.35. He joined as defendants Mr. Doyle, the Maier Brewing Company, the Oakwood Hotel Company and W. H. Clune. Subsequently Clara Baldwin Stocker, one of the two heirs to the $12,000,000 Baldwin estate, became plaintiff and the suit was pushed to a determination before Judge Dewhirst, sitting in Judge Finlayson's court.

The suit, tried last June, and submitted on briefs, was vigorously contested. Mr. Doyle sought to be exonerated because he was never in possession of the premises and was not a principal in the lease. If he was a principal, there was no contract with the Oakwood Hotel Company whereby he was released.

Judge Dewhirst held that Mr. Doyle signed the contract lease as principal, and entered into possession of the property. There was no relief of his liability by an assignment of the lease. The court found he was in possession from October 1, 1909, to November 26, 1911.

The court found that Mr. Clune was liable as surety and not as a principal. In the case of the Maier Brewing Company the latter knew when it was substituted as surety in place of the Maier & Zobelein Brewery Company that the rent was not paid.

Mr. Doyle was held as lessee; the Oakwood Hotel Company as the assignee of Mr. Doyle, the Maier Brewing Company and W. H. Clune as sureties and liable for the unpaid rent. The judgment was against each of them.

ACTOR FAILS. LOSES ALIMONY FIGHT.

Judge Monroe decided yesterday that his court had jurisdiction to collect an alimony judgment awarded Mrs. Lucy C. Roberts in New York in her suit for separation from Theodore Roberts, now a moving-picture actor. The judgment amounts to $1300, and it marks the close of a stirring litigation.

The Roberts were married a quarter of a century ago. Mrs. Roberts was granted a decree in separate maintenance proceedings in New York December 8, 1912. She was awarded $50 a week alimony, and recovered $4900 through a receivership proceeding. Adjudged in contempt Mr. Roberts was committed to Ludlow-street Jail for six months. Upon his release he came to Los Angeles and was engaged by the Lasky Motion Picture Company. Mrs. Roberts followed him, and numerous hearings have been held in the local courts in her efforts to collect alimony. Mr. Roberts resisted, setting up that this court lacked jurisdiction. The winning fight was conducted for Mrs. Roberts by Attorney Pacht.

'TIS GLAD NEWS. OLD MAMMY GETS GOLD.

The glad news will travel down to Georgia that an aged "mammy" in one of the villages has won a fortune which had been lost to her. This fortune was accumulated by her son, James Williams, a Pasadena janitor, who, while dying of consumption, was converted to the faith of the Apostolic Church of Jesus Christ, and, attending a camp meeting, collapsed in the fervor of his faith and was taken charge of by the leaders of the church.

Williams made his will, leaving his estate to W. H. Cummings, an officer of the church, and naming Rev. E. Driver, the pastor, executor. The testimony of the contest against the probate of the will before Judge McCormick showed that in the room at the time the will was executed were many members of the church.

Williams's mammy, who is 80 years old, was represented by Attorney A. L. Rowland of Pasadena. He charged undue influence. The court found that Rev. E. Driver exercised undue influence upon the dying man in the making of the will. He found that the will was not properly executed and denied the probate. The estate will now be administered and distributed to Mammy Williams.

One of the subscribing witnesses was a white man. He testified that the other subscribing was also a white man. When this subscribing witness was called he proved to be a negro. It was shown by the testimony that the brethren of the church were holy rollers.

BILLS TOO MUCH. HUSBAND WINS DIVORCE.

Oscar W. Barnum testified in his divorce suit yesterday that his wife, Mrs. Ruth Elaine Barnum, would not let him see the baby when it was sick, and that bills were contracted without his knowledge or consent.

Mrs. Barnum testified that he threw water on her, gave her small change when paying alimony, and got angry when she referred to his former wife.

Mr. Barnum is a jewelry salesman. He complained of his mother-in-law, who came to live at his house without an invitation, bought a bed for $40, which was charged to him, and then informed him that she had bought it. Mr. Barnum was granted the decree by Judge Monroe.

IT WON'T MIX. JAPANESE ASKS DIVORCE.

The wooing and wedding of S. Inouye, a Japanese, is told in his suit for annulment filed yesterday against Concepcion Hernandez, a Mexican girl. He says he met the senorita about two years ago. He could not speak Spanish, and she was ignorant of Japanese.

But love has a language of its own. As they could not marry in this State, they went to San Diego, and the day following they put out to sea in a gasoline launch with Capt. W. R. King in charge of the craft. The captain performed the ceremony, but the bridegroom says he was seasick. Furthermore, he did not understand the English words used by the captain in the ceremony.

The couple lived together until August 1, last, when Inouye says she left his rooming-house and refuses to live with him.

MADE TOO PUBLIC. SUES USERS OF PICTURE.

Miss Gertrude McLen has been admired because she is attractive, but when she charges Dr. Frank C. Campbell, a dentist, through the United States Advertising Corporation, had her picture reproduced on the curtain of a local theater exhibiting a row of very even, white teeth, she remonstrated because then it "cheapened" her.

Yesterday Miss McLen brought suit against the dentist and the advertising concern, asking $5000 damages for the unauthorized use of her picture, which subjected her to ridicule among her friends and acquaintances.

INS AND OUTS ABOUT THE COURTS.

SEPARATE MAINTENANCE. In a separate maintenance suit filed yesterday Mrs. Floy Jackson of Venice mentions eight alleged meetings between her husband, Godfrey C. Jackson, and Elsie Skinner. These, she said, occurred in August, September, October and November, last. The couple were married July 26, 1910, at Capillion, Neb. Mrs. Jackson claims that her husband's salary ranges from $300 to $500 a month. She asks [illegible] a month for her support.

GETS BACK MONEY. The sealed verdict returned by the jury which tried the suit of the Luitwieler Pumping and Engine Company against W. Derlihy before Judge Taft on Friday, was opened yesterday and found to award $2329.63 to Mr. Derlihy covering the cost of the pumping engine he bought from the Luitwieler people, installed at Victorville, and which he claimed did not work satisfactorily. The company contended that if the pump had been properly installed, it would have covered the specifications. On this basis the suit was fought and decided in favor of Mr. Derlihy.

"NOT GUILTY." Howard Main, accused of the theft of $4000 from the Commercial National Bank, pleaded "not guilty" when arraigned before Superior Judge Houser, yesterday. This came as a surprise to Deputy District-Attorney Selph, as well as the court, it having been thought that because of his confession of the theft when captured in El Paso, there would be no trial necessary. In the confession, Main is alleged to have admitted his guilt and at the time returned about $2000 of the amount carried off. He was a bank messenger. His trial was set for February

TO IONE. William Boyd was committed to Ione yesterday morning by Judge Craig. He is only 19 years of age and was convicted of burglary at the home of G. E. Miller, No. 1 West Seventh street, several months ago. On arriving at maturity he is to be returned to the custody of the court for further action.

WEST ON TRAIL OF CONVENTION.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL EVENT SOUGHT BY BAY CITY.

Committeeman Stanton Leaves to Join Fight for San Francisco. Southern States' Representation Reduced by New Basis for Determining Number of Delegates.

To join in the movement to bring the Republican National Convention to San Francisco next June, Phil A. Stanton, Republican national committeeman for California, left for the East last night. He will tarry in San Francisco a few days before going to Washington, where on the 14th inst. the national committee will hold its meeting.

Mr. Stanton was accompanied by his sister, Miss Adeline Stanton. He will be joined at San Francisco by the local committee, which will present the claim of the Bay City to the 1916 convention.

Mr. Stanton has been appointed on the committee to draft the call for the national convention and will meet with that committee the day prior to the national committee meeting.

The new call will provide for a lighter representation from the southern States and an increased proportion of delegates from the North. About eighty-four delegates are cut from the southern lists, owing to the change of basis of representation by limiting the number of additional delegates to districts where the vote is in excess of 7500 instead of accepting a delegate from a representation of less than that number of votes.

Mr. Stanton will urge the adoption of San Francisco as the next meeting place, because he believes it will be a popular move and he has hopes that the Bay City will be adopted as a compromise between Chicago and St. Louis, which are making a big fight for the convention.

Most of the Western States are pledged to San Francisco and California will have a goodly vote when the order of business turns to the selection of a place for holding the 1916 convention.

A Kitchen Philosopher.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] A young wife, who had received many very elegant and expensive wedding presents, gave a select luncheon, and used on the table several of the choicest pieces of her china, among them being an exceedingly fine platter of real royal Worcester. She gave her servant strict instructions to leave all the good pieces for her to wash up, so that there could be no accident.

As soon as her friends had left the young lady went to the kitchen. Immediately she missed the finest dish and asked where it was.

"Sure, ma'am," said the girl, "I bruk it."

"Oh, Bridget!" exclaimed the lady in horror.

"But I did what you said, ma'am. I kept the best pieces for you to wash up."

The lady threw herself in the nearest chair and began to bewail her loss. "Bridget! said she, "that was the finest piece of china I owned or ever expect to own. I shall never be rich enough to buy another like it."

"Oh, well, ma'am," replied the servant girl, folding her arms, "if you will live beyond yer means you mustn't blame me for it."

Being a Fan is Good Exercise.

[Salt Lake Telegram:] You need not be a ball player yourself to derive physical benefit from the game. Just sit in the bleachers and let enthusiasm do the rest. Be one of the howling mob; yell as loudly as you want to when you feel like it. It's good for you. Every time you jump up and down and yell for a home run, every time you forget yourself and let your excitement have full play, your blood is sent racing through your veins and arteries, and every organ of your body is purged and stimulated. Every time you "bawl out" the umpire and cheer your favorites, the oxygen rushes into your lungs, while worry and depression are forgotten. Watching a hotly contested game is more stimulating than drinking whisky, and it leaves no injurious after effects.

A Logical Inquiry.

[New York Times:] "Carry yer bag, sir?" said an eager urchin to a man in Forty-second street hurrying toward the Grand Central Station.

"No thanks," replied the man shortly.

"I'll carry it all the way for a dime," persisted the lad.

"I tell you I don't want it carried," replied the man.

"Don't yer?"

"No, I don't!"

The lad broke into a quick trot to keep up with his victim's hasty stride as he asked, in innocent curiosity:

"Then what are you carrying it for?"

"Since 1880 the Home of Musical Quality"

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY DOROTHY B. JOHNSTON.

LORD AND LADY ABERDEEN have been the piece de resistance of the week, and many of the women's clubs have enjoyed the privilege of entertaining the ex-Governor-General of Canada and his Countess.

Their debut was made at the Friday Morning Club luncheon, when they were introduced by Mrs. Seward Simons, who smilingly said that the club was certainly pro-English for that day. For Alfred Noyes, too, an aristocrat of poetry, held the interest of the club in the morning session.

But the Aberdeens began a strenuous day early in the morning when they received a long line of callers to do them honor. And immediately after they were whisked off to Long Beach, where the Federated Women's Clubs were given an opportunity of meeting the visitors. Mrs. George Alonzo Miller entertained them later at her home, and it must have been two weary scions of the British peerage who laid them down to rest at the Alexandria at the end of that "perfect day."

Saturday and Sunday saw many excursions and entertainments in their honor, and tomorrow Lady Aberdeen will be the guest of the City Club to luncheon, while Lord Aberdeen will listen to a session of the City Council. At 10 a.m. they visit the British Red Cross at No. 325 South Hill street and will be guests of honor at Ebell at 2 o'clock.

Then at 3:45 p.m. comes the reception to Her Ladyship by the Imperial Daughters of the British Empire at Trinity Auditorium, to which Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Noyes have also been invited. And finally these industrious peers will hold their meeting at Trinity Auditorium in the evening, when we are promised many interesting sidelights on the vice-regal duties of a Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland. The British Red Cross Society is also arranging a reception in their honor which will probably take place at the Alexandria, Tuesday or Wednesday.

Lord Aberdeen delighted his audiences with evidence of a marked sense of humor, by which, as a Britisher, it was felt he could not have come by honestly. He said he despised the people who took up several preliminary minutes explaining how surprised they were to be called upon to speak and he gave a delicious parody of the sort of person he meant.

Lady Aberdeen spoke so wholeheartedly of the great future possibilities of the International Council of Women, and while many of our quite inexperienced clubwomen would give her pointers on effective oratory, she certainly made up in sincerity and charm what she lacked in rhetoric.

A kindly, unaffected couple are the English peers, and one can readily understand that the court fashionables of Ireland should have found their unassuming ways lacking in courtly magnificence.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Noyes would certainly have been the lions of the session on Friday morning had not the Aberdeens stolen their thunder. As it was, they won golden opinions. Mr. Noyes only just missed the poet-laureateship of England, many of the most influential newspapers selecting him for the post. But the Prime Minister of England, who was credited with some wakeful nights over the choice, finally placed the laurels on the brow of Sir Frederick Bridges.

Mr. Noyes is quite boyish-looking, although he is said to be just on the sunny side of 40. He changed his programme from "Optimism in Poetry" to a reading of a selection of his own poems, with short explanations as to their inspiration. And to just the same extent that Lady Gregory succeeded in twitting and irritating the English, so did he soothe and inspire their national pride, and it is safe to say he made many a British heart feel wistfully homesick as he read some of those gay, lilting lyrics that breathe the very life of England in the spring.

Mrs. Noyes gave assurance that it was no very dreadful thing to be the wife of a poet, and she certainly looked charming and serene enough for anybody.

The Imperial Daughters.

The Alexandra Chapter of the Imperial Daughters of the British Empire, entertaining Lord and Lady Aberdeen tomorrow afternoon to a thoroughly English afternoon tea, has appointed the following Reception Committee: Mrs. Christopher Gordon, president of the chapter, Mrs. Albert Webb, Mrs. C. G. Gardiner, Mrs. R. Vincent and Mrs. A. McArthur.

Mrs. Gordon is a relative of the Aberdeens, her husband being a scion of the younger branch of the family. They knew them well in Canada twenty-five years ago, just prior to their elevation to the Governor-Generalship.

There will be a musical programme, Miss Trowhurst, just arrived from England with an enviable concert reputation, will sing, and Miss South will give a couple of violin solos.

The Channel Club.

The Channel Club's reception tomorrow to all the players taking part in the great coming Nativity pageant was a radiant success and the Alexandria ballroom was a scene of great vivacity. Miss Susanna Ott, who wrote the pageant in two days, and Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith, who is staging the production, received numerous congratulatory compliments from Mrs. W. S. Bartlett of the Ebell Club, from Mrs. E. K. Foster, and Mrs. Goldsmith, whose indefatigable enterprise has made the production possible, was called upon and gave a short resume of the characters and plot of the Christmas play which is to delight all Los Angeles.

The entertainment programme was replete with charm, for a minuet by Louis N. Parker was given by Cecil Irish, who played the role of the Marquis, Miss Georgie Morten who played the Marchioness, and Max Pollock who played the gaoler, with accomplished finesse. And M. de Kurylas gave an interpretative recital of classical and oriental dances, in which a bevy of beautiful girls assisted. John S. McGroarty and L. E. Behymer gave talks. Mrs. Alice O. Hunnewell of the Channel Club presided.

The British Red Cross.

The British Red Cross Society at No. 325 South Hill street will be the hosts of Lord and Lady Aberdeen at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when anyone interested in any British society will be welcome at the reception. Miss Beatrice Fox and Miss Anna Allen, in charge of the work of the society, announce that $2000 has already been sent to war relief, besides the result of the society which meets Tuesdays and Frdays to make all the hundred and one needful things for the wounded. A. C. Way and Dr. Copeland are responsible officers of the society and many earnest workers like Mrs. A. E. Moffat devote the major part of their time to this humane work.

Dr. Bowers, who holds first aid classes every Thursday and Friday, has such brilliant success with his pupils that many have graduated with certificates from England which make them eligible for Red Cross work at the front.

Public Affairs.

Tuesday, at 2:30 o'clock, the Public Affairs Committee of the Friday Morning Club will hold a session, "Women in Local Industry" being the subject under discussion. Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt and Mrs. A. N. Davidson will talk on their respective activities in municipal work.

Redondo Beach.

The Civic Outlook Club will stage an ambitious production at the Art Theater Tuesday evening, a pageant of fete days, which will present the various holidays of the year in dance, song and pantomime. Mrs. W. A. Galentine, the club's president, has been acting as stage director. The programme sounds quite enchanting.

Book Day.

Wednesday last was book day at the Hollywood Woman's Club when Mrs. Eleanor Jones had charge of the programme. A review of Wells's latest work, "The Research Magnificent," and Benson's "Memoirs of a Brother" proved highly interesting.

The club also compiled a list of suitable books for Christmas gifts for both adults and children which should be very helpful to members.

The art section also had an interesting meeting when Prof. Judson of the Garvanza School of Art lectured on Egyptian and Assyrian art, a collection of his own paintings being on exhibition at the same time.

Italian art will be the subject for the next meeting on the first Wednesday in January.

Tuesday morning the music section will meet, when Mrs. Bessie Bartlett-Frankel will be in charge. George H. Maxwell, director of the National Reclamation Association, will be the speaker at the next general meeting, Wednesday.

Ladies' Aid Society.

A harvest home social occupied the interest of the Ladies Aid Society at the First Presbyterian Church, Hollywood, Tuesday. Gay decorations in pink and white adorned attractive booths, and Mrs. W. D. McConnell, the president, greeted the visitors. Music enhanced the charm of the proceedings, and some readings were given, including one from James Whitcomb Riley by Frank Welton.

An Alfred Noyes Programme.

With Alfred Noyes appearing in person at the Friday Morning Club, Miss Ida M. Leonard a few hours later was interpreting some of his best-known poems to a select company at her studio. She, too, woke the imagination with "Lilac Time at Kew," as did the author himself.

This reading introduced a series of studies of present-day poetry which Miss Leonard will hold, the next programme being December 10, when Wilfred Wilson Gibson will be the author interpreted.

D. A. R.

The advancement of patriotic education among the foreign population is engaging the activities of Daughters of the Revolution just now and the Los Angeles chapter is lending all its aid along these lines. Mrs. Ora Monnette entertained the last meeting of the chapter, when a literary programme was presented.

The new chapter will hold no further meeting until its papers are returned from Washington, which are daily expected. On January 12 Mrs. John R. Skelley of Crenshaw boulevard will entertain the chapter, which proposes to be known as the Gen. Fremont Chapter, Miss Amelia P. Butler is the organizer.

U. S. C.

The women's club of the U.S.C. will hold a meeting at Christopher's, 741 South Broadway, Thursday at 6 o'clock.

L. A. District Board.

The Los Angeles District Board of the California Federation of Women's Clubs will meet at the Broadway department-store grill at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Lunch will precede an afternoon session.

Temple Health Club.

Organizing under the auspices of the Temple Baptist Church, with Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher for president, and Mrs. Louise McIntyre as instructor, a club for the encouragement of health will be founded. They will hold a general meeting Tuesday afternoon and evening at 2:30 and 7:30 o'clock in Berean Hall of the Temple Auditorium.

"How to Get Well and Stay Well" will be the title of a talk by Mrs. McIntyre. The public is invited to attend, gratis, and as good health interests everyone, they will doubtless have a large audience.

South Pasadena.

Dr. Jessie Russell of Glendale was a speaker at the last meeting of the South Pasadena Improvement Association on the 2nd inst., when she proved to be a fund of information in the affairs of Los Angeles county. Scholarship funds for poor children, emergency work, philanthropy, and the sort of donations such as cast-off clothing, literature, etc., which are urgently needed in certain quarters, were the subjects she touched upon, besides Juvenile Hall and its immediate needs. Dr. Russell always holds her audience with forceful arguments.

Mrs. M. E. North spoke on social welfare, which has been inaugurated at the County Hospital with such good effect.

Mrs. George A. Crandall spoke of the work which the late Mrs. J. C. Nielson accomplished on the Music Committee.

The meeting concluded with refreshments and a social hour, and the next meeting will be a regular luncheon, with an illustrated lecture on "American Topography," by Miss Mabel Pierson, the 15th inst.

Belgian Relief.

The Belgian Relief Committee of the Chamber of Commerce will hold a bazaar and tea Tuesday at 2 o'clock at the Kendis apartments, No. 1700 West Seventh street. Mrs. Willoughby Rodman is in charge of the affair.

P. T. A.

The Normandie Avenue P.T.A. will hold its next regular meeting Thursday at 2:30 o'clock. Miss Caroline Britton, librarian of the Vermont Square Library, will talk on books, and five-minute reviews of books will be given by Mrs. A. C. Layer, Mrs. Leech, Mrs. T. W. Williams and Mrs. Basil Alexander.

They will also give an entertainment Friday evening in the Academy Theater, Normandie avenue, near Forty-eighth street, and a matinee at 3:30 o'clock. Quite an ambitious programme, including dances by the eighth-grade girls, a sailor's hornpipe by the boys, and a moving-picture show, has been arranged.

The Cambria P.T.A. had an interesting meeting Tuesday, when Mrs. Rufus N. Lake of the Home Economics Committee of the Federation told of the work being accomplished in the day nurseries throughout the city. While a musical programme was in progress busy fingers fashioned Christmas gifts for the needy. On the evening of Thursday Judge Waldo York will address the association, on which occasion folk dancing by the children will be introduced. Fathers are specially invited.

The Vermont Avenue P.T.A. will hold its next meeting Tuesday. Harold K. Vann will speak on juvenile problems and their solutions. A programme of music will be furnished by children of the school.

The Logan Street P.T.A. will give a moving-picture show at Jensen's Theatorium, No. 1624 Sunset boulevard, Friday matinee at 3:15 o'clock and evening performance at 7:15 o'clock. There will be some special musical features, too, and the proceeds will be devoted to the Day Nursery Scholarship Fun.

The San Pedro Street P.T.A. will hold a Christmas sale Friday evening, when the school orchestra will perform.

Travel Club.

The Los Angeles Travel Club met Friday at Trinity Auditorium, Mrs. Lambert E. Jenkins presiding. Philanthropy and home economics held the attention of members, Artillifa Dorland Clark and Mrs. Byron Wilson being the speakers.

A musical programme was enjoyed, and Christmas baskets prepared.

Highland Park Ebell.

Mrs. Alfred Whitney Allen entertained the Highland Park Ebell Club Tuesday with her reading of Louis N. Parker's "Minuet" and Galsworthy's "Sekhet—a Dream."

Dr. Jessie Russell will address the club Tuesday on "Woman's Responsibility to Woman," and on the 14th inst. Mrs. James D. Eaton will give an address on "Mexico in Transition."

Eschscholitza.

Mrs. James Hyde Forbes, the regent, will preside at the next meeting of the Eschscholitza D.A.R. Tuesday, 2:30 o'clock at the Ebell Clubhouse. The Rev. E. Stanton Hodgin will give his address on "The Discovery of America," and all out-of-town daughters are invited.

Mrs. Carl A. Stutsman entertained the official board of the chapters at a luncheon last Tuesday, when bridge was played.

Sewing for needy mothers and babies has occupied the leisure of many of the daughters.

U. S. D.

Mrs. H. T. Wright of Hollywood the president of the California Chapter of the U.S.D. of 1812, gave a luncheon at her home for members of the society last week. Mrs. Madison Marine of Baltimore spoke on that occasion, enlisting their aid for a new chapter of the Sons of 1812.

The "Star-spangled Banner" was adopted as the society's official song. Vocal and instrumental music rendered by Miss Wright and Mrs. R. G. Rhodes concluded the programme.

City Teachers Club.

Miss Ida V. League, in charge of the Programme Committee of the City Teachers' Club, reports unbounded enthusiasm for the coming club festivities set Saturday at the Ebell Clubhouse. A slogan of "Fun and Folly" is to dominate the evening and all sorts of surprise stunts are to be perpetrated.

Psychopathic Work.

The Women's Twentieth Century Club will hold a meeting Thursday for the discussion of psychopathic work, when Mrs. McCracken, so long a worker amongst delinquent girls, will speak on the subject.

A luncheon will precede the meeting, which will terminate with a review of Sir Gilbert Parker's "The World in the Crucible," by Mrs. W. G. Shearin.

On the evening of the same day Dr. William D. Ward of Occidental College, will give a steriopticon lecture on "The Acropolis of Athens."

Ebell Club.

On the Monday after Christmas, the Ebell Club will produce for the first time on any stage a charming little play, "The Advent Light," written by Miss Laura Cooley. Miss Cooley has also written a three-act pastoral play, called "The Herder."

Little Dorothy Wellborn will enact the leading child's role, and Miss Georgia Morten, who created such a delightful impression in the role of the Marchioness in "The Minuet," on the stage of the Alexandria ballroom, on last Monday evening, will create the role of Dona Michaela. The role of Don Jose has not yet been assigned.

Mrs. James Bert Stearns, a great favorite in the Ebell Club, will interpret the Prologue and Epilogue.

Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith will stage the production. A choir of women's voices will sing the Angelus, and a number of clever youngsters will assist in making "The Advent Light" bring an understanding of the Christ message of love and good will to all the little children of Ebell.

To Meet Tomorrow Night.

The regular meeting of the Business Woman's Civic Club will be held in the Lecture Hall of the Public Library Building, 7 o'clock tomorrow night. The programme at 7:30 o'clock, to which the public is invited, will be a talk on the "Proposed City Charter" by Seward C. Simons, Secretary of the Board of Freeholders.

Last week the club members were entertained by Miss Irene Evans and Miss Sue Brobst, assisted by Miss Brennan, at the Teachers' Clubrooms, Trinity Building. The programme which was much enjoyed by all was as follows:

Vocal solo by Mrs. May Reynolds Fitch; reading, Pollyana, by Miss Moore; whistling solo by Mrs. Eugenia A. Jones; Everywoman, presented by Misses Ryllis Barnes, Zenovia Ward, Mary Carney, Mercedes Aguayo, Charlotte Johnson, Floye Brown, Esther Bennett and Mr. John Ward of the Wallis School of Dramatic Art; remarks by Miss Lloy Galpin, president of the club, and a short talk by Mrs. Biddison of the Federated Clubs of New Jersey.

To Study the Bard of Avon.

The Mazie Fullman Garrett Shakespeare Class will hold its next regular meeting Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock at No. 1732 A. Garfield Place, Hollywood, when Acts III and IV of Julius Caesar will be studied. An especially interesting feature has been planned for this meeting, and all members are urged to be present as well as all other women interested in the study of Shakespeare. In the class meetings much interest is being centered about the discussion of this play. Keen enthusiasm is also manifested in the approaching open meeting when a resume of Julius Caesar will be presented by the students of the class. A varied and delightful programme is now in preparation and the date will soon be announced.

Cosmos Club.

The music section of the Cosmos Club met at the Aragon apartments Wednesday afternoon and held an instructive session under the direction of Mrs. Nellie Hibler. Mrs. Hibler has met with remarkable success due to her previous experience in club work and her musical ability. Her programmes are characterized by a tone of musical refinement. The chorus is growing in popularity and several names were added to the list. Regular chorus work will be begun after the holidays. The Franz Schubert programme for the afternoon was opened with a lecture on Schubert by Mrs. Hibler. Each instrumental or vocal solo was preceded by the story of the selection. Mr. George Evans showed wonderful skill in the rendition of the following violin solos: "Moment Musicale," "Serenade," "Ave Maria." Mrs. William Hollzer, in her rich dramatic contralto, sang effectively "The Erlking," "Who is Sylvia?" and "To be Sung on the Waters." Miss Margarette Graepp very sweetly interpreted the songs, "The Young Nun" and "The Trout." Mrs. Hibler sang "Hark, Hark the Lark" and "The Wanderer's Night Song." The soprano solo, "Faith in Spring," was sung by Mrs. Ernest D. Snow. A vote of thanks was extended the accompanists, Mrs. Stanford Philpott, Miss Edith Evans and Otto Kunitz, by the members of the section.

The next meeting of this section will be held Thursday, the 16th inst.

The club bazaar will be seld in the Ebell Club House next Wednesday afternoon. It will be open in the evening, when there will be dancing in the auditorium. Programmes will be given both afternoon and evening. All persons interested are invited to come. Many beautiful and appropriate Christmas gifts will be on display.

The Shakespearean section will meet Friday at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. L. Musser. This section will continue its regular sessions through the month of December.

The Diversity Club.

A very new and ultra club in San Diego, the Diversity Club, with Mrs. George Butler, a member of the San Diego Woman's Club, and secretary last year to Mrs. Lillian Pray Palmer, president, has just been formed. The membership has been held down to a chosen few. There are no dues and no assessments of any kind.

Mrs. George Goldsmith, who appeared before the San Diego Woman's Club Tuesday afternoon in the new sympathy in prison reform, poetry, art, literature and drama, was the guest of honor at a delightful dinner that same evening, the members of the Diversity Club acting as hostesses. The new movement in poetry, the new feminism, the interpretative value of the spoken drama were all topics of informal discussion. During the dinner a motion was made and carried that Mrs. Goldsmith be made an honorary member.

To Know the State.

"California First" will be the motto of the literature section of the Whittier Woman's Club. This week the section began its study of the State geographically, and, school fashion, a large map of the State was made the basis of the day's talk by Mrs. Edgar George. At subsequent meetings the subjects will be "Lakes," "Mountains," "Forests," "Rivers" and "Deserts." Not merely these physiographic features of the State will be studied, but more especially the charming and voluminous literature thereon, as written by John Muir and the whole coterie of California writers on the wonders of the State. The literature section of the Whittier club meets fortnightly. Mrs. Edgar George is chairman of the section and Mrs. B. A. Edgington is secretary.

Collegiate Alumnae.

The Association of Collegiate Alumnae will meet Saturday at 2 o'clock in the rooms of the College Woman's Club at the Little Theater. The meeting is held especially in recogition of the recent admission of Pomona College to membership in this association. Graduates of Pomona are cordially invited to be present. Reports of the biennial convention of the association will also be given.

The programme will be as follows: Miss Grace Berry, "Report of Committee on Recognition of Colleges and Universities; Their Problems and Policies;" Mrs. Seward Simons, "Suffrage Indorsement;" Miss Mary Putnam, "Vocational Opportunities for Girls;" Miss Maud Phillips, "Sessions at Mills College Conferences, and Miss Jane Spalding, "Business Sessions."

Ruskin Art Club Musical.

Jaroslaw de Zielinski, exponent of Russian music, was presented to the members of the Ruskin Art Club and their friends by Miss Victoria Witmer at the meeting Wednesday morning. Mr. De Zielinski, in a talk that abounded with wit and humor, outlined the history of Russian music.

Mrs. Marie Louise Bitter gave the harmonization of the Russian national hymn. The song is characterized by stateliness and dignity.

Mrs. D. B. Welch sang a Cossack lullaby of extreme simplicity and beauty. Mrs. Welch also sang a charming old folk-song well known to all Russians.

Norman McPhail gave two Russian love songs which delighted the audience.

At the close of the meeting the president, Mrs. Samuel Storrow, expressed the appreciation of the members and their guests to Mr. De Zielinski for a programme of rare interest.

Mrs. Storrow also announced a lecture to be given by Dr. Dinio on Friday at 2:30 o'clock, in Symphony Hall. The subject of this illustrated lecture is "The Art of the Exposition."

A Worthy Handicraft Exhibition.

The Crafts Study Club, composed of amateur workers in copper, brass and other metals, will give an exhibit of the handiwork of its members and other craftsmen not identified with the club, at the Leighton Hotel, Sixth and Lake streets, Tuesday, from 2 to 10 o'clock. A large number of invitations have been issued.

Clubmembers whose work will be represented are Mrs. William Akey, Miss Ruth Holder, Miss Rose Conner, Miss Charlotte Crane, Miss Lilian Fletcher, Mrs. William Colwell, Mrs. F. M. Dimmick, Mrs. Everitte Barnes, Mrs. Fred Bacon, Mrs. Henry Hen-

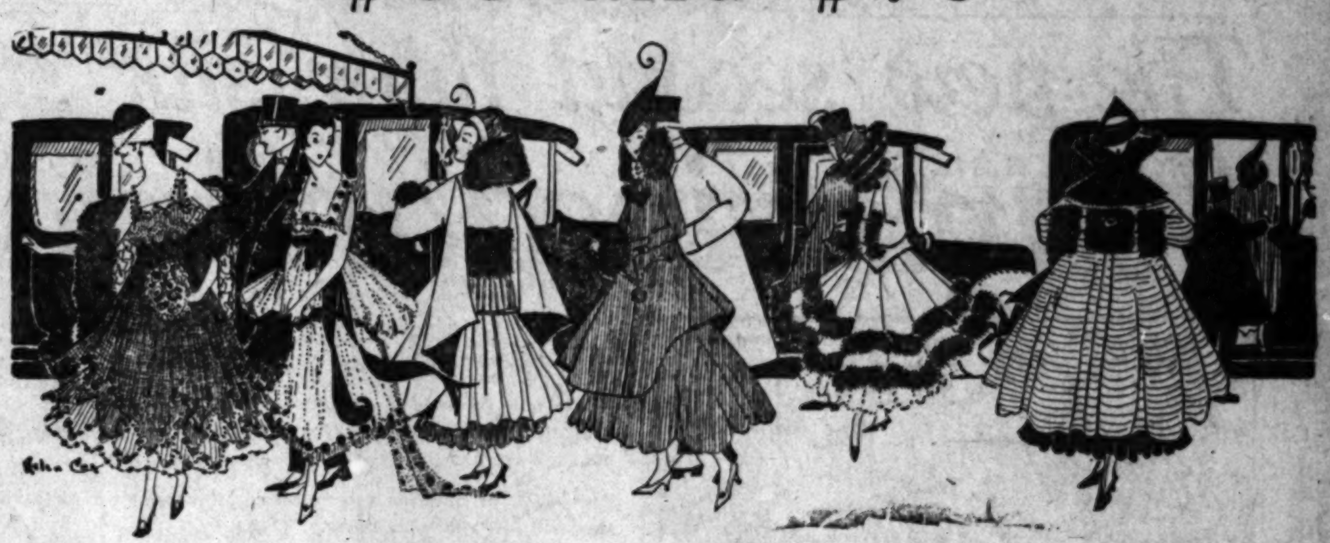
Exquisite Model Coats
Model Suits and Gowns
$55 and $75



These reductions come just as the gaiety of the holiday season begins.

Model Satin Suits Are Included

The Dresses

Were designed for dinners and dances as well as for formal receptions, and range from the quite informal to the very formal fashions of the season. The puffed or balloon skirt, the tunic skirt, idealized by an artist, until starting with the most delicate shade of lavender, tunic upon tunic of transparent crepe overhangs transparent crepe until the deepest tones of the violet are reached.

And so the fashions range in these dresses from the extremely simple to extremely formal.

The Evening Coats

Range from the simplest of chiffon broadcloths in the simplest cuts, through to Chartreuse "mouse's ear" of the most grand dame type.

Here is a Chartreuse chiffon silk velour lined with the richest of black satin, finished with a broad belt, collar and cuffs of astrachan fur.

Another as beautiful, is made of "Mothere of Pearl" corncolor and white. The cuffs, the cape yoke and collar are broad bands of beautiful seal.

Yet, all are reduced.

Suits at $45

Including model suits and suits exquisite in fabric and tailoring.

Tomorrow the sale starts

Not in all our twenty years of business has the holiday season been looked forward to with greater anticipation than this year.

The prosperity of the East has begun to touch Los Angeles with its magic finger. The great banks are opening their hearts to new enterprises; hotels are booked to the limit for January and are rapidly booking for December. All sorts of plans are being made, and just as the good news reaches here, the exquisite dresses and wraps so necessary during the social season drop in price.

The model suits come from the great makers of America. One of them is the self-same suit shown at the Ritz Carlton Fashion Show as the last word in motoring clothes. It is a gorgeous novelty cloth of all wool in a pink that might almost be called old-rose, but with much more of the "rose" than the "old" in it. Overlying it, is a sort of down that gives it a suggestion of lavender without being lavender.

The coat is a Frank Norfolk, of novel cut, lined charmingly with turquoise blue silk. The collar is finished with a soft fine piece of mink. This suit was the talk of the fashion world only a few short weeks ago.

Model suits showing every vagary of the American maker's mind, ranging from suits with short novel jackets to suits with long loose coats—every one included in the sale.

For Girls Home from School and College

We have dancing dresses beginning at $16.50, and evening wraps trimmed with fur beginning at $25.

The joy of having and the greater joy of being able to supply the right thing, neither too elaborate nor too expensive, gives a great zest to our work for young girls.

We have one of the most carefully chosen lots of dancing dresses and evening wraps for young girls possible to imagine.

Discolored or Spotty Skin Easily Peeled Off

The discoloring or roughening to which many skins are subject at this season, may readily be gotten rid of. Mercolized wax, spread lightly over the face before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely peels off the disfigured skin. Get an ounce of the wax at any druggist's. There's no more effective way of banishing chaps, blotches, pimples, freckles or other cutaneous defects. Little skin particles come off each day, so the process itself doesn't even temporarily mar the complexion, and one soon acquires a brand new, spotless, girlishly beautiful face.

Wrinkles caused by weather, worry or illness, are best treated by a simple solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this produces a truly marvelous transformation.

ember of Education Board has Other Views.

Deep interest was manifested by those in attendance at the City Club yesterday in the discussion of the pertinent subject of "Military Training in the High Schools." A final decision is to be reached on this subject by the Board of Education tomorrow evening. The speakers yesterday were Lieut.-Col. S. M. Saltmarsh of the Seventh Regiment, N.G.C., and former Judge Waldo M. York.

Lieut.-Col. Saltmarsh spoke strongly in favor of the introduction of a system of military training in our high schools.

"We seek sane consideration of the facts as they are, and not as one would like to have them," said the speaker. "The proponents of this measure are unjustly charged with desiring to foster a spirit of militarism. One who knows much of soldiering knows such statements to be ridiculous. The technique of the professional soldier is acquired only by long and continuous training. The military work in high schools affords a basis only for such work, just as the high school work forms a foundation for development along any other professional or business line.

"The military training possible to give in high schools reaches a limit in development of manly physique and in inculcating to a degree those desirable attributes of efficiency in any citizen—promptness, courtesy, obedience of and respect for authority.

"In justice to the gravity of the question of military training in the public schools, and in justice to a desire to see it sanely discussed, thoughtful men must protest against the absurd assumption that a light discipline along military lines would immediately turn all the children in the country into fire-eating warriors. In educational institutions where military training is provided, the percentage of students adopting the military profession as a result of such instruction is absolutely negligible."

FOR IT IN SCHOOLS.

In speaking of the programme proposed for training in the public schools of Los Angeles, Lieut.-Col. Saltmarsh said:

"It has been advanced as an objection that such training in the public schools is dangerous because it is likely to foster among American youth a spirit of militarism with its consequent belittlement of the civic power.

"Surely such a theory is not worthy of acceptation. The American soldier has always stood for law and order, and he who as a boy has been taught to revere his country's flag and has fitted himself to defend it in time of need, cannot fail to make a better citizen thereafter.

"Military training, outdoor life and expert supervision by men who understand crude boyish impulses, would do much toward converting lawless energy into disciplined power. The women of Australia at first so strongly opposed the adoption of compulsory military training that they regarded and nearly defeated its adoption, but within two years' time the wonders which it had wrought in their sons converted them into its most ardent advocates."

The speaker then told of the successful effects of military training in the public schools of Boston, and in the State of Wyoming, where marked success has been obtained with the Americanized Swiss system.

The speaker quoted from a letter by Gov. John B. Kendrick of Wyoming, which said, in part:

"Among the principles constantly impressed upon our boys are the essential qualifications of good citizenship, patriotism, loyalty and willingness to defend home and country.

"Personal cleanliness of mind and body, both individually and as a squad, is combined with efficiency and loyalty to the squad. . . . Under the force of such teaching, smokers quit the use of tobacco upon their own initiative, or sometimes upon the very forcible demands of their fellows. The clean-up squad soon finds itself, and a new, fascinating interest in life is developed. Under such influences the young man negotiates these difficult years of youth. The influence for good upon our young men who have enjoyed this benefit has been little short of marvelous."

The similar success of military training in Switzerland and Australia was set forth quite fully, and the speaker declared that the increasing demand for military training in the schools is an evidence that its value is securing wider recognition and that our public-school curricula are to that extent deficient in supplying training of such basic worth and character.

"There is nothing in this sort of training," continued the speaker, "inconsistent with the highest ideals of citizenship. While it has been stated that the primary idea of this training is to develop our boys physically, mentally and morally, yet by doing so we create an asset of natural strength that in time of need would be of incalculable benefit to us.

"This training falls far short of that believed to be necessary in this country by many of the staunchest and ablest of peace advocates. Democracy is on trial before the world, and it will not survive if we cannot organize and maintain effective armies and navies. There is grave danger in an inefficient democracy.

"The first necessity for the creation of a powerful democratic citizen army is the provision of educated democrats and physically capable citizens. In a democratic nation every citizen must be a soldier, and every soldier must be a citizen."

THE OPPOSITION.

Former Judge York spoke in opposition to the proposed military training in the schools. He declared it was not good as a physical exercise, and immoral because it would give a wrong outlook on life.

If a nation is constantly preparing for war, it will have war, declared the speaker. In regard to the possibilities of war with Japan, he said that if the United States treats Japan right and in accordance with the Golden Rule there will never be any war between these nations.

"A Senator recently said," declared the speaker, "that we are sure to have a war with Japan. I think such a Senator ought to be recalled.

"Military drill is inseparable from its purposes and associations. Its purpose is to prepare our boys to kill their fellow-human beings. Gymnasium exercises give three times as much benefit physically. We have got to be a Christian nation, with all that this implies, or a military nation. We can be as strong as we want to be if we will cut out this virus that has come down to us from our savage ancestors and cultivate the love which has been given to us by the Christ."

An Apt Reply.

[Washington Star:] Bishop Sanford said at a dinner party in Denver:

"The charge that the church is governed by mercenary motives is an insidious one. I think this charge was best answered by the prison chaplain.

A chaplain was addressing a congregation of prisoners, many of whom had given more than one proof that they were profiting by his visits. But there was a certain rough, brutal looking fellow who always scoffed and sneered. And today this fellow, when the chaplain greeted him, said:

" 'No, I don't want to shake hands with you, parson. You only preach for money.'

" 'Very good, my friend; have it so,' the chaplain answered. 'I preach for money. You steal for money. Let God choose between us.' "

Feels Easy.

[New York Times:] "Hello, Bilkins—how well you look. All your worries gone up in smoke?" said Slithers, joyously.

"Yes, Slithers," said Bilkins. "I've got a great load off my mind. I've just been able to borrow enough money to pay off all my debts."

announcement was made yesterday by Miss Marjorie Burger, No. Ocean View avenue, who re a letter from Mrs. Galt in she expressed her wish for success of the affair and promised a doll.

women of Los Angeles and prominent in the motion-picture world are the donors of more 100 valuable dolls which will be to the highest bidders. Many of dolls were accompanied by photos of the film stars.

cording to members of the committee several thousand dollars will ed from the sale. Much spir bidding is anticipated because of the dolls have a value of $10 to $150 and were sent by actors and actresses in different parts of the country.

Members of the Entertainment Committee include Mrs. Albert Crutcher, Mrs. Hamilton B. Rollins, Mrs. Hancock Banning and Mrs. Vernon Goodwin. They will be assisted by the board of managers of the Children's Hospital and many actors and actresses who have manifested an interest in this charitable work.

More than fifty dolls were on display yesterday at the apartments of Miss Burger, who is one of the leaders of the campaign to obtain funds for the hospital children. About 900 dolls will be offered at auction, according to Miss Burger.

A musical programme will be given for the pleasure of those who attend the auction, and amusing features will probably be furnished by stars from motion-picture studios in Southern California.

"Patrons and patronesses who have volunteered to help us in this worthy cause have been very generous with their gifts, and we are confident the affair will be a wonderful success," said Mrs. Albert Crutcher, president of the Hospital Society, yesterday. "In addition to dolls many checks for substantial sums have been received by the committee."

TUDENTS IN PORTO RICO MAY ALL GO ON STRIKE.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

JUAN (Porto Rico) Nov. 27.—A school strike at Arecibo, fourth city in Porto Rico, threatens to the controversy involved all public schools on the island, has more than 200,000 stu two of the 180 pupils in the school at Arecibo are now attending classes. The others have been indefinitely by Paul G. Commissioner of Education, account of the strike, which was to obtain the removal of Maurice H. Esser, a Colgate graduate, principal of the High School.

The trouble originated when a girl pupil reported she had been robbed of $4. Later the money was found in a carriage in which she had come to school. In the meantime all the students had been questioned by detectives. On the finding of the money they filed charges against Principal Esser.

Commissioner Miller did not sustain the charges and Mr. Esser refused to resign. A petition of citizens that he be transferred was rejected by Mr. Miller.

The whole city administration has become involved.

derson, Mrs. D. L. Peters, Mrs. C. L. Powell, Mrs. J. H. De la Monte and Mrs. George Baker Anderson.

The exhibition will be open to the public generally, and the committee in charge of the affair express the hope that all residents of Los Angeles and vicinity who are interested in this particular branch of art will encourage future expositions by attending.

A Day on Art.

The Averill Study Club will have a special art reciprocity day next Tuesday afternoon, when Miss Alma May Cook, lecturer for the California Art Club, will speak on "What Art Means to Everyday Life," illustrated with the set of stereopticon slides in the Lumiere process of color photography being sent out by the art club.

The traveling exhibition of paintings will be on view in the Pomona Ebell Clubhouse beginning the middle of the week. Thursday, the High School students and teachers will be guests of the club and Miss Cook will be the speaker at the regular club meeting on Friday afternoon.

The paintings will be sent to the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club for a special session, Monday, the 20th inst., when Miss Cook will be the speaker, using the stereopticon slides to illustrate her talk.

In January the paintings will be sent to the Hollywood Woman's Club, the Hollywood Presbyterian Church and the Long Beach Ebell Club, Miss Cook to speak before the church January 4, the Hollywood club on January 26 and the Long Beach Ebell, January 31. She will also address the Girls' Collegiate School and the students of the University of Southern California.

The Wednesday Morning Club.

The business meeting at the Wednesday Morning Club's session was followed by a luncheon at which Mrs. George Kitchin, Mrs. George Race, Mrs. H. Carter, Mrs. M. P. Thompson and Mrs. J. P. Graves assisted.

A musical programme in which Mrs. Thayer and Mr. Carlson were the performers gave much pleasure. After which Mrs. Mattison B. Jones gave an interesting talk on "What Every Woman Should Know."

The music section of this club will be responsible for the music for the "Nativity Play" on Christmas eve.

Rosecrans Study Club.

"The Prophecies of Christ" was the subject of the Bible study by the Rosecrans at The Times Assembly Rooms on Wednesday afternoon, led by Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hyde later took charge of the programme, introducing the subject of art, the noted masters and their periods, giving a good idea of progress from the grotesque to the beautiful.

Mrs. Wade Gray read a paper on the paintings of the Christ Child by the old masters, a large collection of copies lending great interest to her reading.

The occasion concluded with a musical programme, in which Miss Caroline Bussineous proved herself an able pianiste.

Next Wednesday the club will meet at No. 808 East Twenty-eighth street, the home of Miss J. W. Morris. On the 15th inst. the Rosecrans children will be entertained with a Christmas tree at The Times Assembly Rooms.

Recognized Value of Apples.

[London Chronicle:] A curious testimony to the importance formerly attached to the apple may be found in the coronation service of our Anglo-Saxon kings. The coronation benediction runs: "May the Almighty bless thee with the blessing of grapes and apples . . . by His blessing may this land be filled with apples, with the fruit and dew of heaven, from the top of the ancient mountains, from the apples of the eternal hills."

THE

Embodies More Exclusive Constructional Features Than Any Other Make

Covered by Seventeen Patents

THE Mehlin Piano is different. It is a difference that is at once apparent, not only in the quality of the tone, but readily discernible to the eye. This difference in construction is based on fact. It is founded on science. The effects produced readily demonstrate themselves to the prospective buyer with a force that is irresistible.

The difference is fundamental. It has to do with soundboard construction, ribbing, the form of the string bridges and their location on the soundboard; the string lengths; the string tensions. In fact, every feature of construction that affects tone production.

There is no piano made in which so much that is new is incorporated, producing a tone that is freer, deeper, more resonant and of greater and better quality than has been previously known in the history of piano making.

Today in the Fitzgerald Piano Salons, ready for Christmas buyers, are the newest models of the Mehlin Pianos in all their different sizes and finishes. We cordially invite you to call.

GUNPOWDER AND WHISKY.

A Mixture that Doesn't Work, and Saloons are Considered Undesirable Near Powder Plants.

[Philadelphia Bulletin:] Tradition has it that old-time naval skippers were wont to serve grog with a pinch of gunpowder just before a sea engagement in order to make their crews more "efficient" for the business in hand. But the recipe does not hold good with modern ideas of "scientific management." Hence, it is not surprising to find the DuPont officials trying to get rid of the single saloon adjacent to their plant at Pennagrove, which Judge Waddington, in the County Court at Salem, has ordered closed pending a final hearing a month later.

The issue, when it is decided, is likely to bring out some nice principles of liquor license law. Apart from any moral consideration that may be involved, or even questions of law and order arising out of the peculiar conditions attending the recent "boom" of the town and the sudden attraction of a miscellaneous population from all parts of the country, it may properly be argued that there are economic factors that require careful weighing.

The making of gunpowder, dynamite and other high explosives is a dangerous but necessary industry. It requires care and caution on the part of virtually every employee to guard against an accident that might result in a catastrophe costing hundreds of lives and inflicting heavy material damage, not only among the employees and the factory buildings, but the townspeople and their property as well. Consequently, the use of liquor is barred at the powder plant. But with a public bar close at hand it becomes difficult for the management to enforce the order.

The company offered to buy the saloon, but the proprietor refused to sell. So the point arises whether the court, in its licensing discretion, has not the right to withdraw a privilege which may have become a menace to the community, even though before the "boom" started the tavern was regarded as a public "necessity" and convenience. It is a question which is becoming more important in every industrial center, and the final outcome at Pennagrove will be significant to many leaders of industry and industrial workers.

The Size of Garden Seeds.

[Indianapolis News:] The size of a seed as a factor in plant production is the subject of a report by M. B. Cummings, of the Vermont agricultural experiment station, in which the author describes experiments in planting sweet peas and a number of garden vegetables. There is, on the whole, a decided advantage in using large and heavy seed. Thus sweet peas from such seed were earlier in blooming, bore more and finer blossoms, and were generally more thrifty.

Lime and Tuberculosis

Dr. Roberts Bartholow, former professor in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, says in his Materia Medica (1895,) on pages 215 and 216: "Clinical experience has shown that it (referring to a calcium salt) possesses the ill-defined property known as alterative, removes certain toxic or morbific materials and secures their secretion by the organs of elimination. . . . The testimony which has lately been published in respect to its curative powers in consumption is certainly very striking."

He does not refer to testimony regarding Eckman's Alterative, since the medical profession never publicly recommends proprietary remedies. However, many cases of consumption seem to have yielded to this remedy.

This success may be due largely to the fact that in Eckman's Alterative a calcium (lime) salt is so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. It contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, so is safe.

Wireless Defense.

by the tens of thousands in this and other countries, as well as the man who embodied construction features in the Auditorium Building that have provoked the wonder of the engineers of many countries, Mr. Harris's record is one of achievements along unblazed paths. He is the perfecter of the rotary principle of mechanics, including revolutionary results in rotary air brakes, air compressors, etc., now manufactured in this city.

When the building of the aqueduct was first proposed Mr. Harris offered, on behalf of an eastern syndicate, to do the work and deliver the water to the city free of all expense, in perpetuity, on condition that the syndicate be given the exclusive use of the water en route for the development of electric energy. He is at present vice-president of the Rotary Airbrake Company of this city, vice-president of the Mechanical Educator Company of Los Angeles and a director of various concerns.

STREAM OF DEATH.

"The nearest description of this invention that can be published at this time," said Mr. Harris yesterday, "is that it consists of a combination of two present well-known electrical appliances to be used in connection with a third invention for the bringing together of electrical waves, radiations or vibrations, increasing their intensity many thousandfold and projecting them in a narrow stream straight forward for a distance governed by the electrical energy generated by the dynamo. It differs entirely from present wireless systems, twenty miles being the approximate limit of efficient results with this new system.

"By this new method a restricted wireless current is projected in a direct forward line to or against a metallic terminal, this terminal being the object sought to destroy; the restricted radiations acting as a conductor for the higher voltage and augmented electric force, which is carried or projected with tremendous destructive power, but for a limited area only.

"This system is designed to be used for defensive purposes only in case of necessity, and can be connected with and receive its energy from any high voltage, large capacity generating plant or power station, the approximate power required being 1000 horse power for each mile of effectual service.

"As is well known, the present systems of wireless permit radiations to spread to all points of the compass, thus diminishing and decimating their strength and efficiency, causing them to cover an enormous area, as recently noted by wireless telephone messages which were forwarded from Arlington, Va., to Paris, France, and the Hawaiian Islands at the same instant, covering a combined distance of 9000 miles.

"The radiations or electro currents of this system travel in a direct narrow volume, minimum width of a few inches, and may be directed at will by a single operator, the same as the rays of a searchlight are directed, their variations being as rapid as the projector could be swayed back and forth by the operator.

"These intense and high-voltage rays and currents—it is really the wireless rays brought together as a carrier for the heavier electric current—when brought in line with or directed against any metal body, such as a battleship, would immediately electrify the whole structure, thus making it uninhabitable for human beings, the intensity of the current being varied by the operator through increasing or decreasing the volume or widening the stream of the current at will.

"As all war vessels are dependent more or less upon electrical current, this equipment would be put out of commission immediately and the vessel rendered entirely helpless.

MEASURED DESTRUCTION.

"If it be desired to take vessels as prizes it will be necessary to disable the vessel by milder currents, at the same time making it impossible for any of its occupants to take active part in any defensive movements, while our vessels could proceed within hailing or signaling distance, demanding surrender of the enemy vessel. At the same time our vessels could keep in touch with shore stations by signals directing the application of the destructive rays according to the requirements necessary to bring the enemy to submission.

"If surrender was declined, the entire complement of the hostile ship could be annihilated by intensifying the currents on signal. It would be a ship struck by lightning."

Though Mr. Harris stated that the system is designed for defensive purposes mainly, he asserted that there is a possibility of the offensive use of the new electric guns by our "juice-driven" new superdreadnaughts, as the California, now building, which has an electric rating of 33,000 horse power.

"If 20,000 of this horse power," said Mr. Harris, "could be used temporarily for the purpose I have outlined, using the other 13,000 horse power for slow maneuvering and such other necessary purposes as would be demanded when the vessel was not in action, it would be converted into a floating fortress that could annihilate every vessel within a radius of twenty to twenty-five miles of its position at that time.

"But, as every large coast city has extensive power plants with sufficient electrical capacity to furnish the required power to put into effect one or more of these projectors for defensive purposes, the equipping of battleships would really be unnecessary.

"This system can be worked with equal advantage in disabling airships or any other means of offensive warfare where metal predominates or is used to any appreciable extent, consequently airships or aeroplanes could have their engines disabled and their crews, or such part of them as came in contact with the metallic portions of such crafts, paralyzed at will, or if a hostile army was operating on level ground it could be put out of commission or annihilated anywhere within a radius of twenty miles of any large power plant.

"With this system in operation the power plants at Long Beach and Redondo Beach could do more to put a hostile fleet out of commission in five minutes than all the shore batteries and proposed shore batteries from Los Angeles to Seattle could do in a week."

Because the curvature of the earth amounts to 266 feet to every twenty miles, a distance much greater than the effective radius of any gun, a tower or other elevation of this height would have to be used for the projectors to compensate this curvature.

TO COIN THE PEACHES.

Organization of Growers Initiated in Fresno Will Embrace Prodúcers of Southern California.

Because of the great success of the raisin and orange growers in their cooperative marketing of products, the peach growers are forming an organization of similar character, to be incorporated under the name of the California Dried Peach Association. John Fairweather and J. P. Bolton, both of Fresno, are getting the association together. It will consist of smaller territorial associations and these have already been perfected in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys.

The organization will have branches in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and other Southern California counties in a few days. When all of these associations have been completed, the general corporation will be started with a capital of $1,000,000.

MEXICO WANTS GASOLINE.

Owing to the scarcity of gasoline in Mexico, the Secretary of Treasury in Mexico City has issued a proclamation, to the effect that for the next two months gasoline may be imported into Mexico free of duty. This edict refers to petrol, covered by section 277 of the general customs laws. It is hoped that in this manner the gasoline supply of the country will be so replenished that the high prices now prevalent will be greatly reduced.

Paid for His Visit.

[London Answers:] A witty youth clambered on top of a westward-bound train in Glasgow recently, and, when the lady conductor murmured, "Fares, please," handed her a shilling, and demanded:

"Berlin, please."

Without hesitation the fair ticket puncher selected a slip of pasteboard, clipped it, and handed it to the would-be humorist with seven-pence-half-penny change.

"This car goes to Paisley," she remarked with a sweet smile; "that's seven miles on your journey."

And the youth, who really wanted a penny ticket (which is pink,) looked pink.

$1.25 Crepe de Chine At 89c

About 800 Yards—36-inch Width

—A special purchase of beautifully finished all silk crepe de chine that ordinarily sells for $1.25 will be out Monday at 89c yard.

—Full yard wide material in a variety of colors, pink, light blue, maize, Copenhagen, Nile, myrtle, rose, wistaria, Kelly, prune, African brown, lavender, olive, apricot and also the standard black and white crepe de chine.

—About 800 yards in all. A serviceable cloth for evening wear and street costumes. Supply your wants on Greater Broadway Day, in The Broadway Basement, while this special price prevails—89c yard.

The Broadway Basement.

15c to 35c

Laces at 10c Yard

—2 to 6-inch widths in clunys, shadows and oriental laces that are ideal for bed spreads, scarfs, fancy work, and other Christmas gifts.

—There are pretty shadow edges and oriental net top laces so desirable for dress trimmings, etc.

—All in all, a feature grouping at a feature price for Greater Broadway Day—Monday—10c yard.

The Broadway Basement.

5c and 10c Wash Laces at 2c

—You must see these to appreciate them. Edges and insertions but not in such short lengths that you have little use for—but rather desirable merchandise that you'd gladly pay 5c and 10c for.
—The price is not consistent with the value, but is far beneath it—2c a yard, while quantities last.

Net Guimpes at 25c Each —Durable and well finished and unusual values, but a very limited quantity to sell at this price. If you want one, come early Monday morning, 25c.

Fine Organdy Embroideries at 9c Yd.

—The very thing you need for making your own neckwear, collars, vestees, etc., as well as for supplying Christmas needs.
—Pretty designs worked on fine sheer material. It's worth a great deal more in the regular way and you'll surely want yards and yards of it at this special price. Come early for first choice.
—Monday at 9c yard.

The Broadway Basement.

Beautiful Boudoir Caps at 19c

—These make dainty and practical Christmas gifts. You should see them. Plain styles or the more elaborate ones with attractive ribbon bows, rosebuds and lace trimming.

—Only recently we offered them at a higher price and we had difficulty in supplying the demand. Some of them are now marked special at 25c, but out they go on Greater Broadway Day at 19c each.

Cotton Batts At 4c Each

A Greater Broadway Day Feature

—Here's an item of such importance that we expect to see this basement department crowded within a few moments after the opening hour, Monday.
—This is a spcial purchase of 10 bales but how long would you expect it to last at this ridiculous price, 4c each?

—Many persons will anticipate their future as well as their Christmas needs, and be quick to purchase these Monday. While they last, 4c each.

The Broadway Basement.

69x83 Bed Spreads at 69c

—These are free from dressing which in itself is a very unusual thing for a spread at this price. Firmly woven and neatly hemmed.

'PHONE SERVICE CHANGES ASKED.

MAYOR WOULD HAVE UNIFORM REGULATION FOR PRE-PAYMENT.

Mayor Sebastian announced yesterday that in response to complaints from local business men he will ask the Public Utilities Board to investigate and report whether the city can compel the local telephone companies to give better and more satisfactory service with the coin-in-the-slot telephones which are required by ordinance to be installed where public telephone service is given.

The chief complaint made to the Mayor is that the system of prepayment telephone service given by the Home company is such that there is no means whereby the company can return the nickel when the person calling fails to get the person wanted. Business men have complained to the Mayor that they are called upon frequently by patrons to refund their telephone charges when the company gives them the wrong number. In other instances, when calls are made to private exchanges, the person depositing a nickel is unable to get a refund of his nickel when he fails to get connection with the person wanted.

The letter to the Utility Board will ask for suggestions whereby the service to the public may be improved.

NEW TRAFFIC DETAILS.

Details, arranging new hours of duty for the eighteen motorcycle officers assigned to traffic work, were issued yesterday afternoon by Police Lieutenant Butler of the traffic squad. Police Sergeant Walls will be in charge of the day squad of eight officers. They will work from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. At that time Police Sergeant Harlan and eight officers will come on duty, to work until midnight. Saturday afternoons, the night squad will report two hours later and will work until 2 o'clock in the morning.

MERE FAMILY QUARREL.

Justice Brown yesterday morning dismissed the complaint charging Mrs. Elene Morgan with having threatened to kill her husband. George W. Morgan, the husband, swore to the complaint, alleging that his wife had broken into the family residence at No. 130 North Kingsley drive with an ax and then threatened to make mincemeat of him while brandishing a knife in his direction. Justice Brown characterized the episode as merely a family quarrel, and suggested that the Morgan family forget its slight differences and make up.

SHH! LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN FADED GRAY HAIR—USE SAGE TEA

Sage Mixed With Sulphur Restores Natural Color and Lustre to Hair.

Why suffer the handicap of looking old? Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance.

Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use; but listen, avoid preparation put up by druggists as they usually use too much sulphur, which makes the hair sticky. Get "Wyeth's" which can always be depended upon to darken beautifully and it the best thing known to remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

By using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair. It does it so naturally and evenly—you moisten a sponge or soft brush, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time which requires but a few moments. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored and it becomes glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.

Cotton-is the greatest of all money Crops
Says THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN
Palo Verde Valley is the greatest of ALL MONEY GROWING DISTRICTS—

IN its issue of November 27th the "Country Gentleman" says: "Cotton, despite all its abuses and misuses, is the greatest of all money crops. With proper treatment it may be made the most steadily profitable field crop this country produces."

If this is true of the cotton belt as a whole—just think of the enormous possibilities in Palo Verde, where the world's cotton record was broken last year by the production of 1½ bales to the acre over the entire district, some growers realizing as high as 2 bales to the acre.

However ,you don't have to stick to cotton alone. Best profits are made by rotating crops—and unequaled diversity is a characteristic of this valley. Palo Verde soil is uniformly deep and rich—yes, as rich as the Nile—and will grow almost everything. Alfalfa and grain are wonder crops here. Two big crops of beans were harvested this year off one piece of land. Cattle, hogs and poultry yield large profits.

We want to show you. We want you to see this land from every possible viewpoint and put it to the hardest test you know of—for we know that you can't resist buying if you take the trouble to thoroughly investigate.

Buy Now--Ahead of the Railroad

Choice lands with an unlimited and inexhaustible water supply from the Colorado River can now be bought at $100 an acre. But this price may not last long. The railroad is being rushed to completion right through the heart of the valley, opening it up to the markets of the world. Do you realize what this means?

Special Excursion Next Saturday

—will leave here at 2 p.m., giving you an opportunity to see the valley and be back in Los Angeles Monday morning. Plan to go now. Make reservation tomorrow, if possible. If you can't call at our office, write or phone for illustrated folder, giving plain, simple facts that speak for themselves.

By Merger.

NEW INDUSTRY IS LAUNCHED.

Southland Concern to Make Food Products.

Half-a-million-dollar Stock Issue Approved.

Imperial Valley and City Profit by Deal.

Meaning the merger of three concerns and the starting of a food-manufacturing enterprise of importance to Los Angeles and the Imperial Valley, a permit to issue $500,000 of capital stock was granted the California Food Products Company yesterday by Commissioner of Corporations Carnahan.

All this stock has been subscribed, according to C. D. Crouch, president of the San Diego Reduction Company, who is the principal stockholder and will be the president of the new concern. The Terminal Island plant of the San Pedro Reduction Company will be one of those taken over by the Food Products Company.

E. J. Eisenmayer, second vice-president of the Globe Grain and Milling Company, is slated to be first vice-president of the new concern, while A. D. Buckley of the same company will be the auditor. J. V. Wachtel, Jr., former cashier of the First National Bank of El Centro, will be second vice-president and treasurer, and Sidney J. Parsons of this city the chief counsel.

The list of incorporators also includes L. C. Ogburn, president and general manager of the Mutual Cotton Company of Imperial; E. D. Skinner, manager of the San Pedro Reduction Company; and Winthrop Pi3r of El Centro. The concern is capitalized at $1,000,000, but only half this amount of stock will be issued at this time, according to Mr. Crouch.

The first act of the business career of the California Food Products Company, according to the incorporators, will be to take over and continue the operations of three factories owned by companies participating in the merger. These are the plant of the San Pedro Reduction Company, the gin of the Mutual Cotton Company of Imperial, and the gin and partly-built cottonseed mill of Powers & Douglas at Blythe.

FUTURE PLANS.

Besides the factories taken over by the new corporation, several other plants, according to Mr. Crouch, will soon be added to the list. The company has bought a site at Calexico having a frontage of 800 feet on the Southern Pacific tracks and has ordered building material, machinery and equipment for two ginning plants, each of which will have five gin stands of eighty saws. Two cottonseed mills will also be built by the company, it is stated, one at Calexico and the other in the northern part of the Imperial Valley.

Work will also be started in a few days, according to Mr. Crouch, upon an addition to the San Pedro Reduction Company's plant. This will house new machinery and equipment for the extraction of cottonseed oil and the manufacture of cottonseed meal and other products. The proposition of leasing and planting acreage to cotton is soon to be determined by the incorporators, it was stated yesterday, as is also a project to build or acquire a plant at San Diego.

The immediate plans of the company contemplate the shipping of the cottonseed ginned at its plants in the Imperial Valley, together with a large amount already under contract from other gins, to the plant at the harbor, pending the completion of the valley oil mills. The plant at the harbor is for the retrieving of the oil from the scraps of the tuna canneries and the preparation of fish meal. These are used almost exclusively in the manufacture of the higher grades of poultry foods.

YEAR 'ROUND.

As the season for tuna runs from June to November, and the cottonseed season just about fills in the other months of the year, the operation of the harbor plant at full efficiency throughout the year is assured, according to Mr. Crouch.

The ultimate plans of the company, it was stated yesterday, are to manufacture food for humans from the thousands of tons of cottonseed produced in the Imperial Valley. A new process, according to Mr. Crouch, has been developed by which even cotton meal can be made a food for humans. For the present, however, the company will manufacture only salad oils and foods for stock and poultry.

"Negotiations are now under way," said Mr. Crouch, "and doubtless will be satisfactorily terminated in a few days, to have the products of the California Food Products Company introduced and distributed through the organization of the Globe Grain and Milling Company of this city."

RESOLVES TO TURN LEAF.

Mother, in Jail, Decides to Make Good in Order to Keep Her Two Little Children.

Mrs. Pearl Wilson, whose life of 20 years has been checkered, sat in the Juvenile Court yesterday with a great resolve in her heart. This resolve is to turn over a new leaf and make good. For several days she has been in the County Jail, but she said she was tired of eating beans and hash, and with the view of effecting her release on the charge of failing to provide for her children, Beatrice, 3 years, and Chester, 16 months, the bail was reduced from $1500 to $1000, and Attorney Hanlon set about obtaining it.

Mrs. Wilson will come before Judge Reeve Wednesday for a hearing. The court will try to have her straighten out and he will do this through her affection for her children. If she makes good, she may have the custody of the boy and girl. If she does not, other means will be adopted. Meantime they are with the Children's Home Society. A number of persons want to adopt Beatrice and Chester, but the mother has the first claim, if she turns over that new leaf.

The mother has Indian blood, but does not show it. She is good-looking and has a sunny disposition. She left her home in Oklahoma with H. W. Wilson and he deserted her in this city. She left the children with Mrs. A. Miller Rowan and disappeared, having been found with difficulty.

WOMAN CAPTURES PROWLERS.

Single-handed, with Revolver, She Halts Burglary and Takes Two to the Police Station.

Mrs. Lulu Samarmo not only captured two prowlers on the night of November 27 while they were attempting to break into a warehouse next door to her home, but helped to take them to the police station at the point of her gun. She related the story of her prowess yesterday morning to Justice Forbes when Mesack Kartangter and Alexander Boldjeroff were brought in for a preliminary hearing on the charge of attempted burglary.

According to Mrs. Samarmo, she heard a pounding on the building next door and saw two men trying to break in with pickaxes. Getting her revolver, she quietly raised the window and ordered the men to stop. Then she jumped out and at the point of her pistol forced them to precede her to the street, where she hailed a dray. Getting on this, she ordered the driver to go to the jail, and there turned the men over to the police.

Splash of Color for Carnival Days.

Yama Yama girls for the Laguna Booster Carnival,

To be held at Platt's Park next Saturday and Sunday. They will also appear in costume at the Yama Yama dance at Lowrie's Hall, No. 4205 Stephenson avenue Tuesday night. Left to right, they are, top row, Mrs. C. F. Schneller, Mrs. R. P. Lowrie, Mrs. P. P. Harvey; below, Miss Nora Snyder, Mrs. H. L. Kopp.

Next Saturday-Sunday.

LAGUNA CARNIVAL TO BE A JOYFUL AFFAIR.

UNDER the auspices of the Laguna Boosters' Club, preparations are being made to hold the annual Laguna carnival at Platt's Park, next Saturday and Sunday. John Weston, president of the club, and a score or more pretty girl enthusiasts who have been stirring up interest in the affair, predict a great success for it.

In addition to numerous booths and sideshow attractions, the boosters have arranged with the Escalante Bros.' Circus for several performances daily. The circus will also form part of a parade to be given in the downtown district next Saturday. The management promises that some new and thrilling stunts will feature each performance.

Thursday night at Lowrie's Hall, No. 4250 Stephenson avenue, the boosters gave a benefit masquerade ball. The masqueraders, made up to resemble caricatures of well-known men and women in public life and professional comedians, occasioned merriment among the spectators during the grand march with impromptu orations on the fads of the characters represented. Proceeds from the ball will be used to defray the expenses of the carnival.

Tuesday night another ball will be held in the same hall. A specialty will be a Yama Yama number, with the lights dimmed and the orchestra playing a special yama yama waltz. It is planned to have a majority of the dancers in costume and some novel effects are expected. Several of the dance clubs in the district are entering enthusiastically into the preparations for the carnival, members of the Belvedere organization being especially active.

The Schmidt Trial.

M'MANIGAL TO LEAVE COUNTRY.

CONFESSED DYNAMITER PLANS LIFE IN HONDURAS.

But Won't Admit He Fears Plotters—Expected to Take the Stand Tuesday and be Under Fire Two Weeks—Court's Ruling Excludes Interesting Matters.

Ortie E. McManigal, the confessed dynamiter, whose testimony was largely responsible for the imprisonment of the McNamaras and thirty-eight other labor-union bosses, plans to leave the United States when he has rendered whatever service is required of him by the District Attorney in the prosecution of M. A. Schmidt and Dave Caplan.

"I have some property interests in Honduras and I am going there," McManigal said last night. He would not admit he will go away through fear of dynamiters and their ilk.

McManigal is expected to be called as a witness in the Schmidt trial next Tuesday. Testimony preliminary to that to be given by him has been introduced during the past three weeks, consisting of hundreds of letters and other documents that passed between officers of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers and other union men.

Dist.-Atty. Woolwine will interrogate McManigal and he said yesterday the witness will probably be under fire two weeks. He will tell of his personal activities as a dynamiter and will link the names of the McNamaras, Frank Ryan, F. C. Webb and others with his career of crime.

When Judge Willis ruled out evidence bearing upon the conspiracy after the day the original Times Building was wrecked and twenty innocent men were murdered, he prevented the State from introducing some very valuable testimony, much of which was to have come from McManigal. His story of the flight he and J. B. McNamara made to the north woods when Burns detectives were chasing them was of unusual interest and Special Prosecutor Noel declares would have greatly strengthened the State's case.

George E. Davis, known as the McManigal of the East," left the city last night, having testified to all of his acts prior to the date of The Times catastrophe.

"I am awfully sorry the judge would not permit me to tell what I know of the happenings after that date," Davis said. "I am sure I could have given some valuable information directly connecting Schmidt with the conspiracy and the murder. J. J. McNamara told me all about Schmidt's activities and I was anxious to tell the story to the jury."

Davis is considered an expert structural ironworker and he said he will follow his trade when he returns to Pittsburgh.

"MORGAN OF JAPAN."

Baron Shibusawa Due Coming Week and Will be Entertained by the Chamber of Commerce.

Baron Eiichi Shibusawa, the "Morgan of Japan," who is heading a party of far eastern financiers on a tour of this country, will arrive here the 13th inst, according to advice received yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce. He will be the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the organization during his stay here.

Often called Japan's most influential private citizen, Baron Shibusawa has been active in the suppression of "jingoism" in his own country, and his visit to the United States at this time is regarded as significant in view of existing conditions. He has been honored on his present tour by the largest commercial and civic organizations of the country.

Baron Shibusawa was in this city some years ago with a delegation of Japanese business men on a tour of the country.

IN GUARDED COURTROOM.

Witness Describes Killing of the Detective Sergeant, Declaring it Was Unprovoked.

Tony Blandino was the star witness in the preliminary hearing of the case against Caligero Finocchio, charged with the killing of Detective Sergeant Browning. He admitted yesterday morning in Justice Hinshaw's court that he witnessed the actual shooting of the officer by the defendant, and testified as to details.

Under cross-examination by Defense Counsel Lightfoot, Blandino also testified that there had been bad blood between himself and Finocchio. Attorney Lightfoot's attempt to prove by this witness that Detective Browning started the trouble by striking the defendant, failed utterly.

The hearing was continued until tomorrow afternoon. At that time, the special guard for the courtroom will be maintained. It was established yesterday morning by Justice Hinshaw when word came to him that intense factionalism exists between many of the Italian spectators in the court and that some of these are armed.

FOLLOWS THE COMPANY.

F. L. Jepson of Pasadena filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday. He gives his liabilities at $7117.94, and his assets at $100. The most of his debts grow out of the financial difficulties of the grocery business of the Jepson-Salisbury Company, Pasadena, that failed some time ago.

A SKIN GAME?

Charles Moran, formerly employed as helper in a motion picture property house at No. 213 West Seventh street, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective Bowe, charged with operating a skin game on his former employer. It appeared, from the details of the charge, that Moran is accused of stealing a leopard's skin from the establishment where he worked. A few days later he is said to have attempted to sell the same pelt back to his employer, the original owner. As the leopard cannot change his spots, the employer recognized the pelt, and caused Moran's arrest.

Soldier of Fortune.

CROSS OF IRON IS ANGELENO'S.

Adventurer Fighting in the Balkans for Kaiser.

His Part in War Decided by Throw of the Dice.

Life a Round of Wandering on Trail of Thrills.

Somewhere in the Balkans, fighting with the German legions, there is an American soldier of fortune, risen from the ranks and now a sergeant, who has had a life of thrills and adventures. His name is George L. Boden. He is a Los Angeles man, and from here he started on the trail of adventure which took him to the Philippines and to the China coast, to the Russo-Japanese War, to revolutionary Mexico and then to Europe. He looked for trouble where he could find it. Now he is in the midst of the greatest conflict of all time and is thriving on it.

Fifteen months ago Mr. Boden was with Villa in Mexico—his sword sold to "Pancho." On a hot August night Mr. Boden and four other Americans sat around a marble-topped table in some Chihuahua cantina when the news of the great war in Europe came. The magnitude of the impending conflict appealed to them all as offering greater things than the troubles of Mexico, and they determined to go to this greater affair. There were five of them, and they decided each to select an army to join. France, Germany, Russia and England offered fields of activity, but numbered only four. It was decided the famous French Foreign Legion should be considered the fifth unit. The problem of which of the soldiers of fortune should go to which army at once became important, and it was quickly decided to leave it to chance, as the soldiers of fortune left most things.

DICE ARE THROWN.

The muchacho brought the dice box and the quintette rolled out their fate on the marble top of the table. One man got England, another the legion, another Russia. Mr. Boden got Germany.

In the night the five hastily gathered all available resources and flitted across the border and started East. "Pancho" Villa was left to look after his revolution as best he might. The five speedily separated and are now scattered far and wide. Some of them may be dead. Mr. Boden went to England, stopped there a few days and went on to Germany. He had little knowledge of the language, but he had a soldier's experience. He had served in the Fourth United States Infantry and the Fourth United States Cavalry, and he was taken into the German army.

George L. Boden,

Los Angeles soldier of fortune, who has won the iron cross and become a sergeant in the German army.

He went to the western front and was in the great German drive for Paris. He retreated after Mons and helped dig the German army into the soil of France. In the trenches he won the iron cross for gallantry in throwing a fusing hand grenade out of a trench. He was promoted, too, and later he became a top sergeant.

After a few months in France Boden's regiment was withdrawn to participate in the great offensive against Russia. Thirty miles a day he and his comrades marched for days on end and Sergt. Boden at last saw plenty of fighting. When the attack on Russia came to an end Boden's organization came back to the center of things once more.

THRILLS FOR REWARD.

He has just been in Berlin and is now in the Balkans engaged in the operations against Serbia. In selling his sword to Germany Boden is not getting wealthy, for even as sergeant his pay is only a few marks a week, but he is getting a rich reward in adventure.

Sergt. Boden started young on his roving life, entering the American navy when only a boy, as an apprentice. He served his time and later joined the army. He saw active service in "the islands" and when his enlistment expired, he stayed on in Manila. He drifted to the China coast and learned it well. He knows Bubbling Well road and Shanghai as well as the Hatamen of Peking, and the hotelled water front of Yokohama Bay. In the Philippines Boden was a prospector. In China he took what jobs came his way. He saw a good bit of the Russo-Japanese War, too.

When the war is over Sergt. Boden, if he lives, will hit the trail for the cafe of the two brothers in Pearl street, New York, and wait to see if the pals who hung over the marble-topped table in the Chihuahua cantina last year will return to the roost.

BARACA-PHILATHEA.

The Los Angeles Baraca-Philathea City Union will meet at the Atherton Baptist Church, Figueroa and Forty-ninth streets, tomorrow. Teachers,' officers' and chairmen of committees' conferences will be held from 8 to 8:30 p.m., to be followed by a special business and social meeting.

Bucklin System.

SANTA MONICA TO TRY NEW ELECTION FREAK.

Voters will Struggle With Preferential Balloting for City Officers Tuesday—First Test of the Complicated Method in California Draws Interest — Fight Centers on Mayoralty; Dark Horse has Good Chance.

BY BURL ARMSTRONG.

SANTA MONICA'S 6500 voters are to go through the horrors of preferential voting next Tuesday at the city election. It will be the first time in California that the Bucklin system has been used and the outcome will be watched with a great deal of interest, not to say apprehension.

Preferential voting is another one of those freaks which have been proposed from time to time and repudiated wherever good political sense prevails.

The plan is simply this—no, there is nothing simple about it! The plan provides for first, second and third choice of officers. In counting the ballots, if no candidate receives a majority of first-choice votes, then the second-choice votes are added to the first-choice votes. If then there is not a majority for any one candidate, the third-choice votes are added to the other two and the thing is decided.

Each voter really has three votes. He may express his first choice, his second and his third. In Santa Monica's case there are 6500 registered votes. No more than this number can be cast for first choice, double the number may be cast for second and treble the number for third. So that in the first-choice count 3251 votes would be a majority, 6501 would be a majority of first and second ballots and 9754 would be a majority for all three added together.

Santa Monica has thrown off the mayor-council form of government and has taken up the commission form. The Commissioner of Public Safety is also the Mayor and chairman of the commission. The Commissioner of Public Works and Commissioner of Finance round out the governing body. Each commissioner is to get $3000 a year, whereas now the Mayor draws down the royal stipend of $1500 and the Councilmen get little or no remuneration for their grief.

STORM CENTER.

The fight centers at Santa Monica over the Mayoralty. Mayor T. H. Dudley has been in the saddle a good many years and the first thing I heard in criticism of him was that he had been there long enough.

Against Mayor Dudley are six other candidates. The fight appears to lie between Mr. Dudley, Samuel L. Berkley and Fred D. Butzer. The remaining four are not counted as contenders by the average voter at Santa Monica, but with the preferential voting system, almost any old result may ensue.

Now, with seven candidates aspiring to the Mayoralty, there is hardly a chance in the world for any one of them to get a majority of first-choice votes. Assuming the average voter of Santa Monica is right in the way he sizes up the situation, there are three leading candidates for the office.

Upon this assumption, the strongest candidates cannot expect to get many second-choice votes. Dudley adherents, for instance, will vote for him for first choice, and for second choice they will pick one of the weak ones, or may "single shot" by remaining in the first-choice column.

Mr. Butzer's friends will vote for him, but will not by any manner of means vote for Mr. Dudley for second choice any more than Dudley voters will favor Mr. Butzer for second choice. The same is true of Mr. Berkley.

So the beneficiaries of the second and third-choice voting will naturally be the four weak contenders. In the very strength of the three leaders lies their weakness, under the Bucklin system.

HOW IT WORKS.

Taking Mr. Butzer's vote as an illustration: If he receives 1500 first-choice and 1000 second-choice votes, he will be outclassed by Jack Steele, who receives 800 first-choice and 2000 second-choice votes. Mr. Steele, who is not wanted for Mayor, according to the first-choice vote, rides into power by reason of his second-choice strength.

It will require the second and third-choice votes to elect a Mayor in Santa Monica, for the race is too close for any one candidate to get away with a majority of votes where seven neighbors are contending.

Taking the Mayoralty candidates down the list, Samuel L. Berkley is a dry goods merchant, a deacon in the Baptist Church and mistrusted by what we are pleased to call the liberal element in Santa Monica. It is said he would close the merry-go-rounds on Sundays. The church element is backing him rather strongly, but some of them have aligned themselves with Mayor Dudley.

Charles H. Brown is a cigar dealer whose candidacy is not taken seriously.

NOT FOR FREAKS.

Older residents of Santa Monica remember him as one who has stood out against freak legislation. He believes the bay district should be made agreeable and inviting to all pleasure lovers and, while he does not advocate unbridled license, he is a stanch supporter of "what's right all the time."

Mayor Dudley started out with an announcement that he wouldn't spend a nickel to be re-elected except for printing enough stationery to run a perfunctory campaign. So far as his public utterances still go, he is adhering to that rule. The Santa Monica Advancement League, however, stepped into the fight and made an aggressive campaign out of what appeared to be a very tame affair on the Mayor's part. The league is headed by no less a luminary than Paul W. Schenck, a Los Angeles lawyer and impresario of the Nat Goodwin cafe. The general feeling is that Santa Monica has had about enough of Dudley.

Then there is William Joseph England, a plumber; Frank L. Girard, a butcher, and the ubiquitous John C. Steele, forever making the fight for the "peepul."

The Dudley faction doesn't like the activity of the Butzer people. Mr. Butzer, head of the Council, is on the inside of the administration. In his post of power he has rallied around him a strong following. His business record has brought to him a line of adherents that grew greater with his public service.

When I asked a liquor dealer who is going to be elected he said it looks like Mr. Butzer, and a teller in the bank on the corner said he believes Mr. Butzer will win. At the City Hall the Dudley people say Mr. Berkley is the man they will have to beat. They say Mr. Butzer is out of the race.

For Commissioner of Public Works William P. Carter, Street Superintendent, and Henry Hollwedel, an architect and builder, are scrapping it out. Thomas H. James and Ed R. Smith are also in this race.

For Commissioner of Finance Miss Alice S. Stewart is making a gallant fight and a hand-to-hand canvass. Max K. Barretto, who has served Santa Monica as Chief of Police and City Treasurer, seems to have the inside track. Others who are contesting this job with him are John W. Armstrong, Reuben Fogel, Dorwin L. Fuller, W. P. Griffitts, George D. Snyder and James P. Whelan.

David Henry Ettien, M. R. King and Samuel D. Weil aspire to the police judgeship. For the Board of Education we have Bertha Dresher, W. B. Hamblen, Edward N. Reed, Orlando A. Sanders, Charlena A. Welch and Robert White, three of whom are to be elected for the four-year term, and W. S. Jenkins, A. M. Montgomery, Francis S. Montgomery, John J. Seymour, Elizabeth Uhl and Evan Williams, two of whom are to be elected to the two-year term.

On top of it all the voters will be obliged to say whether they approve a bond issue of $250,000 for the completion of the system of storm drains.

The first experiment in preferential voting will be awaited eagerly throughout California. The prospect of a dark horse who may have neither a majority of the first, second or third choices, but who may have a combination of any two or all three of them that will be unbeatable, is one which the people of Santa Monica have invited by taking up the freak idea of preferential voting.

To elect officers of a $17,000,000 corporation by such a hazard, when the choice for Mayor the people actually want can get by only through a miracle, is one of the "blessings" of the reform wave.

ADVENT SEASON AT ST. PAUL'S.

LARGE ATTENDANCE TO LISTEN TO SERMONS BY DEAN OF CATHEDRAL.

In the church calendar, this is the season of the Advent. That stirring preacher, Dean MacCormack, is conducting a series of special services at St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral. The dean has begun a course of sermons on the visions in the book of the Revelations of St. John, the divine. He will discuss these remarkable prophetic utterances in the light of the problems and conditions of today. His topic last Sunday night was "The Vision of the Seven Golden Candlesticks;" Tonight it will be "The Vision of the One Hundred and Forty-four Thousand Who were Sealed;" December 12, "The Vision of the State of the Blessed Departed;" December 19, "The Vision of the Perfect on Beatific Life."

CITES TWO FOR CONTEMPT.

Cantaloupe Exchange Men to be Haled into Federal Court for Refusal to Give Testimony.

Federal Judge Bledsoe issued an order yesterday, requiring Joseph Friedman and A. W. Phelps to appear in his court tomorrow afternoon at o'clock and show cause why they should not be punished for contempt in refusing to answer certain questions put to them at an inquiry held at the office of Waldo, Root & Dysert, in the Marsh-Strong Building, in regard to the operations of what is known as the Cantaloupe Trust in the Imperial Valley.

The occasion for the taking of testimony arose in the action for damages brought by George Kunihiro against the M. O. Coggins Company of Chicago, and a number of individuals and corporations concerned in the cantaloupe trade.

The information sought is in relation to the operations of the Western Cantaloupe Exchange during the seasons of 1912-13.

It has been claimed on the part of the defendants that they are averse to giving out the required records, testimony, etc., just now, lest it be used against them in the course of the hearing of one of the cases of Kunihiro against the defendants, now on trial in Chicago. There have also been hearings in Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.

The litigation grows out of the alleged effort of the Western Cantaloupe Exchange to control the trade in the Imperial Valley.

CAPTURE OPIUM SMUGGLERS.

Arrest Two with Contraband Drug in Auto Bound from Tia Juana to Santa Barbara.

Another important arrest in the opium-smuggling game was made yesterday by W. B. Evans, customs inspector at San Diego, and thirty cans of the smoking opium seized. The men involved are J. R. Vandren of Oxnard and L. H. Jaccard, who claims to belong to Los Angeles. With the men was confiscated a five-passenger automobile bearing the Iowa number of 49047.

The men were suspected and followed to Tia Juana, but nothing was found in the machine. Again shadowed, they motored to San Diego and started north, when they were again overhauled and the stuff found in the auto, eight of the thirty cans being under the tool box.

No sooner were the men taken into custody than Jaccard, in the evident hope of providing himself with an immunity bath, agreed to turn up the names of a number of opium operators along the border, the list covering men in Los Angeles and as far north as Santa Barbara. It is understood the pair were en route to Santa Barbara when arrested.

BABY'S BODY IN GUTTER.

Remains of New Born Girl Found in Front of West Adams-street Home Furnish Mystery.

A deep mystery surrounds the discovery of the body of a new born baby girl yesterday morning in the street gutter in front of No. 422 West Adams street. The little body had evidently been washed to that place by the rainwaters flooding the fashionable residence district early yesterday morning.

The maid employed by Mrs. Mahala A. Bostwick, who lives at the West Adams-street address, first discovered the dead child. Motorcycle Officer Ellsworth, who answered her call for aid, notified the Coroner, and the little body was removed to the Booth & Fitch parlors for burial.

Shades whose beauty lasts

You know the trouble you have always had with window shades—before they are up very long, the "filling" starts to crack and fall out, leaving unsightly streaks and "pinholes."

Brenlin Unfilled Window Shades

wear so well because they are made of closely woven cloth entirely without that filling of chalk and clay you find in ordinary shades.

Come in and let us show you this shade that always hangs straight and smooth and lasts several times as long as others.

BRIGHT FARCE OPENS TONIGHT.

"Pair of Sixes" to Dispel Gloom at Majestic.

New Leading Lady in "The Misleading Lady."

Promising Variety Shows are Scheduled.

"A Pair of Sixes," Edward Peple's successful farce, will open tonight at the Majestic, which has been dark for some weeks, playing the entire week with Wednesday and Saturday matinees. This is one of a comparatively limited number of road shows scheduled for the season in this city.

Oscar Figman has the leading role. He is supported by the entire Chicago cast, including Kate Guyon, Jack Raffael, Rita Carlyle and others.

The piece was a great favorite in the East during the past two seasons, and is said to be one of the funniest farces ever produced. The story deals with two partners in the pill manufacturing business, who decide to settle their business differences by playing a game of poker, the winner to run the business for a year, while the loser acts as his butler. Many droll complications follow the carrying out of the plan.

"The Bird of Paradise" comes to the Majestic December 19.

Burbank.

Florence Rockwell will open her starring engagement at the Burbank this afternoon in "The Misleading Lady," by Paul Dickey and Charles Goddard, authors of the "Ghost Breaker" and other successes. "The Misleading Lady" has made a huge success throughout the East during the past two seasons.

Miss Rockwell has the role of Helen Steele, the girl who starts out for a stage career, and, desiring to play the part of a siren, undertakes to convince a doubting manager of her ability to play the role by trying to get a man for whom she does not care a rap to propose to her. She makes the mistake of selecting for her victim a reckless and domineering young individual lately returned from Patagonia, where he had absorbed primitive ideas concerning the efficacy of the big stick in taming women as well as horses. The result is a battle of wills and a consequent complication of action and situation which are both amusing and absorbing.

Edmund Lowe will play the role Lewis Stone made famous in the East, and Winifred Bryson, Grace Travers, Lillian Elliott, James Corrigan, Ida St. Leon, James K. Applebee, Harry Duffield, Frank Darien, A. Burt Wesner, Warner Baxter and others will also have parts adapted to their needs.

Orpheum.

Houdini, the adroit magician, will continue as headline attraction at the Orpheum on the bill opening tomorrow.

Dainty Marie, who is said to be a perfect woman physically, is the featured performer among the new acts and will appear in a series of trapeze and flying rope stunts.

Others will be Genevieve Cliff and company in "A Breath of Old Virginia;" the Bison City Four, in song numbers and comedy; Robert L. Dailey and company in "Our Bob;" Mazie King and Ted Doner in a dancing turn; Russell Mack and Blanche Vincent, with a musical turn, and Willie Weston, the only holdover except Houdini.

Pantages.

The 1916 Broadway Revue which will headline the Pantages bill opening tomorrow afternoon, is said to hail direct from Broadway, New York. Billy Batcheler is the principal comedian. The cast, including besides Hazel Vert, Don Adams, Jack Cahill and Don Romaine, and a lovely chorus.

Other attractions will be Charles King and Virginia Thornton in "The Greater Price;" Alexander and Scott, a singing and dancing couple from Old Virginia; Al Prince and Helen Deerie in songs and patter; Wills and Hassen in sensational acrobatics, and Joe Whitehead, the "nut" comedian.

Hippodrome.

The Hippodrome announces the first of its ten big road shows as the attraction for this week, commencing tomorrow.

Bessie Harvey will be the headliner, bringing her educated horse "Caprice" and a flock of carrier pigeons as her support, as well as a scenic cyclorama used as a setting in the act.

Others on the bill will be Will Abram and Agnes Johns in "A Woman's Friend;" Johnson and Wells, colored comedians; the Five Spanish Serenaders; Cain and Odom, a man and girl in a piano oddity; and Swor and Westbrook, in patter and singing.

Republic.

The "youngsters" will delight in the programme opening at the Republic Theater tomorrow, as the headline act will be the "Cabaret Dogs," a company of canines said to be exceptionally well trained.

Mystery is promised by Walter Baker and company with "The Great Albini's Illusions." The musical part of the bill will be topped by Barton and Wilson, who mingle "nifty" dancing and up-to-date patter with their song offerings. Evelyn Dare, who is said to have an exceptionally pleasing voice, brings some popular and classical airs. Comedy and character impersonations are featured by Rice brothers. "His Awful Nightmare" is said to have an original plot and humorous situations.

The bill will be rounded out by "Divorced," a first-run feature photoplay, with Hilda Spong in the leading role.

NATIVITY PLAY.

Arrangements Being Made by Channel Club for Staging Beautiful Christmas Drama in this City.

The story of the navitity will be told anew at Exposition Park, Christmas eve, and Christmas night at Normal School Hill, in play form. The version is written by Susanna Clayton, staged by Mrs. Lillian Goldsmith, and presented by the Channel Club.

The Channel Club believe with Percy Mackaye in the civic value of the pageant play, and ask for the sympathy and co-operation of every citizen in Los Angeles. There is no admission.

The cast is as follows: Five shepherds of Judea, Mrs. Alfred Whitney Allen, Miss Dora Holmes, Miss Elizabeth Yoder, Mrs. O. H. Morgan and Mrs. J. B. Stearne; an old shepherd, Mrs. Chauncey L. Higbee; a shepherd boy, Miss Gertrude Comstock; Elewier, Master James Bush; the Angel Gabriel, Mrs. Fred S. Lang; the King of the North, Cecil Irish; the King of the South, Max Pollock; King of the East, Clyde McCoy; Angel of the Star of Bethlehem, Mme. Constance Balfour; Joseph, a carpenter of Nazareth, Frederick Wilson; Mary, the mother of the Child, Miss Sarah Truax; angels of the sky, Senora Manuella Budrow, Miss Bessie Franklin, Reinhold Ooschler; heavenly choir, members of the Dominant, Lyric, Ellis, Matinee Musical clubs; music section of the Wednesday Morning Club, and women's chorus from the Ebell, and musical directors, Adolph Tandler, Carl Bronson, Joseph Dupuy.

FILM ACTORS' CLUB.

Photoplayers Again Join Forces in New Organization—Will Give Beefsteak Dinner Thursday Evening.

The Photoplayers' Club has come to life again, having been resuscitated last Thursday night at the Hoffman Cafe, over a Dutch supper. Fifty-three motion-picture actors voted in favor of the new organization. About sixty-five actors were present, but some of them were in favor of continuing the present informal gatherings. Others wished to form an organization within the Elks. But after a hot fight, the majority prevailed.

Fred Kley, Walter Long, Charles Faris and Clarke Irvine, were appointed a committee to obtain headquarters for the club, which will give a beef-steak dinner next Thursday evening, at which time the organization will be completed.

THE GENTLE ART OF GRATITUDE.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

OF COURSE we all have a great many things to be grateful for. And very few of us really shine at gratitude. It is not merely a virtue, it is an art. Gratitude is one of the things it is more blessed to receive than to give.

A prominent millionaire is reported as saying that he is tired of being generous, there is so much base ingratitude about. Of course, if he is really generous, he should not expect gratitude. Virtue is its own reward and all that sort of thing, but oh, there is something seductively warming about gratitude; without it, all the pleasure has gone out of the giving. We want to be thanked, we want to be thanked a lot and thanked often, we want to feel that our splendid generosity was properly appreciated, that our virtue was recognized at its full worth, or a little beyond its full worth.

"I wish you would write something about ingratitude," writes one of my correspondents, "it seems to me there is no gratitude left in the world."

Well, there never was very much of the genuine article. Some people are grateful, some acquire gratitude, but most of us have an obligation of gratitude thrust upon us, and find it a little more than we can bear.

The average self-respecting soul hastens to wipe out the necessity of gratitude with tangible reciprocity. Reciprocity often masquerades very creditably as gratitude, when it is really an artful way of avoiding it.

Nevertheless gratitude is a very desirable quality. To be pleasantly grateful is to give far more pleasure than any more tangible gift can bestow. Nothing flatters our conceit more than an obviously grateful recipient of our favors. It is the lure of eternal gratitude that makes us all compile affectionate lists at this time of year and haunt the bargain counters at the stores. We all want gratitude—as economically as we can buy it.

If we were quite, quite sure that our tender Christmas offerings would inspire no gratitude when they reached their destination, how many of us would spend a dollar on presents? We are hungry for gratitude. The more thought and affection we have bestowed upon the purchase of the gift, the more anxiously we await the expression of deep and abiding gratitude that we feel we are entitled to.

Yet when someone has been at great pains to give us something which in no sense meets our tastes, performed some service for us which we would infinitely have preferred undone or done differently, it takes a tremendously sweet disposition to be properly grateful, to render charming, unalloyed thanks to the giver.

And some people have such a tiresome little way of exacting so much gratitude. I listened to a long tale of

Who will drive dull care away this week at the local theaters. The scene from "A Pair of Sixes" (first act) is the one upon which the many mirth-producing situations of the farce-comedy hang. The card game is designed to settle the difficulties between two quarrelsome business partners, but these afterward find they have only played the old game of jumping from the frying pan into the fire, much to the amusement of the audience.

Music.

HER PROGRAMMES VERY BEAUTIFUL.

GADSKI TO BE HEARD IN MANY CHARMING NUMBERS.

Two Recitals this Week by Famous Artist Who has Always been a Great Concert Favorite Here. Brahm Van Den Berg to Give Piano Programme.

Two programmes of great beauty have been arranged for the Gadski concerts to be given here Tuesday night and Saturday afternoon. German lieder and music drama selections, as well as American songs, will furnish excellent opportunities for this famous singer to display her ever fascinating artistry in a way to afford great enjoyment to followers of musical events.

The esteem in which Gadski has ever been held, because of her wonderful perception of the dramatic heights and depths and the lyric exquisiteness of music, assures her of immense audiences upon her appearances here. She has always enjoyed a tremendous vogue in opera, her interpretations of the various Wagnerian heroines being famous the world over, and is now equally as great a favorite in the concert world.

Bruce Gordon Kingsley,

Popular and able musician, who is giving a series of Sunday afternoon interpretative recitals at Trinity Auditorium. Today's programme will be devoted to Scandinavian music.

Van Den Berg Recital.

A recital will be given by Brahm Van Den Berg, the well-known and artistic local pianist, who was formerly accompanist of Mme. Emma Calve, Tuesday evening at Trinity Auditorium. His popularity with local music lovers promises a very large attendance at the concert.

Upon the occasion of Mr. Van Den Berg's appearances with Mme. Calve, critics and public alike were unanimous in their praise of his especially fine work, both as the accompanist and in solo numbers. Following this tour he took up his residence in this country in the East, where he was in demand as a pianist and conductor. Later he came to this city.

Mr. Van Den Berg's programme offers no end of technical difficulties, containing such numbers as the Brahm arrangement of a Weber Rondo and a Chopin etude; Godowsky's arrangements of Chopin etudes, and the grand studies of Paganini, Liszt transcriptions.

Following are the various numbers:

Grand studies for the violin .... Paganini
(Arranged for piano by Liszt.)
Rondo (after Von Weber) .... Brahms
Etude (after Chopin) .... Brahms
Chopin's Etude, Op. 25, No. 2 .... Godowsky

Los Requiebros (Compliments Galants) .... Granados
Fete, "Dieu a Seville" .... Albeniz
"Jeux d'Eau" (Frolic of the Waters) .... Ravel
Waltz, paraphrase on Strauss's "Artist's Life" .... Godowsky

Symphony Concerts Soon.

The next regular concert of the Symphony Orchestra will be given the afternoon of the 17th and the evening of the 18th inst. at Trinity Auditorium. The symphony selected for this second pair of concerts is the Schubert work in C major, heard much less frequently than the "Unfinished" symphony, on account of the greater difficulties attending its rendition. Soloist will be Axel Simonsen, the popular violoncellist, who will play Saint-Saens's great Concerto in A minor. The remaining number on the programme is Chadwick's delightful Symphonic Sketches, which were rendered under the baton of the composer last summer at the music festival here.

Opera Ticket Sale.

Ticket sale to guarantors of opera performances to be given in January, will open December 27, at Clune's Auditorium. These patrons, who by subscription have made the season possible will be allowed one week to make their choice of operas and locations. January 3 the box office will be opened to those music lovers desiring to buy season tickets for either one of the two series into which the eight operas will be divided. January 10 the sale will be open to purchasers of single tickets.

Scandinavian Music.

At Trinity Auditorium this afternoon at 3 o'clock Dr. Bruce Gordon Kingsley will give a concert of Scandinavian music. He will be assisted by Miss Alice Wernlund, soprano, who, in addition to other numbers, will sing some of the picturesque folk songs in the dainty Swedish peasant costume. The programme will be selected from the music of Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland, the peculiar characteristics of each country being shown, and interpretative remarks will preface each musical number. Masterpieces will also be featured from Grieg and Sibelius, the new great composer of Finland.

Following is the programme:

1. Festival Overture .... Lassen
Dr. Kingsley.
2. (a) "Bland Fjellen" (Among the Mountains) .... F. von Heland
(b) "Laerkan" (the Lark) .... F. Von Heland

(b) Borghild's Dream.
(c) Triumphal March.
Dr. Kingsley.
6. Peer Gynt Suite (by request) .... Grieg
(a) Morning.
(b) Solveig's Song.
(c) Anitra's Dance.
(d) In the Hall of the Mountain King.
Dr. Kingsley.

Historical Programmes.

A series of unusually interesting historical recitals to be given every Monday night until June 1 have been inaugurated by Alfred Appling Butler. The programmes are presented at his residence, No. 1104 West Twenty-seventy street. To date they have been devoted to the music of Mozart and Beethoven.

The second Beethoven programme will occur tomorrow evening, the assisting artists being Miss Onnie Eymann, pianist; Mme. Catherine Shank, soprano, and Miss Mary Reed, violinist. The following numbers will be given: Piano Sonata, Opus 2, No. 1, in F Minor, Miss Eymann; Aria "Ah Perfido" from "Fidelio," Mrs. Shank; violin and piano Sonata in A Major, Opus 30, Miss Reed and Mr. Butler; Concerto in B Flat Major, Opus 19, Miss Eymann and Mr. Butler. Remaining programmes this month will feature music of Clementi, Weber, Schubert, John Field and Mendelssohn. Two evenings will be devoted to the last named.

The seating capacity is limited to 150 and while all music students are welcome, the admission is restricted to those making personal application in advance of the recitals.

Mr. Butler is noted in local musical circles for the depth of study which he has given to things musical.

Congregational Orchestra.

The First Congregational Orchestra, with William H. Mead, director, announces its fifty-third concert, this being the twenty-first season, for Friday evening, in the church auditorium. The soloist will be E. J. Dill, baritone, who will sing a "Dio Possente" from "Faust;" "The Two Grenadiers," by Schumann; and the old song "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," words by Ben Jonson. These will be with orchestral accompaniment, is the last named selection confined to wood, wind and horns.

Following is the programme:

March, "Blue White" .... Ernest Smith
Composed for Grand Orchestra and played by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.
Overture, "Die Felsenmuehle" (Mill on the Cliff) .... C. G. Reissiger Original arrangement.
"Rondo Capriccioso" .... Mendelssohn

Leonore Von der Lieth.
(a) Orientale .... Caesar Cui
(b) Aus der Heimat .... Smetana
Mr. Stoloff.
Sonata "Eroica" .... MacDowell
(Four movements.)
Mr. Olerich.

A study programme will be presented next Thursday. Ernest Douglass will give a lecture on "The Christmas Carol," musically illustrated by the choir boys of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral.

Craft Scores in East.

Marcella Craft recently made a remarkably favorable impression when she appeared in Cleveland with the Chicago Orchestra, singing a concert version of the final scene in Strauss' "Salome." One of the critics had the following to say regarding her work: "Miss Craft was too big last night to have scored what is too often a 'popular' success. She declines to 'fake,' and consequently last night's audience is probably thinking more of her today than it did last night, when the yelping, oriental lunatic and shrieking music of Strauss was being played. With the tremendous orchestra blasting against her, rather than assisting her in accompaniment, her big, clear tones rang out full and liquid."

Harpsichord Recitals.

George Schoenefeld, able exponent of the little-known harpsichord music, and Mrs. Henley Bussing, soprano, this week will make a short recital tour north, going as far as Berkeley and Oakland. Compositions of several centuries ago are to be presented on their programmes.

Last Tuesday the two musicians were heard before the Shakespeare Club in Pasadena, in a programme of music of Shakespeare and his time. They also gave a recital at the Polytechnic High School and two recitals at the John Muir School Wednesday, featuring music of Bach, Handel, Rameau, Scarlatti, Couperin, Gluck, etc.

Pupils' Recitals.

Violin pupils of Miss Winifred C. Ballard will be heard in recital in the tower room, Trinity Auditorium, next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The following will take part: Hale Brown, Theodore Hosinski, Jean MacDonald, Marshall Hickson, Hugh English, Stella Huggins, Charles Baskerville, Ruth Ritchie, Elizabeth Baskerville, Marian Benedict and Miss Helen Harris. The assisting artist on the programme will be Mrs. Florence Parker Bloser, mezzo soprano. Mrs. Charles Baskerville will be the accompanist.

Pupils of J. Clarence Cook, violinist, were recently heard at the Ebell Clubhouse. The following took part: Elenore Heller, Hilda Browne, Bourn Jones, Salvini Baiano, Clara Dray, Azalia Westcott, Leila Moore, Hilda Haskell, Dorothy Woodhead, Edith Ives, May Johnson, Evelyn Roper, Elizabeth Hurwitz, Charles Kaley, Irene Slater, William Quien, Meyer Block, Ethelwynn Foster, Glennaro Donatelli, Joseph Halder, Anna de Nubila, Edith Alber. Accompanists were Mrs. Charles C. Heller, Miss Gladys Moore, Julius Medway, Miss Cecilia Gillespie, Miss Bertha Fitts and Miss Mildred Poundstone. A feature number was the octette, opus 20, by Mendelssohn, in which violins, violas and violoncellos were heard. Numbers by Hubay, Massenet, Drdla, Wieniawski, Kreisler, Sarasate and Widor were also given.

Walter Magnus recently presented a number of piano pupils in recital at his residence, No. 1024 Seventy-sixth street, including the following: Selda Schmidt, Cecil Tyler, Lucy Jenny, Beulah Drew, Emilie Simesen, Pauletta Knaack, Karl Turnquist, William Plant, Mabel Harper, Doris Willis, Caddie Cram and Harriet Cram. Eugene Brokorr, a vocal pupil, assisted, offering numbers by Nessler and Cadman.

MUSIC NOTES.

A quartette composed of Mrs. Leo Stadden, soprano; Nell Lockwood, contralto, Dr. Joseph Marple, tenor, and Edward Ruenitz, bass, accompanied by Newell L. Parker, pianist, will render the musical programme for the San Pedro Elks' memorial services. This is the third year this quartette has taken part in these services.

A lecture will be given on "The Psychology of Voice Production," by Clement Burbank Shaw, a specialist in vocal physiology and acoustics, tomorrow evening at Symphony Hall, in the Blanchard building. He will devote his remarks to the speaking as well as the singing voice, in the course of the lecture.

A recent visitor here was Mrs. S. Clifford Payson, composer of the music for "Wan o' the Woods," produced here about a year or so ago. Mrs. Payson now lives in San Diego, and is busily engaged in song writing.

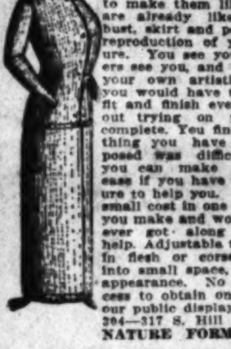
The Columbia record catalogue for December features, among other records, several by Julia Claussen and Karl Jorn, also the Beethoven Leonore overture, No. 3, in two parts, played by Prince's Orchestra.

Victor red seal records for December include selections by Farrar, Kreisler, Julia Culp, Martinelli, Margarete Ober, Gluck and Reimers, Schumann-Heink, Gluck and Zimbalist, Witherspoon, McCormack, Frieda Hempel, Mme. Alda and Gadski.

Victor Herbert and his orchestra of fifty have resumed their concerts at the Cort Theater in New York.

King George of England has subscribed $25,000 toward a great fund for the work of the British Red Cross Society and the Order of St. John and Jerusalem. Since the commencement of the war upwards of $10,000,000 has been raised by these societies, not including the funds recently collected in the colonies.

"NATURE FORMS"



These splendid dress-forms are unlike all other dress-forms because it is not necessary to pad and work for hours to make them like you. They are already like you, arms, bust, skirt and poise, an exact reproduction of your own figure. You see yourself as others see you, and can bring out your own artistic designs as you would have them. Drape, fit and finish everything without trying on yourself until complete. You find that everything you have always supposed was difficult to make you can make with perfect ease if you have your own figure to help you. You save the small cost in one or two things you make and wonder how you ever got along without its help. Adjustable to any change in flesh or corset, collapsible into small space, handsome in appearance. No tortuous process to obtain one. Models at our public display room. Room 304—317 S. Hill St.

Marguerite Clark in a film version of Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper" promises unusually good entertainment at Tally's Broadway this week, beginning tomorrow.

It is said that the film version of the famous story faithfully preserves the charm, the romance and the quaint humor of the original. Miss Clark has never had a better opportunity than in the double role of the prince who yearns to be a free little beggar for a day, and the tattered little beggar who longs to be a prince.

Some remarkable trick photography is said to have been used in making the picture in the scenes in which Miss Clark appears synchronously as the prince and the pauper.

Clune's Auditorium.

Many smiles and laughs are promised to Auditorium patrons this week. Reels of fun will be supplied by Weber and Fields, Douglas Fairbanks and supporting casts, while Bessie Barriscale will furnish the thought pabulum in "The Golden Claw."

The Fairbanks vehicle, "Double Trouble," a Griffith supervised Triangle-Fine Arts comedy drama, shows the hero turning villain. As Florian Amidon, a harmless and retiring young banker, Fairbanks sustains a blow on the head that deprives him of his memory for five years. During this period of lost identity he is Mr. Brassfield, a young devil who sweeps all before him in love and business, and, incidentally, all but ruins the love affair of his true self, Florian Amidon. The solution is a happy one in which the best characteristics of Amidon and Brassfield are blended into one strong man.

Bessie Barriscale is said to have an unusually convincing and powerful role in "The Golden Claw." As a society bud whose debts have swamped her, she marries a rich man as the easiest way out of trouble. The rich man loses everything, wins a second fortune and loses all again. Bessie Barriscale awakens to a realization that her hubard, Frank Mills, has become a mere money grub. The solution is an intense one.

"The Best of Enemies" is the paradoxical title of the Weber and Fields laugh wagon.

Quinn's Superba.

"Damaged Goods" will enter its fourth week at Quinn's Superba tomorrow. There will be an extra performance at 11 o'clock every night this week, and another at 9 every morning.

The film tells a clear, forceful story, and handles the subject in a very convincing manner.

Clune's Broadway.

Clune's Broadway will feature on its bill opening today another drama of high society, "Wasted Lives," by Ouida Bergere, produced by Theodore Marston. It is a Broadway star photoplay in which the leading roles are taken by Arline Pretty, Robert Whitworth, Leo Delaney and Edward Elkas.

Another feature will be "My Hero," a Griffith picture with Robert Harron and Dorothy Gish as frontier lovers; Henry Walthall as Indian Charlie; Charles H. Mailes, Harry Carey, Kate Bruce and Lionel Barrymore.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew will be seen in their latest comedy, "The Home Cure."

Miller's.

Robert B. Mantell, whose entrance into photoplay work was regarded as one of the big events in Filmdom will be seen at Miller's Theater, starting tomorrow, in one of the strongest dramas that has ever come from the celebrated Fox studios, entitled "The Unfaithful Wife."

It is an extraordinary drama treated in an unusual manner.

Genevieve Hamper, said to be one of the most beautiful women of the stage, is cast in the leading feminine role. A strong company assists Mr. Mantell and Miss Hamper.

The added feature is the latest of the funny "Wallingford" comedies."

Theda Bara in her latest success "The Galley Slave," is today's attraction.

Symphony.

Francis X. Bushman and Beverley Bayne, long idols of motion-picture patrons, will be seen at the Symphony this week in "Pennington's Choice," a photodrama dealing with life in the Canadian Northwest. The action of the picture begins in New York City, and a series of thrilling events and situations carry the plot to its culmination in the fastnesses of the northern woods. Both Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne are said to be admirably adapted to their excellent roles.

Woodley.

"Mr. Grex of Monte Carlo," a picture version of the thrilling novel by E. Phillips Oppenheim, will be the offering at the Woodley Theater, beginning tomorrow. Theodore Roberts and Carlyle Blackwell have the stellar roles.

A number of persons who had visited the great gambling salon at Monte Carlo, and also recently have witnessed the preview of the film, say the real gambling palace is perfectly reproduced.

The story is based upon an actual occurrence, which came under Mr. Oppenheim's observation, while he was at Monte Carlo less than two years ago.

Alhambra.

Theda Bara, in the Fox production of "Carmen" is to be the attraction at the Alhambra, starting tomorrow. Miss Bara distinguishes herself in the role of the gypsy first, whose marvelous beauty and wondrous eyes lure her victims into forgetfulness of duty and honor. It is a role peculiarly suited to this fascinating creature's wonderful artistic talents.

The production in every respect is a distinct achievement. It is permeated with the true romance of old Spain.

Palace of Pictures.

Stirring scenes in the logging camps of the North will be shown at the Palace of Pictures, beginning tomorrow, as the feature photoplay will be "The Man Trail," with Richard C. Travers and June Keith in the leading roles.

The film concerns the adventures of a young man, city bred, who goes up into the lumber country to obtain a position with his uncle, one of the lumber kings. The uncle believes the young fellow to be a "mollycoddle" and refuses to recognize him. However, the latter, after beholding the ward of his uncle, immediately is interested in staying on the ground and "making good." The plots of a gang of timber thieves gives the young fellow a chance to show what he really amounts to.

There are many thrilling scenes and the suspense is said to be well sustained until the happy conclusion.

Latest news pictures will supplement the feature photoplay.

BITS OF VERSE.

How Goes the World?

How goes the world? What should I care
How black its clouds, or bleak its air,
How cursed the ground with brier or thorn,
Or drenched with blood, and tears forlorn!

Why should I care? And yet, why not?—
'Tis all the world we yet have got;
And I have sometimes (since my birth)
Heard people call it "Mother Earth."

"Dear Mother Earth!" and that was nice,
And so was "Earthly Paradise!"
O that was nicer, was it not?—
But, do I dream? Have I forgot?

Is this old world all sin and shame?
And does it share the fiendish name?
Have war, and hate, and crime run wild,
And put their mark on every child?

Ah, every child of earth is mine;
I am his brother all the time;
And I must care how he doth tend,
And make my very life his friend.

And if a friend I thus would be,
And say, "How goes it, World, with three?"
An ageless voice will speak, and tell
The same old story, "All is well."
—[John Philo Trowbridge in Boston Transcript.

He Shook my Hand.

He shook my hand—
Not much to do, a passing thing;
And yet, no human has the power to tell,
The heart he gave my freezing breast
When he cried, "By George, I'm glad to see you!"
And shook my hand.

He shook my hand—
The stinging wind stopped biting; the corner
Grew warm; I actually smiled and breathed
The first full breath in months;
I lived again—just because he recognized a used-to-be,
And shook my hand.

He shook my hand—
Talked as he used to, never mentioning
My miserable way—and laughed
As he used to. Strong man he was.
Strong enough to be a man—
Strong enough to sympathize.

He shook my hand—
My chum of the hopeful past,
And gave me his card.
"Come to see me, we'll tell the old jokes over."
And left me—the wind.
Was not half so cold.

He shook my hand—
I kept on lisping that wild phrase.
The wickless eyes of a shivering bum
Stared at me. I went to him.
"God!" he muttered, "you've got a friend."
"So have you," I cried—
And shook his hand.
—[Grant McGee, St. Joseph, Mo.

Keep Going.

Is the goal distant, and troubled the road,
And the way long?
And heavy your load?
Then gird up your courage and say,
"I am strong"
And keep going.

Is the work weary, and endless the grind
And petty the pay?
Then brace up your mind
And say, "Something better is coming my way"
And keep doing.

Is the drink bitter life pours in your cup—
Is the taste gall?
Then smile and look up
And say, "God is with me whatever befall"
And keep trusting.

Is the heart heavy with hope long deferred
And with prayers that seem vain?
Keeping saying the word—
And that which you strive for you yet shall attain;
Keep praying.
—[Ella Wheeler Wilcox in October Nautilus.

The Inner Wealth.

There is a wealth we cannot own
As kings their sceptre and their throne;
There is a wealth we cannot spend
Except in ways of being friend
To all who need the love and cheer
Our hearts can send unto them here.

There is a wealth we do not count
By certain measures or amount,
Or given sums, but which we keep
In chambers of the heart where sleep
The loving things that glow with grace
For all our comrades of the race.

Far nobler than the fortunes stored
In some great magnate's mighty hoard;
Far sweeter than the jewels that gem
Some queen of beauty's diadem;
Far nobler than all wealth men know
This inner wealth which helps us glow.

It may be kindness of the heart,
It may be love, be song, be smile;
From out its golden treasure start
The things that bloom our weary mile
With beauty and with joy and rest,
And help us reach the summit's crest.

It may be thoughtfulness for those
Who grasp the thorn and miss the rose;
A tender word, a kindly deed,
The message of some simple creed
Of brotherhood—it counts so much
This wealth of love, this human touch.
—[Bentztown Bard.

Aspiration.

Yonder a sail flies to the burning moon,
And here a silver moth, with frightened grace,
Circles my lamp, and there upon the dune
A lover looks into his lady's face.

I, too, have wings that struggle into flight,
Blind as the white moth at the lantern's bars;
I, too, drawn by that yearning for the light,
Have sent my soul to beat against the stars.

The mariner will never touch the moon,
The moth will die; and love against love's eyes
Will search in vain for some perennial June,
As I will search in vain for Paradise.

And yet when sails are furled, like wings at even,
And love lies dead upon the sands it trod,
The old desires shall light us into heaven,
Old failures shine upon the face of God.
—[Dana Burnet, in Harper's Magazine.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Another effort is to be made to oust Senator Reed Smoot of Utah from the Senate. A protest against his continuance as a member of that body has been filed by C. G. Patterson of Salt Lake City, in which he charges that Senator Smoot represents the sugar interests in Utah. He says that Mr. Smoot is an apostle of the Mormon Church and that makes it almost impossible for anyone to run against him for the Senate with any hope of success. Senator Smoot said recently that he does not know Patterson and that the charges are absurd.

John Hill, a farmer near Canton, O., has husked 112 bushels of corn daily for several days, and one day last week broke the record with 134 bushels. This is claimed as the record for the State. Corn in the Canton neighborhood is making about seventy-five bushels to the acre.

Six million miles or more on the Atlantic highway without shipwreck is the record of Howard Ernest Hinsley, purser of the American liner St. Louis. Having reached the age of 60, he gave notice, on the last trip of the vessel, of his determination to retire from the sea. He claims the record of having crossed the Atlantic 2000 times.

King Ludwig of Bavaria has decorated T. St. John Gaffney, who recently retired as American Consul-General at Munich, with the medal of honor, which is bestowed on civilians for voluntary service in caring for the wounded. The King expressed appreciation for Gaffney's activities "in fostering excellent relations between Americans and German authorities."

Capt. Anton G. Thomsen, commander of the Scandinavian-American liner Frederik VIII, has recently completed his two hundredth round trip across the Atlantic as master of a liner. He figures that he has guided ships 1,600,000 miles and has carried 125,000 passengers. Capt. Thomsen is commodore of the Scandinavian-American line fleet. His first command, in 1881, was the steamship Thingvalla. Since then he has had in succession the Geyser, the Island, the Norge, the Hekla, the Amerika, the Alexandra, the C. F. Tietgen and the Frederik VIII. He has been on the last-named two years. He was given the order of Vasa by the King of Sweden following the rescue in mid-ocean of the crew of a Swedish steamer. He also was decorated with the order of Daneborg, first class, by the King of Denmark.

J. D. Sugg, a wealthy citizen of San Angelo, Tex., has offered the entire street railroad system of that place to the city of San Angelo as a Christmas gift. It is, however, intimated that the gift will be refused, as the car system has been unprofitable for several years.

The retirement of Rear-Admiral Frank E. Beatty, commandant of the Norfolk navy yard, created a vacancy that was filled by the promotion of Capt. William S. Benson, chief of naval operations, who has been holding the temporary title of rear-admiral, but now comes into actual rank in the line of the navy. Rear-Admiral Beatty will be succeeded as commandant of the Norfolk yard by Rear-Admiral Walter McLean, now in command of the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet.

Fifty-three years ago Edward A. Dawson walked into the Pittsburgh yard of the old Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad, peeled off his coat and began work as a clerk. December 1 he retired from the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad because he is 70 years old, and so comes under the pension system instituted by that road. When he celebrated his seventieth birthday anniversary last week it was as manager of the Union Line.

King Alfonso of Spain believes all nations will arm more than ever after the present war ends. The King cites the case of Belgium, whose neutrality, he said, had been pledged by greater powers, but who had been forced to rely on her arms for defense.

DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.

Dear Molly:

If Tom Brown was solely responsible for that superb party he gave for Eleanor Banning on Thursday evening he is certainly an arch host, and should be performing social ambassadorial duties for his country amongst the royal courts of Europe. Oh, I wish I had a cousin Tom with such a charming sense of his cousinly responsibilities! It was positively all that a party should be, and the Banning ballroom a fitting setting.

Eleanor really is a very sweet [illegible] It wasn't exactly a debutante of courting. It is not on record that he accepted the challenge.

But really, when one comes to think of it, there are a lot of men who gain popularity on their machines, aren't there? Most every girl cultivates a few of that type of young men, for purely useful and ornamental purposes, whom they would never bother their head about otherwise.

There is a lot of talk about this clubwomen's effort to substitute dancing in the cafes for the cabaret. It is rather funny, isn't it, when we remember what an awful howl went up about the dancing such a little while ago. It was not more than three years ago that society dames were pondering whether they would recognize the modern dances at all, and certainly considered it dreadfully outre to visit a cafe where public dancing was the style. Those dances have evidently grown respectable with age, and are now thoroughly comme il faut.

But, really, I can't see that the cabaret is so disreputable, can you? I think most of those girls look as if they have a sick husband and five hungry children at home. Their pathetic little artificial smiles are often heartbreaking.

You really must come out to the Midwick polo one day, dear. The home team has gone in for beautiful purple silk coatees, and they keep their hankys in their decollete—anyway Bobby Neustadt does.

By the way, Augusta Lamb and Florence Moore are getting up a concert at the Ebell Club for their orphan home at Huntington Beach. The programme and the date are not fixed as yet, but I do hope it will be a success. They have over twenty adorable mites down there. The pluck of these charming spinsters—any ordinary married dame shies at one.

Had such a lovely long letter from Gertrude in England. She says that since the Zeppelins made it necessary to darken the streets at night it is perfectly charming what a lot of family reunions there are.

With the saloons and cafes under a rigid early-closing regime, and matinee performances the only safe ones to frequent at the theaters, father finds home the best place—and many a parent is becoming acquainted with his offspring for the first time.

And every street has its own volunteer night watchman. The whole thing is organized and two householders take turn at all-night duty every night. Directly a Zep is sighted, they give the alarm and everyone is supposed to make for the cellar. But, instead, curiosity gets the best of them and whole families turn out in their nighties and great coats to watch the show.

Oh, dear, when we flirted so gaily with those handsome young aviators at Coronado we didn't exactly associate them with that sort of thing, did we, dear?

Your loving BETTY.

THE WEEK.

Parties, Receptions, Dinners, Weddings and the Like.

IN spite of her activities Milady played second fiddle to her big brother in the social whirl the past few days.

The glow of the week's brilliancies is shed about a bachelor's initial effort, an entertainment incomparable, one that is registered in the winter season's annals by phrases rounded out with exclamation points. This was the ball given by Thomas Bruen Brown Thursday evening at Capt. Banning's ballroom in compliment to the host's beautiful young cousin, Miss Eleanor Banning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hancock Banning.

In addition to Mr. Brown's initial effort, which established a mighty precedent to emulate, sans the consideration of sex, several other gentlemen proved themselves past masters in the art of entertaining. Many affairs were given at the Los Angeles Athletic Club—it might easily have been styled "masculine week" on the social register, so numerous were the luncheon and dinner parties given by our gallant, if somewhat sterner, sex.

Newton Moore was host at a dinner to five friends at the Athletic Club on Monday night, followed by a theater party. That same evening Pascal Henry Burke entertained his wedding party at dinner in the English room, his dainty bride, who was Miss Marcella Margaret Mahan, being the center of attraction. Mr. Burke's guests included his best man, Jack Wilson; Mrs. George H. Letteau, matron of honor; Mrs. John Gilman Blystone, Mrs. Cecil Johnson, Miss Helen Logan, Miss Helen Lehman, M. MacDowell, Alfred Jensen, Frank Tolle and A. E. Hamilton.

The most elaborate affair at the club, in point of numbers, was given on Thursday evening in the Blue Room, when John F. Powers entertained seventy clubmen at a stage dinner. This was to signalize Mr. Powers's entry into the field against C. C. C. Tatum as a candidate for Mayor of Rowansburg, an office which carries leadership in social activities for the year. While this gay proceeding was under way Joseph Ennis entertained seven guests in the Sheriton Room. Truly is was a festive night at the hospitable clubhouse.

In the ladies annex several well-known hostesses gave luncheon parties, among those being the "tennis luncheon" given by Mrs. E. P. Morphy on Tuesday in honor of Miss Molla Bjurstedt. There were twelve at this pleasant affair.

Mrs. E. P. Tucker entertained for five on the same afternoon, while Mrs. J. C. Simonson gathered a party of seven friends around her luncheon board.

Among the week's luncheon hosts were G. Allen Hancock, J. Felix Brandes, Frederick H. Rindge, George V. Dickinson, Charles O. Bradley, W. G. McLaughlin, Norman Sterry, Dr. S. Berman Friend, George E. Farrand, Philip Forve, Jr., Harvey L. Thorpe. George Zobelein entertained his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Lick, at luncheon.

Mrs. Homer Laughlin was hostess at a luncheon to six of her friends; others to entertain being Mrs. G. A. Buckingham, Mrs. R. R. Deming, Mrs. Joseph A. Lewis, Mrs. G. F. Fox, Jr., and Mrs. William E. Burke.

—o—

Dinner of the Week.

On Monday evening at Hotel Darby Mr. and Mrs. F. Klamp of Honolulu were dinner hosts at a smart affair, having for guests Gen. and Mrs. J. N. Lee, Judge Kingsbury, Miss Roma Love, Maj. L. L. and Mrs. Krebs, and Miss Louise Girard of Fort Sam Houston, in whose honor the charming function was planned. The resplendent board was centered in a floral mound of peculiar beauty, resting on a base of greenery.

—o—

Their Visit Concluded.

Following a visit replete with much enjoyment and motor travel as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rankin Brainerd of the Alexandria, Dr. C. E. and Mrs. Byrne have returned to their home in New York City.

—o—

Country Club Dinner.

Among those giving dinners at the San Gabriel Country Club Saturday evening of last week were Mr. and Mrs. William J. Lawless, who entertained Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Dunnigan and others.

—o—

Miss Whitnah Hostess.

Ushering in a gay whirl of pre-Christmas parties in which the younger set are to be featured was the bridge tea given by pretty Miss Dorothea Whitnah of No. 2991 West Adams street, on the afternoon of Friday, some thirty of her girl friends having been bidden. Mrs. C. L. Whitnah assisted her daughter in dispensing gracious hospitality, tea being served at tables seating four, and adorned with sprays of English holly with their bright red berries, together with filmy red tulle. Christmas greens and holly were massed with artistry about the parlors.

—o—

For Nature Lover.

In compliment to Mode Wineman of Coronado, the noted amateur nature photographer and writer, a dinner party will be given this evening at the Hotel Green, Pasadena, by Mrs. Ethel Thomas.

—o—

Christmas with Parents.

Lieut. Hugh Brown, U.S.N., came down from Mare Island on Wednesday to accompany his charming 20-year-old bride, who was formerly Estelle Johnson Ryan, up north, the happy newlyweds leaving the next day. Lieut. Brown is stationed there for a month, when he is to go on to Philadelphia for naval coast duty. The young couple are to settle in Philadelphia for an indefinite period. Before they go East, however, Los Angeles friends will have an opportunity of bidding them farewell, for they plan t ocome to the south for Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Johnson of No. 2241 Hobart boulevard, the bride's parents. The Browns spent most of their honeymoon in San Francisco, and while Lieut. Brown's ship was sent to Coronado for orders his wife took advantage of the absence and hurried to visit, briefly, her parents.

Little "Billy" Johnson Ryan is to stay with his grandparents Johnson until his pretty mother becomes established East, in May. "Billy" is just a year and a half old, and the pet of all the Johnson kin, and it is quite natural that they should desire to keep him every possible fraction of time.

Miss Read Honored.

A pretty social courtesy was extended Miss Mary Goodrich Read, but recently returned from an absence of several years spent in the study of music with the masters of Germany and other foreign centers, a few afternoons ago by Mrs. C. Q. Stanton of No. 448 Andrews boulevard—one of our most charming hostesses—who entertained many of the younger set at a tea of handsome appointments. The Reads were formerly residents of San Diego, and those bidden were the honoree's friends there, even before coming to the City of the Angels.

—o—

Mrs. Churchill's Guests.

Beautiful in its appointments was the dinner given Saturday night by Mrs. D. H. McCartney in special honor of Mrs. Owen Humphreys Churchill's house guests, Mrs. W. A. Shedd, a prominent society woman of Palo Alto, and Mrs. W. G. Wilson of New York. Covers for eight were laid at a board containing a floral bed of pink roses, accentuated with bows of pink tulle and candelabra holding pink shades.

Mrs. Shedd is returning north Wednesday, but Mrs. Wilson, who is a cousin of Mrs. Churchill, will stay on for a longer visit. Both ladies are coming in for many courtesies. The ladies went to San Diego for Thursday and Friday.

Mrs. Churchill is giving a luncheon Tuesday for members of an auction bridge club and a few additional guests which is being pleasantly anticipated.

—o—

Here for the Winter.

Coming from their home in Urbana, Ill., to spend the winter with Mrs. C. F. Sanborn of No. 1400 Winfield street, and Mrs. J. M. Clayton of No. 1922 Fifth avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Vinton W. Shuck have arrived in Los Angeles. The ladies are sisters. En route, the visitors stopped to view the last days of the San Francisco exposition.

—o—

Back from New York.

Mrs. Marie S. Reed and her sister, Mrs. Nathaniel F. Wilshire, are returned from a delightful visit spent in New York City and the East.

—o—

Miss Sears Coming.

A bit of highly-interesting news comes from Boston, that Miss Eleonora Sears is planning to come out to California next month, in company with her father and her brother, Frederick Sears, Jr.,

Miss Sears has legions of friends in the smart sets throughout the State, especially in polo and athletic circles.

Not content with winning laurels at all the tennis and golf tournaments of importance in the East, the indomitable lover of sports has recently joined the Boston hunting set in Maryland to hunt with the Hartford hounds. She and her brother will also enjoy the fall races of the Maryland Driving Club, which are now on at Pimlico, and which always attract large numbers of society's elect from all parts of the South and East. The Hartford Hounds belong to one of the most important hunting associations in this country, being ultra smart.

—o—

Concerning Mrs. Astor.

Women throughout the country will be interested in the latest departure of Mrs. John Jacob Astor, mother of Vincent Astor, who has been actively engaged in the Red Cross branches in New York. This world-wide known society woman has gone to France to nurse, being on the staff of the Duchess of Westminster. Mrs. Astor took a course in nursing at the Charing Cross Hospital in London last year.

—o—

A Prenuptial Event.

Miss Aimee Morris of No. 1421 West Twenty-seventh street entertained with a delightful linen shower the past week in honor of Miss Dorothy Goldsmith, whose engagement to F. E. Chamberlin was recently announced. Cards were played, after which dainty refreshments were served. The guests included the Misses Deborah Lustig, Rebecca and Helen Pinkiert, Fanny Smith, Elsa Cohn, Tessie Goldwater, Bernice Thayer, Juliet and Ethel Kornfeld, Mrs. Fred Siegel and Miss Dorothy Goldsmith. Mrs. Julius S. Morris assisted her daughter.

—o—

At the Krebs Home.

A coterie of artists, musicians and literati were in attendance at the Sunday evening salon, given by Maj. and Mrs. L. L. Krebs the past week-end at their lovely suburban home, nestling close to the foothills of the Sierra Madre range of mountains, many from Los Angeles and Pasadena motoring out at twilight. One always meets celebrities at the Krebs, and at the last affair were present, among others, Mr. Dansan of the Legioners of France just here to recuperate from an injury received on the firing line of the allies. Mr. Hobletzille, an art critic, and grandson of the founder of St. Louis, who is at present the house-guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clifford, came with the latter, and Mme. Alys Lorraine of the Paris Royal Opera Company and one of the prettiest women on the stage, was also of the personnely. Mrs. Ireland of Bar Harbor and abroad, who has taken the beautiful home of the James Nelson Barnes in fashionable Oak Knoll—at Pinehurst and El Molino—during the absence of this society leader of the Crown City's select circles in Montecito—also dropped in during the evening, as did Mrs. John Earle Jardine and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Brackenridge, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Smith, Frank Ray, the Beau Brummel of Pasadena; Oscar Seiling, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Grun, the Burkes and others to the number of seventy-five or more of the smart sets.

Anthony Carlson, in wonderful form, gave a programme of choice songs from the early French and German, Miss Blanche Ebert accompanying, and was given an ovation, well deserved.

Shaggy chrysanthemums in a riot of color were massed over the rambling, artistic home and supper was served on the terrace.

—o—

Miss Helen Lee Weds.

At the marriage of Miss Helen Lee, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Lee of No. 1822 West Fiftieth street, to Philip Morgan, which was solemnized the last day of November, the bride wore a dainty frock of lace over white satin and veil of tulle, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and maidenhair ferns. Her bridesmaid, Miss Vivian Duane, was attired in shell pink tulle, and her arm bouquet was of bridesmaid rosebuds. A demure little maiden, Marjorie McCall, but two and a half years old, was most important as ring bearer, her frock being all pink and white and sheer. Gene Slaughter attended the groom as best man.

With R. J. M. Campbell at the piano, Edwin H. House sang the chorus from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered the room and took their places beneath a white floral canopy veined in smilax. Rev. R. P. Howell was officiant for the service, which was read at 8:30 o'clock.

Mr. Morgan and his attractive bride are to be at home in Los Angeles.

—o—

Guests of the MacGowans.

Chrysanthemums adorned the pretty dinner board of Dr. and Mrs. Granville MacGowan, who on Tuesday evening bade for guests Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Leeds, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. John Crombie Niven and Adolph L. Schwartz.

—o—

For This Week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Deming are entertaining most informally on Wednesday evening, having bidden a coterie of intimates to their hospitable home on West Twenty-fourth street for dancing. There are to be about fifty guests.

—o—

James Foley, the Poet, Back.

Mrs. Robert Burdette has as house-guests in her Pasadena home James Foley, the well-known favored poet of South Dakota, whose rhymes are quite as familiar to Californians as Riley's verses, and Mrs. Foley, who are back for their annual winter pilgrimage. The Foleys spend a part of the year in New York, with several months in our own Southland, so their home State really sees but little of them.

Many social affairs always greet this popular couple, and during their stay Mr. and Mrs. Foley will come in for any number of compliments.

—o—

In Chicago.

Elizabeth Wagner, Los Angeles' favorably known artist, is at present enjoying a visit in Chicago as the house-guest of Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond. Miss Wagner has already gained a niche in the artist circle of the eastern metropolis, finding a congenial atmosphere among all the clever lights, who are really doing things in their various phases of creative work.

—o—

List of Assistants.

Miss Eleanor Kitchen of the Marlborough faculty, the Misses Craig (sisters of Marion Craig Wentworth, the author,) Miss Gladys Holmes, Mrs. Arthur James of the Friday Morning Club, Mr. and Mrs. William Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Merrick Miller, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cleidence, Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Powell, Henry Martyn Hoyt and Edward B. Levie assisted Mrs. Mary

THE BEST BOOKS OF THE YEAR

This Page Is Really a Book Buyers' Guide to the Season's Leading New Books. You Can Safely Make Your Selections From It for Xmas Gifts or Your Own Reading.

These books have been selected from the lists of the various publishers of the country—big and little—as being the season's leading publications—the books that will be most widely read, talked about and given for Christmas.

Hamburger's

Book Dept. Main Floor —Broadway, Eighth and Hill Streets, Los Angeles, Cal.

Heart of the Sunset

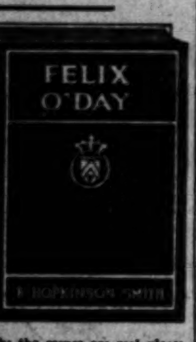
By REX BEACH

Author of "The Spoilers," "The Net," "The Ne'er-do-Well," etc.

Illustrated. $1.35

Rex Beach's foot is on his native heath again in his new novel of the Mexican border. Real incidents of before and after the landing at Vera Cruz are transmitted into colorful romance, intermingled with genuine humor and much that is thrilling. The hero is a Texan that the Mexicans hesitate to stir up in spite of their disrespect for everything American.

Felix O'Day



By HOPKINSON SMITH

Author of "Kennedy Square," "Col. Carter of Cartersville," "Caleb West," etc.

Illustrated $1.35

A novel of New York; the scenes are real places, described with wonderful color, and the people are drawn with intensely human, broadly sympathetic characterization. A book of great interest, with unbelievable breadth of vision in the hero and a hint to the unhappily married people from "Mistress Kitty." Friendly and optimistic.

Then I'll Come Back To You

By LARRY EVANS

Author of "Once to Every Man."

Illustrated. $1.35

Full of gentility, refinement and charm. You will hear the rip and roar of mountain streams and foaming rapids, and know the joy of wild, oozing marshlands under crunching boots. You will get in touch with the crude, rough life of the Big Woods with its sawmills and big-fisted men, and beneath its sometimes ugly surface you will find refinements and comedies of life even as it is lived in the city, only cleansed and sweetened by the freshness and fairness of the Big Woods.

The Foolish Virgin

By THOMAS DIXON

Author of "The Leopard's Spots," "The Southerner," "The Clansman," etc.

Illustrated. $1.35

A charming girl, a village beauty, for five long years earns her living in a great city and despite its vast loneliness holds fast to conventions. At last she meets the man of her dreams and marries him, only to find in the heyday of her happiness that he is a criminal. Shall she give way to despair or rise to fight for his rehabilitation?

Thirty

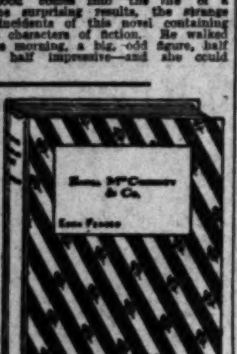
By HOWARD VINCENT O'BRIEN

Author of "New Men for Old."

Illustrated. $1.35

How Brent Good comes into the life of a wealthy girl, the surprising results, the strange love story are incidents of this novel containing real people, not characters of fiction. He walked into her life one morning, a big, odd figure, half mirth-provoking, half impressive—and she could not forget him.

Emma McChesney & Co.



By EDNA FERBER

Author of "Roast Beef, Medium," "Buttered Side Down," "Dawn O'Hara," etc.

Illustrated. $1.00

Emma McChesney takes a hand in the matrimony game. As Mrs. T. A. Buck of the Featherloom Petticoat Company she has some amusing domestic experiences, and as dictator of women's fashions she keeps things humming in the business world in her characteristic way. Rich in human philosophy.

Contrary Mary

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Author of "Glory of Youth."

Illustrated. $1.25

A new old-fashioned love story of a strong and loyal woman and an unspoiled man. Mary Ballard will not take the path of ease that her rich family and lover offer her, and her passion for independence wins for her the name "Contrary." When the real lover comes Mary is ready, and with him she goes forth to meet the world.

The Research Magnificent

By H. G. WELLS

Author of "The Passionate Friends," "War of the World," "The World Set Free," etc.

$1.50

An extraordinary and wonderful book, displaying the work of a thinker, a critic of men, and a student of social and political crises. It has diversity of action and dazzling variety of theme; richness and sustainment of intention, maturity, gravity and ardor. A book that challenges discussion at a hundred points and abounds in clever phrases and stimulating ideas.

Mr. Bingle

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Author of "The Hollow of Her Hand," "Mary Midthorne," "Brewster's Millions," "Graustark," etc.

Illustrated $1.35

Mr. Bingle, a poor, childless clerk, is elevated to an important position in the world as a man of great wealth. He takes his love of children with him—also children of whom in time he accumulates a dozen. What happens afterward it would be unfair to tell. You will laugh at and with Mr. Bingle and you will cry over him.

The Bent Twig

By DOROTHY CANFIELD

Author of "The Squirrel Cage," "Hillsboro People," etc.

$1.35

The "Twig" is Sylvia Marshall, a lovely, typical American girl, bent by the customs, traditions, ideals of her western home and by the integrity of her mother's character. The story is of the influence on Sylvia of her mother's personality, of her girlhood environment and of her personal beauty and charm.

Why Not?

By MARGARET WIDDEMER

Author of "The Rose Garden Husband."

Illustrated $1.25

"There is no reason why not," says the author—no reason why all of us should not realize our dreams. A story designed to make people happier, written with charm and beauty and a fine, careless rapture.

The Prairie Wife

By ARTHUR STRINGER

Author of "The Hand of Peril," "The Shadow," etc.

Illustrated $1.25

A young woman of rare delicacy and charm, reared in sheltered surroundings, falls in love with and impulsively marries a stalwart young fellow rebuilding his fortunes in the Northwest. How they saw it through together and how their love weathered the storms she tells in a frank, natural and humorous way.

Dear Enemy

By JEAN WEBSTER

Author of "Daddy Long-Legs," "When Patty Went to College," etc.

40 pen and ink sketches by the author.

$1.30

"Dear Enemy" is not a sequel to "Daddy-Long-Legs," but its chief character was one of the characters of "Daddy-Long-Legs." Sally McBride will be taken to the hearts of a million American people; and she will enter no heart except to make life sing in it more clearly, strongly and sweetly.

"K"

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of "The Street of the Seven Stars," "The Circular Staircase," "When a Man Marries," etc.

Illustrated $1.35

A story of triumphant love, named for the hero, a man whom men admire and women adore. He has been a famous surgeon, but at the age of thirty he suddenly drops out of sight. His struggle with his own desires and ambitions and his final reappearance in his chosen profession through the love of a very charming but sometimes stupid girl is told in a racy and interesting way.

The Scarecrow of Oz

By L. FRANK BAUM

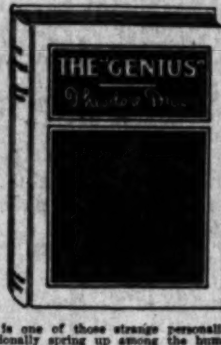
Author of "The Wizard of Oz," "The Patch-Work Girl of Oz."

Pictures by John R. Neill

$1.05

A picturesque figure is the Scarecrow, and about him has been built a story that will certainly interest the youngsters. There is a plot that constantly leads to surprises, and there is action and suspense and humor seldom found in a book for children. The little folks who have read the other "Oz" books will meet all their old friends and some new.

The Genius



By THEODORE DREISER

Author of "The Financier," "Jennie Gerhardt," "The Titan," etc.

$1.50

Eugene Witla is one of those strange personalities which occasionally spring up among the humdrum types of common life, an exotic flower in a vegetable garden. He is brilliant, irregular and unstable, attracting and repelling in turn. At the height of his success he finds his "Impossible She," only to have abysses open that lead almost to insanity.

The Rainbow Trail

By ZANE GREY

Author of "The Light of Western Stars," "The Lone Star Ranger," "Desert Gold," etc.

Illustrated $1.35

Hitting the trail and taking the reader along with him through the country of adventurous romance is the best thing Zane Grey does. Here is the new story, double-barreled, as Mark Twain would say, because it is a remarkable tale by itself for those who have not met Zane Grey before, and because it tells the outcome of some of the stirring incidents in "Riders of the Purple Sage," which book is familiar to most of his readers.

The Story of Julia Page

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Author of "Mother," "Saturday's Child," "Poor, Dear Margaret Kirby," etc.

$1.35

Julia Page grew up in San Francisco, a daughter of the poor. She hungered for the better things of life and was determined to have them, cost what they would. A picture of unfaltering faith and courage dominates the story and shines out in Julia's love for Jim Studdiford, a thing too precious to be bought by silence.

The Man-Trail

By HENRY OYEN

$1.25

A splendid story of the north woods with tales of the lumberjacks, a spy from a neighboring camp, the howl of a distant wolf, a clear-eyed girl and a gruff old man, a hero just arrived from New York and his struggle from work and enmity to love and success.

Rose o' Paradise

By GRACE MILLER WHITE

Author of "Tess of the Storm Country," "From the Valley of the Missing," etc.

Illustrated. $1.35.

A story of the "squatters" or "short-wood gatherers" living near Lake Cayuga. They are a treacherous, dishonest people, who beat their women and punish their young; hated and feared by the people of civilization with whom they rub elbows. A story of strong men and women with a trickle of civilization seeping down to the vitals of their lives and changing the whole scheme of things for them.

Eat and Grow Thin

By VANCE THOMPSON

Author of "Drink and Be Sober," etc.

$1.00

The Mahdah Menus, showing what the Fat Man may eat—and grow thin. Most of your friends tell you what not to eat, but this book shows how you can, little by little, shed twenty to twenty-five pounds in three months without starving or sacrificing table joys. Half menus, quarter general regimen and quarter unadulterated Vance Thompson humor.

Burkeses Amy

By JULIE M. LIPPMAN

Author of "Making Over Martha," "Martha-by-the-Day," "Martha and Cupid," etc.

$1.25

Though brought up in helpless luxury by her grandfather and aunt, and nearly spoiled in the process, Amy, instead of going to Europe with them, decides to stick to her father and share his home in the thick of a crowded East Side tenement, where he is devoting his heart and mind to social work. In this new setting Amy's story starts, and there she finds her way to strength of character and romance.

Beltane the Smith

By JEFFERY FARNOL

Author of "The Broad Highway," "The Amateur Gentleman," "The Money Moon," etc.

Illustrated. $1.50.

A romance of love and adventure, crowded with beauty and incident. Lady Helen of Mortain rides through the greenwood and sees Beltane singing of birds, flowers and the sun. Here is the first love scene. There is no lagging, no padding, and the book teems with character.

The Money Master

By SIR GILBERT PARKER

Author of "The Right of Way," "Seats of the Mighty," "Judgment House," etc.

Illustrated $1.35

Canada is the scene of this story of fascinating modern life, with a background of old French customs and the bright coloring of provincial characteristics not dulled by city existence. Gilbert Parker's readers, who maintain that he is at his best when writing of his native country, will not be disappointed in his latest book.

The Turmoil

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Author of "Penrod," "The Gentleman from Indiana," "Monsieur Beaucaire," etc.

Illustrated $1.35

The hero is the son of a Middle West millionaire, whose outlook is bounded by the "bigness of business." He has no desire to be a captain of industry, but his father is relentless and forces him to go to work. The turmoil of the factory cannot kill the boy's dreams, however. The girl with whom he falls in love accomplishes more than the father has been able to do, and more than the father ever hoped for.

A Far Country

By WINSTON CHURCHILL

Author of "Inside the Cup," "Coniston," "The Crisis," etc.

$1.50

A study of our social ills which lays bare the truth with great daring. The title is taken from the Biblical quotation concerning the prodigal son —"and took his journey into a far country and there he wasted his substance in riotous living." This gives some hint of the tremendous scope, tensity and human interest of the theme.

The Real Man

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Author of "Taming of Red Butte Western," "Honorable Senator Sagebrush," etc.

$1.35

Combines romantic interest at its intensest with a momentous spiritual struggle in the soul of the hero. A young bank cashier finds himself under suspicion of the crime of murder, and circumstances are so arrayed against him that he flees. Necessity evokes all his latent energy and opportunity develops all his powers.

Athalie

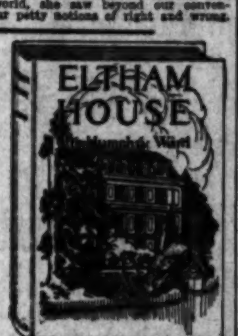
By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Author of "The Business of Life," "The Common Law," "The Hidden Children," etc

Illustrated $1.40

Is there such a thing as second sight? "Athalie" is the startling story of a girl who was strangely clairvoyant and whose whole life was shaped and colored by this peculiar power. To her keen vision came the shapes that pass us unobserved. In tune with another world, she saw beyond our conventions, beyond our petty notions of right and wrong.

Eltham House



By MRS. HUMPHRY WARD

Author of "Delia Blanchflower," "Robert Elsmere," "The Coryston Family," "David Grieve," etc.

$1.35

Alec Wing, selfish, arrogant, but not altogether heartless, has laid violent and successful siege to the affections of Sir John Marsworth's young and beautiful wife. After her divorce they return to London to seek to combat the hostility of public opinion, to achieve social and political preferment.

The Lovable Meddler

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of "Diane of the Green Van," etc

Illustrated $1.35

A story teeming with dramatic spots and unusual situations. A diverting tale of an eccentric old Scotch doctor, a quaintly officious busybody, whose matchmaking plays the mischief with a family of extremely original girls. A clean, refreshing book with a bright plot and happy ending. The old doctor with his sentimentalism is as human as his own baggy trousers.

Inside the Lines

By EARL DERR BIGGERS

Author of "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Love Insurance"

Illustrated $1.25

An intensely interesting story of the workings of the secret service departments of the warring countries, involving a bright and independent American girl, who falls in love with one of the spies. She is near giving him up on account of his connections, which she fears are not what they should be, when the tangle is finally straightened, springing a surprise on all.

Pollyanna Grows Up

By ELEANOR H. PORTER

Author of "Miss Billy," "Pollyanna," etc

Illustrated $1.25

Lovers of "Pollyanna" will welcome this story, which takes up her life while she is still a little girl, but in a brand-new environment in Boston, and among new incidents and experiences. The latter half of the tale deals with the romance, for, of course there is a Prince Charming in the background.

Beyond the Frontier

By RANDALL PARRISH

"My Lady of the North," "The Maid of the Forest," "The Red Mist," etc.

Illustrated $1.35

A tale of early days in the great middle West, with most of the action taking place on the long trail from old Quebec to Fort St. Louis (Starved Rock) on the Illinois River. Adele La Chesnayne is a wonderful heroine, who bravely bears the hardships of the wilderness journey, and when the life of her lover is in danger it is her wit that defeats his enemies.

To Bring Smiles to Women

The Season's First BIG Sale of Suits, Dresses, Coats

A Distribution of Fine Things; Different in Method, Different in Fashion and Different in Values From Any Other That Has Been or Will Be Brought to Your Attention

—The difference in method is that we bought most of the materials ourselves and had them made up to order. The difference in fashion is that the styles are new and correct, with the addition of little touches to make them exclusive. The difference in values is that many of the garments are to be sold at much less than at any time this season.

A Sale of This Kind Must Be Seasonable

—And just how seasonable this sale is a woman can tell almost the minute she lays eyes on it.

—It covers every winter's need from simple little afternoon dresses to the most exquisite of suits and coats. And the prices—the prices—the prices read:

Suits $16.50, $19.50, $24.50, $29.50

—Forty styles, all told, for misses and women, so there are not many of any particular one—an exclusiveness not found in ordinary sales—and there are too many interesting details about them to tell you all. It would consume this whole section of the "Examiner." Briefly:

—At $16.50—Whipcord, serge and poplin suits, military style, braid and fur trimmed. Also some plain tailored styles for women who wish to wear their own furs.

—At $19.50—Wool poplins, serges, gabardines and broadcloths with a Russian or military air and with standing collars, belts and buttons and fur trimming galore.

—At $24.50—Chiffon broadcloths, serges, etc., with high collars—novelty buttons and bands of beaver fur. Six or eight different colors, including new reds.

—At $29.50—Chiffon broadcloth suits with new three-quarter length coats, lined and interlined, trimmed with natural opossum and near-seal fur. Some with detachable chin-chin collars.

Coats $13.75, $15, $17.50, $25 & $29.50

—At $13.75, $15.00, $17.50 there is practically every kind of coat a practical woman could want—velvets, corduroys, zibelines and mixtures—both with and without fur trimming.

—At $25.00 and $29.50 are plush coats that should be $32.50 and $37.50. They are very lovely, indeed, with their big collars of beaver, natural raccoon, black opossum, mole or skunk fur.

Party Dresses $15, $19.50 & $25

—New dancing and party dress fashions that are both individual and picturesque, and yet their tags bear moderate prices. They should be marked to sell as high as $35.00.

—There are petite little styles of velvet and charmeuse, of taffeta and velveteen and Duchess. One or two have curious triangular draperies of moire on the skirts; others in redingote effects and wich bell sleeves—all new—all different.

—We cannot promise all sizes in every style in the Sale, for sizes were planned to suit the greatest number of women, but we can promise surprises that will make a visit to the store more than worth while the world, now, to get rid of them. "Gets-It" does it the new way. That's why "Gets-It" has become the corn remedy of America, the biggest selling corn remedy in the world, preferred by millions. Do you remember that toe-eating salve you tried, that sticky tape, that toebundling bandage, the gouging you've done with knives, razors and scissors? Well, now, forget them all. No more fussing, no more pain. Whenever you use simple, easy "Gets-It" the corn is doomed, sure. So is every callus, wart or bunion. Never cut corns or callusses. It makes them grow that much faster and increases the danger of blood poison. No cutting is necessary by using "Gets-It." Use it tonight and end your corny existence.

"Gets-It" is sold by all druggists, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. Sold in Los Angeles and recommended by The Owl Drug Co. in the social happenings week was the large reception dancing party given by Mr. and Ralph Mallette Burdick at the Hotel on Thursday evening, of Mr. and Mrs. John Gilman who were married a few ago.

poinsettias and Christmas were used artistically in the and parlors, with palms and ferns forming a pretty back- for the handsomely gowned matrons and buds in attendance. Venetian troubadors dispensed captivating music, and the orchestral music for the devotees of the terpsichorean diversion was furnished by a large corps of artists. Supper was served buffet, some 300 guests enjoying the occasion.

Mrs. Burdick received in a lovely creation of white satin and iridescents, while her beautiful young daughter, the honoree, wore a stunning Juliette gown of silvanic blue velvet, made en traine.

Assisting were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Lippincott, Mr. and Mrs. Rollin B. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. T. —o—

Brilliant Coronado.

The Coronado season is in full swing, with the pendulum bringing all manner of eagerly-anticipated functions for the entertainment of guests from coast to coast, as well as Southern California.

A veritable fashion show was the opening matinee dansant. Aside from the dansant itself, the chief interest at yesterday's event lay in the notable creations worn by the fair members of society. Fully 500 were in attendance, which included many prominent eastern society leaders now congregated at Coronado Beach for the winter season. From 3:30 to 5 o'clock there was a constant stream of motors arriving. Many elaborate luncheons and bridge parties, both at private homes and at the hotel, were given, preceding this most auspicious event.

The huge circular ballroom was indeed a brilliant and scintillating sight. Each table was elaborately decked with dainty white baskets, in which were arranged crimson carnations, with huge palms and ferns scattered throughout the room and banking the stage, while unique black and white programmes of the dance were at each table, which were marked with attractive place cards, with the crown of Coronado. At 4:45 o'clock, under the rays of the spotlight, Miss Cornelia Strohbar and A. Courtney Campbell, Jr., gave their premier performance in the aerial waltz, which was followed by the Mazurka Laczarina, the syncopated fox trot, 1916, and a burlesque of the Charlie Chaplin and pigeon walks, which showed the incongruousness of the same as a ballroom dance. Ripple after ripple of applause went around the huge ballroom; the dancers were encored again and again. Miss Strohbar was most attractively gowned in white panne velvet, bound with fur.

After the second exhibition dance Miss Strohbar was presented with a huge basket of roses from her admirers.

Probably the most elaborate party was given by Mrs. Edward Brooks Scovel, the wife of the Chevalier Scovel, who entertained thirty members of the smart sets of San Diego and Coronado. Her tables were most attractively done in red carnations arranged in dainty white baskets, while the coat was swathed in violet tulle, which extended from each place, and marked with a corsage of violets tied in rosettes of the tulle. Yards and yards were used in the decorations, and it was most effective and unique. Among those invited were Mrs. Gale Thompson, Mrs. John D. Spreckels, Mrs. Alexander Sharp, Mrs. Alexander Sharp, Jr., Mrs. Raymund V. Morris, Mrs. George T. Newhall, Mrs. F. Leslie Moon, Mrs. Claus Spreckels, Mrs. Frederick Churchill Winchester, Mrs. George C. Stevens, Mrs. F. J. Hill, Mrs. Robert Smart, Mrs. Howard Kutchin, Mrs. Evelyn Chadwick, Mrs. Charles E. Spalding, Mrs. Charles J. Winchester, Mrs. Frank von Tesmar, Mrs. W. R. Timken and Mrs. J. D. McSorley.

Miss Martha Andrew Kneedler entertained for forty members of the younger society set, which included many prominent in army and navy circles.

William Ramsay Heberhart was a host. Others entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Seaman, who had twelve; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Scribner entertained for ten; Mrs. Ashley H. Robertson, wife of Capt. Ashley H. Robertson, U.S.S. San Diego, entertained for ten; Mrs. Gale Thompson had six at her table; Mrs. Frances H. Meade entertained for eight; Mrs. Walter O. Poor had twelve guests, with bridge preceding the dansant; Mrs. Walter O. Strange had six guests, and many others entertained.

—o—

Wed on Thanksgiving Eve.

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner, Seventh and Pico boulevard, Thanksgiving eve, the bride being Miss Clara Arline Stroh, sister of Mrs. Sumner, and the groom Albert E. Weiss, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Weiss. The ceremony was read by Rev. Espy at the hour of 9 o'clock under a bower of pink and white carnations, studded in colored electric lights, while two doves were suggestively hovering near. The Mendelsshon wedding march was played by Miss Anna Angelotti. Little Katherine Sumner, niece of the bride, dressed in pink, carried a basket of rose petals which were scattered along the bridal path. The ring Blanche Attrell, also a niece, the ring bearer, Blanche Attrell, also a niece, was in fluffy white. Miss Lucy Newton, a life-long chum, was bridesmaid, wearing pink satin with hat to match and carrying pink roses.

Miss Stroh was handsomely gowned in crepe de chine, her Point de Esprit veil being caught with a wreath of orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and tulle. She was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Louis Stroh.

After the happy couple had plighted their nuptial vows, a wedding supper was served at a table done in a profusion of flowers. Guests were Mrs. Louis Stroh, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Weiss, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Attrell, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stroh, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Angelotti, Miss Angeline S. Weiss, Dr. Choate, Georgia J. Sumner, Rowland E. Weiss, Loyola Ignatious Weiss, Edgar Weiss, Miss Anna Angelotti, Miss Katherine Sumner, Miss Blanche Attrell and Miss Newton.

Mr. and Mrs. Weiss, Jr., are to reside in a handsome new bungalow at Walgrove.

—o—

Betrothed.

An engagement of unusual interest to a wide circle of friends is that of Miss Andree Viole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Viole of Angeleno Heights, to Lieut. Oliver Floyd, U.S.M.C., which has just been made public. While no date for the wedding has yet been definitely set, it will probably take place in the spring, upon Lieut. Floyd's return from Mexico, where his vessel has been ordered.

Miss Viole, while born in Los Angeles, is of French extraction, and in addition to being popular socially, is a leader of the younger Francais set and greatly admired for her intellectuality and charm of manners. She is a graduate of the College of Pharmacy of the University of Southern California, and has traveled extensively in Europe and the Orient.

Lieut. Floyd is attached to the cruiser Denver. He has been in the naval service a number of years, coming originally from Ohio, and possesses a delightful personality which makes him deservedly popular.

Mr. and Mrs. Viole and Miss Viole motored down to San Diego Thursday last, accompanying Lieut. Floyd, who, after a short stay in Los Angeles, went to rejoin his cruiser, which sailed for southern waters Friday morning.

McPherson, Lucile Parker, Louise Martin, Margaret Marsh Parker, Clara Carr, Lucile Haskell, Olive P. Wilson and the honoree, Miss Shontz.

The pergolas and veranda were illumined with a myriad of incandescents, and flowers adorned the rooms. The hostess was assisted by her sister, Mrs. M. E. VanAuken of Battle Creek, who is spending the winter on the Coast.

The entertainment was unique, several attorneys putting on an amusing legal skit, with Mrs. Cora D. Lewis, judge; Miss Vere Norton and Dr. Jessie Russell, attorneys for the plaintiff and defendant, and Miss Parker, Mrs. Porter, Miss Lahey and Mrs. Plannette acceptably filling the different roles necessary for trying a "case." Songs were contributed by C. B. Leffler.

Light refreshments were served.

Pasadena.

AFTER a week just crammed with smart affairs during the Thanksgiving holidays, the past week has seemed tame, although the functions planned for the near future have kept Pasadena society most interested. All kinds of preparations are going on to make this the most brilliant season in the history of the hotels Maryland, Huntington and Green. At the Raymond no plans have been made as yet with the exception of the opening ball, which will be held on December 23.

The black and white ball to be held at the Maryland on December 11 is attracting much interest and many stunning gowns in black and white combinations are being fashioned for the smart folk. No one will be allowed on the ballroom floor unless wearing the prescribed dress, and no one will be allowed to wear a black or white gown, but a futurist effect of black and white. The formal opening of the Maryland will be held on December 16, and with the Tournament of Roses ball and the formal opening of the Green along about the 1st of January society has a number of really brilliant functions

GIVE Colburns FURS

Every fur piece in our stock, — the largest and most comprehensive in the Southwest — has been personally selected by Mr. Colburn. When you buy a Colburn fur you deal direct with a reliable, long-experienced manufacturing furrier—with an established reputation for the utmost in fur values. Christmas furs should be selected at once to avoid the disappointments and discomforts of the last days of holiday shopping. Why not surprise your eastern friends with genuine "Los Angeles-made" Colburn furs? Could you think of a better suggestion?

There are gifts, and gifts—but the gifts supreme from milady's standpoint are quality furs.
There is no more appropriate gift for a woman than a soft, fluffy, cosy, luxurious, fashionable fur. It is useful—practical—stylish—and adds beauty and distinction to any costume. Give good furs—an inferior fur is always a keen disappointment.

Fur robes and rugs skillfully repaired and renovated. Sportsmen's trophies, game heads, birds, etc., carefully mounted by our expert taxidermists.

Alhambra.

SOCIETY has been enjoying a busy week with a promise of many gay events to crowd in the wake of every available hour until the chiming of the silver bells tolls the glad tidings of Christmas once again. All of the affairs of recent date have been marked by a pleasant informality, and with the exception of the Eastern Star installation next Tuesday evening, simplicity will mark all of the social activities. Much anticipation is being pleasurably indulged in by the members of the Order of the Eastern Star over the coming festivities incident to the installation of the newly elected officers. The event is usually the banner one of delight, and indications are that this year's festivities will be marked by unusual splendor. Decorations will be profuse and elaborate and at the conclusion of the installation ceremonies supper and dancing will be enjoyed by the hosts of attendants.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas [illegible] was the scene of a pleasant dinner party on Thursday evening when their hospitable home was opened to a number of friends. Cut flowers were freely used about the rooms, adding their beauty to the occasion which was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Clapp, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Turner, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McCormack, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Angell, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Boyd and Mr. and Mrs. George Ebert. Concluding dinner, cards proved a pleasing diversion for the remainder of the evening.

One of the most picturesque and delightful of recent outings was enjoyed by a gay coterie of friends who in a beautiful retreat in one of the canyons near Eagle Rock enjoyed a most delightful day on Thursday. The event, which is annual, was enjoyed by all of the guests, who spent a glorious day and left for home only when the long shadows of the sun betokened the early close of a perfect day. Among those enjoying the day's charming sojourn among the delights of nature were: Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Warren, Miss Alice Chapin, Miss Sarah J. Forman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Kedzie, Miss Kedzie, Mrs. Hawley, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Woodbury, Mr. and Mrs. Sterns Hutchins and family, Miss Jean Collins, Miss Laura Meyers, Miss Bertha Meyers, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sexton, all of whom are looking happily forward to a repetition of the outing.

Mr. William Chase of Cleveland, arrived in Alhambra the end of the week planning to remain as the guest of friends in this vicinity for a number of days. While here Mr. Chase will be the guest of Miss Ada Parrish at her home on Cordova street, and will also be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hess on South Fifth street.

The home of Mrs. Clarence Van Graham was the scene of a large gathering on Thursday when the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian Church were her guests. The hospitable doors swung open early in the day and in the pleasant atmosphere a delightful social time was enjoyed by the many members of the organization in attendance. Assisting Mrs. Graham in the pleasant and gracious duties of hostess was her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Smucker of Chicago, who is wintering in Alhambra as the guest of her daughter.

The first luncheon of the season and one attended by seventy-four guests was given at the clubhouse by the members of the Wednesday Afternoon Club this week. The dining-room was artistically decorated in quantities of white and yellow chrysanthemums, and a bounteous and delicious luncheon was enjoyed by the many present. The affair was under the direction of the Hospitality Committee of the organization of which Mrs. E. L. McCormack is chairman. In the afternoon the throng listened to a most entertaining address by John Stevens McGroarty and also to a discourse by Mrs. Frank A. Stephens of Pasadena.

The R. E. Osborne home on North First street was the scene of a delightful reunion Friday evening when an elaborate course dinner was the entertainment provided for a number of guests, among whom were: Mr. and Mrs. Alden Galland, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mitschele and son, Charles Mitschele, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Galland, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Galland, Miss [illegible] Galland, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. McCoy, Miss Margaret McCoy, Mr. Charles Griffing and Mr. R. G. Osborne.

WEDDING bells have been pealing their joyful notes here during the past week. Last Sunday week A. A. Hewitt and Miss Elba Finley of Minnesota were married at the Methodist parsonage by the Rev. E. F. Gates. Mr. Hewitt is a well-known druggist, and congratulations and felicitations have been received galore during the past week. Immediately after the ceremony they left for an auto honeymoon trip to San Diego. Tuesday evening at a quiet home wedding Miss Edna Pearl Humphrey and Arleigh Lee were married by the Rev. Mr. Gates. Mrs. Lee is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Humphry of West Broadway, and Mr. Lee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lee of North Azusa avenue. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Lee will be at home to their hosts of friends at the Hawk bungalow near Sixth on Azusa avenue.

HAIR ON FACE NECK AND ARMS WHAT CAUSES IT

Nature does not produce coarse stubborn growths of superfluous hair. They are caused by the unwise use of so-called hair removers.

The only way to gain control of such growths is to devitalize them. It is impossible to accomplish this result with pastes and rub-on preparations because they only remove hair from the surface of the skin. DeMiracle, the original liquid depilatory, devitalizes hair by attacking it under the skin as well as on the skin.

Imitations of DeMiracle are as worthless as pastes and rub-on preparations because they lack certain ingredients that DeMiracle alone contains which give it the power to rob hair of its vitality—its life sustaining force.

Insist on the genuine DeMiracle and you will get the original liquid hair remover. Others are worthless imitations—refuse them.

DeMiracle is sold in $1.00 and $2.00 bottles. If your dealer will not supply you, order direct from us. The truth about the treatment of superfluous hair mailed in plain sealed envelope on request. DeMiracle Chemical Co., Dept. 3, Park Ave. and 129th St., New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Millis have been enjoying a visit this week from Mr. and Mrs. George Edwards of San Francisco. They were formerly neighbors in the northern city.

Miss Eliza J. Stiles of Pasadena has been enjoying the past week as the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Douglass at their ranch home.

Miss Louise Jackson was the charming hostess to a number of her school friends last Saturday at a 6 o'clock dinner. The dining-room was beautifully decorated in cut flowers and greenery, and plates were laid for the Misses Dorothy and Phoebe Davis, Miss Gertrude Williams, Miss Hilda Wright and Miss Josephine Barry of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Rury entertained at dinner last Thursday Mrs. Rury's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Speicher, Mr. and Mrs. Irven Speicher of Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Speicher and family, and Walter Speicher of Los Angeles, and Rev. and Mrs. E. F. Gates.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Hill, who arrived several weeks ago from Kansas to spend the winter with Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Carpenter, went to San Diego Tuesday, where they will spend several weeks visiting the interesting points in and around that city.

At an elaborately arranged dinner last Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Don H. Petty of South Pasadena avenue entertained as guests Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Collins, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Templin, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Twitchel, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McIntosh, and Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Mattatal.

ONE of the smartest affairs of the week was the auction bridge party given by Mrs. J. L. Pomeroy and Mrs. Deane Tanner Tuesday afternoon at the home of the former on East Palm avenue. This is the first of a series of parties that Mrs. Pomeroy and Mrs. Tanner will give, the second one to be given on Friday and the third at a later date. Mrs. Pomeroy and Mrs. Tanner were assisted in entertaining by Miss Dorothy Brown. Roses and chrysanthemums were the floral decorations, and elaborate refreshments were served. Mrs. George Bookout received first prize, a pretty cut glass dish, and Mrs. M. E. Spellicy the consolation prize, silver sugar tongs. About thirty guests were present.

Mr. Thomas Patton was the guest of honor at a happy family dinner given him by the members of his family, the occasion being the sixty-second birthday anniversary of Mr. Patton. Later in the evening a number of old friends surprised him by calling to offer congratulations. The guest list was made up of Mr. Jones, Fred Anson, Mr. Jeffcoat, H. C. Jellison, Ed Scruggs, Charles Patton, William Patton, Joseph Combs, Dick Monroe, I. W. McManaman, John Chambers and H. G. Brownfield.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Burdett and daughter, Thelma, accompanied by Mrs. Burdett's mother, Mrs. Williams of Pomona, have returned from a two-weeks' stay at San Francisco. They made the trip by automobile and visited points of interest en route.

Mrs. E. A. Alvord and daughter, Miss Mabel, and son, F. P. Alvord, spent Thanksgiving day with friends at Claremont. While there they met many of their old friends from Massachusetts.

Mrs. M. F. Bromfield of Upland, is a guest at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Landis of East Lime avenue. Mrs. Bromfield was a member of Dr. Landis's congregation many years ago, in Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Salisbury entertained at Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Gillies, of Alhambra, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Salisbury, and son and Miss Aileen Bovee. Mr. and Mrs. Gillies were old friends of the Salisburys in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cutting motored over to South Pasadena Thursday and took Thanksgiving dinner at the home of their daughter, Mrs. S. M. Slocum.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Rivers entertained Thanksgiving day with a dinner party at their handsome country place, "Los Rios Rancho." Places were marked for thirty-four.

Mrs. Charles Allen entertained on Thursday evening at her beautiful home on Wild Rose avenue with a six-course dinner. The table was decorated with white and pink carnations and ferns artistically arranged. Covers were laid for Miss Mary Zeller, Lawrence Hubbard, Frank Bortells and son Philip. After dinner the evening was spent with merry games and music.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Rogers and children, Mattie and Lewis, motored to Arrowhead Hot Springs on Thursday and enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner at Arrowhead Hotel.

Miss Grace Worthen and Miss Wauneta Rives were hostesses to a number of relatives and friends at Thanksgiving dinner Thursday.

Mrs. G. C. Coleman was hostess at an elaborate six-course dinner at her home on East Orange avenue on Saturday evening, the affair being in honor of her husband's birthday anniversary and in compliment to her friend, Mrs. D. A. Everett, of Glendale, a recent bride. Yellow chrysanthemums and ferns were artistically arranged about the rooms, and the table was decorated with a beautiful centerpiece of roses and ferns, with orange blossoms as an appropriate feature. There was a cake, for the bride and another, decked with candles, for Mr. Coleman. The list of guests who enjoyed the pleasant gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wiley of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Day of Santa Ana, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Delapp of Huntington Beach, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Everett of Glendale and Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Hannah.

Rev. Arthur F. Skeele, Mrs. Skeele and their daughter, Miss Katherine Skeele, left Monday evening on the Santa Fe for San Francisco, where they expect to spend several days visiting the fair. They expect to return the last of the week.

Mrs. Willam N. Leavens has gone to San Francisco, where she will spend the next three or four weeks visiting relatives and friends.

The members of the Octo Club were entertained on Friday afternoon by Mrs. W. J. Bailey, assisted by Misses Stella and Bess Bailey, who are visiting at the Bailey home on North Primrose avenue. Mrs. E. D. Arthur was a guest of the club. Refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon.

San Gabriel.

A NUMBER of informally pleasant things have been interesting the socially inclined during the week, and many pleasures are anticipated for the busy days that are being marked on the social calendar for the month that is just opening and whose gayeties will mark the end of the year and the beginning of the new. Among those who have been delighting friends with charming hospitality recently has been Mrs. W. W. Reidel, who entertained with an elaborate dinner party at her home on Broadway. The decorations were exceedingly brilliant and beautiful, quantities of red geraniums and white chrysanthemums being the attractive combination about the rooms. At the conclusion of the delectable collation bridge was introduced and enjoyed by the merry guests until the close of the evening. Among those enjoying the genial hospitality of the Riedel home were: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Holden, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Haneman, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Morrow and Mrs. Roberta Lewis of Seattle. Mr. Riedel, who has recently been in Oatman, has returned to San Gabriel, and is delighted to be again at home.

Mrs. Earl Wakeman, one of the charming and hospitable young matrons of this section, is quietly entertaining numerous friends over the week-ends. Many have been the delighted recipients of the Wakeman hospitality during the preceding weeks and at present domiciled at the pleasant home are Mrs. Herbert House and her sister of Newport Beach, while Mrs. Ida Tripp Clark was also delightfully entertained recently by Mrs. Wakeman.

One of the most brilliant affairs of the season was the bazaar yesterday held by the ladies of the Church of Our Savior on Rose road. Planned hopefully and happily by the ladies for some time the affair assumed unusual proportions and prominent among the workers for its success were Mrs. Silas Burns and many other of the well known society women of this section. Gayly gowned women thronged the clubhouse where the event took place all day and the affair was said by all to be the most delightful occasion of its kind under the auspices of the guild.

Giving pleasure to a number of friends the home of Mrs. George Smith was opened on Thursday afternoon and in the pleasant atmosphere a delightful time was enjoyed by the invited guests. Luncheon at an artistically decorated table of violets and maidenhair ferns was served at 1 o'clock. Places were laid for ten and at each place was a corsage bouquet of the same fragrant flowers. In the afternoon, some charming musical selections were given, Mrs. Smith contributing much to the pleasure of her guests by a number of delightful solos most effectively rendered.

MISS ALICE LAW, whose marriage to Mr. Jack Mackerras will take place shortly, was the guest of honor at the "Modern Priscillas," at the home of Mrs. R. H. Mackerras Thursday afternoon, when the members of this organization gave a "Surprise Kitchen Shower." In the living-room where the guests assembled softly-shaded pink lights cast a warm glow over all and many flowers of pink graced the mantel and tables. Upon a given signal little Bobbie and Craig Mackerras entered the room harnessed to a small wagon containing many useful articles for the prospective bride, which will adorn the bungalow Jack Mackerras is about to build. Besides the fifteen members of the "Priscillas" present were Mrs. Edwin J. Adams, house guest of Mrs. Mackerras and Mrs. T. E. Mabee of this place.

Miss T. Graham and her brother who have been visiting the exposition for the past week returned here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Jones and guests, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Scott, motored Thursday to Redlands and surrounding countryside. On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Scott left for their home in Chicago.

Mrs. L. M. Rice has left for Sacramento to remain indefinitely with her daughter, Mrs. Donald Ashmore.

Benjamin Baker of San Diego visited Mrs. C. E. Cook and her charming daughter, Gertrude, Wednesday, with whom he has been an old-time friend for some years.

Miss Elizabeth Ferris acted as hostess Friday evening to about thirty young friends at the residence of her parents on East Central boulevard. The large living-room was tastily decorated in yellow and white chrysanthemums. Dancing was enjoyed during the evening and a delicious supper served. Assisting her younger sister was Miss Carroll Ferris.

Mrs. T. H. Flather and her week-end visitors, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Andrews, enjoyed a motor trip and luncheon at the Mission Inn on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews are en route to their home in New York after an extended tour through California.

Among those who recently returned here from the north are Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Merrill and small son, who have made a month's stay in different places, including San Francisco, where they visited the exposition.

Mrs. T. M. Webster entertained informally for luncheon Wednesday Miss Agnes Nutting and Miss Graham of Pasadena.

Among those who attended the Altadena Country Club dance Tuesday were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lawless and Miss Weaver, being the guests for dinner and the dance of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Vavra of Pasadena.

Miss Alice Law acted as hostess to an informal affair on Wednesday, when she entertained several of her young married friends and girls at the home of Mrs. J. E. Ferry. Needlework and other pleasures were indulged in, while coffee, sandwiches and cake were served. The well-known sweet vocalist, Miss Gertrude Cook, rendered selections accompanied by Mrs. George B. Morgridge. Those present were Mmes. Hawxhurst, Morgridge, Baugh, Edwin Adams, T. M. Webster, C. W. Jones, Mackerras, T. E. Mabee and Mrs. J. D. MacDonald, of Pasadena; Mrs. Homer Kennedy, of South Pasadena; Mrs. Carl Hummer, of Montana, the two last being guests of Mrs. Ferry, and the Misses Blumer, Vannier, Cook, Webster and Nichols.

Those attending the Mahan-Burke wedding from this place were Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lawless, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Carhart, Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Krebs and Mr. and Mrs. George Latteau. Mrs. Latteau served as matron of honor to Mrs. Mahan and with her husband were hosts to an elaborate dinner at the Jonathan Club on the 25th, with eleven other guests.

Covina.

THE notable event of the year for the Monday Afternoon Club of Covina is the programme for the coming Monday, when Ellen Beach Yaw will sing the programme which she recently gave at the Panama exposition in Festival Hall. All the women's clubs in the valley have been given a special invitation to attend, and the district federation board will be represented. This is the first time for some years that Madam Yaw has appeared before the Covina club, and the members are elated at the liberality of the programme. The numbers as given out are of the highest classical kind, many of them from the grand operas, intermixed with ballads. She will be assisted at the piano by Mrs. Stella Smith.

The announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Virginia Root and Homer L. Hostettler, both of Covina, which took place in Pasadena November 29, Rev. John C. Blue, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiating. The young people are both very well known, the bride being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Root of Orange avenue, and a young woman who has taken an active interest in the social affairs of the community. Mr. Hostettler is an orange grower, and a director in the Irwindale Citrus Association. They will reside on the Hostettler grove on Cypress avenue, where they will build a new bungalow.

E. R. Theby and wife, from Neenah, Wis., have been the guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lipke. Mr. Theby is a brother of Mrs. Lipke.

John Archibald of Carrollton, Mo., is a guest at the home of Jerome and Irven Reynold of Irwindale avenue.

About thirty or forty friends and neighbors pleasantly surprised Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Anderson on Thursday evening at their handsome new residence on San Bernardino road. It was in the nature of a house warming to celebrate the completion of this handsome residence.

Mr. Frank Karr of Nebraska, was a guest the early portion of this week of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Bowman at their home on San Bernardino road.

Duarte.

THE closing days of autumn in Duarte witnessed a delightful social gathering of the thirty-five ladies of the Duarte Reading Circle. The event was the November reception tendered the members and a few honored guests by Mrs. Samuel B. Elliott at the home of her friend, Mrs. E. A. Moore, on Tuesday between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock. Mrs. Elliott, who was assisted by Mrs. Moore in receiving, welcomed her guests in rooms prettily decorated with lovely pink and white chrysanthemums, and fall roses, with ferns. Interesting readings were contributed by Mrs. Park Densmore and Mrs. Frank B. Carter, and at 4 o'clock an elaborate tea was served in tempting style. The guests of honor from Monrovia were Mrs. Francis Bliss, Mrs. Alice L. Castello, Mrs. Woolridge, Mrs. S. E. Sanger, Mrs. C. A. Brown, and Miss Hutchins.

Two happy sewing bees were held Thursday in two pleasant homes in Duarte, and at both the work accomplished more than justified the social features. The larger gathering was the luncheon party at the home of Mrs. C. L. Squier, when, after the festivities, the guests gathered about the quilting frames and spent a busy afternoon. The other Kensington was given by the ladies of the Methodist Church at the home of Mrs. Walter B. Leffler, and the work done was in the name of charity.

The score of young ladies who make up the Pleasure Club had a merry evening with Miss Ethel Moore Saturday, when they spent the evening with games and music, followed by supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Elliott have had as their house guest for several days, Mr. Elliott's nephew, William Wood, speaker of the Wyoming House of Representatives. Mr. Wood returned last week to his home in Sundance, Wyo.

Mrs. W. H. Hoagland of Fallingleaf avenue left Wednesday for Colorado Springs, where she will be the guest of friends. Her daughter, Miss Helen Hoagland, is spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Hinckley at Hollywood.

Among the Duarte ladies who were guests of Mrs. Harrison Arms in Highland place Tuesday afternoon were Mrs. C. H. Sarwine, Mrs. W. K. Shaw, Mrs. Joseph Fowler and Mrs. Alexander B. Downe.

Mrs. Bruce Radabaugh has as her house guest for the winter her mother, Mrs. Gibler, of Huntington, Ind.

Mrs. Milton L. Clark was the guest of friends last week at a houseboat party at Balboa.

Charles Anderson is again on a business trip to the Imperial Valley.

Glendale.

CHARMING and numerous have been the affairs attracting the members of society's busy realm during the glad warm days of November that have so swiftly merged into quite the merriest, gayest month of the social calendar. December is coming speedily into its own and the month promises to be the most replete with social activities of many previous seasons. Most charming in its appointments was the entertainment given at noon on Wednesday by Mrs. Gus Pulliam of Cedar street as a compliment to the members of the Sewing Club, with Miss Leda Eddy of Canada as the guest of honor. The attractive home was redolent with the perfume of quantities of red carnations prettily combined with the soft green fronds of many ferns. Holly and brilliant red decorations in the dining-room gave a suggestion of the approaching Yule-tide, and in the warm glow of the happy environment a delicious luncheon was enjoyed. Later, the guests, among whom were Miss Eddy, Mrs. Jordan S. Neel, Mrs. C. B. Wilde, Mrs. Augustus Eddy, Mrs. Harry Neel and Mrs. William Altmann, spent the afternoon hours in artistic needlework and informal pleasures and conversation until the long shadows betokened the close of a profitable and a happy day in the hospitable environment of the Pulliam home.

One of the most brilliant of the week's events was the reception tendered to Signor Florencio Constantino by Mrs. E. W. Kinney at the Kinney home on West Seventh street Thursday. Brilliant and scintillant was the scene, which was attended by many of the best-known club and society women in this section. The lovely courtesy was to an extent the outgrowth of the recent concert given under the auspices of the Tuesday Afternoon Club. The affair, which was one of the most successful and brilliant of fall events, was due to the efforts of Mrs. Kinney, who is curator of the musical section of the popular organization.

The many friends of Miss Georgia Morland, formerly a resident of this city and a graduate from the local high school, are extending a most cordial welcome to her on her arrival here to remain some time as the guest of Miss Barbara Mitchell at the home of Miss Mitchell's parents on Kenneth road. While here Miss Morland, who is extremely popular in the younger set, will be the motif for much social attention on the part of her numerous acquaintances and friends in the south.

Mrs. Calvin Whiting, who has recently been the guest of friends in Santa Ana, was the guest of honor at a brilliantly appointed luncheon at the home of Miss M. Henry and her sister of the pretty little neighboring city. Mrs. Whiting enjoys a large acquaintance in Santa Ana and the affair was most delightful.

The charity ball of the Knights Templars at Masonic Temple on Thursday evening was one of the most scintillant of the social activities of the present season. With "sweet charity" as the motif for the event the pretty hall, which had been most elaborately decorated for the evening, was filled with a gay throng of beautifully gowned women and handsome cavaliers, all of whom danced with gay abandon, knowing that to their pleasure was added the fuller measure of brightening some less fortunate life during the glad days of Christmas which are hurrying upon us with a glad, glorious rush of merry promise. The music, the appointments were all most delightful and resulted in a host of delightful memories to the many society folk in attendance at the fete.

The many friends of Miss Barbara Mitchell and her mother, Mrs. Alex. Mitchell, are according them a hearty welcome during their brief sojourn at their home on Kenneth road. Miss Mitchell has been for some time in Monrovia and plans to return to the attractive city near the orange groves in the near future.

The meeting of the Monday Auction Bridge Club at the home of Mrs. O. E. Clemens of No. 124 Eulalia street recently proved one of the most charming affairs of a week replete with delightful social doings. Chrysanthemums and quantities of fall leaves in their brilliant colors, with a profusion of ferns finding a welcome place in the decorative scheme, made the rooms most attractive and at the conclusion of luncheon, which was served at high noon, cards were introduced and enjoyed as the diversion of the happy occasion. Those availing themselves of the delightful hospitality of the occasion included Mrs. C. M. Good, Mrs. C. O. Pulliam, Mrs. Willis Kimball, Mrs. D. H. Smith, Mrs. Frank McKenny, Mrs. J. Herbert Smith, Mrs. R. E. Hewes, Mrs. V. Price Brown, Mrs. Roy Hinchcliff, Mrs. Charles L. Barker and Mrs. Hermann Paine, who, showing the highest score as a result of her clever playing, carried off in triumph the attractive prize offered.

The Alfred E. Landmans entertained a number of friends at a perfectly appointed dinner recently at their home on Myrtle street. Dinner, which was announced at 7 o'clock, was served amid exquisite floral decorations, quantities of pink carnations blending their fragrant beauty with a profusion of ferns, making the dining-room and living-rooms most attractive. Among those enjoying the gracious hospitality of the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Roger Miller, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Boulton of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Houston and Mrs. W. Weeks, all of whom enjoyed cards and informal pleasures later in the evening.

Tropico.

THE Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of this city entertained with a harvest home party in the social hall of the church Monday afternoon. The decorations in this large and inviting room were most unique, and very suggestive of a really, truly harvest home, for they consisted of corn, cornstalks, arranged most artistically throughout the room, while pumpkins large and small, with their deep golden hue, peeped from among the fodder shocks. One could scarcely refrain from reciting James Whitcomb Riley's poem, "When the Frost is on the Pumpkin and the Fodder's in the Shock," upon entering the room and beholding the artistic decorations, which, with quantities of autumn leaves, presented a truly "back east" farm scene. Canned fruits there were in great abundance, donated by the benevolent ladies of the society, which will be used in the Spanish work of the society. Quantities of good, warm and desirable clothing were contributed to be sent to the frontier mission workers. A splendid programme under the supervision of Miss Elsie Anderson was presented, which consisted of readings by Mrs. T. J. Meagher, who most cleverly impersonated a Spanish girl. Mrs. Frank Morgan appeared in negro dialect readings. Amusing readings by Miss Ethel Baker also added to the success of the programme. Mrs. M. M. Cole, president of the society, as hostess, was most ably assisted by Miss Elsie Anderson. Miss Nell Ford and Miss Ethel Baker presided at the prettily-appointed tea table.

There were many dinner parties given in Tropico Thursday commemorating the glad Thanksgiving, where joy and happiness reigned supreme, but of the many there was none any happier than the one at which Mr. and Mrs. Joseph V. Griffin presided in their home on Acacia avenue. The Griffin home was prettily decorated in autumn leaves and flowers. The table was centered with a large basket carved from a huge pumpkin, whose golden hue blended very harmoniously with its contents, which consisted of every variety of fruit grown on tree or vine in Southern California, mingled with the bright-colored autumn leaves. Seated were Mr. and Mrs. Griffin and son, Jim Griffin, Maj. J. J. Weller, father of Mrs. Griffin, and her brother and his family, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Weller and daughters, Misses Emma Lee, Melba and Lena Weller. Mr. and Mrs. Weller, with their three charming daughters, have but recently come to Tropico from their home in Tennessee, and will make their home somewhere in Southern California.

Midst a profusion of radiant bloom mingled with generous hospitality and good cheer, Thanksgiving Day was celebrated at Palm Villa by Mrs. David H. Imler and her sister, Miss Cora Hickman, who entertained a coterie of friends at a 6 o'clock dinner. Autumn leaves in a riot of glorious colors formed the base of a pretty mound of fruit of tree and vine for the table's center accentuated with white and gold chrysanthemums arranged in a large crystal bowl. Those seated with Mrs. Imler and Miss Hickman were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Calhoun and son, William Calhoun of Denver, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Poland, Lyons, Kan.; Mrs. Eva M. Blain and Mr. Merrill Blain of Los Angeles, Mrs. Frank I. Marsh, J. B. Hickman, Miss Marjorie Imler, Samuel Rasmusson of Pasadena, Collie E. Kinney and Berna Martin.

Surrounded by a number of her schoolmates and in a wealth of bright-hued autumn flowers, Miss Dorothy Danner very charmingly celebrated her twelfth birthday anniversary at the home of her parents on Gardena avenue, Tuesday afternoon. Pink and white were very artistically utilized in the dainty color scheme. The afternoon was very pleasantly passed in music and games. The table at which a dainty luncheon was served by Mrs. Robert Daner, Mrs. Charles Bruck and Miss Florence Chadwick, was centered with a huge birthday cake, surmounted by twelve pink tapers. Those bidden to assist Miss Dorothy in celebrating her entrance upon her teens were Misses Helen Hartwig, Dorothy Carmack, Jessie Dutton, Elsa Roeder, Masters Sullivan, Herbert Bruck, Lyle Martin, Don Danner and Golburn Danner.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Booth entertained Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wallace Kimberly at dinner Thursday evening at their home on Gardena avenue. The table was centered with a crystal bowl of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Morris, who have been spending several weeks as the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Clyde R. Carmack of North Central avenue, will return shortly to their home in Indianapolis, Ind.

Casa Verdugo.

WITH the pleasurable excitement attendant upon the Thanksgiving festivities fading happily into the background of pleasant memories and gay plans being woven into the woof of Christmas joys, society is happily alive to the many informal pleasures and dances that will occupy the fleeting hours until the gladsomeness of Christmas is ushered in. Among the many things that have pleased society during the week none was more delightful than the lovely party given by Miss Amy Jones to about forty guests, Friday evening at the home of her parents. The rooms were most lavishly decorated for the event, and a gay bevy of young friends found their way early to the hospitable environs of the Jones home. Splendid music was provided for dancing which was enjoyed until a late hour, and at the conclusion of the merriment a cafeteria supper was announced. Gathered around the festal board the gay young revellers told stories and concluding the repast a few more dances, and a number of songs concluded what proved to be one of the most delightful of the month's juvenile affairs.

Recent guests in Casa Verdugo included Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilder of Oxnard. Mr. and Mrs. Wilder motored here and have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Dewey, of Arden avenue, where they were delightfully and informally entertained.

The hospitable home of the James Wilsons on Ruth street has been opened again this week. On this occasion the guests was Mrs. Ben F. Ary of Redlands, who with her charming little daughter, Helen Frances, has been enjoying a delightful sojourn in the environ of Casa Verdugo at the Wilson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Bierbower were recently guests at a delightfully appointed dinner given for them by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Goddard of Los Angeles. The charming affair was carried out with a color scheme of blue and gold predominating in the decorations of the rooms. Covers were laid amid exquisite arrangements for eighteen guests and the remainder of the evening was devoted to cards.

The many friends of Miss Virginia Olmstead bade her a reluctant farewell on Saturday when she left for Portland, planning to remain in the northern city for a visit of considerable length at the home of her sisters, Mrs. Ward B. Nash.

In recognition of the natal date of her mother Mrs. H. G. McDougall gave a beautiful little luncheon on Tuesday afternoon, inviting a number of friends to meet Mrs. Robert McDougall, the honored guest of the occasion. An effective arrangement of carnations and ferns was used in the rooms, and in the dining where the color scheme was out in dainty shades of pink licious birthday menu was serve first of the year, where Dr. Wright will continue with the baths at the Relief Springs, from which he has already received much benefit.

Miss May Vertrees, who is a teacher in the Fullerton High School, returned Sunday evening to her work there, after having spent the Thanksgiving vacation with her parents in this place.

Mrs. C. E. Bunker, a former resident of San Jacinto, but now of Palm Springs, is visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. F. Blair.

Mrs. Hattie M. Thomas is enjoying a visit from her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Thomas of Los Angeles.

Long Beach.

DECIDEDLY edible and of appetizing flavor was the chicken dinner served by the Brotherhood of the Grace M. E. Church Wednesday evening, to demonstrate that men are better cooks than women. It was a great gastronomical triumph for the men, who convinced beyond question the members of the Ladies' Aid Society that the sterner sex is equal if not superior to women as culinary experts.

Following the dinner the women of the Grace M. E. Church debated the question, "Resolved, that men have more qualifications as cooks than women." Although the judges awarded the decision to those upholding the affirmative, some good points were brought out by both sides.

The preparation of the repast was supervised by E. C. Campbell, president of the brotherhood. Frank Clawson was the chef. The tables were decorated with red carnations and smilax.

The debate formed a part of the programme following the dinner. Mrs. E. C. Campbell and Mrs. L. W. Ballard presented the affirmative, mentioning as the qualifications for the profession possessed by men, nerve, muscle, judgment and patience. She called attention to the recognition of this fact by the leading hotels and restaurants in the country which employ only men as cooks.

The negative was presented by Mrs. E. H. Wallace and Mrs. A. V. Cole. The latter said that men lacked the most important of all qualifications, interest. She spoke from experience, saying that she had lived with a man forty-three years and during all that time he had never cooked a meal. The decision was made by Mrs. E. Alderson, Mrs. B. Orett and Miss Montfort.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Powers of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Pauline May Powers, of this city, and Douglas Coughran, of Los Angeles. The marriage was solemnized in San Francisco Wednesday, at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Joshua Sibley, formerly of this city. As the young couple desired to be married by Rev. Sibley, they decided to hold the event in the northern city, and take in the exposition as part of their honeymoon. Both Mr. and Mrs. Coughran received their high school education in Long Beach, Mr. Coughran later graduating from Berkeley. Mrs. Coughran completed her education at the Randolph Mason College, for girls at Lynchburgh, Va. The couple will make their home in Los Angeles following a brief honeymoon in the northern part of the State.

The Long Beach Federation of Parent-Teachers entertained with a reception Thursday afternoon at the Y.W.C.A. in honor of Mrs. H. N. Rowells, president of the California Congress of Mothers, and Mrs. C. C. Noble, State and district chairman of membership. Programme numbers included two violin solos by Miss Dorothy Hess and two vocal solos by Miss Grace Hamlin, accompanied by Miss Mary Wheeler.

Mrs. Herbert La France was hostess at a prettily appointed bridge party Wednesday afternoon. A collation was served following the game to Mrs. Boone Bellows, Mrs. Shirley Bacon, Mrs. John Munholland, Mrs. Frank Dameron, Mrs. J. E. Carter, Mrs. Leo Schachtmayer, Mrs. George La France, Mrs. Charles Malcolm, Mrs. James Pickerill, Mrs. Arthur Philips, Mrs. Roy Bartow and Mrs. William Blatt.

Celebrating the anniversary of their arrival in Southern California, Rev. and Mrs. Hugh K. Walker entertained at dinner Friday evening the elders of the First Presbyterian Church and their wives.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. A. T. Covert, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Mercereau, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Craig, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Edgar, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Sperry, Dr. and Mrs. John M. Forsyth, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Sharp and Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Riedell.

Santa Monica.

MEMBERS of the Chippendale Club were hospitably entertained recently by Mrs. E. C. Wilkinson of No. 607 Palisades avenue. A pink and lavender color motif formed the decorative scheme. Covers were laid for Mrs. H. B. Wilkinson, Mrs. E. J. Waddell, Mrs. Willis Parris, Mrs. M. C. Rice, Mrs. Herbert Standing, Mrs. Kreke Fitch and the hostess.

Society here is taking much interest in bringing Christmas cheer to those who are not so fortunate as to possess the wherewithal for a big "feed" on that day. The landmark section of the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club is making candy bags for the big Christmas tree that will be given by various beach organizations.

Thomas H. James, present City Councilman, and a candidate in the election the coming week for Commissioner of Public Works, was surprised at his apartments at the Hotel Hart by a visit of his two daughters, Mrs. W. O. Crawford of No. 4877 Melrose avenue, Los Angeles, and Mrs. H. R. Bergh of No. 1908 Hillcrest road, Hollywood. Mrs. Crawford's two little boys, one 4 months old, were also visitors to their grandfather. Mrs. Crawford was formerly Miss Grace James, and for four years was a teacher in the local schools. She is a graduate of Stanford.

Candidates for various city offices were invited to meet at the clubhouse of the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club Saturday night to talk before the Public Affairs Committee. Miss Adelaide Ramsey, chairman of the committee, issued the invitations and expressed the wish that all of the candidates who desire to state their opinions, attend. A goodly number accepted the invitation Venice.

MEMBERS of the Parent-Teachers' Association gave an interesting social gathering Wednesday afternoon, the affair being called a "cafeteria luncheon," the proceeds to go to the purchase of pictures for the school house. The luncheon was given in the Venice grammar school and attracted considerable attention. Mrs. Fred Fuller, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, was in charge of the affair. Mrs. J. C. Barthel, president of the association, was also one of the active workers in furthering the event.

Students of the Venice High School gave an interesting affair, with an attractive programme Thursday evening and Friday afternoon at choral hall of the school, the proceeds of the affair going to aid school athletics.

Mrs. Harry Piel entertained the Poinsettia Social Club members Monday at her Hill street home. The table had an attractive holiday appearance, poinsettias and smilax being placed about in abundant profusion. Those present were Mrs. W. J. England, Mrs. Harry Mason, Mrs. Gus Granstrum, Mrs. Harry Lupton, Mrs. Piel and Mrs. James Styles. Mrs. Pearl Lupton will entertain Monday at No. 315 Hill street.

Music was of chief interest at a meeting of the Chaminade Cranzchen Monday at the home of Miss Lillian Adams on Marco place. This little society, which is social in nature, and takes up the interesting phases of music, is attracting much attention. A musical programme was given.

Seal Beach.

MR. AND MRS. ISAAC A. LOTHIAN, the latter formerly Miss Mary Elizabeth Beer of Bucyrus, O., were the honored guests at a beautifully-appointed dinner given by Hon. Philip A. Stanton on Thanksgiving Day. The occasion also marked the gathering of the Stanton family for their annual Thanksgiving celebration. The real hosts of the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stanton, who provided a real California welcome for the eastern bride. As the dinner progressed little Miss Adeline Thompson distributed appropriate favors, which added greatly to the informality and jollity of the feast. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Stanton of San Francisco shared honors with Mr. and Mrs. Lothian at the dinner, and remained in Southern California for several days.

James H. Blagge, member of the Board of Trustees, has recently returned from San Francisco. Mr. R. Z. Adams and Mr. R. B. Armstrong have also made flying visits recently to the northern city.

Bathing parties are in vogue. Nothing seems to daunt the festive bather, and she is almost as numerous as in the good old summer time. An ocean dip was part of the entertainment provided by Robert and Newton Woodville for their guests on Thanksgiving Day.

Gardena.

MRS. JOHN GRANT BLINDBURY delightfully entertained the M. C. Social Club ladies on Tuesday afternoon at her home on Magnolia street. A number of outside guests were present including the Robert Tealls's house guest, and the hostess's sister, Mrs. Charles W. Hill of Mt. Washington, Los Angeles. A very pleasant social time was enjoyed by all those present.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Holbrook left on Sunday of last week by way of the Harvard for San Francisco. They will visit the exposition and return in about ten days.

Thanksgiving is ever the time for the reunion of families when they can gather together and make merry around the festive board. Twenty-eight relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Teall greatly enjoyed themselves on this day at their home on Spencer street. In the evening the young folks had planned a novel entertainment by which to amuse their elders.

Mrs. A. C. Wright and daughter Marguerita, and Mr. and Mrs. Teall, Sr., motored over to San Gabriel on Friday of last week, where they spent the day, attending "The Mission Play" in the evening.

Mrs. R. A. Horton and Mrs. Lulu Belton also formed a party and journeyed to San Gabriel for the purpose of seeing the wonders of "The Mission Play."

Mrs. S. Haigh, accompanied by her daughters, the Misses Marion and Pauline, left the last of the week for Altadena, where they will spend the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Smith, and children, Katherine and Herbert, of Oneonta Park, spent a very enjoyable Thanksgiving with the J. A. McMillans, on Palm avenue.

Mrs. Lenora J. Cowles entertained at her home on Saturday, November 27, with an elaborate three-course luncheon complimentary to the past and present matrons of Gardena chapter, O.E.S., Seven was the number that were privileged to be seated at the beautiful table, which was decorated with gilt baskets, the handwork of the hostess and which were filled with pink roses and ferns. From the chandelier were suspended ribbons in the colors of the star, the ribbons ending at each point, where beautiful gilt basket souvenirs for each guest were found.

After the luncheon, reminiscing of the happy events of each matron's year took place, after which the guests indulged in a game of pool, Sister Cowles being the winner, and Sister Spencer, almost as good a cracksman, coming in a close second. Sister Towne won the "booby" in the "too intricate" game. The time for departing was the only unhappy moment of the afternoon and each guest in leaving felt that Sister Cowles had proven herself a most charming hostess, and had given to them "A Perfect Day."

The guests included Nellie Barlow Jeffers, matron for the year 1908; Ida May Towne, matron for the year 1909, and '10; Bess Anna Wannschaff, matron for the year 1911; Sue Ella Dawson, matron for the year 1912; Lenora J. Cowles, for the year 1913; Inez Jones Spencer, matron for 1914, and Lulu May Wood, the present matron.

Colton.

QUANTITIES of fluffy white chrysanthemums and festooned ropes of pink crepe paper aided in effecting a charming white and pink decorative effect within the interior of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ellery, Jr., on Monday evening, when they entertained very informally for Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Roddie, who have gone to San Diego to reside. About thirty friends of the host and hostess and the guests of honor formed the merry company, each member of which was informed upon arrival that a programme of "stunts" was to be given and all had to contribute. Unsuspected talent and cleverness lent no end of jollity to the hours, and the good time lasted until a late hour, when refreshments in which the pink and white note was introduced were served. Mr. and Mrs. Roddie leave behind a host of friends, and will be much missed in social, musical and especially Presbyterian Church circles.

For the purpose of forming a card club, a congenial coterie of devotees of the game of bridge met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Boynton on Wednesday afternoon and arranged for fortnightly meetings. It was decided that no prizes would be awarded, but at the end of the season one big treat would be enjoyed. Guests of Mrs. Boynton and those who will be included in the club membership were Mrs. Martha Hoit Hebberd, Mrs. Seth Hartley, Mrs. M. O. Hert, Mrs. H. T. Osborne, Mrs. Grace Garner, Mrs. C. F. Whitmer, Mrs. J. E. Butler, Mrs. A. E. Copeland, Mrs. C. W. Curtis, Mrs. E. C. Merryfield, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilkerson and Mrs. Van Arsdale Smith.

Following the custom of numerous hostesses to entertain their friends by dividing them into congenial companies, Mrs. E. O. Stark presided over a very charmingly-appointed little afternoon on Wednesday, it being the second in the series with which she plans to entertain during the fall and winter. For a time the guests chatted over fancywork and then entered into several merry games provided for their entertainment. Yellow chrysanthemums were used for decoration, and in the collation served after shadows had lengthened the yellow idea was emphasized.

Fun and frolic reigned supreme at Masonic Hall on Friday evening, the date of the dancing party at which members of the Mariposa Club were hosts. An unusually large crowd of dancers filled the ballroom, and the evening was a repetition of past good times sponsored by the club. At 11 o'clock an exhibition of the latest dancing steps was given by Miss Browning and Mr. Menefee, well-known exponents of the art in this section of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. George N. Chappell and daughters, Alice and Bonita, are again guests at the home of Mrs. Ada Pettijohn prior to their return to Chanute, Kan. Since being here last the family has viewed the two expositions and toured other parts of California.

Mrs. M. E. Knox has gone to Phoenix, Ariz., to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Mann.

Compton.

A RECENT event of importance in local society circles was the pretty home wedding of Miss Gertrude Old at Chualar, who became the bride of Harold H. Sharpe. The house had been transformed into a bower of beauty, the delicate fragrance of orange blossoms permeating the rooms. Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served and the happy couple left for San Francisco to spend their honeymoon, to attend the exposition and to purchase an automobile. The return trip was made in a leisurely fashion arriving home Sunday morning accompanied by a cousin, Eugene Sharpe of Hollister. The parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Sharpe, entertained in their honor with a chicken dinner. Guests invited to welcome their son and his bride were Mrs. Elmer Huston of Victorville, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Allen and Homer Allen of Bellflower. Mr. Sharpe is well thought of here, where he graduated from High School and where he has spent the greater part of his life. He is employed by the Standard Oil Company at Fullerton. Mrs. Sharpe is well known in Compton, where she has frequently been the guest of her sisters, Mrs. Frank Bird and Mrs. Harold Hight. Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe are at home to their friends on Colorado street, Hynes, Cal.

A farewell to their old home, a suburban residence south of Compton, was the motif which actuated the soiree of Saturday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hecock entertained Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGeady, Mr. and Mrs. George Harris, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Alvra Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Morton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Elftman, Mr. and Mrs. C. Pender and Mrs. Mary Collins, Miss Silvia Post, Miss Edith Elftman, Miss Emma Morton, Norman Post and Owen Elftman, Jr. Upon the completion of the new home of the Hecocks, within a stone's throw of the old, they will move, and a house warming will be the next social affair of importance in the family.

Newcomb's CORSET SHOP
623-So. Broadway

Gifts at the Corset Store

We have taken unusual care in selecting for the Christmas shopping season, a collection of suitable gifts at modest prices. Our handkerchiefs will appeal to the purchaser desiring designs not to be found at every store.

Silk Novelties, clever yet not expensive. The most fascinating Silk Opera Bags you have ever seen. Onyx, Phoenix and Eiffel Silk Hosiery, each pair in a white moire box.

Now—Look to Your Figure

The change has come. This season's Fashions call for a new type of figure. The change is subtle—but it is definite. Don't make the mistake of trying to wear the new gowns over old corsets.

The new C|B a la Spirite models have all the exquisite grace of line that the new season's Fashions demand—plus the maximum degree of comfort. And—since the makers have for 40 years been leaders in corseting fashionable women—C|B Corsets are always positively correct.

One of the 250 different handsome C|B models is made especially for your figure. Let us help select it.

Call and see the charming new C|B styles at our corset department—today. Priced $1.00 to $5.00.

SOCIETY.

ung son, Calton, all of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin R. Persons of Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hawthorne, Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Persons and Elsa, Elizabeth, Ora and Myron Persons, and Charles Sanker of Riverside. Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Persons have only recently returned from their honeymoon and have taken up their residence in this city.

Among the numerous social events of the past week was the delightful dinner given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Fink in honor of Mrs. G. W. Fink. The rooms were tastefully decorated with smilax and roses. Mrs. Fink, the honor guest, presided at the table, where covers were laid for seven children, eleven grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Those of the Finks who were unable to be present sent letters, and these were read to those present at the dinner. The affair proved to be a very pleasant occasion.

Upland.

MRS. ROBERT E. VAN NESS of San Antonio Heights proved herself a most happy hostess Thursday, when she entertained the members of the "G.T." Club with a luncheon. The table was beautifully decorated in red geraniums and asparagus fern and a three-course luncheon was served. The afternoon passed away very rapidly, the time being put in working on Christmas work. The guests of Mrs. Van Ness were Mrs. Charles Allen, Mrs. Henry O. Blohm, Mrs. N. I. Hamer, Mrs. Earl Maurer, Mrs. Charles E. Roberts, Mrs. Bert Spicer, Mrs. John L. Short, Mrs. William Tuttle, Mrs. Robert R. Wisely and Miss Mabel Myers.

Mrs. W. R. Waterman entertained with a 6 o'clock dinner on Friday evening in honor of her husband's birthday. The guests of Mr. and Mrs. Waterman were Mr. and Mrs. H. Waterman, Miss Nellie Anderson and Eldon Atwood.

The members of the "Merry Wives" Embroidery Club spent a most delightful afternoon on Friday with one of its members, Mrs. William Churchill Cline, at her home on Washington boulevard. Fancy work filled the afternoon full while conversation never languished. The members of the club are Mrs. William L. Brown, Mrs. J. K. Collins, Mrs. D. D. Crew, Mrs. Paul Cushing, Mrs. William B. Duncan, Mrs. Chad K. Francisco, Mrs. George Gregg, Mrs. Perry O. Long, Mrs. N. G. Pehl, Mrs. Arthur H. Johnson, Mrs. Evert S. Reynolds, Mrs. William C. Reynolds, Mrs. Charles Marsden Sikes and Mrs. H. Walter Slugg.

Pomona.

THEIR fiftieth anniversary was celebrated this week by Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lewis, who were the first people that lived at Narod. They gave a big family dinner for their children, grandchildren and several other relatives. The couple was showered with substantial gifts and floral tokens by friends and neighbors. The immediate relatives gave ten $5 gold pieces, which were sealed in separate envelopes, fastened to gold ribbons and suspended from a chandelier over the dining-room table. Mrs. Lewis received a gold thimble from the Narod Thimble Club. Seated at the table were Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Runyan of Los Angeles and Homer Runyan of Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Runyan, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Runyan, Claude and Vernon Runyan of Pomona, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewis and children from Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Coffin, Mrs. Phoebe Stevens and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Coffin of Riverside.

The marriage of Miss Hazel Irene Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Peters of No. 1280 West Ninth street, and William Wilson Norton of Ontario took place at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Nazarene Church. Miss Lucile Scott was bridesmaid, and Athel Tabot acted as best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. D. Scott. A reception was held at the Peters home after the wedding. Miss Peters graduated from Pomona High School in 1912 and later went to Pomona College, where she specialized in music.

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Henry gave a turkey dinner in celebration of their fortieth wedding anniversary. Their home at the corner of Orange and San Bernardino avenues was decorated with a profusion of roses and ferns. The event developed into an enjoyable family reunion. Aside from the hosts, those present were their daughter, Miss Frances Henry, their sons, Eubulus Henry, S. M. Henry and Harvey Henry; Mrs. S. M. Henry and W. V. Collins of San Fernando Valley, Rev. and Mrs. J. T. French and daughter, Miss Patsy French and Marvin Lee, and Clarence and Richard Henry. The hosts have been residents of this city for fifteen years. They were married at Indian Bayou, La.

The second birthday of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Wood's daughter, Alice, was celebrated Monday evening by a little birthday dinner to which several couples were invited. Mrs. Robert Smith and son, Guerin, Mrs. Getelle and son and daughter, Mrs. A. E. Tate and two children, Mrs. G. K. Abbott and son, and Mrs. Chauncey Perrin and son responded to invitations.

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Milton Zander entertained the members of the Sewing Club at No. 850 Hawthorne place. The special guests were Mrs. Walter Booth, Mrs. John MacMullen, Mrs. M. K. Metz, Mrs. Grant Pitzer, Mrs. James Hicks, Mrs. Howard Collins, Mrs. Charles Carter, Mrs. Frank R. Ward, Mrs. Will Alkire, Mrs. J. Hopkins, Mrs. Sarah Veale and Miss Mildred Whipp. The club members present were Mmes. C. O. Baughman, I. W. Baughman, A. L. Baublitts, L. H. Boyd, H. H. Denny, C. W. Faris, T. E. Guerin, J. W. Joos, G. R. Mosley, Edgar Outland, R. L. Pfaffenbach, Elsberry Reynolds, J. B. Stoker, Willis Taylor, John F. Whipp and C. C. Zilles.

A merry company of young people had a weinie roast at the home of Mrs. Myrtle Smith, at the corner of Lexington and Towne avenues, Tuesday evening. Those present were Mrs. Grace Van Dusen, and the Misses Essie Glenn, Essie Lewis, Clara Wingard, Marjorie Androus, Dixie and Selma Keith, Martha Whitterman, Edith Waterman, Margery Myers, Anna Butler, Weber and Harry Kirby, Grant Carver, Floyd Brubaker, Andrew Wingard, Floyd Jones, Glenn Higgins, Houston Brewster and Will Lewis.

Ontario.

MISS HELEN FITZGERALD was hostess Saturday afternoon at a charmingly-appointed luncheon at Hotel Casa Blanca in honor of Mrs. Edward J. Robinson and Mrs. William M. Jones, who are leaving for their homes in London, O., after having spent several weeks in this city at the Manzanita apartments. Buttonhole chrysanthemums in yellow and maidenhair fern, banked high in a large reed basket, made an effective centerpiece for the attractive table, and at the luncheon's close corsage bouquets of the same flower were presented each guest. The luncheon was served in six courses, and hand-decorated cards marked places for Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. A. McVittie, Mrs. M. Campbell, Mrs. Betty Henderson Ripple, Mrs. Werner Pell Craft, Mrs. Josiah S. Huntoon, Mrs. William Hare and Miss Fitzgerald.

Mrs. Charles Goodwin Frankish was hostess Tuesday afternoon at a charmingly informal affair at her home, No. 603 South Euclid avenue. The afternoon was spent at fancy work, and towards its close a light luncheon was served. Pink geraniums and smilax were used in decoration. The guests numbered Miss Mae Volk, Mrs. Edmund Hatcher Granger, Mrs. Charles Henderson Ripple, Mrs. Bjorne Falkenberg, Mrs. Charles Hugo Ford, Mrs. Frank Farrell, Mrs. William Freeman Brainerd and Mrs. Stearnes Ingalls.

The Casa Blanca Club entertained Saturday evening at Hotel Casa Blanca with a dinner dance. Large yellow chrysanthemums were used in decoration. Covers were arranged at the dinner, which preceded the dancing, for Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Arthur Freemire, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hugo Mertz, Mrs. John G. Tanner, Paul W. Nichols, Miss Ida Hubbell, Courtland Hammel, Mr. and Mrs. Cory Benson White, Mr. and Mrs. William Freeman Brainerd, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Bender, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon D. Wimpress, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hugo Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gage Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crombie Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Edson Swan and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hatcher Granger.

Miss Margaret Swan was hostess over the week-end at a delightful house party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Edson Swan, No. 515 North Vine avenue, her guests being schoolmates at the University of Southern California. Saturday evening Miss Swan entertained with an informal dancing party in her guests' honor. They included Miss Ruby Pascoe of Phoenix, Miss Imogene Lidgerwood of Los Angeles, Miss Truexa Mouser of Piedmont and Miss Eva Movius of Lidgerwood, N. D.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Lincoln Wallace to the east of this city was the scene of a quiet wedding Thursday morning, when their daughter, Miss Ruth Etta, became the bride of John Hunter Clark of El Centro, the Rev. W. M. Perry of the First Baptist Church officiating. Hanging baskets of pink roses and feathery pepper foliage were used in decoration in the living-room, while in the dining-room, where a wedding breakfast followed the ceremony, autumn leaves, smilax and yellow chrysanthemums were used effectively. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Clark will make their home in El Centro.

Santa Ana.

VIVID holly berries with their own greenery decorated the home of Mrs. P. A. Robinson on Washington avenue when she entertained a number of friends in honor of Mrs. L. W. Burns. The affair was a complete surprise for Mrs. Burns and in nature was one of "Ye Olden Times." The costumes were quaintly interesting as the guests had searched among their ancient treasures for old style garments, and the evening was spent in stories and reminiscences of the time of their grandmothers. A five o'clock tea carried out the idea of "Ye Olden Times," tallow candles and old-fashioned dishes being features of the repast. Those bidden to this merry affair included Mrs. Burns, Mmes. F. P. James, S. M. Davis, John Wehrly, T. A. Winbigler, J. W. McCormick, W. D. Baker, J. D. Quick, J. M. Raugh, C. E. Nickle, W. M. Smith, A. M. Gardner, F. W. Wiesseman, J. B. Mead; Misses Isabel, Jane and Blanche Graves.

Miss Helen Tappe was the soprano soloist at last Saturday's meeting of the Santa Ana Valley Ebell Society at Elks Hall, her lovely voice being displayed to advantage in a delightful programme. Other features were piano numbers played by Mrs. Arnold Peek, the compositions being those for which inspiration was drawn by George Wakefield Cadman from the

The Hair-Destroying Curling Iron Passes

The heated iron makes the hair dry and parched looking, burns off the ends, giving a most untidy appearance. You who have learned this from sad experience will be glad to hear of a very simple method which is open to none of the objections referred to and which gives better results than the curling iron.

Just get a few ounces of plain liquid silmerine at your druggist's and apply a little to the hair at night with a clean tooth brush, drawing this down one strand at a time from root to tip. In the morning your hair will be as beautifully wavy and curly as though Mother Nature did it, and it will be quite manageable, no matter what style of coiffure you adopt. The effect will be much prettier than if you used a waving iron, an dthe health of your hair will not suffer. As silmerine is not sticky or greasy it is quite pleasant to use.

poems "From Sea to Sea," and "The Talk of the Tall Alcalde" by Joaquin Miller. The poems were also read by Mrs. Ernest Grozier Phillips. Other features of the meeting were a talk on the "Club Side" given by Ebell President, Mrs. C. F. Grose; a report given by Mrs. E. M. Nealley of the Day Nursery, the most cherished interest of the Ebell Society, and a report by Mrs. C. E. French of the social side of the Southern District Club Convention lately held at El Centro. Mrs. French spoke highly of the hospitalty of the club women and citizens of El Centro.

The Misses Bess and Berdinia Henry were at home on Saturday with a delightful luncheon, which proved to be a delightful aftermath to the Thanksgiving season. Their pretty new home on South Main street was gay with brilliant cut flowers, holly and pepper boughs with their scarlet berries and a variety of luscious fruit. The guests seated at the small tables, which were centered with horns of plenty and garlanded with vines, were Mrs. S. White and Mrs. Abell, Glendale; Mrs. Arthur Pease, Balboa; Mrs. J. R. McCoy and Miss Bell Jeffery, Los Angeles; Mmes. E. M. Nealley, George Balderston, P. L. Tople, A. J. Cruickshank, E. C. Phillips, E. M. McMath, P. F. Schrock, E. Blake, J. M. Cochran, A. Viau, J. A. Cranston, H. H. Reeves, Marr; Misses Carrie Seaton, Pauline and Teresa Reinhaus, Elsie Bell, Mary Ely, Mary Swass, Josephine Arnoldy, Emma Wells.

The Junior Philathea Class of the First Baptist Church was happily entertained by its newly chosen teacher, Mrs. Otto S. Russell, the wife of the pastor of the church, on last Friday evening. The Russell home was attractively adorned with roses and cut flowers. The retiring teacher, Mrs. E. G. Holmes, was the guest of honor and a toast was drunk to her from a dainty loving cup, and choice flowers were presented her by Mrs. Russell. Those enjoying the happy evening included Mrs. Holmes; the Misses Claire McPhee, Norma Wingood, Laura Taylor, Lillian Walker, Ethel Rood, Grace Peterman, Emily West, Blanche Price, Mabel Drew, Alberta Black, Irene Cravath, Thereta Taylor, Ruth Grouard, Carol Van Cleve, Lucy Hill, Marie Harris.

The birthday of Mrs. William Hoefer was marked on Friday afternoon by a charming surprise planned by her daughter, Miss Rose Hoefer, the affair taking place at the country home of the Hoefers on East Santa Clara avenue. The party was carried to the house in automobiles and the afternoon was spent with needlework and merry conversation. Delicious refreshments, the presentation of gifts, and the voicing of good wishes closed the delightful event. Mmes. John and Will Rohrs, Phillip and Gottlieb Lutz, Joseph Witt, Henry and Fred Rohrs, Edward Neiser, Arthur Hoefer, Emma Roberts, Sam Vogt, were among those who aided Mrs. Hoefer in the celebration of her natal day.

MRS. DALE QUICK and A. D. Goodrich were hosts at one of the most charming parties of the month when they entertained the Mystery High Five Club at the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Charles Smith of Melvin avenue. The rooms were handsomely embellished with great shaggy chrysanthemums in shades of yellow, pink and white. High scores were won by Mr. and Mrs. S. Charles Smith, Mrs. Dale Quick and A. D. Goodrich, who were awarded beautiful hand-painted vase and ash tray, cut glass celery dish and folding card table. The consolations were captured by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. DuBois, who were presented with an Indian head and large vase. Delicious refreshments followed the games participated in by the twelve members who included, with the hosts and prize winners, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Merry, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. V. R. Franklin.

Quite the most unique affair given by the Bachelor Girls' Club since its advent a year or more ago was the slumber party at the home of Miss Melba Perkins on East Main street. Mrs. Virginia King, a palmist of no mean ability, officiated as chaperon in the absence of the hostess's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Perkins, who are attending the exposition in San Francisco. Many delightful peeps into the future featured the evening. Games and music received their quota of time and the affair concluded with the serving of light refreshments at 12 o'clock. Guests present were Howard Stillman, Harold Miner, Eugene Frost, Leo Lewis, Roy Madden and Karl Traughber.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Meeker of San Francisco left Saturday for Porterville after several weeks visit with Mr. and Mrs. Mack McConaha of Emily avenue.

A luncheon of recent date giving pleasure to a favored few was given by Mrs. Roy McConaha at her home, No. 629 Rudolph avenue. A pleasing musical programme formed the entertainment of the afternoon in the midst of attractive decorations of white chrysanthemums. Bidden were Mrs. V. O. McCombs and Mrs. Mable Lawrence.

Mrs. L. F. Windbigler returned Thursday, after several delightful days as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bryant of Long Beach. During Mrs. Windbigler's visit the "Do Something Club" entertained in her honor.

After an absence of nearly two months, Mrs. J. L. Lamb returned Wednesday from San Francisco, where she attended the exposition and visited her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. French of Berkeley.

One of the most delightful affairs of recent date was the birthday luncheon given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Glass, No. 827 Stella avenue, in celebration of the hostess' birthday anniversary. The Glass home was resplendent for the occasion in masses of pink and yellow chrysanthemums and sword ferns. A low mound of the favorite yellow flowers, daintily outlined with greenery, centered the table where one shaggy corsage bloom marked covers for nine. Gifts featurned the occasion and an afternoon of happy informality closed with the departure of the guests amid a general acclaim that the affair was one of the most delightful of the autumn season. Bidden were Mrs. Alice Faulkner, Mrs. Forest Smith and Mrs. Belle Gochenhour of Los Angeles, Mrs. A. A. Baldwin, Mrs. Percy Baldwin, Mrs. Ed Hendrickson, Miss Helen Hass, Miss Ruby Carlston and Miss Elizabeth Ash.

Florence.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE FOSTER and family spent last Thursday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Grover Reel of Glendale.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Baker of Newport and Mrs. Gustlin of Balboa were dinner guests recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith of Nadeau avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hewitt and daughter Anna, Mr. and Mrs. H. McNeal and son Edwin motored down from Pomona and spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Dillon.

Mrs. I. O. Clay was hostess on Wednesday evening to the Jolly Auto Club of Los Angeles. Light refreshments were served, with covers laid for twenty, after which a social evening was spent. On Thursday, in five machines, the party motored to Devil's Gate.

Mrs. C. E. Richardson, who has been visiting in Kansas for the past three months, was guest of honor at a dinner given recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Willetts, of 8115 Alix street. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Burl Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Donahue, the guest of honor and the host and hostess.

Garden Grove.

AN enjoyable out-of-doors evening was spent by the young women of the Lambda Phi Club and the Boy's Club on last Friday night at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Adland. A huge bonfire furnished a most glorious light for the jolly old-fashioned games of "run, sheep, run" and "hide and go seek," and similar lively amusements. Those enjoying the merry time were the Misses Winifred Adland, Muriel Arckley, Constance German, Olive Norcross, Loba Holt, Jessie Dungan, Hattie Brown, Effie Applebury, Elsie Davis, Georgina German, Mabel Larsen, Messrs. Berkley Davis, Archie Stuck, Irvine German, George Steidinger, Albert Schneider, Charley Applebury, and Lawrence Davis. After the frolics wienies and marshmallows were roasted and served with buns and pickles.

Mrs. Simon Chaffee was hostess on Saturday afternoon to the members of her husband's Sunday-school class. Mr. Chaffee was most delightfully surprised when the guests assembled and greatly enjoyed the compliment of their gathering to celebrate his seventieth birthday. Those enjoying the afternoon were Messrs. and Mmes. Anderson, Been, A. J. Chaffee, Rolfe, Morris, Rev. and Mrs. Hull, Mmes. Chamberlain, Smith, Edgerly, Holly, Brady and Irwin. Delicious refreshments were served and Mr. Chaffee was the recipient of many handsome gifts.

Twenty boys and girls of the home guards of the Methodist Church were entertained by their director, Mrs. A. A. Schnitger, at her home on Saturday afternoon. In addition to the business period and the study hour, in which "Good Bird, the Indian," was discussed, the attention of the class was turned to social features. Out-of-door games were played and later the young people were invited into the dining-room, where delectable refreshments awaited them. Covers were laid for twenty, besides the hostess.

The Queen Esther Circle was entertained on Saturday by Mrs. Laura Morrell, a goodly number of the members being present. One of the interesting features of the programme was a review given by Miss Winifred Adlands of the concluding chapter of "Red Man's Land," the study book of the circle. The social hour following proved a most pleasant one in all respects, and before the afternoon was completed plans were rounded out for a bazaar to be given by the circle, to be held in the Y.M.C.A. clubhouse.

One of the most successful Thanksgiving family reunions on Thanksgiving Day was that at which Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Jackson were hosts. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Capps, Mrs. Mulally, Mrs. R. C. Mester of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Willward Cain, San Juan Capistrano; Mrs. Allie Cain and son, Homer, and daughter, Neta, of Santa Ana.

Recent guests at the F. E. Harrison home were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Powell and their three children of Merced, who arrived here on Monday evening. Mrs. Powell is a sister of Mr. Harrison. Before returning to Merced the party visited the exposition at San Diego.

Orange.

OVER 150 guests were entertained by Dr. and Mrs. B. A. Rossiter, formerly of Orange, and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rutan on a recent Wednesday evening, a large number of Orange society people being evident at the brilliant function which took place at Elks Clubhouse. Red holly berries and asparagus fern were used in decoration of chandeliers and walls, and gorgeous golden chrysanthemums completed a most artistic decorative affect. Progressive whist was played and at the close of the games a sumptuous Thanksgiving supper was served at the small tables. The whist prizes were taken by Mrs. C. S. Kelley, Mrs. O. K. Forgy, Dr. W. A. Flood and L. M. Doyle. Other prize winners were Mrs. C. S. Kendall and Dr. C. V. Billingsley, the latter of Orange. Mrs. K. E. Watson of Orange was one of the assistants to the hostesses, others helping Mmes. Rossiter and Rutan in entertaining being Mmes. C. V. Davis, Miss Helen Van Cartmell, Miss Marie Briggs and Miss Higgins. The affair in appointments and numbers was one of the most successful of social functions in the Santa Ana-Orange season.

Coach W. E. Barnard of the High School football team was host at a 6 o'clock dinner on Wednesday evening for the fellows of the football squad and a few of their friends. His guests were Kent Lucas, John Eltiste, Wilbur Lentz, Willis Mitchell, Ray Catherman, Harold Everett, Leon Blank, Harold Gruenenwald, Bert Hodson, Shelton Wheeler, Birgill Pritchard, Art Hodson, Orville Nordeen, William Eckles, Mascot Giesener, J. F. Kramer.

Recent dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Gill entertained at their home on North Tustin street with an after Thanksgiving dinner were Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Courtney of Orange, Mrs. T. Long of Enterprise, Or., Mrs. R. Hibbard and two children of La Grand, Or., Mr. and Mrs. George Courtney of Dayton, Wash., Miss Elva Anderson and Thomas Barber of Kansas City. Others at the table were members of the Gill family. All of the out-of-town guests are relatives of the hostess. The table was most artistically decorated by Wayne McGill, a son of the hostess, and seventeen covers were laid for the sumptuous dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Jones gave evidence of their well-known hospitality recently with a delightful dinner given at their El Modena home to a number of friends hailing from Orange, and other places. Those who were seated at the table, were Mrs. Emma Buszek, Mrs. L. E. Jones and Mrs. L. B. Gitchell of Orange, Miss Cicely Haan of Fullerton, Mrs. Mary Dingman of New York City; Messrs. Waldo King and Guy Merrill. Returning from a greatly enjoyed visit to the San Francisco exposition Mr. and Mrs. J. Roy Smith of San Juan Capistrano, Guy Smith of Placentia, Miss Katherine Glass of Pennsylvania, and Messrs. Owen and Herbert Smith were most cordially welcomed at the A. M. Smith home on Saturday at an elaborate Thanksgiving dinner which was equally as good served as an aftermath of that enjoyable season as though it had fallen on the day officially named by the President of the United States. This dinner pleasantly served and eaten with a most congenial company was a gratifying conclusion to the splendid trip to the northern city.

Riverside.

AT A DELIGHTFULLY appointed dance Saturday night in the Elks' Club House, the members of the Delta Iota Chi Sorority netted a neat sum which, in response to the Christmas spirit, will be devoted to charity. The interior of the clubhouse was pleasingly decorated with palms, pampas grass and potted plants. At 8:30 the grand march was lead by Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Sweet, and dancing continued until midnight. Over seventy-five couples responded to the invitations.

Miss Margaret Troth was again the honored guest at a prenuptial party Saturday afternoon, when Miss Verda Manners entertained for her. Bowls of dainty pink and white sweet peas combined with greenery were used in decoration, and the afternoon was devoted to Five Hundred. Later a silver casserole bearing the initials of the bride-elect was presented to Miss Troth. The color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the refreshments, the hostess being assisted in serving by her mother, Mrs. Lon Manners.

Rounding out fifty years of happy wedded life, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Allen, of No. 1311 West Sixth street, gathered their entire family, with the exception of one son, about the sumptuous board last Sunday in honor of the event. The company of twenty children and grandchildren, seated at a long table made bright with autumn colors, included Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. James Ridgway, recently of Indiana, Joseph Allen and family, W. I. Rich and family, Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. Pall of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Solon Pinkston of Highgrove, Mrs. Hill and Mr. John Nash.

An interesting secret, which had already been partially guessed by her most intimate friends, was disclosed Tuesday afternoon at a charmingly appointed 4 o'clock tea, when Miss Elizabeth Green, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Greene of Main street, announced her engagement to Mr. Melvin Deems Fell of Portland, Or. Pink cards in dainty baskets tied with pink tulle revealed the college romance, while tall pink enchantress carnations and pink-shaded candles further carried out the color scheme. Miss Greene and Mr. Fell were both students of the University of California, Mr. Fell graduating this year from the Department of Agriculture. Miss Green has a large circle of friends among whom she has always been very popular, and who will no doubt plan many affairs in her honor. She was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. H. R. Greene, and her aunt, Mrs. Girdlestone.

With all the noise and merriment of a Christmas celebration, the members of Ungave chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, enjoyed their holiday party in the rooms of the Masonic Temple Monday night. A large, glistening tree bearing an illuminated "eastern star" among its branches composed the principal decoration, while bowls of holly and raniums, great baskets of shin apples, and yellow oranges, streamers of red paper and Simple Home Treatment to Remove Hairy Growths.

(Beauty Culture)

Two or three minutes' use of a delatone paste will banish every bit of hair from your face, neck or arms. This paste is made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. After the paste is removed, the skin should be washed to free it from the remaining delatone and it will be clear and spotless. You will not be disappointed with this treatment if you are sure to obtain real delatone from your druggist.

Santa Paula.

MRS. JOSEPH DILLMAN entertained at a pleasant affair Thursday afternoon at her home on the Limoneira ranch, bridge whist being the game of the afternoon. The guest of honor was the hostess' house guest, Mrs. Dillman, Sr., of Sacramento. Tea and cake were served. Mrs. Al Overman was the winner of a pretty prize for high score at cards.

Also in honor of Mrs. Dillman, Sr., was the informal afternoon at bridge given by Mrs. N. W. Blanchard, Jr., when eight guests enjoyed an afternoon of cards followed by the serving of a dainty luncheon.

A trip to Venice was the travelogue enjoyed by members of the Current Events Club at their meeting Tuesday with Mrs. C. A. Clarke as hostess. Mrs. Clarke, one of Santa Paula's very early settlers, who came here in 1876, told interestingly of Santa Paula's first library, a small collection of old books from a Sunday-school in Oswego, N. Y., and other interesting reminiscences which added to the pleasure of the afternoon.

The members of the S.C.C. Club were delightfully entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mesdames Fleisher and Minton at the Fleisher home. Mrs. Lee Taylor, Mrs. Lyman Dunton and Miss Troutwine of Pennsylvania were present as special club guests. The afternoon, after a brief business session, was devoted to needlework, conversation, and the enjoyment of dainty refreshments.

The thirty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Paul France was made the occasion of a pleasant social affair given by their many friends. They were presented with a dozen handsome silver teaspoons. Refreshments, brought by the guests, with music, games and conversation, made up an enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Stein entertained a few friends at a beautifully appointed dinner party, a profusion of holly forming the decorative motif, with dainty red baskets marking the places.

An old folks dance, when the musicians revived the once familiar strains of the quadrille, lancers, waltz and other dances of not so many years ago, was given by the Royal Neighbors Wednesday night. Excellent music was provided, and the occasion was particularly enjoyable to those who have not troubled to become expert in the fox trot, grapevine, and similar dances.

Oxnard.

MEMBERS of the Oxnard Monday Club and a large number of invited guests enjoyed a musicale Monday afternoon, this being the last meeting before the holidays. The programme included numbers by the choral section of the club, vocal solos by Mrs. J. A. Treher, Mrs. J. Leslie Foster, Miss Ave Camarillo and Mr. H. Jones, violin solos by Miss Frances Foster and Miss Ruth Virden, a piano solo by Mrs. Hugo Peters, and a reading by Mrs. Bertha Muller. After the programme, tea and rice cakes were served, the tea room being elaborately decorated with pink carnations, gypsophila, smilax and pink-shaded candles. Mrs. B. F. Korts and Mrs. J. J. Krouser presided at the tea urns. On the reception committee were Mesdames L. K. Hope, Homer Markwell, M. C. DeBrell, H. H. Eastwood and J. Diefenbach.

The marriage of Miss Gladys Griffith to Mr. Roy Van Delinder was solemnized Saturday evening at the Methodist parsonage, the Rev. J. M. Barnhart officiating. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Griffith, and popular among Oxnard young people. The groom is a son of William Van Delinder of Ventura, and a nephew of H. E. Van Delinder of Oxnard, where he has lived for some time on account of business interests here. Mr. and Mrs. Van Delinder will live in Hanford.

Miss Gladys Glenn and William Diedrich, two well known and popular young people of the Santa Clara Valley, were married Sunday morning at Santa Clara Catholic church, the Rev. Fr. Laubacher officiating. The bride is the daughter of the late Frank Glenn, and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beasley, and is a very charming young lady. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Diedrich of Oxnard, and prominent among the younger ranchers of this section. Mr. and Mrs. Diedrich are now enjoying a honeymoon visit to the San Francisco exposition.

For her daughter, little Miss Bobbie, Mrs. J. Diefenbach entertained ten little girls Tuesday afternoon at a "Turkey" party, the occasion being her daughter's ninth birthday. The turkey motif was elaborately carried out in house decorations, table decorations and favors, and a guessing game, the turkey-candy prize in which was won by Miss Mildred Hoffman.

Mr. and Mrs. William Franklin have returned from an auto honeymoon through the northern part of the State, including the San Francisco exposition.

At an exceptionally pretty wedding held Wednesday in the church of St. Joseph, Simi, Miss Myrtle Lang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Lang of Simi, became the bride of Mr. Nicholas H. Durer, of Oxnard. The bride entered on the arm of her father to the strains of the Lohengrin march. Miss Elizabeth Horner was the bridesmaid, and the groom was attended by Mr. Charles Connelly. The bride wore a dainty gown of soft white silk crepe, her veil caught with small white rosebuds, and carried a bouquet of white carnations and greenery. Her only ornament was a [illegible] and chain, gift of the groom.

Solid Silver

Our stock of Gorham Silver is a GRAND one. The largest stock of Gorham Silver to be found in any store outside of New York. We have all the new 1915 articles in Table Silver, Spoons, Forks, Knives; in Dinner Sets complete; in Tea and Coffee Sets; in articles for the toilet, such as Mirrors, Combs, Brushes and Fancy Pieces. In Vases we have every size from 6 inches to 40 inches high. In fancy articles like Hot Roll Baskets, Sandwich Trays and Fancy Baskets we have a wonderful stock. We have a thousand and one other articles in silver. Artistic engraving on each piece free.

Stationery

Our Christmas stock has all the new ideas in fancy cards, in Greetings and Fancy Stationery. The new conceits, in correct forms. Different entirely from former years. We are sure we can interest you in Christmas Cards from five cents to $5. Fancy boxes of fine stationery from seventy-five cents to $7. We can engrave your personal card on many of our Christmas cards at extremely low prices. Order this week and we will have your cards ready on time.

Leather Goods

We sell only high-grade articles in leather, mostly in dark leather, mounted in gold and silver, the Gorham Co.'s goods. We offer a few suggestions in the new styles, such as Traveling Bags, Suit Cases and Rolls. Fitted with Silver Toilet Articles; Bill Books, Cigarette and Cigar Cases, Purses, Hand Bags, Photo Cases, Collar Boxes, Necktie Press Cases. Our prices for high-grade articles in leather are as low as others sell cheaper-made goods.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How to Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or hearache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable. Relief is sure.

SOCIETY.

round table. Others taking part are the president, Mrs. Mary F. Davis; Mrs. Carrie J. Glazier, Miss Wanda Davis, Mrs. Alfredetta Hilbert and Mrs. Mattie Walker.

Week-end guests at the G. W. Beck home were Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ross and daughter, Claire, of Los Angeles.

At the Auditorium Saturday evening, following the business session of the Chamber of Commerce, there was a very pleasing programme and social. The talk by County Assessor James Sleeper of Santa Ana was listened to with great interest, the subject being "Assessed Valuations." The charming vocal solos by Miss Lorel Davis and reading by Miss Ruby Leutwiler were well received. Mrs. W. L. York was chairman of the Entertainment Committee, and the ladies provided an attractive luncheon after the social hour

Mrs. Annie Gould and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Warne of Whittier, old-time residents of this section, were dinner guests Sunday at the C. E. Varneys.

San Bernardino.

IN THE picturesque setting of the Huley Poppett home in Waterman Canyon, the marriage of Miss Lillian Louise Deems and Ray Sanderson occurred Wednesday evening, Dr. Walter F. Prince of St. John's Episcopal Church officiating. Miss Mabel Poppett and Elmer H. Deems were the attendants for the bridal couple and the ceremony was solemnized amid a bower of holly, brilliant with its red berries. The impressive Episcopal service was read and then a sumptuous wedding feast was enjoyed. Amid the congratulations of the wedding party the happy couple departed for San Diego, where the honeymoon will be passed. After their return Mr. Sanderson will start out on a business trip to New Britain, Ct., and his bride will remain here during his absence.

A group of relatives and immediate friends witnessed the ceremony Wednesday evening which united the hearts and hands of Miss Helen Wiley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wiley of No. 853 Second street, and Walter S. Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ward of West Fifth street, the wedding occurring at the Wiley residence, with Rev. Alvah Grant Fessenden of the First Presbyterian Church officiating. Before the ceremony Miss Beatrice Argall sang "O, Promise Me," and Miss Lillian Wiley, sister of the bride, played the music from "Lohengrin" for the entrance of the wedding couple. The bride and groom left for a wedding trip to San Francisco.

Centering about education, the programme at the Woman's Club on Wednesday afternoon was unusually interesting, and three speakers held the members in rapt attention while talking on subjects pertaining to the theme of the afternoon. Mrs. G. W. Beattie of East Highlands, chairman of education of the southern district Federation of Clubs; Mrs. Grace S. Stanley, county school superintendent, and Roy B. Stover, superintendent of the city schools, were the speakers. Mrs. J. S. Wood contributed to the pleasure of the programme with several vocal selections.

San Dimas.

THE San Dimas Wednesday Afternoon Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Harwood at Charter Oak, with Mrs. Harwood and Mrs. E. A. Spencer as hostesses.

The Entre Nous Club was entertained on Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. T. R. Hobbs. Mrs. H. H. Jones favored the club with several vocal selections.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Rice entertained over Thanksgiving Dr. John H. Morley, their former pastor in Massachusetts, but who is now president of Windsor College.

Downey.

THANKSGIVING Day drew to the hospitable home of Mrs. Mary Bartels sixteen guests, relatives and friends from Los Angeles and Downey. The rooms of her home on College avenue were made cheerful with bouquets of roses, chrysanthemums and ferns. An elaborate dinner was served. In recognition of the day a basket filled with fruit and autumn leaves adorned the table. At the conclusion of the dinner the afternoon and evening were spent in a social good time.

Mrs. Ira Walton entertained the ladies of the Laguna Embroidery Club at their Friday meeting. The ladies busied themselves with their Christmas needlework and many beautiful articles were made. Music and refreshments were enjoyed during the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. William McBeth, Mrs. C. E. McCrea and Miss Ethel McCrea of Montebello, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Booth, Mrs. Emma Gibbs and daughter, Nina, and Miss Elizabeth Buhl made up a party that motored to Riverside. A picnic dinner was spread on the top of Mt. Rubidoux. The afternoon was enjoyed at the Mission Inn. The party made the trip in machines and returned early in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Coke entertained last Thursday evening with a pretty Thanksgiving dinner at their home on College road. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Kern Mitts and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Harris and Miss Marguerite Coke.

Seers Foretold the War.

[Indianapolis News:] According to Camille Flammarion the war in Europe was foretold by all the celestial and terrestrial omens of war which have long received credence. These include the total solar eclipse over a year ago, visible in Europe and Asia, Delavan's comet known as the "war comet," which appeared near the end of 1913 and which is to remain visible for the next five years, a remarkable winter day in June, last year, and others. Such war omens have appeared together in other years without bringing war, however.

Tints; also Things Chic and Charming.

Now is the time to buy:

Beans for the entire winter's use, as the prices of all dry and beans are soaring and there is prospect of scarcity owing to the that orders from England and France for California beans are creasing in volume. The present market for beans is the high the history of the industry.

Butter is a trifle cheaper and it is a good time to buy for the C mas cooking as many festive foods such as certain kinds of cak pies may be prepared in advance of the holiday.

Not a bad time to buy oranges for use for several months to especially during the lavish holiday time. Oranges by the box are er than for some time, by a big fraction of a dollar.

Practical Suggestion.

The Good Housekeeper has found most satisfactory receptacles for the wee sma' stray flower which is so apt to put forth its modest head in the winter garden. She removes the top from a slender-necked cut glass salt shaker and it makes the daintiest possible vase for the pansy, the tiny rosebud or the few violets which brave the season.

The "Spugs."

There are always extremists who would blot out everything which exists, simply because it exists. Their motto "Whatever is is wrong." It is such as these who moved the initiative for "S.P.U.G.s." It was their intention to do away altogether with Christmas giving; but the sensible people, of whom there is always, thank goodness, a saving quota, turned the tables and the abolitionists of Christmas have been hoist with their own petard—or to bring the old saw into the present seeing—their Christmas trees have been trimmed instead of pruned. Decorated rather than denuded. And instead of the No-Christmas which was intended, the great holiday has emerged bigger and better than ever. The motto has been spelled backward. It now reads—Gifts Useful Pretty Satisfactory. That is the sort of SPUG which we all may heartily endorse.

From Shadow of the Matterhorn.

There is a romance which cannot fail to appeal as one beholds those lovely blossoms carved from ivory, hand-wrought by dwellers of the Alps, under the very shadow of the great Matterhorn. The flowers are beautiful enough in themselves, but when one considers that they are the ivoried miniatures of those far away lovely blooms which seem the very spirit of the silent and solitary Alpine snows, everything poetic in the mind is aroused. Yes, they are actually here! In our own city—a won-

Books Make Suitable Gifts for Every Member of the Family!

From the wee infant's picture book to the dear old folk tales and biblical stories that grandmother loves. Whether classic, fiction or fairy tale, the Broadway's Enlarged Book Department can supply your wants. Although our stocks are now complete in every detail, the tremendous force of the Christmas shopping soon exhausts or somewhat limits the broad scope of titles. For this reason, we urge immediate action as to ordering. Make your list from the following titles and bring or send it to "The Broadway."

SIR GILBERT PARKER.

THE MONEY MASTER. By Gilbert Parker. Harper & Bros., New York.

"THE MONEY MASTER," a quiet and suppressed story, ornamented with melancholia and suffused with a nobleness of spirit, shows the fortitude of a French Canadian, Jean Jacques Barbille, who passes with the years through ordeals that stress the inmost timbers of the heart and is transformed from a vivacious, debonair philosopher to an old man, broken in fortune and happiness—but a philosopher still!

Returning from a tour of the world with a wife (a beautiful Spaniard, artfully enticing and of questionable antecedents) whose father is an adroit scoundrel, Jean finds his business still prosperous, his influence augmented in the community, and believes himself the happiest of men.

But before the old top of a world has whirled through many seasons the arcadian life is blasted. Finding his wife has reached even merely the caressed stage of faithlessness, Jean, in a spasm of rage, plots murder against the serpent in the garden, the master carpenter. But the carpenter, shrewd as proverbially are serpents, talks with desperate cunning for his life and wins, yet is so unnerved by the ordeal that he declines to flee at an opportune moment with the passionate woman, who flings an insulting slap into his face and goes her lonely way.

A lapse of years brings the second heavy sorrow. Jean's daughter, opposing his wishes and commands, leaves with an unctuous stranger.

Follows then financial misfortunes. Stoically, bludgeoned but unbowed, with heroic spirit, Jean opposes adversity with more determination than success. However, the reward for years of kindliness, friendliness and honesty is reflected in the continued and tender regard shown for him by the community.

There is unquestioned strength and art, a fine depiction of a good, rather than a strong, man's failures in the book, and parts of it reach psychological effects never before obtained or even essayed by Sir Gilbert.

MEDIEVAL ROMANCE.

THE FORTUNES OF GARIN. By Mary Johnston. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

MARY JOHNSTON has looped the literary loop; the orbit of her flight brings her back to sheer and unparochial romance. Following "To Have and to Hold" she worked upward and essayed the historical novels of the Civil War, rose to the sociological "Hagar," then started romanceward and paused in the Victorian era. Now she is back to the crusades.

And "The Fortunes of Garin" is easily her most colorful novel, though she has been rather parsimonious with sensations. In fact, so far are romantic traditions violated that Garin is not even permitted to slaughter the villain, and a villainous villain he is.

The first encounter that Garin has with the proud Jaufre is in the open fields, where the scoundrel attacks a herd girl, and afterward swears that Garin (assisted by a fiend) assaulted him from the rear.

Jaufre's father is proud and bold and holds many cities and estates to liege homage, and heralds scour these to find the assailant of his son. Garin, but a humble squire to the taciturn but valiant Raimbaut, flees and does manly work in far-away Palestine.

Count Jaufre, as years go by, seeks an alliance with Princess Audiart the Wise. But she does not belie her name, e'en at the expense of a civil war. The war is long and bloody, and chief among her knights is Garin, whose strong arm is very nearly more notable than the music in his voice.

Many are the adventures and great is the fighting that follows. But Garin loses not his vision of the herd girl and sings of her to all who listen. Princess Audiart is among these; she listens eagerly.

When Richard of the Lion's Heart commands peace, there is peace. And bold lovers turn to maidens, but Garin goes back to the black castle in the dark woods that has been his home. And one day there comes a message—and he answers it with a light heart, for it comes from the herd girl of whom he has ever dreamed, and who isn't a herd girl at all.

The book is chiefly notable for its atmosphere and medieval coloring. All the way through it seems more like an ancient romance rather than a modern novel—and the effect is not gained with archaic oaths or clanking armor. It has the real spirit of idealized romance and the age of chivalry.

ROMANCE OF FRANCOIS VILLON.

THE GLORIOUS RASCAL. By Justin Huntly McCarthy. John Lane Company, New York.

FRANCOIS VILLON, the most fascinating scoundrel in the world, has won the attention of many distinguished authors and the affection of most of them. Swinburne has made an immortal apology for him; even the austere S. Weir Mitchell made a glowing romance of the cut-purse's precarious life; Stevenson also embodied him into a story somewhat more in keeping with Villon's reputation; but Mr. McCarthy, both in "If I were King" and in "The Glorious Rascal," has invested the poetic ruffian with endearing charming qualities.

Though Mr. McCarthy has adhered somewhat to the reputed biography of Villon (little is known of him;) "The Glorious Rascal" is a highly-colored, well-rounded, attractive romance in which the rascal has some weaknesses for loose women and turbulent companions, but is at heart a gallant fellow, loyal in friendship and courageous.

The sordidness of Villon's life is glossed. After abandoning the respectable protection of a clerical uncle who lifted him from poverty, Villon dwells with roistering students and raises the devil through multitudinous and more or less bibulous incantations. But never for long are his fortunes disentangled from those of the proud warrior, Robert D'Estouteville, Provost of Paris, who won his wife largely with passionate ballads that Villon wrote for him. Robert is generous, and Villon is more than once spared deserved punishment.

But Villon himself more or less continuously is putting Robert under obligations to him, as when he fights a duel of death for the beautiful Ambroise, Robert's wife, and for the numerous instances when both he and his mother gave assistance to her sister.

A readable story it is, with much richly-colored detail; it fails to set forth the Francois Villon as he is known in his whimsically tragic ballads, but does not fail to set forth a very interesting rascal who, under any name, would be attractive.

ARNOLD BENNETT.

THESE TWAIN. By Arnold Bennett. George H. Doran Company, New York.

"THESE TWAIN" is the concluding volume of Mr. Bennett's trilogy of which "Clayhanger" and "Hilda Lessways" were previous volumes. The book was promised some five years ago, and shows the domestic life of Edwin Clayhanger and Hilda.

It may be found that Edwin's character has changed considerable; he is no longer so timid and nor incompetent, and Hilda also lacks much of her resolute impulsiveness.

"These Twain" is written chiefly from Edwin's viewpoint, and it purports to be a study of the marital relation with his wife, who, be it remembered, had previously married George Cannon, a bigamist and a forger who had been sent to prison.

The book is disappointing from first to last; it is weak, it is flabby, prolix and dull. The imaginative, personal details pervading the books with which Mr. Bennett has won his deservedly high reputation are largely lacking, and in their place are tedious, deliberate, psychological details, devoid of either originality of conception or expression.

The story may be briefly told, though the book has a length of more than 500 pages. Hilda learns from Cannon's real wife that he is innocent of the forgery, and takes secret steps to help him. Clayhanger finds this out, but acts sensibly about it. When Cannon is released from prison he asks Clayhanger for help and is given money, which is subsequently returned—implying that the bigamist has reformed.

But Clayhanger thinks that he is tired of his wife; he has a bachelor friend, and is always drawing analogies between himself and Ingpen, but in conclusion decides that he will not permit himself to be beaten by his wife. No. He will stick it out. He does. They are happy.

Hilda's child by the bigamist worries his parents somewhat by seeming to develop unlovely traits, but when the boy's eyes are properly treated his temper smooths out and he promises to be such a lad as his stepfather can be proud of.

A new Bennett feature appears in "These Twain." He has never written a novel of importance without having one or more insufferable male characters, either a rascal or a cad. But here, excepting perhaps some distant and minor relatives of Clayhanger, all the men have characters intended to be likable—notwithstanding that they are actually disagreeable.

A HOMERIC ROMANCE.

THE LITTLE ILIAD. By Maurice Hewlett. J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia.

IN "The Little Iliad" Mr. Hewlett has achieved something distinctively different that has artistic features worthy of his reputation.

"Open Country" and "Rest Harrow" did perhaps more than any other books to make him known and appreciated—pagan books they are, for he is pagan as Pan himself. Only a romantic pagan would dare the theme in "The Little Iliad;" but only a very skillful modernized author could, without absurdity, make his story of four brothers' love for the same woman somewhat analogous with the Homeric siege of Troy.

It is decidedly without the romantic pulse of most of his previous books, but it is told with convincing emphasis, more like a memoir than a story.

Hector, Wynward, Pierpoint and Patrick are the four sons of Sir Roderick Malleson, a Scottish chief upon whose house rests a curse precluding the birth of a daughter.

Hector, serious and romantic, invites to his father's home the Baron and Baroness von Broderode. She is young and beautiful, a Pole; and he an Austrian nobleman of powerful frame, with ruined limbs, a stoic in suffering, cynical, fascinating and at once repulsive—a remarkable character.

The story is related in the first person by one who keeps completely to the background, who watches closely and so reports that the attentions of the four brothers, the jealousy of the Baron, the shyness of Helena, the Baroness, make a situation complicated as almost any conceivable, yet ever has the color of the melodramatic effaced. Even the rallying of the clans to support the brother who essays the role of Homeric Paris, while thrilling, rather incredulous, somehow seems natural and expected.

It is a difficult story, admirably handled, but with romance in a leash—and against that leash romance strains hard to break away and run riot.

KATHLEEN NORRIS.

THE STORY OF JULIA PAGE. By Kathleen Norris. Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y.

"THE STORY OF JULIA PAGE" may well be placed among the best of Mrs. Norris's novels, though the second part seems unduly protracted—artistically, it is true, but protracted nevertheless—to emphasize a situation that might be considered either as a warning to young girls not to be indiscreet before marriage, or, if they are, not to tell the husbands.

This novel bears a close, family resemblance to Mrs. Norris's previous book, "Saturday's Child," for not only is the action kept in and about San Francisco, but it shows the rise of a girl from a poor, slovenly home to aristocratic society. But "The Story of Julia Page" is not burdened with the innumerable incidents and situations, whose importance are questionable, that weighted the previous book into tedium.

Remarkably fine work is here, especially in the first part, which shows Julia's home, her disorderly, mussy mother and father, their slovenly friends, Julia's ambitions for the stage, her pitiful finery and the humiliation of her contact with the aristocratic children, Mark's youthful love for her and the resultant tragedy—all that is the finest kind of writing.

Before Julia becomes engaged to Dr. James Studdiford she tells him that every girl is likely to make a "mistake" before learning how serious life is, and that such a "mistake" is behind her. He is incredulous, but convinced, yet ignores the youthful fall from grace.

Except for the fact that it is clearly explained that Dr. Studdiford inherits a morbidity of temperament, the way he carries on after the marriage would be utterly absurd. He has been no saint in his younger days, but keeps continually bringing up the question of her disgrace, harping on it, jumping into despair because of it, having throes of agony and all that sort of thing. Julia assumes the role of Griselda and has patience. Harmony is restored eventually—but the conclusion is far from convincing that it will be perpetual, even though the husband seems to have "found himself."

JACK LONDON.

THE STAR ROVER. By Jack London. The Macmillan Company, New York.

MR. JACK LONDON continues to suffer poignantly for the downtrodden unfortunates of the earth. In fact, perhaps no man has made so much money as Mr. London through reviling society and sympathizing with the poor. No doubt he is sincere. He and Billy Sunday get enough to make anybody sincere.

"The Star Rover" is related in the first person by one Darrell Standing, formerly a professor in the University of California and sentenced to San Quentin for murder. He tells that he was thrown into solitary confinement, placed in a cell near those of Ed Morell and Jake Oppenheimer (two names well known in California criminology,) and through the torture of the strait-jacket was able practically to suspend animation and recall his adventures in previous lives.

The story alternates descriptions of the vileness of the prison, the guards, the warden and a variegated assortment of romantic adventures extending through many incarnations and taking place in all parts of the world.

The structure of the story, but in no sense the material, closely resembles that of "Before Adam," which, some years ago, added greatly to Mr. London's reputation for originality.

Much of the subject matter of Ed Morell's lectures on life in San Quentin and his relation with Jake Oppenheimer, the telegraphic code by which they communicated continually through the walls, is infused into "The Star Rover," and the dexterity of his adaption will no doubt augment the waning reputation for originality of Mr. London.

The romance is largely the barn-storming variety, reinforced (as usual) with platitudinous observations on human nature and class strife. Standing reviews how in previous incarnation he visited China, was a Viking, served in the Roman legions, was a member of the household of Pilate, was shipwrecked at sea and lived for years on a barren island, was once a French count, was in the Mountain Meadow Massacre.

Incidentally, the form observed allows the author to abandon the more exacting details of novel construction, and, by using adventurous fragments, to pile up a bulky book that is a hodgepodge of unrelated and undeveloped incidents, few of which are fit to be called short stories, and the whole is not a novel, or anything else of value.

"FRENZIED FINANCE."

MAKING MONEY. By Owen Johnson. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.

THOSE who are determined to consider Owen Johnson as one of the "big" novelists of the day have considerable more material in this thrice-told-tale of "Making Money" than was present in "The Salamander"—a most prodigious attempt to be sensationally sociological by discoursing to a soporiferous length on a swarm of female pests.

"Making Money" is an old story with new variations, romantic, flashy, but rushed along by a narrative strength not at all common in third-rate novelists. Four young men, settling down in New York to make money, renew the close friendship maintained at college. Attention is chiefly given to Tom Beauchamp Crocker, known as Bojo, who is engaged to Doris, daughter of Burke, one of the biggest fighting men in Wall street.

Bojo declined to go into his father's commonplace but substantial business, refuses most punctiliously to allow Burke directly to make him wealthy, but enters a broker's office and takes advantage of what tips come from Burke.

The money madness of the Street and its votaries makes the best part of the book. Mr. Johnson is no weakling in style, he rushes, and rather breathlessly but graphically shows the frenzy of Wall-street deals, the turmoil occasioned by Burke's strategy, with which Bojo (who babbles the confidence reposed in him, as Burke thought he would) is made a catspaw.

Bojo, heavily rewarded for being the catspaw, reimburses friends whom his "tip" has ruined, abjures the stock market and becomes a horny-handed toiler. Doris loves him—oh, yes! she loves him more than anything else on earth, she says. But when the crash comes and Burke's fortune topples she hurried an engagement with another fellow who can keep her in the style to which she is accustomed. But Doris has a sister—a lovely, tomboy sister—so the honest Bojo doesn't need nurse an empty heart.

"Making Money" has little good workmanship in it; it is not finished or well-balanced.

A VERY FOOLISH VIRGIN.

THE FOOLISH VIRGIN. By Thomas Dixon. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

"THE FOOLISH VIRGIN" is parochial as a volume of Spurgeon; that it is not intended to be anything more than a sermon against divorce in no way mitigates its loose construction, flagrant padding and superficial presentation of the problem.

Mr. Dixon has both literary fire and skill;

THE RUSSIAN SENSATION.

Michael Artzibashef, Slavic Realist, has Startled, Shocked, Disgusted and Thrilled.

"SANINE" was introduced to American readers last spring, and a howl went up. It was a howling matter. Its publication disclosed creditable boldness on the part of B. W. Huebsch, the publisher, for up to that time "Sanine" was perhaps the most "shocking" novel ever offered for general circulation in America.

But following "Sanine" came "The Millionaire" (B. W. Huebsch,) and a few weeks ago the "Breaking-Point" (B. W. Huebsch) appeared—all by Michael Artzibashef, all turbulently disreputable as to morals, all intense, high-pitched and graphic.

Of the three books, "Sanine" is the best sustained.

"The Millionaire," a novelette published in the same volume with "Ivan Lande" and "Nina," is a short, realistic study of wealthy men in dissipation, and contains chapters that spare little detail in showing tipsy millionaires raffling off a half-disrobed, acquiescent woman to the highest bidder.

"Breaking-Point" is a bulky volume, full of madness, suicides, seductions, wretchedness. But there is method in the madness, a method showing the hopelessness and helplessness of people weak in will, baffled by life, distrait with casuistry, lacking the resilience to recuperate from disgrase, so they rush from the world through suicide. Some six persons kill themselves in "Breaking-Point," and none but the old Dr. Arnoldi, apathetic, resigned, have much more than a trace of sanity—unless it is Nelly, a woman sickened with life and pinched by disease.

Sanine, the titular hero of the first book, may be loosely described as an intellectual, negative anarchist. He detests the conventions of society, the conventions of morality, politics, honor. He is no propagandist, though he speaks plainly; and he wants no one to argue with him. He prefers to be let alone.

Artzibashef, in an introduction to "The Millionaire," says: "I tell you that I consider it ("Sanine") neither a novel of ethics nor a libel on the younger generation. 'Sanine' is the apology for individualism: the hero of the novel is a type. In its pure form this type is still new and rare, but its spirit is in very frank, bold and strong representation of new Russia."

Rare, indeed, is the type to which Sanine belongs, and though it may have a representation in new Russia, it is without voice in America.

Sanine refuses to fight a duel with an officer who has seduced his sister, because he thinks it silly to fight. He refuses to look upon his "disgraced" sister in the orthodox fashion, because he considers her a wiser woman for her experience, just as beautiful and possessing all her former charming attributes but what he thinks is the largely valueless one of innocence. He tries, though he recognizes that it is hopeless, to persuade another girl that her own disgrace is no cause for humiliation and shame. He calls Yourii a "fool" for mumbling over the wherefore and why of life; and when Yourii commits suicide, Sanine, being called upon to say something at the grave, speaks not in the manner of an epitaph, but gives an honest opinion to the astonishment and alarm of all present.

Artzibashef says, "I am an inveterate realist, a disciple of the school of Tolstoy and Dostoevski." He has become more than a disciple. It is not his themes that make the work striking, but the graphic phrases, the imaginative, spirited descriptions, flashing contrasts.

These books, and especially "Sanine," are far more conspicuous and valuable than they would be were our literature not suffocated by a lewd puritanism that enjoys intimations, but scorns revelations. No one of intelligence wants a flood of psychopathic novels, wants bestiality disclosed in every book, wants the pornographic literature that surreptitiously pervades every city and hamlet of the nation brought into the publishers' catalogues. But how anyone of intelligence can forbid the honest portrayal of unpleasant themes by competent, sincere authors is the amazing enigma that has disheartened and baffled American authors from Hawthorne to the immediate hour.

Life is not all absinthe, caviar and the cold slab of a morgue. Artzibashef and many other realists wear blinders and see neither to the right nor to the left. But before the introduction of Russian authors to this country the American realists were content with the glittering artifice of Mr. James and Mr. Howells, who recognized no society that did not gravitate to a tea cup. And no doubt the new realists following in the wake of the Russians will take unholy license with their sudden freedom; and even that will be a lesser evil than having them muted.

Artzibashef, as is a Slavic characteristic, is often tedious and tiresome with moralizing and conversational dialectics. But he is a free spirit; bold, forceful, his style at times shimmers with brilliancy, and he writes what he feels and is unafraid.

And the rank and file of our own authors? Well, the deportation of Gorki, for not being married to the woman he loved, by a nation that gleefully winks at Reno and revels in Robert W. Chambers, George Barr McCutcheon, Booth Tarkington, Josephine Dascom Bacon, George Randolph Chester, Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, and a thousand others like them or imitating them, is more eloquently convictive than ordered and impassioned words can be.

HEROIC AMERICAN SAILORS.

In "Heroic Deeds of American Sailors," by Albert F. Blaisdell and Francis K. Ball (Little, Brown & Co.,) the authors tell of notable and heroic feats performed by American seamen. A glorious record it is for the young people to read, for therein may be found the story of "Old Ironsides," "The Destruction of Gaspee," when Decatur burned the Philadelphia, how Cushing saved the fleet, and many other stirring incidents in naval and marine service.

BOOKS OF VERSE AND DRAMA.

WITH THE POETS.

AN AUTHENTIC POET.

THE COLLECTED POEMS OF RUPERT BROOKE. With an Introduction by George Edward Woodberry; and a Biographical Note by Margaret Lavington. John Lane Company, New York.

THE untimely and pathetic death of Rupert Brooke, the young English naval officer, who died of sun-stroke in the Dardanelles, intensifies attention and perhaps appreciation for the slender volume containing his collected poems.

At 29 Mr. Brooke was dead. An authentic poet was lost; a poet who, despite the early age at which he began writing, showed little of the immaturity characteristic of fledglings. He was a lover of beauty, as all poets, notwithstanding the more or less artificial reaction against Keats, are apt to be; and, as are most young men of reflective mind, he was vaguely troubled by life, by sheer existence.

There is what amounts to justification of things as they are in "The Vision of the Archangels"—a short poem with a solemn cadence:

"Slowly up silent peaks, the white edge of the world,
Trod four archangels, clear against the unheeding sky,
Bearing, with quiet, even steps, and great wings furled,
A little dingy coffin wherein a child must lie.
. . . .
Then from the sheer summit cast, and watched it fall,
Through unknown glooms, that frail black coffin—and therein
God's little pitiful Body lying, worn and thin,
And curled up like some crumpled, lonely flower petal
Till it was no more visible; then turned again
With sorrowful, quiet faces downward to the plain."

Many are his sonnets and rounded with the delicacy that bespeaks the competent singer, for his was a true poet's ecstasy, as "Failure," "The Hill" and "Finding" attest.

And these lines from the sonnet on death are reinforced by the memory associating with them the tragic untimeliness foreshadowed:

"Oh! Death will find me long before I tire
Of watching you, and swing me suddenly
Into the shade and loneliness and mire
Of the last land! There, waiting patiently,
One day, I think, I'll feel a cool wind blowing,
See a slow light across the Stygian tide,
And hear the Dead about me stir, unknowing,
And tremble."

THE JOLLY RHYMSTER.

THE LAUGHING MUSE. By Arthur Guiterman. Harper & Brothers, New York.

JAMES HUNEKER once came near to saying all masterpieces are melancholy. But there is a superstition to that effect anyway, so it doesn't matter. Coffins, tombstones, cadavers, corpses all mussed with blood, anguished women and men maudlin with dementia—those are the trappings of "masterpieces," especially in verse. Vide: "Spoon River Anthology," "Elegy in a Country Churchyard," "Thanatopsis," "Ceni" and all Byronic masterpieces emphasizing especially those Byron did not write.

But Mr. Guiterman has discovered that the muses are not all grim spinsters. And, while we lack the audacity to fly in the face of tradition and call any of his poems "masterpieces," since there is nothing gruesome or brutal in them, yet it may be said that they are unusually attractive, winged with buoyant rhythm, merry with wit and infinitely more enjoyable than "Night Thoughts" or other funereal meditations much respected by the literary high priests of Demos.

"The Quest of the Ribband" is a department-store epic of permanent value, veritably an Odyssey of the bargain hunter, and chronicles the exploits of the bold Lord Ronald. "Strictly Germ-proof" is also a classic of medicinal precaution. Listen to a few lines:

"The Antiseptic Baby and the Prophylactic Pup
Were playing in the garden when the Bunny gamboled up;
They looked upon the Creature with a loathing undisguised—
It wasn't Disinfected and it wasn't Sterilized."

What then happened to that Bunny makes joyful reading.

"Little Lost Pup" is fine; so is "A Tract for Autos," and "One Feather" has more irony in it for all the amusement of the lines than many a ponderous mysogynistic treatise.

Mr. Guiterman is also a rhymed reviewer of books, and it has been many a moon since the young Celtic poets received such appropriate analysis as this:

"Their hearts are bowed with sorrow;
They love to wail and croon;
They shed big tears when they sigh 'Machree,' Floods when they sob 'Aroon!'
For the Young Gaels of Ireland
Are the lads that drive me mad,
For half their words need foot-notes,
And half their rhymes are bad."

No, Mr. Guiterman doesn't write "masterpieces." He simply writes jolly little, witty little jingles that most everyone likes to read.

"HIGH PRIEST OF HORSE SENSE."

"HORSE SENSE" IN VERSES TENSE: By Walt Mason. A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

MR. MASON has evidently been inspired to his title by George Ade's epigram: "Walt Mason is the High Priest of Horse Sense."

The "Horse Sense" verses are characteristic of the most widely read poet in America. Day after day, year in and out, his verse greets the readers of the morning papers in many cities, and scarcely a month is without one or more contributions in the magazines. John Masefield has written "I don't know of any book which has struck me as so genuine a voice of the American nature."

This book is dedicated to Conan Doyle, and the verse on "Literature" probably gives the key:

"I like a rattling story of whiskered buccaneers, whose ships are black and gory, who cut off people's ears. A yarn of Henry Morgan warms up my jaded heart, and makes that ancient organ feel young and brave and smart. I like detective fiction, it always hits the spot, however poor in diction, however punk in plot; I like the sleuth who follows a clue o'er hill and vale, until the victim swallows his medicine in jail. I like all stories ripping, in which some folks are killed, in which the guns go zipping, and everyone is thrilled. But when I have some callers, I hide those books away, those good old soul enthrallers which make my evenings gay. I blush for them, by jingo, and all their harmless games; I talk the highbrow lingo and swear by Henry James. When sitting in my shanty, to 'have my picture took,' I hold a work by Dante, or other heavy book. But when the artist's vanished, I drop those dippy pomes, old Dante's stuff is banished—I reach for Sherlock Holmes."

"'Horse Sense' In Verses Tense" contains more than a hundred similar bits of verse, all plain spoken, catchy and adorned with homespun philosophy.

WITH THE DRAMATISTS.

LADY GREGORY'S PLAYS.

SEVEN SHORT PLAYS. By Lady Gregory. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

WHEN Lady Gregory recently visited Los Angeles she allowed it to be known through the medium of explicit words that she, and others identified with the modern Celtic drama movement, depreciated Irish humor and the public's demand that the Irish should be "funny;" also she singled out Charles Lever as an example of sycophantic clownishness.

Anyone unfamiliar with the lady's work would naturally fancy it to be anguishingly tragic—which it is isn't.

In the "Seven Short Plays" most of them have touches of humor, two are irresponsible farces, and the best—"The Rising of the Moon"—is a comedy with somber undertones; while "The Workhouse Ward" is pure comedy of the kind often associated with Irish merriment.

"Spreading the News" is a farcical presentation of how Dame Rumor takes the most innocent act and speedily turns it into a criminal outrage. A man who runs after a friend to return a forgotten pitchfork is within a few minutes arrested for murder without a further bit of evidence against him.

"Hyacinth Halvey" is just as farcical without anything like as big an idea. While "Spreading the News" satirizes gossip, "Hyacinth Halvey" satirizes the reputations for goodness and honesty that office-seekers build up through letters of recommendations from friends. In this case it is a reputation which, much to Halvey's disgust, he cannot change, though he steals a sheep and robs a church to do so.

"The Traveling Man" is the only one in which Celtic "mysticism" may be said to appear.

"The Rising of the Moon" is easily the most dramatic, best sustained and has a theme that wins sympathy. Police officers attempt to apprehend an Irish patriot who lives up to his fame as a daring man, and he succeeds in escaping—but not by either violence or cunning.

Other plays are "The Jackdaw" and "The Gaol Gate." All of them show close attention to the higher demands of dramaturgy, are interesting and appealing.

A HOWLING BRITISHER.

ARMAGEDDON. By Stephen Phillips. John Lane Company, New York.

AGAIN Mr. Phillips, the greatly lauded, "the greatest living exponent of the poetic drama" et cetera, essays the thunderous lines of a Marlowe and squeaks like an adolescent youth singing bass.

"Armageddon" is a play in four scenes, a prologue and an epilogue, the last two laid in hell, where Satan, Beelzebub, Moloch, Belial and the shade of Attila plot in wretched blank verse to seize the world through personifications of Madness, Famine, Massacre, Rape, Craft, Pillage and other Germanic attributes.

The four scenes make no pretense at sequence. Scene III is perhaps intentionally a farce, showing how the director of the German Press Bureau is removed for once allowing even a harmless bit of the truth to get over the wires.

Scene I portrays the destruction of Rheims Cathedral, and scene IV offers the contrast of the noble restraint the English and allies will exercise when they get to Cologne—which seems to be somewhat farther off than Tipperary.

The German general before Rheims answers the remark that the Red Cross flag flies over the cathedral by saying, "That gives a good mark, eh?" And to a French soldier he roars: "Now, understand, you dog, we are here to bring you our Kultur. If you will not take it with a spoon, you must take it from the shell. It must be battered into you."

The Director of Publicity, overwhelmed by being found truthful, wails: "There is against me no previous conviction of veracity. I defy all of you here to charge me with telling the truth on a single occasion."

The English publicists would have us believe that only the German men of letters have defiled their pens to write puerile and vicious outbursts against their foes. Yet Mr. Phillips is "the greatest living," etc.

LOYAL GERMAN-BRITISHER.

SEARCHLIGHTS. By Horace Annesley Vachell. George H. Doran Company, New York.

A SWARM of British authors have told us of the traitorous German, the "contemptible" spy who held an ostensible allegiance to England and a real one to the Fatherland; but in "Searchlights" may be found a German so Teutonic that he butchers his adopted language, makes a conspicuous point of eating German food, has all of his wealth invested in German securities, and yet remains loyal to his adopted country.

Original and unexpected as that phase is, it is rather of secondary importance to the play. The dominating interest is found in the domestic infelicity of Robert Blaine, an English banker, his wife and her son—whom Blaine does not believe is his own.

A photograph of Mrs. Blaine's former wooer so nearly resembles Harry Blaine that it is easily mistaken for his own, and about this picture develops the crucial antagonism that Mr. and Mrs. Blaine have long felt for each other.

Harry is rather a careless young sportsman, always in debt, and contemplates marriage—largely as a matter of convenience—with the daughter of the loyal Britisher, Adalbert Schmaltz. Blaine himself objects to the marriage because the girl is too good for an unloving husband, such as it seems Harry would prove.

But war comes; Harry fights nobly and comes back wounded. Blaine proudly pays his debts, feels that the stain of doubtful parentage is gallantly obliterated and, discovering that Harry really loves the maiden, gives his blessings.

The character of Schmaltz, largely a caricature, does much to make the play interesting. Schmaltz is the only pleasing character; circumstances force the others into rather disagreeable attitudes—Harry is especially detestable. And the play is neither significantly strong in theme nor conspicuously artistic in presentation.

"K" POPULAR.

The demand for "K," Mary Roberts Rinehart's latest novel, shows the growing popularity of this always-popular author. The book is now in its ninth printing. "Little Miss Grouch," by Samuel Hopkins Adams, which Houghton Mifflin Company published the 18th of this month, is already in its second printing.

AMERICAN LITERATURE.

An Analytical Inquiry into the Work of Our Contemporaries by a Competent Judge.

AUTHORITATIVE criticism of American literature is the rarest feature of American literature—rarest in the sense that it is the least in evidence, and what does exist is chiefly in the hands of immature reviewers, wholly lacking perspective and largely ignorant of values, whose opinions attain—and deserve—no more permanence than the edition of the daily paper or current magazine in which they appear.

In "A History of American Literature Since 1870," Fred Lewis Pattee, professor of English in the Pennsylvania State College, with marked thoroughness and competency sifts the subject. His judgments are reasonable and positive; he is not awe-stricken by reputations, nor is he actuated by iconoclasm.

His estimate of William D. Howells and Henry James—popularly and esoterically conceded to be the greatest living American authors—is carried through many pages while he shows their analogous development and success.

Both, he says, are finished authors, polished, reserved, cold, schooled in wit and observing a remarkable purity of style.

But "no one ever sheds a tear over a page of either Howells or James. One admires their skill; one takes a certain pleasure in the lifelikeness of the characters—especially those of Howells—but cold lifelikeness is not the supreme object of art; manners and outward behavior are but a small part of life. Unless the novelist can lay hold of his reader's heart and walk with him with sympathy and conviction, he must be content to be ranked at last as a mere showman, and not a voice, not a leader, not a prophet."

Among the chapters on poets may be found the first comprehensive discussion—not mere laudation or disparagement—of the poetical epoch between the close of the Civil War and the death of Joaquin Miller. Of Miller it is said: "Three-fourths of all he wrote is lifeless and worthless, but the other quarter is to American poetry what the Rockies are to American landscape. Few poets have so needed an editor with courage to reject and judgment to arrange."

Whitman is given a high place, and his is called "the voice of the wilderness that hailed its dim morning (of the later poetical period) and the strong singer of its high noon." But this graphic and amusing passage describes something of the impression Whitman made on the New England classicists: "He came as the first loud protest against sentimentalism, against Longfellowism, against a prudish drawing-room literature from which all life and masculine coarseness had been refined. Whitman broke into the American drawing-room as a hairy barbarian, uncouth and unsqueamish, a Goth let loose among ladies, a vandal smashing the bric-a-brac of an over-refined generation. He came in with a sudden leap, unlooked for, unannounced, in all his nakedness and vulgarity, like a primitive man, and proceeded to sound his barbaric yawp over the roof of the world. He mixed high and low, blab and divinity, because he knew no better . . . and he poured it all out in a melange without coherence or logical sequence."

On another subject Prof. Pattee finds himself in conflict with popular opinion, especially that part of it represented by magazine editors, in declaring "in the mid-eighties came the perfecting of the form, the molding of the short story into a finished work of art," and he thinks the stories of Stockton, Bierce, Bunner, Stephen Crane and Frank Norris "may be compared with even the best of the French school of the same period." The modern fashion of blowing up a keg of dynamite for a climax doesn't appeal to him, and he charges that O. Henry and "Chimmie Fadden" and others have "debauched the short story and made it the mere thing for the day . . . it imparts to the reader little save a momentary titillation and the demand for more."

It is surprising, nearly amazing, to find Marion Crawford receiving about the strongest praise and being marked with fewest infelicities of any novelist of the period. Prof. Pattee says: "He has created a marvelous gallery of characters, taking his forty-five novels together, complex and varied beyond that produced by any other American novelist, and there are surprisingly few repetitions. He stands undoubtedly as the most brilliant of the American writers of fiction, the most cosmopolitan, the most entertaining." The chief indictment against him is that "he works without deep emotion, without tenderness, without altruism, without the higher reaches of imagination."

Eggleston, Mark Twain, Bret Harte, George W. Cable and Thomas Nelson Page are chief among the other writers of fiction whose works (almost in each case the credit going to the earlier writings) have been influential and of permanent value. Margaret Deland is also ranked high.

The more "popular" contemporaries—as Booth Tarkington, Jack London, Gertrude Atherton, Edith Wharton, Winston Churchill—are passed over without comment as being too immediate and not having settled into any historical significance.

Prof. Pattee has accomplished the arrangement of the periods and schools so that his discussions may be easily followed, and one is not bewildered by names and groups, of which there are a great number, for no author of any importance at all up to the last decade has been allowed to escape a sharp scrutiny.

CLYDE FITCH.

CLYDE FITCH recognized that the audience was the court of last resort and he appealed directly to it. He said the "audience has the right to demand respect and consideration. . . . It wants to be entertained, interested; if in an artistic way, so much the better—as witness the great triumph generally of good plays artistically done. But it will not be bored by 'art for art's sake,' if that art is bunkum and really talk about art for business' sake!"

In the "Memorial Edition" (Little, Brown & Co.,) edited with an introduction by Montrose J. Moses and Virginia Gerson, twelve plays are included in the four volumes, which means that twenty are absented by a discrimination that selected the most finished and best known.

Mr. Fitch nearly ruined himself with the dramatic critics through such plays as "Beau Brummel," "Nathan Hale," "Barbara Frietchie" and "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," for he was romantic at a time when the critics, louder than Richard III clamoring for a horse, were crying out: "Give us life! Give us the horrors! No man can be a good dramatist without a grisly theme."

And when he did turn to modern themes, and put on the stage some of America's most incisive society plays, still his wit and craftsmanship made them too interesting for the gore-loving critics. He never forgot that the audience wants to be entertained; he was not sycophantic—he considered it a courtesy due those who were invited as his audience.

The two substantial grievances against Mr. Fitch are that he halted the action often to be entertaining and that he was inveterately addicted to the happy ending. For it is manifestly as much an error to make all life's problems end happily as to follow the obsession of the modern Frenchmen and Russians and have them all end tragically.

"The Climbers" marked the transition step in Mr. Fitch's work from the romanticism to the society plays, and "The Climbers" is the most pitiless of his pictures of life. It begins with somberness and ends with tragedy, rounding with perfect finish the anguish and futility of the social climbers' ordeal.

Excepting "Lovers' Lane," Mr. Fitch placed his comedies in or on the outskirts of "high society," and comedy is the dominant note in "The Stubbornness of Geraldine," "The Girl with Green Eyes" and "Her Own Way"—the last being written for Maxine Elliott, as "Beau Brummel" was for Mr. Mansfield.

"The Girl with Green Eyes" should not be understood as "deliberate comedy;" it is, as the title implies, a study of jealousy done with adroitness and lightened by the inimitable brightness of his lines.

"The Truth," "The Woman in the Case" and "The City" are strong melodramas—"The Woman in the Case" having little more than the dramatist's craftsmanship to recommend it, for the woman is absurdly venomous and the whole machinery of the play scarcely other than an offering to the gallery gods.

But Mr. Fitch respected the gallery audience and the matinee girls. "Personally I love the matinee girl," he has said. "She believes in youthful love, ideals, self-sacrifices, and I want to. She believes in romance in real life—I want to." And another expression of his respect and admiration for the audience appears when he speaks of "the lonely grandeur" of "The Play that is Too Good for the Public." He is emphatic that there is no such thing, for "the true Big Play makes the universal appeal to the plush minds downstairs and the upholstered hearts in the gallery."

All of the plays mentioned are included in the Memorial Edition.

For Christmas The Money Master

"All the people of the money master's world are real and living; faults, failings, sins, sorrows, charms, repulsion, there is no doubt of their identity, their spell of pleasing. The atmosphere is refreshingly unlike that of most novels of the day."

BEHIND THE BATTLE LINES OF EUROPE.

EMILE VERHAEREN.

BELGIUM'S AGONY. By Emile Verhaeren. Translation and Introduction by M. T. H. Sadler. Containing three poems untranslated and not before published in book form. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

EMILE VERHAEREN has voiced the rage and pain, agony and defiance of Belgium—a Belgium stripped, debauched, unabashed, unashamed and furious for vengeance.

He shows the unconquerable soul of his people. And, though he writes in prose, swinging into an epic cadence he cries: "Germany did not even attack us face to face. "She schemed and lied and even flattered. To within two hours of a cruel ultimatum she was breathing forth the purity of her intentions. She could have dared to offer open battle, but she preferred a treacherous ambuscade. And by this deed she has created against herself in the hearts of Belgians a hatred so passionate and so universal that it will go down from generation to generation to a depth that no man can foretell. So far as any human sentiment can be, this hatred will be eternal. It will become a part of the education of our primary schools, it will be a tradition in our families, an instinct in our homes. It will be for us a hallowed reserve of rage and vigor."

So speaks the foremost poet of Belgium. And his is truly a passionate, thrilling book—even terrible in the depths of emotion disclosed.

He cries out indignantly against those who have refused to believe reports of German atrocities. "Burning houses, stolen possessions, human beings driven into captivity are a mere background for the better setting of the horrors which take the front of the stage. And this foreground is devoted entirely to the torture of old men, of women and of children. . . . Always it was methodical, for everything is rigidly disciplined in Germany, even madness. . . . I know well that one habit of German military usage is to deny proven facts and attribute crimes immediately to the other side. But this method becomes daily less practicable. Too many horrors have been committed. The loathing aroused is too deep and too universal. Too many mouths are crying aloud for vengeance. Their noise overbears and drowns the muttering of lies."

He pays a magnificent tribute to his King, calling him "Albert the Well-beloved," who "alone of all the kings and emperors concerned in this war, has been one with his soldiers, sharing their dangers and their glory. He has lived in the trenches, eating and smoking as his simple troopers eat and smoke."

Then follows a comparison between Albert I and William II, ending with a deep, poignant sarcasm thus: "No King-cripple will ever be popular in Belgium. Our sovereign must be able to wield a sword in both hands."

He calls "Germany uncivilizable" because humor is the essence of civilization, and she is without it. Also that her Kultur belongs to the Middle Ages, when individualism was merged into the organization of guilds and groups, when individual initiative and invention was hindered because of the autocratic control of church and state. In Germany "everyone is the flunkey of the man above him. No pride, no self-respect can survive. The press is held on the leash. Literary and scientific thought are drilled and bridled. The man who resists the Emperor is broken."

But the poet scans the future hopefully; he sees the Germans routed, broken, overwhelmed and crushed. And a new Belgium will arise, even though "it is true that for the moment our factories are silent, apparently deprived of the panting breath which is their life. But no one really thinks them dead. As soon as the war is over they will spring to life again, the wonderful monsters that they were before. The weight of dust and ashes that now covers them will be a light burden to their thousands of tentacles when once again they spring, in their twisted energy, to the light of day."

Verhaeren has told the tragic story in phrases that are livid with hate; he glories in the defeat of his people, but makes of each groan and sign and tear, of each lintel stained with blood, of each cottage burned, one curse the more upon the invading hosts.

HALL CAINE IN ARMS.

THE DRAMA OF THREE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE DAYS. By Hall Caine. J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia.

STRANGE it is with what amount of platitudinous, patriotic adjectivism prominent authors discuss momentous events. Gilbert Parker, H. G. Wells, Conan Doyle, Arnold Bennett and now Hall Caine have declaimed from the rostrum in the book marts as though their distinguished reputations and fluency in fiction gave them voices of authority to speak on a question which, in its fundamental phases, belongs exclusively to statesmen, to profound economists and to military experts.

Hall Caine reviews the first year of the war. No one need read it to tell what his attitude and opinions are. That he has made his opinions for the most part interesting is to be expected of an author who holds thousands of readers to heel and writes with deep feeling on a subject dear to his patriotism. So dear, indeed, is it to his patriotism that at a time when England was filled with striking workingmen refusing to make shells and munitions for the country's army, at a time when Lloyd George was desperately exhorting the shirkers to their duty, Mr. Caine lauded those same workers with glorious phrases and represented that they have shown Spartan fortitude and inflexible allegiance.

Mr. Caine doesn't go beneath the frothing surface of the catastrophic struggle. He relates some personal experiences and observations of the Germans and ante-bellum inklings that war was probable; tells a few minor anecdotes of Cabinet episodes, and consumes the remainder of the space with running comments on different aspects of the war that are known to the wide world. Belgium and France and Italy and Russia are praised, and "our brave soldiers" and "our brave women" have protracted eulogies. No doubt they deserve them. They do. But the continuous high pressure of Mr. Caine's praise, his indiscriminate glorification of all things English and favorable to England, rather nullifies the effect of each and every part of the laudation and gives it all the appearance of an effervescent, uncontrolled, indiscriminate, unmeasured outburst of emotional enthusiasm.

A LITERARY REPRISAL.

IN GENTLEST GERMANY. By Hun Svedend. Translated from the Svengalese by E. V. Lucas. Illustrated by George Morrow. John Lane Company, New York.

TO APPRECIATE fully "In Gentlest Germany," one should have the recent book by Sven Hedin, the Swedish explorer, describing his experiences in Germany, his meetings with the Kaiser, Crown Prince, statesmen and soldiers; all of which was written in terms of high admiration for the Germans.

That Sven Hedin's book irritated the English was evident in the journalistic comment. It was sufficient to irritate anyone who has had joyful horror in circulating and believing all manner of atrocities, attributed to the national foe.

Mr. Lucas has responded with satire, and has been felicitously assisted by Mr. Morrow's illustration. "In Gentlest Germany" is clever, sustainedly clever, and skillfully parodies Mr. Hedin's choicest passages.

"Each airship is like the apotheosis of wurst (sausage,) the national food," exclaims the enthusiastic "Hun Svedend." Quoting the Kaiser, whose eyes filled with tears as he speaks, it is recorded: "There is something ineradicably untrustworthy, double-faced in the English character. Who would have thought that a nation which is always wrangling and scolding each other in print, and washing its dirty linen in public, and cannot control even an absurd little place like Ireland, would pull itself together in this strenuous way and declare war on me, a blood relation! I have been tricked, hoodwinked!"

Count Von Tirpitz is reported to have drunk too much at dinner and crawled under the table; whereupon the Crown Prince, "who has a pretty wit," remarked "with a dazzling smile": "Submarining."

The book is a "reprisal," made without verbal violence, and has amusement in it for even those not "fond" of England. One of the bright, satirical touches is the chapter tailpieces: The picture of a German soldier in full kit flying along with his feet close together and barely off the ground, but sustained by two little wings of the kind usually found on the cherubs of Raphael.

MARINISM EXPOUNDED.

THE WORLD'S HIGHWAY. By Norman Angell. George H. Doran Company, New York.

RALPH LANE ("Norman Angell") is veritably a chameleon with his citizenship. English he was; then American; again English, and now we find him saying "we" and "us" in "The World's Highway" and meaning "we Americans." It's all right, only it's just as well to remember his citizenship variability when considering his American viewpoint.

Large portions of "The World's Highway" are given over iterating and supporting much that has appeared in previous books. He takes pains explicitly to affirm that he only believes war is a futile way to settle international disputes; that the conqueror gains much less than he fancies; that he never said wars were preventable under the present mode of government, and that it is foolish for a state—as the United States—not to prepare for war.

The book's titular theme is something of a justification of England's control of the seas. Marinism, as contrasted with militarism, does not deleteriously affect each individual of the nation; it is possible for a state to build up a great navy and maintain it without new political doctrines and policies—as cannot be done with militarism.

And he believes that the world must take its choice between allowing England to control the seas or seeing her develop Prussian-like militarism in each of her colonies in order that they may more efficiently take care of themselves when Britain's great navy ceases to be a bulwark.

He takes the standpoint that a neutral is practically without rights during a state of war; that the neutral can neither have, nor expect, more rights—without fighting for them and ceasing to be neutral—than the belligerents voluntarily concede, and that, since war is founded on brutality, since it is an effort to destroy and injure the enemy in every way possible, it can't reasonably be expected that the belligerents will have a sympathetic regard for the neutral's pocketbook in checking such operations as seem advantageous to the enemy.

JAPAN'S DUPLICITY.

THE FALL OF TSING-TAU. By Jefferson Jones. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

MR. JONES, for some years a resident, correspondent and newspaper man in Japan, familiar with the Orient and its politics, was one of the few Americans present at the fall of Tsing-tau.

His descriptions of the beleaguered city and its fall—where a garrison of 4000 opposed 20,000—are not without interest, though lacking the graphic intimacy to which the reports of correspondents on the European fronts have accustomed the public. But these descriptions, both in length and importance, are subordinate to his purported disclosures of Japanese methods and policies.

He is decidedly of the opinion that Japan entered the war against the wishes of Great Britain; and that Japan had in mind the subjugation of China, which began with the wanton violation of China's neutrality and culminated in the martial menace that compelled China to accede to denationalizing demands imposed last May in the name of the Mikado.

The Japanese army, he says, was careless in matters of sanitation and in discipline after entering Tsing-tau; decidedly so in contrast to the strict order maintained by the British force acting as its ally.

He points out that British traders and residents view with alarm the aggrandizement of the Japanese in China; that the Japanese are neither so gallant as conquerors nor so honorable in business as reports have it; but that the only occasion likely to draw Japan and the United States into war will be if we stand by our friendship with China.

Little faith, he explains, is to be placed in Japan's official and diplomatic utterances. Often and emphatically she has vouched for the territorial integrity of China, and yet wrenched off one piece of territory after another—Formosa, Liao-tung Peninsula, Korea, Shan-tung.

The book is one to arouse the ire of pacificists, and perhaps furnish a text for jingoists—neither is a part of Mr. Jones's intention; but in either case it directs attention, belated attention, to momentous events in the Far East that are casting ominous shadows over, not only the United States, but the whole Occident.

GUEST OF THE GRAND DUKE.

WITH THE RUSSIAN ARMY. By Robert R. McCormick. The Macmillan Company, New York.

MR. M'CORMICK, by good fortune, was invited to the Russian front as the guest of the Grand Duke Nicholas, was given an audience with the Czar, hobnobbed with Russian generals and princes, and saw the Russian army in detail and perspective.

The book was written before the Russian reverses last summer, and in view of those smashing and repercussive defeats much of his enthusiasm for the Slavic war machine now seems exaggerated.

He is confident that it was the Grand Duke who halted the Prussian advance on Paris by making inroads into Germany; he pronounces Nicholas the greatest general the war has produced; the Cossacks the finest cavalry in the world; the Russian artillery superior to that of any other country; and reproduces maps of forts (given, he says, as a token of Russian courtesy for the enlightment of the United States) and urges America to build similar defenses.

The impression conveyed is that Mr. McCormick was carried into irresponsible admiration by the courtesy of the Russians and their initial successes.

FRANCE IN ARMS.

Edith Wharton Tells How a Nation Lost its Nervousness and Fights on with Fortitude.

EDITH WHARTON has the rare gift for using a capital "I" without putting it in italics. Many of the correspondents, and not always the youthful ones, visiting the war zone have reached such heights of ecstatic wonderment as to confine their attention almost wholly to their own emotions and subordinate the epochal events to a prolix recital of what they think and feel.

Mrs. Wharton has been in the war zone from the day Germany crashed through the Belgian frontier. She saw France enter into travail and has closely, intimately observed the transformation of the people since that day, and tells of it in "Fighting France" (Charles Scribner's Sons.)

When war came, she says, "there were no cheers, no gesticulations: the dramatic sense of the race had already told them that the event was too great to be dramatized. Like a monstrous landslide it had fallen across the path of an orderly, laborious nation, disrupting its routine, annihilating its industries, rending families apart and burying under a heap of senseless ruin the patiently and painfully-wrought machinery of civilization."

Anguishing as was the ordeal, yet "looked back upon from these sterner months, those early days in Paris, in their setting of grave architecture and summer skies, were the light of the ideal and the abstract. The sudden flaming up of national life, the abeyance of every small and mean preoccupation, cleared the moral air as the streets had been cleared and made the spectator feel as though he were reading a great poem on War rather than facing its realities."

But even the realities of war have not wholly eliminated certain feminine weaknesses for department-store bargains. There is no explanation of the crowding of the department stores except "the fact that woman, however valiant, however tried, however suffering and however self-denying, must eventually, in the long run and at whatever cost to her pocket and her ideals, begin to shop again. She has renounced the theater, she denies herself the tearooms, she goes apologetically and furtively (and economically) to concerts—but the swinging doors of the department stores suck her irresistibly into their quicksand of remnants and reductions."

Mrs. Wharton succeeded in visiting many of the battle fronts, and her descriptions are particularly vivid and impressive. "Modern Nieuport seems," she writes, "to have died in a colic. No less homely image expresses the contractions and contortions of the houses reaching out the appeal of their desperate chimney-pots and agonized girders. There is one view along the exterior of the town like nothing else on the war front. On the left a line of palsied houses leads up like a string of crutch-propped beggars to the mighty ruins of the Templars' Tower; on the right the flats reach away to the almost imperceptible humps of masonry that were once the villages of St. Georges, Ramscappelle, Pervyse. And over it all the incessant crash of the guns stretches a sounding-board of steel."

No war book that we have seen has less high tension in it. Mrs. Wharton writes with ease. She was impressed sensitively, but records her impressions without a trace of strain, and one of the most glowing passages in "Fighting France" describes the Rheims Cathedral.

"When the German bombardment began the west front of Rheims was covered with scaffolding; the shells set it on fire, and the whole church was wrapped in flames. Now the scaffolding is gone, and in the dull provincial square there stands a structure so strange and beautiful that one must search the Inferno, or some tale of eastern magic, for words to picture the luminous unearthly vision. The lower part of the front has been warmed into deep tints of umber and burnt sienna. This rich burnishing passes, higher up, through yellowish-pink and carmine, to a sulphur whitening to ivory; and the recesses of the portals and hollows behind the statues are lined with a black denser and more velvety than any effect of shadow to be obtained by sculptured relief. The interweaving of color over the whole blunted, bruised surface recalls the metallic tints, the peacock-and-pigeon iridescences, the incredible minglings of red, blue, umber and yellow along the Gulf of Aegina."

The French people have lost their petulant nervousness. Mrs. Wharton says that a great, resolute calmness seems to have settled on the nations and be reflected in the faces, "They are calm, meditative, strangely purified and matured. It is as though their great experience has purged them of pettiness, meanness and frivolity, burning them down to the bare bones of character, the fundamental substance of the soul."

Many of the war books that have appeared are unmistakably of permanent value, though most of them are raucous, falsified impressions and a great many show the authors' literary agony in attempting to do something "original," "striking." Mrs. Wharton's "Fighting France" is among the books that will be long remembered. It cannot be otherwise, for her descriptive passages are unrivaled; she has written with deep feeling and of a people who are not strangers to her.

WAR AS SEEN BY THE DEAD.

WAR LETTERS FROM A LIVING DEAD MAN. Written Down by Elsa Barker. Mitchell Kennerley, New York.

"LETTERS from a Living Dead Man," published last year, purported to be communications made from across the grave by Elsa Barker by the late Judge David P. Hatch of Los Angeles. They aroused much interest and comment, being received as authentic in many quarters.

These new letters purport to disclose farther life as it is after death, and also to reveal something of the mighty astral devils, angels, monsters and masters battling for supremacy, and whose conflicting wills are functioning through statesmen and soldiers and nations and races—the Germans serving the powers, Darkness. This feature is wholly familiar to initiates in occult sodalities and to most students understanding the theosophical conception of karma.

So, naturally, the chief interest is in his recital of incidents. To the courteous skeptic the most surprising aspect of the alleged revelations are their repleteness with trivialities and the unimpressiveness of the more significant and dramatic episodes.

The communicant's encounter with the distressed Nietzsche, lamenting that his superman propaganda has brutalized a nation, conveys the impression that both the ghost of Judge Hatch and the ghost of Nietzsche have retained only very hazy notions of what the living Nietzsche wrote. Nietzsche was a man of colossal intellect and remarkable powers of expression; Judge Hatch was a man of capabilities, yet the recorded conversation is extremely unimpressive.

Also—with no intention of ridicule—it may be pointed out as very difficult to understand how Judge Hatch's (when saying he is a very unimportant figure compared to the teachers and masters) services are so important to the devil that his satanic majesty in person offered to stop the war (by unscrupulous methods) if Judge Hatch would transfer allegiance to him. And, too, the statement that the devil used a long-distance telephone to eavesdrop on the conversation between Nietzsche and Judge Hatch rather repulses some readers actually struggling to be credulous and have faith.

Lincoln, it may be learned, relinquished heaven that he might remain on watch at the White House during this crucial period for America. Serbia is pestilential because of the "thought-form" monsters energized by an old magician. England will triumph because she has always lent herself to spreading civilization. The reaction of democracy in Germany will give rise to muckraking and licenses of individualism.

Soldiers killed in battle often are not aware of the transition from life to death. The outraged spirits of mutilated Congo negroes incited the Germans to horrible atrocities in Belgium. Fierce, howling demons ride on the poison-gas fumes diffused by the Germans. Such are the more spectacular statements.

H. G. WELLS.

The English Novelist Sums up Long Years of Studying and Questioning in His Latest Novel.

THE RESEARCH MAGNIFICENT. By H. G. Wells. The Macmillan Company, New York.

"THE RESEARCH MAGNIFICENT" is psychological chemistry, a testing of troublous ethics over the flame of William Porphyry Benham's life; tedious as fiction, but big as a societal inquiry.

Mr. Wells has been growing up to this book for years. He may write of Dr. Moreau or of Mr. Polly, of sky-sweeping adventures or of runaway boys. He has done those things and worse, including stuffy essays weighted with a wingless imagination—not that his flights of fancy are usually Icarian, but, being a master of fiction, what else he essays necessarily has imposed upon it the demerit of inequality.

Mr. Wells is a protean literarian; he takes many forms and has more whimsies than a countess. Sometimes he assumes the sportiveness of a frisky elephant, is just as cumbersome with his farce. Sometimes he raps his knuckles at the portals of heaven's zenith, and, failing to be answered with the secrets of the universe, makes up tales that he considers plausible as a substitute. And sometimes he writes a remarkably fine, straightaway novel, as "Tono Bungay" and "The Wife of Sir Isaac Harmon." But after every literary escapade he comes back to his laboratory and takes up the glass mask, the stained apron, and busies himself with retorts and jets of blue flame, becoming a sociological Torquemada seeking secrets for the monstrous god truth.

And so in "The Research Magnificent" is an analysis of all that William Benham finds as he pursues his search for true ethics, explores obscure lands, sifts the castes of society and establishes definitely the four limitations restricting humanity to its social pigsty.

The book purports to be made up from Benham's literary remains, linked together with some reminiscences of the literary executor. (The similarity of construction between this and "Boon" is another reason—if other reasons were needed—for thinking Mr. Wells mistaken when denying that he wrote "Boon.") So in effect it becomes the autobiography of a gentleman, one who seeks to attain an aristocracy of mind, the true nobility.

In youth he discovers the first limitation is fear. But he finds that fear is superficial that "once you have forced yourself or have been forced through the outward fear into vivid action or experience, you feel very little. The worst moment is before things happen." And, though timid of animals as a boy, in the end he walks through a jungle at night and, face to face with a tiger, pronounces with lifted hand: "I am Man"—and the beast bounds away.

The second limitation is physical indulgence—sex, food, pampering comforts. Being something of an ascetic, he has less of a struggle here. But the sex question, as discussed with an old friend and learned professor, is boldly stated, but with enigmatic emphasis. The scholar, who is much the normal man, demands: "Is this lovemaking a physical necessity for most men and women, or isn't it? There's a simple question enough, and is there anything whatever in your confounded wisdom of the ages to tell me yes or no? Can an ordinary celibate be as healthy and vigorous as a mated man? Is a spinster of 38 a healthy human being? Can she be? I don't believe so. Then why in thunder do we let her be? Here am I at a center of learning and wisdom and I don't believe so; and there is nothing in all our colleges, libraries and rooms full of wiseacres here to settle that plain question for me, plainly and finally."

Benham himself is no celibate. But after a spirited honeymoon he stumbles upon the border line of the third limitation—jealousy. And severe, indeed, is the test to his soul when his wife is taken in faithlessness and he tortures himself to find the noblest road of conduct over which to proceed.

As a world-wanderer, studying men of all climes and all conditions, visiting the ruined palaces of Hayti, being in the thick of a pogrom at Kieff, among the labor strikes at Johannesburg, he finds the fourth limitation is prejudice. Race prejudice, class prejudice, brutal, fierce obstinacy to opening an honest ear to the arguments of the man with whom you disagree.

Benham is essentially a Sir Galahad of modernity, a white knight on the quest for truth—but somehow he fails, fails nobly, but inevitably. And Mr. Wells is too wise a man not to know that in a lesser, frailer way Benhams are all about us, seeking ideals amid the brambles of limitations. That is why the book reaches so far. It states anew the age-old problem, poignant in each generation, and gives a hopeful answer, futile perhaps, but inspiring.

"The Research Magnificent" is by far the deepest—yes, and highest, too—of Mr. Wells's books. Its genesis is evident in "Tono Bungay;" much of the material and form of treatment was present in "The Passionate Friends," but that lacked wholly the loftiness of tone, the true aristocracy of spirit present here. On the slender, golden thread of narrative are hung some of the rarest passages, perfect in style and aglow with ideas, that may be found in all of his works. It is an honest book, written by one who dwells on the heights.

THE ENGLISH RECRUIT.

PRIVATE SPUD TAMSON. By Capt. R. W. Campbell. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

"PRIVATE SPUD TAMSON" is unique in more ways than two. It's a good story, one that will displease most people, particularly hero worshipers; it gives an intimate view by a qualified authority of England's efforts to whip raw recruits into fighting shape; and it glorifies the hoodlums, riff-raff, poverty-stricken devils who in times of peace haunt alleyways and tap tills.

A man who once had considerable experience with soldiers, Napoleon, said: "The worst men make the best soldiers." Something of the kind appears in this tale of modern warfare.

None but one wholly familiar with the rough recruits would essay a book of this character. He shows the manhood and courage that considerate discipline and the affectionate but stern regard of officers may cultivate in the waifs and strays of society.

This is the story of a ragamuffin who enlists and is put through the paces that every recruit must tread; he shows the soldier at play, at work, being, figuratively (in Prussia it is said to be literally) kicked into shape by the noncommissioned officers.

Spud is the central character, the typical soldier from the slums—wily, sometimes a bit dishonest, but ever loyal, and—to make a story—his career is sketched through the bloody campaign of Flanders, where he courageously wins signal honors and achieves the highest distinction that can come to a soldier—that of saving his superior officer under fire.

Elemental England is reflected in this bit of fiction—the sturdy stuff that have made her legions glorious in India, Africa and on the continent. Decadent she may be on the surface, wretched she may be in her slums, but the old fighting courage—the kind that sticks when the "officers are dead and the sergeants turn white"—is there, is even in the scions of the decadent nobility and in the sons hovel-born, wretched.

To Men and Women Who Read to Learn, Rather than to "Kill Time," These New Books Will Appeal

The Royal Marriage Market of Europe

An absorbingly interesting chronicle of the private lives of royal personages by Princess Catherine Radziwill, for years a member of the intimate circles of European courts. Tells of the love tragedies and romances of the Habsburgs, the Hohenzollerns, and the Romanoffs; of the inner history of the marriages in the reigning houses of Spain, Italy, Belgium, Portugal, Denmark, Roumania, and Bulgaria; of the tempestuous alliances of the Bourbons; and of the wooings and weddings of the British Royal family. Large Octavo, Cloth, Illustrated. $2.00; by Mail, $2.16.

The Neutrality of Belgium

A striking and forceful book that will arrest and hold your attention. Written by Alexander Fuehr, Doctor of Law. It offers judicial and restrained presentation of the German view-point and sets forth Germany's claims to justification in invading Belgium, citing treaties, state documents, legal authorities, etc., in her support. It contends (1) that Belgium was not neutral; (2) that the treaty guaranteeing her neutrality had been void for years; and (3) that international law permitted Germany's action in this special case. 12mo. Cloth. $1.50; by Mail, $1.62.

How to Live

Practical rules for healthful living based on modern science, authorized by and prepared in collaboration with the Hygiene Reference Board of the Life Extension Institute, Inc., by Irving Fisher, Ph. D., Professor of Political Economy, Yale University, and Eugene Lyman Fisk, M. D., Director of Hygiene of the Institute, with a foreword by William Howard Taft. The latest and best presentation on individual hygiene, and that care of the personal and family health, that is the most necessary duty of every man and woman. 12mo. Cloth. $1.00; by Mail, $1.12.

How to Deal with Human Nature in Business

A new and thorough-going book of practical business direction, suggestion, and example by Sherwin Cody, A. M., based on the real psychology of dealings between man and man. Not so much a book about business as it is a book on how to do more business. Presents a series of forceful and illuminating talks on National Characteristics, Service, Your Own Valuation of Yourself, The Mind and How It Works, The Imaginative Method and Its Uses, Principles of Appeal, Proportion and Emphasis, Analysing a Business, Correspondence, Various Styles in Business Letter-Writing, System in Mail Order Correspondence, A Study of the Grocery Business, Collection by Mail, etc. Should be read by every man in business or who proposes to go into it. Crown, 8vo, Cloth. $2.00; by Mail, $2.12.

The Health-Care of the Growing Child

A help-book for mothers, by Louis Fischer, M. D., the well-known specialist in children's diseases and a famous writer on all that pertains to the care and well-being of the little ones. Informs the mother regarding the thousand and one details of ventilation, bathing, clothing, and personal hygiene that mean so much to the growing child; describes common ailments and their treatment, tells what to do till the doctor comes, etc. Every mother owes it to herself and the health and happiness of her child to own and study this wonderfully helpful new book. 12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. $1.25; by Mail, $1.37.

The Near East From Within

An extraordinarily fascinating volume of secret diplomatic history written from the inside by An Anonymous High Political Personage. In a series of remarkable revelations it turns the white light of truth upon the tangled web of intrigue that has led to the present astonishing alinement of forces in the Balkans, the pivotal point of the struggle now going on for world supremacy. The author has been a frequent visitor at the courts of the Near East and has there conferred with German, Russian, Servian, Bulgarian, Roumanian, Greek, and Turkish diplomats. Thus acquiring an unequaled first-hand knowledge of his subject. Read this book and get a grip on the actual facts of the case. Crown, 8vo, Cloth, 13 Photogravure Illustrations. $3.00; by Mail, $3.16.

KLEISER'S COMPLETE GUIDE TO PUBLIC SPEAKING

A great new comprehensive book by Grenville Kleiser on this important subject, concentrating in one volume the fruits of many years of practical experience. It sums up the advice of the world's foremost authorities upon every phase of public speaking and is the only extensive, encyclopedic, and exhaustive work of its kind ever issued. Its varied and exclusive contents are arranged alphabetically by topics and made immediately accessible by a complete index. Schools, libraries, and individual students will find this an admirable guide, and every orator, minister, lawyer, and man in public life should have it at his elbow. Royal 8vo, Cloth, Over 700 Pages. $5.00. Full Flexible Leather, $7.00; by Mail, 24 Cents Extra.

Latest Books of Fiction

a certain implacable fierceness and fearlessness have characterized his better-known books and the previous one, "The Victim." Presented anonymously, "The Foolish Virgin" would scarcely be ascribed to Theodore Dreiser sooner than to the author of "The Clansman" or "The Leopard Spots."

"The Foolish Virgin" is an ironical title descriptive of a young working girl who refuses to play the dangerous game of pleasure and dreams of her prince-to-be, who has not yet appeared.

He comes—an impetuous youth, uneducated, buoyant, eager. A hasty courtship ends in a quick marriage, and Mary Adams is horrified to learn that she has become the wife of a criminal.

The marriage ritual has been shown with impressive detail; the clause that bind forever emphasized. Obviously, she has made an inviolable contract; hastily, in innocence, in ignorance, she has given herself till death do part into the arms of a technical felon and deliberate robber.

Nevertheless, Mary believes she cannot live with this man. But the physician, who attends her approaching motherhood, impresses her duty upon her, shows himself to be a gyneolater, discredits the father's influence as a hereditary factor, and reconciles her to the reckless, binding promise. Whereupon the husband reforms with alacrity and makes good for permanency; wealth even comes, and of course, "happiness ever after."

Rats!

EIGHT MYSTERIES.

THE GOLDEN SLIPPER: And Other Problems for Violet Strange. By Anna Katherine Green. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

DILETTANTE detectives are common enough; but Miss Strange is something of a debutante as well—a daughter of wealth, a princess of social position, delicate, whimsical and deliberately appearing as just the woman who would be among the last on earth to take a personal interest in crime. Her reputation as a detective, though confined to a limited number of people, is very high and her methods, resembling those of many other fictional detectives, are presumably infallible.

Eight of Miss Strange's adventures are chronicled and have no tedious similarity between them, though the author of "The Leavenworth Case" has used some queer shifts on behalf of originality; as when the "lost" bullet is found in the throat of a strangled baby; as when a marriage takes place in a deserted house that leads to the bride catching a glimpse of a murderer next door; as when a somnambulist pastes a valuable will behind a picture.

The titular story will probably impress many as the best, since it has a peculiar ending, and reaches that ending with dexterity. The father of a wealthy girl who has four inseparable friends engages Violet Strange to determine which of the five has kleptomaniacal tendencies because rumor is beginning to indicate his own daughter. By staining her jewelry so the color will be transferred to the fingers of the thief, Violet succeeds in making more discoveries than she anticipated. The story gets the title of "The Golden Slipper" by having such a slipper left deliberately as a clew.

"The Grotto Specter" and "The House of Clocks," especially the latter, have scarcely a place with the others; and for sheer inventive imagination, "The Intangible Clew" and "The Dreaming Lady" are perhaps the most entertaining.

"AS THE TWIG IS BENT."

THE BENT TWIG. By Dorothy Canfield. Henry Holt & Co., New York.

DOROTHY CANFIELD, whose excellent work has been previously shown in "The Squirrel Cage" and "Hillsboro People," adds a serious, strong, finished and fully developed novel to the year's fiction in "The Bent Twig." The theme is closely related to her association with Montessori training and her authoritative books on motherhood and childhood.

But "The Bent Twig" is no repository for propaganda though the basic motive is to show something of how the spirit of home influence follows to guide with shadowy hands the young people through life.

It is a long novel, and would be intricate were it not ably wrought into a flowing narrative that draws many tributaries to the central theme which is of Sylvia, the daughter of a college professor in a small town.

Sylvia's sister, her cousins, aunt, mother, father, friends are all elemental figures in the story. Each character has a distinct role, a definitive personality.

The author's idealism has carried her to unusual extremes in having a wealthy young man abjure and surrender the whole of his wealth though socialistic influence, but the man's character is so adroitly developed as not to seem inconsistent.

Mrs. Canfield is an artist to her finger-tips; and technique—as it should be—is restrained and largely concealed. Her contrasts are effective without being strikingly obvious or startling.

Sylvia is largely fascinated by life, things that glitter attract. There is nothing bad, or even gay, about her. But she seems hardly able, as her sister is, to differentiate values in pleasure and people. Knowledge, or ethics, were not hammered into her as a child; the parents—the most charming characters of the story—have taken her intelligence for granted and allowed her to hear, speak and think as was perfectly natural.

In reality the story of three girls is told: that of the impetuous Molly, of the competent, lovely, quiet Judith, and that of Sylvia; and also the full story of two boys, and much of third. There is furthermore the story of the aunt, a story, which like some strange pattern, is not perceived at a glance, and it leaves wonderment as to whether she is a vampirish creature, or merely what she seems—an unfortunately selfish woman.

There is big work in "The Bent Twig;" it is a solid, artistic novel, not smashing or catastrophic, but constructive.

HEIGHTENED COMPLICATIONS.

THE HEART OF THE SUNSET. By Rex Beach. Harper & Bros., New York.

REX BEACH has found material for "The Heart of the Sunset" in the contemporaneous trouble along the Rio Grande. The heroic Texas ranger, a beautiful woman (married to a worthless man to heighten complications) and an assortment of villains appear—as is characteristic of them in "border" fiction.

Law, the ranger, steps into the hero's role in the opening chapter, when Mrs. Austin stumbles into his camp. Soon afterward he kills a Mexican, which gives a motive of revenge to the dead man's cousin and father, and heightens complications.

Mrs. Austin, intent upon seeing how her Mexican interests have fared at the hands of rebels, crosses the border and a Mexican general plunges into love for her. Complications heightened.

Mr. Austin, a rather timid scoundrel with a love for "booze," is implicated with rustlers and smugglers, as well as having a fondness for women other than his wife. Complications, etc.

But even with all those choice, thrilling, potentially harrowing situations the story's vitality is rather feeble. It isn't compact, it doesn't drive. The attractive feature in Mr. Beach's books has been largely his narrative force, and in "The Heart of the Sunset" is considerable discursive dawdling.

The story is intricate with complications; a fortune-teller, his snake-charming wife and the man who once pinched her furnish the burlesque; rangers cross the border to find the "corpus delicti" of an American citizen, and in the course of the adventure Mrs. Austin understands how very contemptible her husband is; the Mexican general hires an assassin who rather clears the field for law and saves Mrs. Austin the tedium of divorce proceedings, and when the beautiful Mrs. Austin is kidnaped, Law and a priest fly to the rescue.

That is a glimpse of the complications, all heightened, and the action bobbing around in the most approved melodramatic fashion. But as a novel it is a dull piece of hectic work.

BIOGRAPHY.

INTERPRETATION OF CHRIST.

THE MAN JESUS. By Mary Austin. Harper & Bros., New York.

IN "THE MAN JESUS," Mary Austin has perhaps astounded and amazed her admirers, but she has certainly confounded many of her detractors. In style, hypothesis and exposition, it is much finer than any book of its kind that has touched our experience; and while the orthodox will perhaps never look upon it as more than an ingenuous and mannerly effort to humanize the Christ, its ultimate place will likely be with, if not above, the book upon which Renan's fame is based.

Miss Austin enlarges out of all theologic proportions the importance of John the Baptist, and lays emphasis on the impetus given the religious movement that has been attributed to Jesus.

The heretical points—though there is such an absence of controversial attitude, such evident sincerity, a plausibility of conjecture that dissociated the book from heretical writings—are: That Jesus, after he became a teacher, only toward the last of his mission looked upon himself as the Messiah.

That the reputation of healer was forced upon him rather than sought. The physiological value of faith was better than the pharmacopoeia of the time; "between touching the robe of a prophet and a dose of mummy powder as a specific of internal disorders, the chances of recovery were immeasurably in favor of the prophet."

That Christ was not dead when taken from the cross, and that his resurrection was instead a return to consciousness which awesomely impressed his disciples who thenceforth fervently preached victory over the grave.

Of course, Miss Austin's study of Jesus is absolutely irreconcilable with even the faintest of orthodox creeds, though there is evident effort on her part to use no phraseology that will offend the most sensitive faith. She has advanced the hypothesis that will, we are sure, indubitably be accepted by those who believe Jesus to have been a great teacher and only that. And her very lack of argumentation is one of the most impressive features, and heightens exceedingly the convincing qualities of the book.

"R. L. S.": HIS LIFE

THE LIFE OF ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON. By Graham Balfour. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

THE WRITING of his biography was entrusted before his death by Stevenson to Mr. Balfour, a cousin. The present edition is the second, and is reduced in size and arranged to make it "generally more readable" than the other.

It is especially interesting because much of it is told in Stevenson's own words, being either remembered from conversations or taken from personal letters.

From the first stages of boyhood, as everyone knows, Stevenson was determined to, and did, write. His earliest stories were of harrowing and bloody adventures, but it was not long until he announced: "At last I am now done with morbidity and can wash my hands. I date my new departure from three circumstances: natural growth, the coming of friends, and the study of Walt Whitman."

Stevenson labored painfully and painstakingly for years before recognition came, and was keenly disappointed that when it did come it was in the form of general and enthusiastic appreciation for "Treasure Island."

When he first arrived at San Francisco he "there hired the cheapest lodging he could find, a single room in a poor house in Bush street. All his meals he took outside at some of the small restaurants; he lived at 70 cents a day and worked yet harder than ever."

Stevenson's struggle and perseverance have become historical, and of his ill health and work he wrote to George Meredith: "For fourteen years I have not had a day's real health; I have wakened sick and gone to bed weary; and I have done my work unflinchingly. I have written in bed, and written out of it, written in hemorrhages, written in sickness, written torn by coughing, written when my head swam for weakness. . . . And the battle goes on—ill or well, is a trifle; so as it goes."

Mr. Balfour's biography is a close, sympathetic study; a valuable companion work with Stevenson's own books.

MAXIM GORKY.

MY CHILDHOOD. By Maxim Gorky. The Century Company, New York.

"MY CHILDHOOD" is more like a novel than an autobiography; but it is of just such a childhood as one familiar with Gorky's writings would expect.

The one friend of his childhood, the one person whose affection for him was warm, was his grandmother, with whose family he and his mother went to live.

And an unwholesome and uncomfortable place it was. "My grandfather's house," he writes, "simply seethes with mutual hostility; all the grown people were infected and even the children were inoculated."

He describes his mother as a woman "lofty and severe," who "looked upon us all with her cold gray eyes, which were like the winter sun, and soon vanished again, leaving us nothing to remember her by." The uncles were quarreling or playing practical jokes on the old, purblind workman; the grandfather was selfish and hardhearted. Altogether it was an unlovely and distressing life, of which he says with optimism, by no means characteristic: "I imagine myself, in my childhood, as a hive to which all manner of simple, undistinguished people brought, as the bees to bring honey, their knowledge and thoughts about life, generously enriching my soul with what they had to give. The honey was often dirty and bitter, but it was, all the same, knowledge—and honey."

The boy made friends with almost everyone; he was eager with questions and exasperated all, even sometimes his grandmother, a noble and simple woman, with his pertinacious inquiries about everything from witches to the ethnic qualities of the Slavic race.

The book is replete with grim ep their effectiveness heightened by author's dramatic gift. From the day he stands in the darkened room by the of his dead father, to that other day the grandfather says; "There is no for you here. You will have to go the world," there is ever a skillful emphasis on the morbid and brutal dents. No chapter is without one or of them.

NEW AUTHORS WIN THE LAURELS.

A Survey of the Year's Fiction Shows that the New American Writers Have Done Work that Ranks with or Above that of the Established Authors in this Country.

THE VETERAN authors have done just about what was expected of them this year. They have written their annual novels and some have added a cubit to the height of their reputations, but most of them have not.

But then it is historically certified that the books longest remembered are usually those written by the author when he was comparatively "new," rather than when in the full bloom of his reputation, though the later books may have been assiduously praised and widely read as they appeared.

New authors, those who are yet impulsive, eager, on fire with ambition, not [illegible] out with age or taught cunning by experience, if they do good work at all, are likely—with even the infelicities of immaturity, which are not always more disagreeable than the obvious shimmering machinery with which veterans weave their plots—to do significant and notable work.

New authors are prodigal with material, prodigal with energy; they burn the candle of inspiration with never a thought of the [illegible] when, with sober pulse and calculating [illegible], they will conserve the structural timbers and make an elaborate use of tinsel trimmings, stretch and emphasize incidents, pad slender themes, maunder gracefully, [illegible] through inconsequential dialogue, and prick the interest with the hundred little tricks of technique.

This, 1915, has been, comparatively speaking, very nearly a distinguished year, especially for American authors. Work far above the average has been done.

Thanks may be returned that the realists control the citadel; that they would scarcely have more influence on current literature if they placed pickets about the publishers' presses and supported a censorship.

A number of things conspire to make it so, most important among which is the influence of the Russians, of the French, of the English—Mr. Wells, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Walpole, Mr. Beresford—and many Americans as well: Mr. Howells, Mr. James, whose influence is by no means in a state of "innocuous desuetude."

Realistic means, not salacious, or pornographic, but a truthful, detailed, transcript of life as seen by competent observers. Realists can be, and often are, irresponsible [illegible] as romanticists and classicists; but romanticists and classicists cannot write without colored spectacles on their noses—all of which is sometimes pleasing and entertaining, but at best it is little more than artistic amusement.

So it is that among the books representing the serious fiction of established American authors, realism dominates. A fairly inclusive cataloguing calls for: "The Turmoil," by Booth Tarkington; "Empty Pockets," by Rupert Hughes; "The Gray Dawn," by Stewart Edward White; "A Far Country," by Winston Churchill; "The Story of Julia Page," by Kathleen Norris; "The Genius," by Theodore Dreiser; "Angela's Business," by Henry Sydnor Harrison; "The Honey Bee," by Samuel Merwin, and "The High Priestess," by Robert Grant.

Each of these, without being parochial, makes a serious effort at presenting a theme of importance; there is something more than the complications into which characters get themselves, and something more than stage scenery for backgrounds.

Mary Roberts Rinehart, Margaret Deland, Robert W. Chambers, Jack London, Rex Beach, Thomas Dixon, Richard Harding Davis, Louis Joseph Vance, Henry Herbert Knibbs, Samuel Hopkins Adams, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Inez Haynes Gillmore and Amelie Rives have each put something new on to the market. Most of it is designedly light, some intended to be absorbing stories, much of it infinitely better than the other, but none of it both big with purpose and pregnant with value.

Mary Johnston alone of the American novelists who have ambitiously essayed modern themes returned to romance and went as far back as the Middle Ages in "The Fortunes of Darin."

Jean Stratton-Porter in "Michael O'Halloran" and Eleanor H. Porter in "Pollyanna Grows Up" made their usual nature fakes of children and were honored by a swarm of imitators.

"Ruggles of Red Gap," by Harry Leon Wilson, and "Dear Enemy," by Jean Webster, reached the uplands as books of real humor of high quality.

And no doubt every intelligent and experienced reader will feel inclined to quarrel over mentioning Rupert Hughes, for instance, among the most significant of the serious authors and Margaret Deland in a list with, for instance, Rex Beach. But "Empty Pockets," over-colored as it is, is yet a real and not unsuccessful attempt to show something vital, momentous of New York's social strata, while "Around Old Chester" (Deland) is merely good work revamped.

Those mentioned and listed include the fictional work of the most prominent American authors, with scant effort to differentiate their qualities or to distinguish the "best."

The important thing is that this year there came unexpectedly knocking against the gates new authors who have done work which, when the aura of the reputation is removed from the prominent authors and their books stand up merely as books and not as books by so and so, is worthy to rank with and above the very best that the prominent authors have done.

"The Harbor," by Ernest Poole, arrived unheralded by the insignificant writing which Mr. Poole had previously done, and shows three marked phases of the growth of New York as sensitively reflected in the harbor.

"Blue Blood and Red," by Geoffrey Corson (probably a pseudonym,) with exquisite art and intense feeling—a book positively remarkable in its adroit, forceful delicacy—is also of New York and presents the conflict between a decadent aristocracy and honest, full-blooded common folk. The character study of Ada, even granted that she is shown too precocious in youth, is perhaps the most finished, dexterous and delicate work of its kind in any novel of the year, English or American.

"The Good Shepherd," by John Roland (also probably a pseudonym,) of an American physician among the peasants of Tyrolean mountain. Higher criticism must recognize the flawed ending (even as in "The Harbor") which, though agreeable to the sentiments, is of less strength than the emotional pulse, stern realities, loftiness of tone, sustaining the story.

These three books are strained almost to the breaking point with repressed emotion. They are serious. They are big with purpose. They are pregnant in the appealing values. They illuminate the broad backgrounds against which they are cast. They have style, but not the refined dalliance of a Booth Tarkington or a Henry Sydnor Harrison. They are built of solid timbers; and are books that appeal to the emotions as well as to the brain. And no affirmation is needed—or has been given—by the authors to know that they put some of their own warm, life's blood into these novels.

Two other novels of exceptional value by Americans, who, however, cannot be called "new" though they can hardly be considered among novelists of nation-wide prominence, are "The Bent Twig," by Dorothy Canfield, and "The Song of the Lark," by Willa Sibert Cather. But with these two books they are definitely placed, not only among the most prominent, but among the best of the serious craftsmen.

Other new authors who have made a promise of good workmanship and high purpose are Joseph Hergesheimer in his second novel, "Mountain Blood;" Sinclair Lewis in a second novel "The Trail of the Hawk;" Therese Tyler in a first novel, "The Dusty Road," and, somewhat after the style of Kipling, but in no sense an imitation, Richard Matthews Hallet in "The Lady Aft." Though George Bronson-Howard is not new as an author he is new as a novelist; but "God's Man," though it has points of excellence rather resembling Rupert Hughes at his best, is garish and structurally defective, and should be taken as a promise instead of a distinguished achievement. "The Crown of Life," by Gordon Arthur Smith, is well developed, a substantial story with much strength and marked delicacy, and is practically a "first" novel.

The record of the newcomers in poetry has been even more remarkable, though none of the more distinguished have been wholly without previous literary experience. William Samuel Johnson's "Prayer for Peace" was one of the most notable volumes of poetry published during the year. It made its appeal, not through novelty of form or eccentricity of theme, but with pure rhythm and poetic conceptions.

"Spoon River Anthology," by Edgar Lee Masters, swept the country, being ecstatically hailed as "great," of "lasting fame" and with many other infringements on the prerogatives of posterity. A book of sterling substance, it is; depressing, largely morbid, but original, yet simple and true.

This year found a wide appreciation for Robert Frost's "North of Boston." Mr. Frost being a new poet who found occasion to bring out his book first in England, where it met with favor that was almost duplicated in America.

Lincoln Colcord, new as a poet, reached Whitmanic heights in the largely Whitmanic form of "Visions of War."

The laurel for poetic drama goes easily to William Lindsay's "Red Wine of Rousillon"—a piece of work admirably combining poetic treatment without sacrificing dramatic values.

Such is a glimpse of the more conspicuous and valued work done this year by the authors of promise, rather than those who have already done at least a large portion of their best work.

STUDIES IN LITERATURE.

AN ANALYSIS OF KIPLING.

RUDYARD KIPLING. By John Palmer. Henry Holt & Co., New York.

MR. PALMER is a competent critic. His estimate of Mr. Kipling's work, though too brief to be of great importance, is illuminating and valuable.

He takes the viewpoint that Mr. Kipling, instead of being, as the general opinion has it, a blunt, artless, forceful writer, is decidedly a cunning author, and where "he seems most closely to rub sleeves with the raw stuff of life, we find him most aloof, most deliberately an artificer."

Mr. Kipling has simply capitalized India, Mr. Palmer says. And to many people it seems far-fetched to ascribe to the youthful Kipling the cunning that made him "not write of India because India was essential to his genius, but because he was shrewd enough to realize that nothing could better serve the purpose of a young author than to exploit his first-hand acquisition of an inexhaustible store of fresh and excellent material."

But Mr. Palmer's argument is that Mr. Kipling was not limited to India; that after the "Plain Tales from the Hills" he might have turned to any other country or field with results as excellent. The critic detects artificiality and the shifts of the mechanic in the studies of the social life at Simla and in the soldier stories.

But Mr. Palmer is at no pains to "break a halo" or dim the fame of Mr. Kipling. "Kim" is called "one of the few really beautiful stories in modern literature . . . the best of all Indian tales." The "Jungle Books" are called "the best of all the books."

The Kipling characteristic is definitely summed up in saying "he has never been able to resist the lure of things technical. If he writes of a horse he must write as though he had bred and sold horses all of his life. If he writes of a steam engine he must write as though he has spent his life among pistons and cylinders. He writes of ships and the sea, of fox-hunting, of the punishing of Pathans, of drilling by companies and of agriculture; and he writes as one from whom no craft could hide its mysteries."

The most surprising point of Mr. Palmer's criticism is his utter lack, not only of admiration, but of respect for Mr. Kipling's verse. But Mr. Kipling's verse, like all the other good things in literature, past, present or future, is affected very little by what critics—newspaper or otherwise—think of it.

LITERARY DYNAMITE.

DANTE AND OTHER WANING CLASSICS. By Albert Mordell. Acropolis Publishing Company, Philadelphia.

MR. MORDELL, emphatic and audacious young author of "The Shifting of Literary Values," contains in "Dante and Other Waning Classics" the iconoclastic criticism that attracted some attention to his first volume.

In this thin, red book, Mr. Mordell makes a very wide-reaching attack in an effort to dislodge from the niche of fame, Dante, Milton, Bunyan, Thomas a' Kempis, St. Augustine and, with less intensity, Pascal.

The theological coloring of these classics seems to be the enraging pigment that arouses the critic's animosity. Each of them is consigned to limbo for being permeated with the spirit and imagery of a religion that has fallen into desuetude, especially among the intellectuals. A premise, indeed, from which other classics might as easily be attacked—and no doubt, Mr. Mordell would say they should be— for from the "Kalevala" to "The Arthurian Cycle" there is more or less of theology in which moderns have ceased to believe.

Arguments subordinate to the theological defect declare "The Divine Comedy" to be a horrible, grewsome thing of depressing imagery; "Paradise Lost" to be preposterous in conception and heavy with dialectics that are foreign to the principle of poetry; "Pilgrim's Progress" to be a stupid and grim allegory; "The Imitation of Christ" to be morbid asceticism; St. Augustine's "Confessions" to be slavish adulation offered in flattery of a personal god.

In much of the book, Mr. Mordell takes his "waning classics" seriously as though they were popular literature; he attacks them as though he were assailing lusty giants, in spite of his acknowledgment that these works cannot enjoy the same prestige which was theirs when all who read looked upon them as allied to Holy Scripture.

RUSSIAN LITERATURE.

IDEALS AND REALITIES IN RUSSIAN LITERATURE. By Prince Kropotkin. Alfred A. Knopf, New York.

WHEN Prince Kropotkin first published this book, some ten years ago, except among certain studious groups Russian literature was about as much appreciated in America as are the Chinese classics today. The book is based on a series of lectures delivered before the Lowell Institute at Boston, and he praised highly Russian writers of established fame who are even today practically unknown, though at present many publishing houses are systematically and prodigiously bringing out translations.

Tolstoy, Turgueneff (Turgenev. Some day there may be a uniformity in the Anglicising of Russian names,) Puskin, Gogol, Dostoyevskiv (Dostoevsky,) Techehoff (Techekoff) are among the prominent authors now more or less widely appreciated in America to whom Prince Kropotkin gives lengthy and interpretative attention.

Puskin, Gogol and Turgueneff—especially the first and last—are ranked highest among the prose writers, and Puskin is also called first of the poets. It was then no commonplace to say that Turgueneff was an artist to his finger tips, whose dictum was "Don't put your philosophy into your art," and who stimulated the younger generation to admiration for the Russian language and its possibilities.

Dostoyevskiv is placed among the authors not so great as Turgueneff and Tolstoy, though his popularity was immediate and sustained. However, it is pointed out that his facility for writing created an inartistic bulk, powerful, but lacking (excepting in "The House of the Dead") the finished construction required of masterpieces. Tolstoy is described as being great in spite of himself—that is, Prince Kropotkin shows that in spite of Tolstoy's evident intention to "preach" through his characters they often got away from him and lived independent and notable lives—often to the despair of the author.

Prince Kropotkin's exposition is really a hand-book to Russian literature; he discusses scores of names unknown in the West; analyzes the movements and influences affecting literary work of the various periods; gives a wealth of information and makes luminous criticisms from a basis of familiarity with his subject that few, if any, other writers in English can justly claim.

INTERPRETATION OF CARLYLE.

CARLYLE: How to Know Him. By Bliss Perry. Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

THE instinctive suspicion aroused in every careful reader by the titular phrase of "How to know" any author of unusual power disappears before a book signed by Bliss Perry. Prof. Perry is one of the real, sympathetic, literary scholars of the day and his "Carlyle" may be conservatively spoken of as an excellent interpretative presentation.

Prefatorially he sets forth: "Carlyle the critic of books, Carlyle the biographer and historian of great men and great events, Carlyle the prophet and mystic are thus essentially and radically one. To disbelieve this message or 'gospel' of Carlyle is quite within the rights of any contemporary reader, but there is no longer any excuse for misunderstanding it."

Very briefly, but not without saying much, Prof. Perry discusses the "storm of detraction" that broke over Carlyle's memory after Froude's notorious edition of "Carlyle's Reminiscences," "Life of Carlyle" and "The Letters and Memorials of Jane Welsh Carlyle;" and it is argued that Froude was carried away by bad judgment rather than influenced by malicious intent in stupidly exposing Carlyle's intense exaggerations and passionate words to the public without assuaging their effect by a decent explanation.

But that controversy is dead. It matters not. The works of Carlyle, not the quarrel about his domestic affairs, are posterity's inheritance.

With apt and felicitous excerpts Prof. Perry has succeeded amazingly well—amazingly, indeed, when one remembers the bulk of Carlyle's work and the intensity with which he wrote on every subject—in allowing Carlyle to "explain himself and his views as adequately as the inexorable count of pages will permit."

The book is not designed to be a substitute for Carlyle's works; it is rather an introduction to them—a proper guidance for those who perhaps otherwise would blunder along, bewildered in the maze, erratic sentences and heterogeneous, thunderous philosophy.

HOME-MADE TOYS.

A. Neely Hall has brought out a book on "Home-Made Toys for Girls and Boys" (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co.) in which he tells how to make wooden toys, cardboard toys, spool toys, mechanical toys and electrical toys, so that the boy or girl with a little patience can have all the fun of making toys as well as playing with them. Many of the merry-go rounds, Ferris wheels and other models made with the so-called "construction outfits" are shown in this toy book built of material that may be found around the ordinary home.

PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION.

AT NATURE'S BREAST.

THE HOLY EARTH. By L. H. Bailey. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

MR. BAILEY is among the foremost authorities on agriculture, and to him the earth is something more than dirt and rocks. The earth is the basis, literally and figuratively, of society. He meditates upon life and ethics, speaking without controversial accents and with patience.

Touching the habit of destruction, inveterate in mankind, he speaks of the earth as though it were a conscious sufferer of man's commercial vandalism.

"We have been greatly engaged in digging up the restored resources," he says, "and in destroying vast products of the earth for some small kernel that we can apply to our necessities and add to our enjoyments. We excavate the best of the coal and cast away the remainder; blast the metals and the minerals from underneath the crust, and leave the earth raw and sore; we box the pines for turpentine and abandon the growths of limitless years to fire and devastation; sweep the forests with the besom of destruction; pull the fish from the rivers and ponds without making any adequate provision for renewal; exterminate whole races of animals; choke the streams with refuse and dross; rob the land of its available stores, denuding the surface, exposing great areas to erosion."

Mr. Bailey gives this as something more than a poetical lament; he cites it as sociological evidence that our social state has not attained discreet thrift, and that the shoddiness of our economic system is reflected somewhat in the whole of our social structure.

He has little, no, sympathy with geographical boundaries and racial antipathies, and speaks of it as "the awful sin of partitioning the earth by force."

In his book there is a simplicity of expression, a calm observation and directness of appeal to the common sense, a loftiness of spirit that wins and keeps the admiration.

RELIGION AND MATERIALISM.

WAR AND CHRISTIANITY. By Vladimir Solovyof. Translated by Stephen Graham. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

IN HIS introduction to "War and Christianity" Mr. Graham calls Solovyof, "Russia's greatest philosopher and one of the greatest of her poets, a serene and happy writer."

This book was published in 1900. It presents the conversations between a general, a politician, a lady, a prince and a gentleman called Mr. Z.

Mr. Z is something of a Socratic character who draws the others to a conclusion, then graciously befuddles them.

The politician is pleased to interpret history as meaning that primitive mankind by degrees evolves out of itself the best educated part, the civilized world which gradually spreads and finally must embrace all the people that are left behind in this historic movement, including them all in one solid and peaceful international unity, thereby establishing everlasting, international peace.

But what of disease and death? Mr. Z. inquires, and adds that if death is final, if death ends all, then it "is clear that every progressive activity of civilization is in vain—it is aimless and senseless."

Mr. Z. believes the source of impulse for action should come from the conscience and an "inspiration of good" and he attains a rather metaphysical conception of the ideal by saying society should "come to its climax in a living unity formed of the revived past together with the evolving future in the eternal present of the Kingdom of God, which will indeed be on earth, but only on a new earth which is lovingly united to a new heaven."

The philosophy of the book cannot be adequately compressed to a paragraph; it is essential spiritual and combats the idea of civilization and peace as things of value merely in themselves. In conclusion is an impressive, sensational allegory, representing the overflow of the Mongolian race throughout the world and the establishment of a pretender as the successor of Christ, and the final overthrow of the anti-Christ by heavenly interference. The significance of the allegory seems to be in its intent to show that man, neither by force nor paternal civilization, nor by the exercise of virtue for virtue's own sake, can attain to the heights by which he may be led through allegiance to God.

"THE STOIC PHILOSOPHY."

THE STOIC PHILOSOPHY. By Gilbert Murray. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

TWO criticisms, neither intended to be destructive, but, rather, interpretative, are brought by Gilbert Murray, the foremost classicist of England, against the stoic philosophy which he calls "the greatest system of organized thought which the mind of man had built up for itself in the Greco-Roman world before the coming of Christianity with its inspired Book and its authoritative revelation."

The first criticism is that the philosophy, "starting out with every intention of facing the problem of the world by hard thought and observation, resolutely excluding all appeal to tradition and mere mythology, it ends by making this tremendous assumption—that there is a beneficent purpose in the world and that the force which moves nature is akin to ourselves."

The second is that stoicism "is based on rather crude psychology. It was over-intellectualized. . . . Stoicism, in company with almost all philosophy up to the present time, has gone astray through not sufficiently realizing its dependence on the human mind as a natural biological product."

Prof. Murray points out that there is and has always been in mankind a hunger for belief in God. "The existence of a common instinctive belief in the mind of man gives at least a presumption that there must be a good cause for that belief," and that, as man is positively gregarious, "our own yearning and our almost ineradicable instinctive conviction, since they are certainly not founded on either reason or observation, are in origin the groping of a lonely-souled, gregarious animal to find its herd or its herd leader in the great spaces between the stars."

"The Stoic Philosophy" appears as it was given for the Conway Memorial Lecture this year and is a brief, instructive, lucid exposition and analysis of what is perhaps the greatest of philosophies allied with agnosticism.

"Is dat dah Sassafras Simpson took a wife yit, Rastus?" "Reckon he haint, Bre'er Higgins. He's workin'."—[Browning's Magazine.

BOOKS FOR GIRLS.

Novels and Stories Adjusted to Please the Discriminating Young Lady.

GIRLS are romantic. So are boys, for that matter, but they won't admit it. And while the whole season's offering is adjusted to the discriminating young lady, "The Marooning of Peggy," by Agnes McClelland Daulton (D. Appleton & Co.) and "Smugglers' Island," by Clarissa A. Keeland, have the adventurous touch that boys seem to think belongs exclusively to their fiction.

"In the Marooning of Peggy" girls have a grand time getting frightened almost to death on a strange island, where there seems to be all kind of terrors on every hand. In "Smugglers' Island" a family of four children and their eldest sister are marooned on an island in the Gulf of California and live much like the Swiss Family Robinson.

"Heidi" by Johanna Spyri (J. B. Lippincott Company) is an idyllic story of two children, who lived in the Tyrol Mountains, and of the fun they had helping and playing One of their best playmates is a goat, a wise goat. There are a lot of other goats, and the children often take care of them. The story is illustrated with colored pictures.

"Jean Cabot at the House with the Blue Shutters" by Gertrude Fisher Scott (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co.) is a fourth and last of the Jean Cabot books, and all who have followed Jean's career will be interested to know how she gets along at college.

Another new addition to a series is "Dorothy Dainty at Crestville" by Amy Brooks. (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co.,) this being the fourteenth volume of the series and tells of how Dorothy came to Crestville to visit her best friend and of the good time they had at the summer resort.

Two books about girls who lived in the Revolutionary War period are "A Maid of '76" by Emile Benson Knipe and Alden Arthur Knipe (The Macmillan Company,) and "A Little Maid of Narragansett Bay" by Alice Turner Curtis (The Penn Company.)

"The Boarded-Up-House" by Augusta Huiell Seaman (The Century Company) tells how two girl chums, in pursuit of their favorite cat, invade a deserted old mansion, where, by bringing their detective instincts into play, they make discoveries that lead to adjusting long-ago tangled affairs.

"Beth Anne Herself" by Pemberton Ginther (The Penn Company) is of an artist's little daughter who paints and writes plays. And a little street singer is adopted as her sister, and Beth doesn't like this very well, because she herself seems neglected. It is quite interesting to see how she works out her own problem.

"Polly Comes to Woodbine" by George Ethelbert Walsh (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co.) is of a bright little girl who comes to live with an old uncle and aunt in a charming country town and of the friends she makes and the way she brings happiness.

"Lotta Embury's Career" by Ella W. Peattie (Houghton Mifflin Company) tells of a little country girl with a knack for the violin, who leaves home to become a great musician, but she is glad to get back again and help take care of her father's store.

"Winona of the Camp Fire" by Margaret Widdemer (J. P. Lippincott Company) is designed to interest especially Camp Fire Girls and tells of their adventures and fun while camping out.

"The Lucky Stone" by Abbie Farwell Brown (The Century Company) is of Maggie, a little tenement girl, who believes in fairies, and is always playing wonderful games of make-believe, and some amazing things happen to her.

"Faith Palmer in Washington" by Lazelle T. Woolley (The Penn Company) is the latest of the "Faith Palmer" series and tells how she visits Washington and meets the naughtiest pupil in a boarding school there.

"Helen and the Fifth Cousin" by Beth Bradford Gilchrist (The Penn Company) tells how Helen (who has appeared in three other books of her series) and her friends organize the "Find Out Club" to search for relatives of a little orphan in whom they are interested.

"Jane Stuart at Rivercroft" by Grace M. Remick (The Penn Company) is the latest of the "Jane Stuart" series, and tells about how Jane spent a merry summer in the country and of the many explorations and interesting mysteries that were discovered.

A ROMANCE OF RECLAMATION WORK.

WINNING A FORTUNE. By Lewis William Klinker. Published by the Author, Los Angeles.

IN HIS introduction Mr. Klinker says, "It is not my purpose to make any effort at literary display, but rather to give a treatise of interesting facts, combined with fiction and romance."

Toward that end he has developed a story around the mining camps of the early days, given considerable detail of the conflict between the hydraulic miners and the grangers, and shown something of how the hydraulic processes were utilized in reclaiming swamps and bog land for the mutual benefit of the miners and the farmers who had protested vigorously, successfully, against having the miner's debris dumped into the rivers.

The story begins with the arrival of an emigrant train under the captaincy of Henry Manning, who has with him two sons, Lew, the eldest being fifteen. Myrtle Winters, a girl about Lew's age, is also of the party and continues throughout as the story's heroine.

The children accidentally discover gold which places a fortune in the hands of the parents for investment and development. The money is handled judiciously and profitably, though two criminals, addicted to wildcat schemes, plot against them and more than once nearly succeed in ruining the honest miners.

The story's attention is divided between the mining operations and the more personal affairs of the young people, all of whom go to college where their friendship includes Jim Randall, a poor but sterling boy, who becomes Lew's rival in love.

Lew, because of his close association with the mining industry, hits upon the reclamation plan that is adopted for both the benefit of the miners and farmers, and does the work so well that he is highly honored by all who know him, or of him.

The book seems designed largely for youthful readers. It has a length of considerably over 150,000 words and, without using a complicated plot, does not allow the narrative to be long without interesting and stirring incidents.

BOOKS FOR BOYS.

The Season's Offering for "Young Men" with Discriminating Tastes.

THESE books are all good, and that settles it. They are written for boys, and who ever heard of any book that a boy liked not being good? That's the way authors and publishers tell if their books are good. It's the only way they can tell. If boys like them they are good. If not, then they are no good. And most publishers and authors are wise. They let boys read the books before publishing them.

And here is the seventh volume of the "U. S. Service Series" called "The Boy With the Life Savers," by Francis Rolt-Wheeler (Lothrop, Lee & Shephard Co.) in which real experiences, customs and training of the life savers is told through a lively story with lots of excitement in it.

"Sandy's Pal" by Gardner Hunting (Harper & Brothers) describes the friendship between two fine boys, one who is poor and the other rich, and the way each assists the other.

"Deal Woods" by Latta Griswold (The Macmillan Company) the latest of the "Deal Series," tells of an eventful camping trip. "Joe Manning," by Irving Williams (D. Appleton & Co.,) is also the story of boys in camp and of a boy who is interested in photography and has thrilling times with his camera.

"The Boy Scouts of Snow-Shoe Lodge" by Rupert Sargent Holland (J. B. Lippincott Company) is a story of a camping trip in the far north where the scouts spend a holiday. "The Great Wild North" by D. Lange (Lothrop, Lee & Shephard Co.) is of a sturdy Scotch lad engaged in trapping and hunting in frontier days when Indians were dangerous. "The Fur Trail Adventurers" by Dillon Wallace (A. C. McClurg & Co.) is also of fur trading in the "frozen north" in which boys gallantly have a hard time of it—with Indians, too.

Three real Indian stories are: "The Red Arrow" by Elmer Russell Gregor (Harper & Brothers) telling of the exploits of two young Indians before the conquest of white men; "The White Captive" by R. Clyde Ford (Rand, McNally & Co.,) a tale of the Pontiac War and much of it based on facts; "The Trail of Black Hawk" by Paul Tomlinson (D. Appleton & Co.) is of the fierce chief of the Sac tribe who waged war on white settlers—and got the worst of it.

A western story is "Gold Seekers of '49" by Edwin L. Sabin (J. B. Lippincott Company) telling of how a boy and his father set out for California and encountered fortune and misfortune and had a glorious amount of trouble.

"An Army Boy in Alaska" by Capt. C. E. Kilbourne (The Penn Company) is by a real army officer who tells of two young officers who were ordered to build a telegraph line into a new mining camp when a lot of rough men didn't want it built.

"Trenchmates in France" by J. S. Zerbe (Harper & Brothers) is of the stirring adventures of two boys in the war zone who did many things, used aeroplanes and tricked the Germans.

"Two American Boys in the War Zone" by L. Worthington Green (Houghton Mifflin Company) is also of two boys who were caught in Europe's war and the experiences they had in Russia.

"Fair Play" by Hawley Williams (D. Appleton & Co.) is a boy's school life and how he learned to play fair just when he was becoming a snob.

"The Twisted Skein" by Ralph D. Paine (Charles Scribner's Sons) is of a college athlete who seems seriously implicated in trouble by circumstantial evidence—but makes good.

"The Scout Law in Practice" by Arthur A. Carey (Little, Brown & Co.) is a serious study of the boy scout's duties and ethics.

"The Book of the Thin Red Line" by Henry Newbolt (Longmans, Green & Co.) illustrated with colored plates is of stirring, authentic adventures of British heroes—and one American. Sir Henry Newbolt is the author of "The Book of the Blue Sea" which showed that he knows what boys like.

"This Year's Book for Boys" (George H. Doran Company) is an annual feature and contains adventurous stories by more than a dozen well-known writers, some of whom are also adventurers, as Claude Grahame-White and Capt. Gibson. It contains many illustrations in color.

Another book "exclusively" for boys, to which some of the most prominent men in America have contributed, is "The Boy Scouts' Year Book (D. Appleton & Co.) This has eleven stories and a number of articles by such men as President Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt, Rear-Admiral Peary, Orville Wright, Henry Van Dyke, Dan Beard and Sir Robert Baden-Powell.

The latest addition to the "Heroes of All Time" series is a biography of Robert Louis Stevenson by Amy Cruse (Frederick A. Stokes Company.) in which is related the remarkable perseverance and courage of the famous author.

"Little Pierre and Big Peter" by Ruth Ogden (Frederick A. Stokes Company) is not much more of a boy's book than a girl's—which means that the story is of interest to both. It is of the friendship between the son of an Alpine guide and a great American surgeon, and the scene is laid in the Switzerland mountains.

COMPLIMENTING OURSELVES.

"AMERICAN IDEALS" is a fine book for patriotic societies; the spread-eagle enthusiast will enjoy the back-patting of Mr. Cooper, but a serious sociological study of American ideals—well, it is just about the sort of thing any American writes when he wishes to write something that will be popular with his countrymen.

We are "all right," we are men and women of action, we have a passion for education, we are extravagant, but it is only because we are tremendous producers, and we stand for "Peace and Humanity."

The symposium of a hundred anonymous contributors, giving their opinion of what American ideals are, is extremely high-minded and inspiring, but likely to appeal to most people as what American ideals should be, rather than what they are.

Books of this character are undoubtedly sincere and have the best intentions on earth; but are without weight—mere thistle down wafted high by enthusiastic patriotism.

OVER THE SEA.

President Poincare last week visited Pont-a-Mousson, which has sustained 178 bombardments since the opening of hostilities. The town is now virtually deserted. The President inspected the devastated quarters and left $400 for the poor who remain in the town. He also examined the defensive works and the winter quarters of the troops in the Le Petre forest, which already is covered with snow.

Admiral Mark Kerr, who was "lent" to Greece in 1913, has just returned to England. During his two years service with the Greek navy he was mainly responsible for the purchase of battleships, which of act brought down upon him a particularly venomous attack by German poltical agents. Admiral Kerr is the son of an admiral, and served in the naval brigade during the Egyptian war of 1882, and in the Sudan campaign nine years later.

Elisee Cavaillon of Nimes, France, when in September he presented himself to the recruiting station in answer to an enlistment order, was informed that he had been officially dead since 1904, and that he was under arrest for an effort fraudulently to escape military service. He later established the fact that his father had brought about the certification, but even so was unable to escape a two years' prison sentence.

Emile Verhaeren, the Belgian poet, might have been a priest, but decided that his wild nature could not be clamped within cloister walls. As a youth he attended the Jesuit College of Sainte-Barbe at Ghent. There he met Maeterlinck. The fathers would have saved their young pupils from the world by making them priests, and endeavored to inspire in them a profound respect for the past, with a hatred of all innovation. After the school at Sainte-Barbe, Verhaeren studied law at Louvain. Admitted to the bar at Brussels, he joined a coterie of young artists, and, like Gautier, he won a name for shocking the bourgeois by fantastic freaks of dress and conduct. The muse called, and the law was deserted.

The resignation is announced of the Rev. W. Evans Darby, LL.D., of the secretariat of the Peace Society. Dr. Darby is 70 years old, was born in Carmarthenshire, Wales, and is one of the few authorities on international law, having published the famous "Magnum Opus International Tribunals," copies of which were presented to all the reigning monarchs of the world. A second edition was prepared for the use of delegates at the last Hague congress while a third edition was specially dedicated to the Czar of Russia. The book also secured for him the honorary degree of LL.D. from Tufts College, U.S.A.

Maurice Damour, secretary of the Appropriations Committee of the French Chamber of Deputies, and former Consul-General at New Orleans, says the industrial purchases contemplated in the United States by France will far surpass those of munitions. "France's war on Germany will not end with the cessation of hostilities," he says, "for we are going to wage a terrific commercial war against our enemy.

Ahmed Mirza, the Shah of Persia, was born in 1897, and acceded to the throne July 21, 1914. It is probably because of his youth that his ministry has been under the influence first of the Germans and Turks and now of the Russians and their allies.

A Simple Way to Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Mrs. Catherine Roberts of Richmond, Mo., is cutting her third set of teeth at the age of 76. The teeth appear to be well developed, and it is thought she will have a full set when the ordeal is past.

Miss Jennie May Derick, a white-haired woman who has taught many years in the public schools of Manhattan, has just been admitted to the bar by the Appellate Division in Broklyn, and will begin practice immediately. Miss Derick, who lives at No. 1386 Dean street, Brooklyn, has long cherished the ambition to become a lawyer. In addition to her school duties she attended law school and qualified for admission to the bar.

From Ireland comes the account of a young girl just 20 years old, who is doing the work of a skilled electrical engineer. She is Miss May Traill, the daughter of Mr. Willaim A. Traill, C. F., a well-known engineer, who was the constructor of one of the first electric tramways—the Giants' Causeway and Portrush Electric Tramway—which was opened in 1883. Miss Traill, who studied horticulture at Studley College, Warwickshire, exhibited her gift for mechanics while still a student, and as a result was made chauffeur of the college motor lorry. When this was purchased by the government she drove it from Studley to London, and subsequently was placed on the staff of the college in full charge of the electric light and power installation. She has set free a man who is now making torpedoes.

Mrs. Mary Borden Turner of Chicago conducts a field hospital in Belgium that is in portable sections and lighted from a plant in a motor lorry. When the hospital was visited recently by Chicago newspaper men she said there were 185 in the hospital. The soldiers are treated and then moved on and more brought in from the trenches.

Mrs. George C. Hitt has been president of a department club in Indianapolis since it was first formed, and recently the club decided to honor her by permittting each member to bring a new member into the club. The result was an accession of 285 members, to be known as the Hitt members, in honor of the president.

Miss Carolyn Breyfolge, dean of women at the Ohio State University, has instituted a system of self-government among the girls. One of the rules they have made is that men callers are only welcome on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings. This will permit the girls to give their evenings to study during the week.

Although she is only 23 years of age, Miss Nobut Hara of Tokio, Japan, has the distinction of being not only prima donna of the Imperial Theater of Japan, but also director of the Imperial Operatic Training School, co-producer of Ibsen's plays in her country, and musical editor of the best-known women's magazine published in the Japanese language.

The Man Who Failed.

[Philadelphia Telegraph:] Relative to the story from Pittsburgh that a woman hid her husband's false teeth every time that he refused to give her money, one can easily conclude that father was at fault. Had the lord and master kept his mouth tightly closed when the domestic argument started his teeth would have been quite as safe as his pocketbook.

WHEN I LOST MY LITTLE GIRL AND HOW I FOUND HER.

BY JENNIE VAN ALLEN.

I LOVED her so, this little maid of mine, and while she lay close to my heart, I dreamed beautiful dreams of her future and mine.

Long before she came I looked upon all that was lovely that she might forever thrill at the glories of earth and sea and sky and at the wonders made by the hand of man.

And for her dear sake I loved the world and everything that lived and moved. I guarded every thought that would mar her beautiful soul and when I first saw her face, I almost died of joy. She was the greatest miracle in life, this little girl of mine and she was flesh of my flesh and bone of my bone.

All the sorrows of my life, all the cruel griefs and bitter woes were engulfed in love, even as the waters of the Red Sea flowed over Pharoah and his hosts.

Oh, how I loved her and no hand but mine touched her precious body! She was mine—all mine for her father lay in the grave and I was the last of my race. We lived in a strange land and she spoke the tongues of many people whose love enfolded her like a silver mist.

The unfolding of her mind was like the unrolling of a wonderful scroll on which is written the secrets of eternity. I taught her all I knew and I seemed to have a strange knowledge of things I never learned.

She loved the sun and the moon and the stars, but in all her world there was nothing so blessed as the love light in her mother's eyes. She tenderly touched everything that had in it the spark of life but her little fingers clung to mine like steel to a magnet.

The joyous years came and went—the years that were like priceless jewels on a golden chain and one day my little girl became a woman—gloriously beautiful and skilled in the arts. And I gloried in her for she was mine and no power on earth could part her from her mother.

But one sorrowful day I lost my little girl.

She went forth into the world of pleasure. And the man who walked beside her had a cruel mouth and his evil eyes burned as he gloated on the beauty and innocency of my little girl.

And soon she learned to scorn her mother.

Every day she scorned me more and more for lo, the hour of her folly was upon her. And every night she rode under the stars with this world and in her ears were the ing of bells and the sound of When she crept home at young feet dragged like the a chariot in the desert sand. eyes were like coals of fire pallid face. She was like a wild ture if I even looked at her and I not speak, lest I lose her

Oh, God in heaven, how do live when their children learn to them!

But the mid-summer's dream for my little girl and I found never, never to lose her again.

One night she came and my feet and laid her bonny on my knee. And I fondly her beautiful hair and whispered I had whispered a thousand

"Now I lay me down to sleep,

"I pray the Lord my soul to she murmured as if she had little child.

And then an exceedingly came from the lips of my and her lithe young body a sapling twisted by the wind. denly a thought that scorched blazed in my brain as she

"Oh, Mother! Mother! Mother! Mother! Mother!

Over and over the piteous cry in my ears and over and over I answered:

"Oh, my darling, tell me row! Tell me your sorrow!"

At last she raised her lovely and her face was like a white drenched by the rain.

"I am to be a mother! A wicked mother! Oh, God have on me for I am to be the a nameless babe!"

In that awful moment I bered that I had wandered in that I had worshiped an idol my own flesh and blood; that forgotten the old, old command graven on stone by the finger Almighty, "Thou shalt have no gods before me." I remembered temptations of my own girlhood that in the new generation, the ter is more subtile than in history of the world. And my melted with mercy and I gathered little girl close to my aching comforted her.

I knew the thorn set way I knew that on one side the rocks pierced the sky and on the the precipice dropped to the less pit. Should I let my drop, down, down, down? A sand times no! Together we climb though our hands are bleeding and we suffer all world allots—women who laws of God and man.

And when she clung to me, fessing her waywardness, her and her sin I forgot the woe and of the future. And we talked ly of the little life and our love out to our precious baby. heart was comforted for I had my little girl again and she was for all eternity.

Diamonds---the Gift Supreme

Diamonds--selected for perfection in quality, correctness in cutting and for color---three essentials in which this house demands a standard seldom found elsewhere. There is never an inferior diamond in Brock & Company's display—not even in color. Because of the volume of purchases made,---dealing with cutters direct,—a diamond selection can be made here at a favorable price—one which does not make a diamond an over-expensive gift.

We wish to emphasize particularly, diamonds in odd shapes in which we show pear shape, Nauvette cut, square and emerald cut, in the fine blue qualities.

Diamonds and Gem-set Jewelry in Unusual Designs

The designers and workmen of Brock & Company have created many new pieces for this season. New ideas which, because of unequaled facilities are found here first, each of them a special individual piece---no two alike---in designs refined and beautiful.

Special platinum mountings, and the unusually beautiful lace work will commend this year's display to every one who appreciates the very fine diamond and gem-set productions. You will find engagement and gift rings set with fancy stones in special platinum mountings,—pendants, bar pins, brooches, bracelets, rings and other pieces set with selected gems—diamonds, sapphires, emeralds and rubies.

Bar pins after designs made particularly for this season and set with sapphires and rubies; gentlemen's scarf pins,—none duplicated, with beautiful settings of platinum and lace work.

We specialize in fine gem black opals mounted in lace work—the setting being carried out much like that of a diamond.

A study and comparison of the pieces themselves is essential, —illustration and description but suggest. You are welcome to look, no matter whether or not purchase is made.

ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

Tulip Garden.

Guarded within the old red wall's embrace,
Marshaled like soldiers in gay company,
The tulips stand arrayed. Here infantry
Wheels out into the sunlight. What bold grace
Sets off their tunics, white with crimson lace!
Here are platoons of gold-frocked cavalry,
With scarlet sabres tossing in the eye
Of purple batteries, every gun in place.
Forward they come, with flaunting colors spread,
With torches burning, stepping out in time
To some quick, unheard march. Our ears are dead,
We cannot catch the tune. In pantomime
Parades the army. With our utmost powers
We hear the wind stream through a bed of flowers.

—[Amy Lowell, in Atlantic.

In California.

Los Angeles painters of landscape do not have to search long or far for "subjects." And they do not have to wait on the propitious moment, for Southern California, like the dial, records none but sunny hours—or, at any rate, the sunless hours are so few that they are almost negligible in well-planned sketching tours.

Nor, generally speaking, need the [illegible] go further than the back yard if the artist is in the mood for staying at home. Here he will find material plenty; the rich greens of live oak and orange tree for one part of his palette; the pinks and reds of roses for another; the purples and lavenders of the mountains in his distances, the duns and browns for his foreground.

If he goes further he fares no better, for the best always lies invitingly within his vision. Too, if he goes further he finds the sea, the canyons, the arroyos, the desert, the subtle lines of hills that are dull gold for most of the year, gleaming emerald the rest. And always and everywhere the changing yet permanent beauty of the most entrancing mountain ranges in the world.

An exhibition of water colors, all painted in California, is now being held by Bessie E. Hazen in the fine little gallery set aside for such exhibitions at the Normal School, which has already done much for art and which intends to do much more. Miss Hazen is an instructor in the school, one of the six capable young women in the art department. She is busy every day—or almost every day—at inculcating correct art ideals into other young women who are going to spread them broadcast, and how she finds time to paint so many excellent studies remains a mystery, for there are about fifty in the present exhibition.

However, as I have intimated, she did not travel far for subjects—no farther than Carmel and Pacific Grove, San Diego and Point Lobos, while many of the sketches come from Redondo and Hermosa Beach, and from the nearer Arroyo Seco. This range of search speaks of diversity, and Miss Hazen confesses to a liking for every paintable aspect of nature—though she loves trees more than anything else, because they are so alive, so almost human in expression.

As it happens, I share this artist's feeling for trees, so I studied her interpretation of them with much interest and pleasure. I found that she almost invariably chooses them for their decorative value in her scheme of composition, for their value of line and mass, and that she handles them with a certain big simplicity, sacrificing every detail that is of no paramount importance to the main idea. She never copies them, but holds to the impression of form and weight. And she surrounds them with the transfiguring beauty of light and air—though the light is seldom vivid, for she has an instinct for subdued tone that palpitates with vague purples and mauves. Her method tends to a flatness—though this is not intrusive—that carries out the decorative conception.

Miss Hazen spent some delightful days in San Diego, months before the fair opened, painting the hills of the park ere yet their shining gray-gold had been dotted with the green of newly-planted shrubs, and the dull gold of the pueblo on "The Zone" before its woodwork had been plastered with adobe. These are among her best sketches. In one of them, "Pathway Over the Hill," eucalyptus stand like sentinels holding torches tipped with flame.

Blue glimpses of the sea are found in many of the studies from Redondo, Carmel and Pacific Grove—in "Ocean Breezes," with its charming multicolored foreground; in "Rocks and Cypresses," in "Pine Trees" in "A Carmel Pine." These bars of blue are jewel-like in their lucent splendor of color set in old gold and dusky green. "Early Morning" contains a sea-effect that is very beautiful and very simple. The branches of the tree in "The Arroyo Sycamore" spread like a delicate pattern against their skyey background. "Hermosa," finely toned, shows dunes holding traceries of many flowers in green grass; the red roofs of houses give a keen note of color. Higher in key than most of the other sketches—all of which were painted out of doors—is "Carmel Sand Dunes," whose sunlight is white and bright. "A Sunny Bank," a study from Redondo, depicts a row of well-modeled eucalyptus above their rich purple shadows. "Balboa Beach," a small picture of great simplicity, is tender in tone and feeling. In "Wild Mustard," a hillside study, the perplexities of yellow have been met and conquered by a lowered tone.

This interesting exhibition remains to December 24. The gallery is open to the public from 10 to 4:30 every day but Saturday.

Sketches and Studies.

Numerous are the sketches and studies that Karl Yens is exhibiting in Polytechnic High School, the seat of his new tutelary activities. They fill all the walls of the two large rooms in which his pupils assemble nightly, and bring brightness and gayety to those eight sober surfaces.

Mr. Yens has been instructor in the Polytechnic for a few months, and this exhibition is of great interest and use to his pupils as well as to outsiders. All outsiders, by the way, are welcome on afternoons after 3 o'clock, when the schoolrooms become picture galleries.

The exhibition's fresh and vivid vitality is due to the important fact that for some years Karl Yens has devoted himself almost exclusively to painting outdoor subjects, and to getting sunlight in its bright intensity and atmosphere in its throbbing vivacity. He has posed figures in sunlight and under trees, and he has painted them with a crisp directness that gave life if it did not always give good drawing. His steady aim at the big thing, the important thing, in art has been richly rewarded—and the reward will be even greater when he becomes able to bring that aim forward from sketches to careful studies. This he will undoubtedly do in time, when he feels the need.

The studies he is showing are from Europe and New York, but mainly from Southern California. He has had a studio in the Arroyo Seco for some years, on the outskirts of South Pasadena, and the sketches painted here are among the best in the exhibition. He employs various mediums, oil, water color and tempera. An attractive part of the exhibition is that which consists of designs for mural decorations, all made in New York City. So far as I know, the artist has painted no murals in Los Angeles.

The true artist's temperament is very evident in all these studies. Mr. Yens's instincts are always amazingly right, though the results may often—and undoubtedly do often—fall far short of his ideals. He paints everything he sees, for he sees everything artistically. Hence the exhibition is very diversified, full of surprise and "pep." It gives us a riot of color, for the artist is not afraid to express what he feels—and he feels keenly. Beauty takes him and holds him wherever he turns. I would like to see Mr. Yens paint. His eager enthusiasm, his starry-eyed abandon to his impression, must be delightful to witness. Fortunate the beginners in art expression who have such a guide.

There is no printed catalogue to the exhibition, so I wandered about at random, enjoying the light, the life and the color in the pictures, but not troubling to take many notes. The main consideration is that I enjoyed myself hugely, and that I want my readers to run out to the Poltyechnic and find the same pleasure.

However, I must call your attention to the large oil study for a mural decoration entitled "The Founding of San Gabriel." It is still in a very tentative state, but the big idea is there, and much of the life and color that will be carried into the finished product. There are many Spaniards and Indians, grouped about the pictured Virgin, who, the legend runs, assumed a shining halo when the Indians attempted to attack the voyagers, and thus awed and frightened them into that submission which became conversion to Christianity. As a picture the subject needs further attention in the matter of composition, but of course, Mr. Yens knows this even better than I.

You will be attracted, as I was, to the study of a Japanese flower stall set by a roadside near fields of flowers blooming for the market. It is painted in rich reds and clear lavenders, and the foreground shadow, made by an awning of boards above the booth, is barred with long slashes of sunlight. The outdoor feeling is very strong, you know that the scene is true. Almost equally alive is the picture of a blue-jeaned worker in a truck garden, all intense greens. And you must not pass by the cottage among the trees in the Arroyo Seco near the bridge of the Pacific Electric at Garvanza, for here the board walk, absolutely true in its rendering, is spotted with gules of sunlight. Interesting and effective, too, is "In Old Madrid," a young Spanish girl dressed in the vivid reds, yellows and blacks of her race and playing on a guitar. The spirit of romance breathes through the picture.

Life is Karl Yens's aim—and he often approaches very near it in these hundred or more sketches and studies.

Arizona Exhibition.

The second Arizona art exhibition was held in Phoenix from November 15 to November 20, under the auspices of the art department of the Woman's Club of Phoenix, and marks an important milestone in the advance of art appreciation in Arizona. The exhibition was exceedingly successful from every point of view, the attendance being large and the interest great Pictures, sculptures, keramics and specimens of art-craft were shown by local artists, and in addition to these Print Makers of Los Angeles sent their traveling collection of fifty prints, while the following painters of California loaned important pictures: Carl Oscar Borg, Benjamin Chambers Brown, Maurice Braun, John V. Cahill, Anna A. Hills, Hanson Puthuff, John Hubbard Rich, C. P. Townsley, Elmer Wachtel, Marion Kavanaugh Wachtel and William Wendt, A.N.A. These paintings and prints from Southern California were not in competition for prizes. They were given a gallery by themselves.

By public contributions the club was enabled to buy a small but charming picture by Jessie Benton Evans, "On the Verde River," a study of the upper Verde with the Four Peaks in the distance. This picture is the beginning of a permanent gallery for Phoenix.

Exposition Park.

A joint exhibition of recent paintings by Joseph Greenbaum and of prints (etchings and lithographs) by the Senefelder Club of London opened on Thursday in the gallery at Exposition Park, to remain to the middle of the month, when it will be followed by the Panama studies in oil by Alison Skinner Clark, which recently were given an honor-room in the San Diego Exposition.

Many of Mr Greenbaum's pictures are from Catalina island, where he spent the summer. They are fresh and clean in color, instinct with outdoor asmosphere. To these are added a number of figure studies and portraits, among them the interesting portrait of John Donovan, the marine painter.

The prints from the Senefelder Club number sixty, and many of them are large and important, being the last word from such famous artists as Joseph Pennell, Frank Brangwyn, J. McClure Hamilton, E. A. Hope, Spencer Pryse, etc.

Prints and paintings will be given further notice next week.

Art Notes.

Nona White and Emily White recently held a successful exhibition in their studio in Peoria, Ill., the one showing flower studies, the other landscapes and marines, both being painters in water color. The Misses White cannot remain long away from California, and in March they will return to Los Angeles in time to make record of spring blossoms and landscape.

In January, a printroom will be established in the gallery at Exposition Park. This room will house a permanent, though changing, exhibition of prints from artists all over the world, not excepting, of course, imprints from our own flourishing Print Makers.

Alice Howells, who spent the summer in painting and in conducting an out-door class at La Jolla, is now back in her home at Santa Monica. She brought with her some vivid and colorful studies of the sea at La Jolla, whose shore is one of perpetual enchantment.

Most of the gold medal pictures of the San Francisco exposition have been purchased by the Pig 'n Whistle of Los Angeles ,and very soon a gallery of tremendous importance and beauty will be viewed by patrons and general public. Among the men represented are Childe Hassam, Gari Melchers, Edmund Tarbell, Edward Redfield, C. A. Frieseke—a glittering array of famous names.

"Across the River," that magnificently painted canvas, loaned by Gardner Symons to the gallery at Exposition Park for some months, is there no more. It was recently purchased by Samuel Kingan of Tucson.

Martin J. Jackson has been sketching on the fair grounds at San Francisco. He also reports that he has been "seeing things" there—especially in the Annex, where the cubist and futurist pictures were.

John D. Barry of San Francisco gave a talk on "The Meaning of the Exposition" on the afternoon of Tuesday, November 30, at the Friday Morning Club.

EDUCATORS, SCIENTISTS.

Dr. Richard Bull, a director of the bacteriological laboratory of the University of Melbourne, Australia, recently announced the discovery that eucalyptus is a valuable agent for destroying the germs of cerebro-spinal meningitis, sometimes called "spotted fever" or "black death," which has long baffled medical science.

Charles Karsner Mills, author, research worker and professor of mental diseases and neurology in the University of Pennsylvania since 1893, has given up his chair in the medical school. Although no reasons were given officially for Dr. Mills' severing of connections with the university, it is said by his associates that he gave up his post because of advancing years and a desire to devote all his time to quiet, private research work.

Barnum Brown, the naturalist and explorer, has arrived in New York with a carload of fancy-named fossils 3,000,000 years old, collected on the shores of the Red Deer River in Alberta, Can. They are to be added to the collections of the American Museum of Natural History.

The Emperor of Japan has conferred the rank and title of Sonin on Edmund Weld, Jr., a Brookfield (Ct.) educator, in recognition of his work in promoting industrial training in the schools of Japan. The rank is said to be among the highest that may be conferred upon a foreigner by the Mikado. Mr. Weld has just been promoted to have supervision of industrial training in the schools of the empire.

The Swedish government has decided to distribute the Nobel prizes this year as follows: Physics, Thomas A. Edison and Nikolai Tesla; literature, Romain Rolland (French,) Hendrick Pontoppidan-Troels Lund (Dane,) and Verner von Heidenstam (Swede;) chemistry, Prof. Theodore Svedberg.

Dr. Frederick Janney Smith, chief resident physician of the private wards at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, has accepted the position of superintendent of the Ford Hospital at Detroit. The Ford Hospital is one of the largest in Detroit.

Dr. Cuthbert Christy, traveler, explorer, and authority on sleeping sickness, has returned to England after three years spent in the Congo on behalf of the Belgian government. In a portion of the Ituri he is said to have discovered a small tribe not hitherto known to whites. Dr. Christy is the assistant lecturer of the school of tropical medicine at Liverpool. He was a member of the first commission sent to Uganda in 1902, and since that time has spent years in travel and study in various parts of Africa. Among his well-known books are "The Epidemology and Etiology of Sleeping Sickness in Equatorial East Africa," and "The African Rubber Industry and Funturnia Elastica." For recreation he turns to shooting, fishing, ornithology, and general field natural history.

Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart, of Harvard University, is interested in the negro question and often spends his vacation in the South, studying the problem.

Dr. Roscoe Pound, former dean of the College of Law of the University of Nebraska, now professor of jurisprudence at Harvard Law School, has the reputation of having the ironclad constitution of all college professors. It has been said of him that he can stay up later for a longer series of successive nights at banquets and balls, and then do more work the following days, and exhibit a clearer mind before his classes than any man in college life today.

Dr. Richard Cabot, of Boston, is a very plainspoken man. He says: "As a general rule physicians receive too much for their services." "I do not believe women make good doctors." "I would not advise any woman to study medicine." "Many times it is a skillful woman's nursing rather than a clever doctor's skill that saves a life." "Mental suggestion is not only helpful, but generally necessary—except with Theodore Roosevelt, I don't think suggestions would take with him."

Charles P. Steinmetz, the well-known electrician, is a decided humanitarian. A salesman for the General Electric Company tells this incident about him. The salesman called one cool fall evening to consult Steinmetz about some technical matters for the company. He found Steinmetz working in his room without fire. On inquiry the famous electrician confessed that a mouse had a family of her little, red, hairless children in the papers in his fireplace, and he refused to destroy the happy group by lighting a fire.

Dr. Peter Cooper Hewitt, one of the men whose work has contributed to make possible the achievement of wireless telephony, by which the sound of a human voice was carried from Arlington, Va, to Hawaii, a distance of 4900 miles, is a native of New York. His grandfather was the philanthropist, Peter Cooper, and his father was a member of Congress and a mayor of New York City. Peter Cooper Hewitt is closely connected with a number of large enterprises, including realty and coal mining, but has long been known as a scientist and inventor.

The Nobel prize in medicine was recently awarded to Dr. Robert Barany by the Caroline Institute in Stockholm, Sweden. When the European war broke out Dr. Barany left his position as lecturer at the Vienna University to enlist as a volunteer, bodily ailments having exempted him from compulsory military service, and at his own request he was sent to the hottest front. Accordingly he was assigned, as a physician, to the fort at Przemysl, to have charge of a military hospital of 250 beds. So exacting was his work there among the wounded that he was performing surgical operations fourteen hours a day, and took time besides to give lectures to his associates and to write three scientific papers. When Przemysl fell he was still at his post, and the ordeal was so severe for him that his hair turned from black to white in a short while. Captured prisoner by the enemy, he was transported with the other prisoners from the fort to Russia and sent to Irkutsk in Siberia. Suffering and privation reduced him to a point where he had no resistance against disease and soon became ill with malaria; was later sent to Merw, where he was supposed to be located at the time he was awarded the Nobel prize.

Charles Karsner Mills, author, research worker and professor of mental diseases and neurology in the University of Pennsylvania since 1893, has given up his chair in the medical school. Although no reasons were given officially for Dr. Mills's severing of connections with the university, it is said by his associates that he gave up his post because of advancing years and a desire to devote all his time to quiet, private research work.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, was notified last week that by unanimous vote he had been awarded the first gold medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, "as a recognition of special distinction." By subscription of its members last year the academy established a gold medal, "to be bestowed for the entire work of any person of either sex, not a member of the academy, who shall be a native or naturalized citizen of the United States."

Dr. Ernest Fox Nichols has resigned from the presidency of Dartmouth College, and will return to the work in which he had won distinction before assuming the presidency of Dartmouth, namely research in physical science, a chair in which subject has been tendered to him by Yale University. He resigns from Dartmouth, he says, because he believes he has completed the work for which he was called to the institution.

Theodore William Richards of Harvard University was recently awarded a Nobel prize for fixing the atomic weights of chemical elements. Prof. Richards is director of the Gibbs memorial laboratory at Harvard. He is an investigator in physical and in organic chemistry and the author of papers concerning the significance of changing atomic volume. With assistants he has revised the atomic weights of oxygen, copper, iron, nickel, calcium, sodium and many other elements.

MEN AND EVENTS.

Prof. H. G. Walters of Langhorne, Pa., has a peach tree which bears grafts as follows: Two of apple, three of rose, two of cedar and one each of hemlock, blackberry, lilac, plum and cherry.

Capt. C. E. Bean, official representative with the Australian expeditionary forces in Gallipoli, describes how Lance Corporal Keyzer of the First Battalion won a Victria Cross. Corp. Keyzer was one of the best bomb throwers in the Australian and New Zealand army corps. During the fierce attacks at Lone Pine he was throwing for fifty hours almost continuously. He was sent first to one corner of the trenches and then to another, not only throwing bombs, but constantly smothering with his coat or sand bags the enemy's bombs which had fallen in the trench. He often threw them back. When the Turks reduced the time of the fuses he caught several bombs in the air like a cricket ball and threw them back before they burst.

Seventeen years as sexton at St. Patrick's Church in South Bend, Ind., pulling the rope on the great bell at the church more than 700 miles in that time, is the unusual record which has just been completed by Charles S. Schubert. He has rung the bell for practically 7900 meetings. He has averaged one meeting a day through the year and three times on Sunday, making an annual total of 429 services. In addition to this, Schubert has rung the bell three times a day for Angelus. For each service he rings the bell twice. He averages ringing the bell six times on week days and nine on Sunday. Therefore, in a year, averaging twenty-five strokes to the pull for the 2346 times he rings the bell annually, he would give the bell 56,650 strokes. Now in each pull he jerks the rope four feet, making 234,600 feet annually or 3,988,200 feet or 755½ miles in seventeen years.

Rev. Charles T. Shaw, pastor of a Presbyterian church in Cleveland, has enrolled in the Ohio National Guard Military Training School for Civilians. Rev. Mr. Shaw said he expected to attend every lecture and drill for the twenty-five weeks of the course.

PROLIFIC WOMEN.

Mrs. F. M. Keys of Hollis, Okla., has just given birth to a quartette of girl babies. Mother and babies are doing fine.

Mrs. T. A. Patterson of Sabinal, Tex., is the mother of three sets of twins out of seven children, none of whom is 7 years old.

Twin babies were born recently to Mrs. Anton Svetta of Waukegan, Ill. This is her fifth pair of twins. She is the mother of twenty-two children. She is 40 years old.

Triplets have just been born to Mrs. Mae Ellis of Gainesville, Tex. She already was the mother of fifteen children, all living and healthy. The triplets are healthy and will live. The mother is about 40 years od and the father several years older.

Triplets have been born to Mrs. James Reeves of Meridian, Miss. Mrs. Reeves is now the mother of thirteen children. She is also the grandmother of five children, the eldest of which is 6 years old. She was married when she was 16 and is now only 38.

Mrs. Gaither Dewry of Mercer county, Kentucky, has established a birth record that is believed to surpass that of any woman. Although only 30 years of age, she is the mother of nine children, all born within eighteen months. Five were born at one time and four at another.

Mrs. William Bishop of Winsted, Ct., only 37 years of age, has just given birth to her seventeenth baby, there being only one set of twins in the bunch. Three of the children are married and have children of their own. Mrs. Bishop was married at the age of 17 years.

Triplets, all girls, have been born to Mrs. William E. Clair of Juniata, Pa. Having more than one child at a time seems to be a family trait of Mrs. Clair's side of the house. Her mother was the mother of twins, and her oldest daughter gave birth to twins on three different occasions, and her second daughter gave birth to twins once.

TAKE A GLASS OF SALTS TO FLUSH THE KIDNEYS IF YOUR BACK HURTS

Advises folks to overcome Kidney and Bladder troubles while it is only trouble.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious trouble.

VAST PROGRESS WAR-COMPELLED.

Americans Finding Profit in Supplying Own Needs.

Output of Valuable Staples Increased Enormously.

Benzol, Nicotine, Potash and Dyestuffs on List.

Before the European war this country was producing only 3,000,000 gallons of benzol per year, but now many of the large steel works are recovering their benzol and the production has increased to 15,000,000 gallons. The demand for benzol for war purposes has been so great that even the increased supply has not been sufficient. And prices have been almost too high for manufacturers to use benzol for making ordinary products not connected with war.

At normal prices benzol will be used largely for the manufacture of other products, and with the development that is now going on it is believed the German domination in this product will be a thing of the past.

There is one use for benzol, for instance, which is practical and sure, and that is its use for motive purposes in automobiles in place of gasoline. It is being used largely in Europe for that purpose, and the only reason it has not been used here has been the limited production and the high price, it normally being about double the cost of gasoline. With the present immense production, however, the cost has been reduced until now it can be manufactured and sold at a profit at the proportionate price of gasoline, and that will be done as soon as the war is over.

The production of barium has also been undertaken in this country as a result of the European war. Messrs. Toch Bros., manufacturers of paints, etc., realized within two weeks after the war started that a very important part of the firm's business would be obliterated if barium compounds formerly obtained from Europe could not be supplied. A large tract of land was purchased at Sweetwater, Tenn., containing the mineral barite, and in less than two months barium salts were being shipped to the firm's Long Island City works. That was in October, 1914. Since that time, the plant at Sweetwater has been working night and day, while additional mines have been purchased.

VAST SUPPLY OF POTASH.

Dr. Thomas H. Norton, Commercial Agent of the Department of Commerce, has recently announced the development of a new process of extracting potassium from feldspar which will give to America a practically unlimited supply of potash, millions of dollars worth of which is annually used in the commercial arts, as well as for soil fertilization, and in the supplying of which Germany has heretofore enjoyed a natural monopoly.

The manufacture of glass, aluminum, saltpeter—from which is made our black explosive powder—and many other important industries depend upon potash salts in abundance and at comparatively low cost.

Dr. Norton explained that the new process for the extraction of potassium carbonates from feldspar for obtaining potash for use in industrial manufactures is in no way related to what he has said heretofore concerning the practicable processes for the extraction of potash from the vast deposits of kelp which lie along the Pacific Coast to a value, he estimated, of not less than $150,000,000. It is Dr. Norton's idea that the kelp deposits should be utilized for the production of potash as agricultural fertilizer.

Since German potash exports have been shut off the product has risen from a normal price of $38 a ton to $200 a ton, and even more.

RICH MINE WATERS.

Experiments extending over about three years have proved that most mine water has within it by-products of exceptional value. These products are sulphuric acid and ferric oxide, used extensively in the manufacture of paint pigments, printers' inks, wallpaper inks and the like articles, and a residue that is valuable for fertilizers, gas-purifying products and other articles that have previously been largely imported from foreign countries.

The H. C. Frick Coke Company has begun experiments to recover chemicals from the 4,000,000 or more gallons of water pumped from its mine near Connellsville, Pa., every twenty-four hours. From this amount of water, it is stated, will be taken an average quantity of sulphuric acid and other products that will make the water a source of income instead of an expense. After these chemicals are taken from it, the water can be used for chilling coke or other purposes, thus multiplying the water supply.

At the Calumet mine of the same company, another plant is in course of erection, where it is expected to treat in a like manner the 3,000,000 gallons of water pumped out every day. At this mine it is said the water is much more heavily laden with chemical products than at the Davidson mine.

Among the largest users of sulphuric acid in the world is the United States Steel Corporation, of which the H. C. Frick Coke Company is a subsidiary. This acid is used for pickling steel plates, tinning, galvanizing and the fabrication of galvanized pipe and wire and associated forms of steel.

The pigments derived are used for the manufacture of paint colors ranging from an egg-yellow to the most brilliant carmine, the different tints being made by subjecting the material to different degrees of heat.

These products will yield about $50 to $60 per 100,000 gallons of water, it is stated. It is proposed to install plants at the other mines of the company that yield large quantities of water impregnated with valuable chemicals.

DYES AND NICOTINE.

The Pearsite Company of New York and Pittsburgh has secured control of an invention for handling hydrocarbons, which will "short circuit" former methods of making dye stuffs. It is expected within a couple of months the company will be producing 10,000 pounds of dye stuffs daily which will do much to relieve the shortage in colors, because of the suspension of shipments from Germany.

There are few drugs more scarce than nicotine, and the prevailing price of $5 a pound has caused experiments to be inaugurated for the growing of a Russian strain of tobacco leaf, which will yield as high as 10 per cent. of nicotine content. France, England, Germany and Russia are making the same experiment. Figuring up a yield of, say 1200 pounds to the acre, which would give a nicotine content of 10 per cent., 120 pounds of the drug at $5 per pound would yield the grower $600 per acre, which would be a handsome profit.

PLENTY OF TOYS.

An examination of the toy departments in the stores, to the casual eye, at least, reveals no serious shortage in the supply, and the American boy and girl need have no fears lest they will not be made happy with their annual Christmas playthings just as in other years and as if the war had never happened. American toy factories apparently are meeting with entire success the emergency caused by the cutting off of the supply of foreign toys, chiefly from Germany, and are now enjoying a big revenue, which formerly was attracted abroad.

An American manufacturer of toys, commenting on the unusual situation, notes that the importation of German toys in 1913 was worth $8,856,575, while the American output for home consumption was valued at $8,264,000. He insisted that the home manufacturer could easily duplicate the work of the German producer of toys in every line except one, and that is the cheap mechanical toy. There Germany was supreme, and would continue to be. But in the midst of a myriad other kinds of toys, the American youngster will have little cause for complaining over the absence of this German specialty from his Christmas stocking.

EFFECTS OF SMOKE.

Renders Architectural Beauty Almost Impossible, Shortens Life of Metal Work, Lengthens Fog Period.

[Indianapolis News:] John O'Connor, Jr., of the Mellon institute of industrial research, University of Pittsburgh, points out in the Popular Science Monthly some of the effects of the smoke nuisance as determined by actual experiment, including the effect on building material, the effect on meteorological conditions, the effect on vegetation and the effect on health. He finds that as a result of restrictions in design and use of material enforced by the presence of smoke real architectural beauty is almost impossible. He says that an excessively smoky atmosphere compels special care in the arrangement of drain pipes so that there will be no splashing of soot carrying water; moldings must be designed so that rain will not wash the face of the soot which collects on top, and drips must be provided on all projections. Undercutting, delicacy of incised line and sharpness of angular forms must be foregone, for the soot deposited will in time fill up the crevices and destroy the beauty of the outline, leaving a mass of dirty, shabby masonry. As a result of the effect of smoke, stone, as a building material, is being gradually replaced by glazed brick and terra cotta.

Smoke affects stone in two ways. First, it soils the surface, rendering it a grimy color, which means either the loss of all artistic effect from color contrast, or frequent washing of the building with consequent expense and deterioration of the building due to the acid content of the cleaner, and, second, the smoke has an actual destructive action on all stones, particularly those stones containing calcium or magesium carbonates. When soot containing tar comes into contact with the metal surface the tar causes sulphuric and sulphurous acids to cleave to the metal which quickly eat into the surface. Inquiry among metal workers in Pittsburgh discloses the fact that metal work in a smoky city lasts only half as long as in a city where there is no smoke.

A smoky atmosphere intensifies a fog and causes it to persist longer than it otherwise would. As a consequence there are fewer hours of sunshine in a smoky city than in those which are free from smoke. Experiments carried on by the smoke investigation of the Mellon institute in Pittsburgh and in Sewickley, a small residential town, twelve miles northwest of Pittsburgh, showed that Pittsburgh had 25 per cent. less sunlight and 40 per cent. less daylight than Sewickley. It was also found that the limit of visibility in the business section of Pittsburgh was about one-tenth that in the open country.

It was found that gases and smokes have a deleterious action upon vegetation, and that the vegetation about a manufacturing plant may be marked off in concentric belts, each belt being represented by a certain form of plant life, since certain plants are more susceptible to smoke than others. When small quantities of soot were distributed over growing plants the leaves so treated soon drooped and many of them began to die at the tips, while the growth of the plants was checked.

Dr. Oskar Klotz finds that pulmonary anthracosisma conditions, where carbon particles of extraneous origin are deposited in the lungs, is an urban disease, the prevalence of which is in proportion to the smokiness of the atmosphere. His examination of the lungs of adult residents of Pittsburgh showed relatively more carbon deposit than lungs of those living in smaller manufacturing communities. Dr. Samuel Haythorn finds that this deposit of carbon in the lungs, while it has no significance in tuberculosis cases, exerts a powerful influence on the course of pneumonia, deterring recovery and in some cases indirectly causing the death of the patient. Summarizing the results of the medical investigations it appears that smoke has a tremendous influence in increasing the severity and mortality of acute diseases of the air passages. In addition, it lowers natural body resistance so that it can be said that the smokier the atmosphere the more colds and cases of bronchitis there will be.

The Unexpected.

One mocked at death, for being strong of limb
And fearless, death no terrors had for him;
"From out my course I shall not move a jot
Let him approach at will; I fear him not!"

Yet, when the conqueror whom he thought to meet
As man meets man, erect upon his feet,
Came creeping in long twilight shadows, he Fell on his knees and writhed in agony.

Another, not self-confident but frail,
Feared death from his youth upward: e'en would quail
At every shadow which upon his path
Seemed pointing toward him in its somber wrath.

Yet, when death came, not wrapped in lengthened gloom
As all life long this man expected doom,
But sudden in the sunlight, not a trace
Of fear remained; he met him face to face.

BEAUTY CHATS.

GRACEFUL HANDS.

YOUR grandmother—and mine and everyone's for that matter—used to quote, with pursed up lips and a twinkling smile that belied the primness of the speech, "Beauty is as Beauty does." And in the case of the hands, their beauty to a great extent does depend upon their motions. A generation or more ago, a young lady's hand seemed purely an ornamental attribute, and therefore must be used to show a graceful helplessness considered feminine and therefore irresistible. Nowadays, hands are for work as well as idle posing, but much of the grace is forgotten. Girls of today are never taught how to manage their hands, and we have the spectacle of awkwardly waving arms and ungainly gestures in every drawing-room today.

The thoroughbred hand, with slim pointed fingers, perfectly shaped, is structural, and born with the owner. But any hand, rightly used, can convey the expression of gentility quite as well. A soft skin, free from stains, is possible to every woman, even the hardest working, and correct manicuring is easily learned and does not take long to put into practice. So long as pumice stone will wear away the rough skin from sewing and lemon juice remove the stains of housework, so long as pink nails are a matter of three minutes' work a day and skin foods are easily made—what woman dare have an ill-cared-for hand?

In repose, let the hands lie in the lap, loosely clasped, palms upward. Every hand looks pretty so. In any case where the hand seems more or less on display, let the fingers be as loose as possible, and curled a trifle, this conveys an impression of delicacy and smallness. If you have leisure time, study your own hands, and correct any ugly or awkward motions you have. It will repay the time taken, in the added charm it will give you.

PASSING IT ALONG.

BY BURL ARMSTRONG.

Bill Brown owns a little piece of property just inside the western boundary of the city. He raises chickens. His chicken yard and incubators are at the rear of his lot in a hollow and there he may be found at all times when his regular work lets him remain at home.

Like thousands of others in that section of Los Angeles Bill has paid one assessment after another for improvements made several miles away, and while he complained mildly he accepted the statements of others that his property was being benefitted.

It was during the last rainy season that Bill's back yard was flooded with the waters shunted off other property on higher ground. His chickens were drowned during the night and his incubators flooded. Next morning he started out to get redress and this is what happened to Bill:

He bolted into the City Clerk's office at the City Hall, with fire in his eyes and anger in his voice.

"The flood waters have killed my chickens and ruined my incubators, and I want damages," he said.

"We haven't anything to do with that," said the City Clerk. "You go to the Board of Public Works and they'll attend to the matter."

"My chickens have been killed and my incubators flooded," he told the secretary of the board. "I want it stopped and I want damages."

"You certainly have a legitimate complaint," said the secretary, "and we are going to do all we can for you. But the way to handle the matter is this: You go to the street superintendent and he will have it fixed so that that flood waters won't come that way again and we will act on his report about damages."

Bill wasn't quite so mad when he reached the street superintendent. He told him the same story.

"Now, you certainly have a grievance. It's a damn shame and I'll show you how to get around it. You go to the Chief of Police and make a formal complaint. He will refer it to the officer on the beat. He will investigate and report and the report will come to the Board of Public Works and they will refer it to me and I will have the matter corrected."

So Bill waited upon the Chief of Police. And he waited. When he told the same dripping, wet-feathery story, the Chief referred him to the Chief of the Fire Department.

"Because," said the Chief, "a fire hydrant may have burst and if that's the case, the fire department will fix it."

The Chief of the Fire Department was consumed with compassion for Bill Brown. He recognized the justice of Bill's complaint and he was not going to rest until Bill got redress.

"I'll take the matter up with the fire commission today. You go over and see the secretary of the commission and he will make out the complaint and we'll take it up at once and act on it."

Bill plodded back to the City Hall, after having made the rounds and consumed the greater part of two days, and met the secretary of the fire commission.

"Why, we don't need a meeting of the fire commission to correct that," said the secretary. "All you have to do is to go to the City Engineer—"

"Now, hold on," said the impatient Bill. "If you send me to another department I'm going to fight. I have been booted around here for two days and I have visited every department in the city government. I'm not going to stand for any more of it."

"That's all right, old man. Don't get heavy," said the secretary. "Just listen to me and all your troubles will be over. You go to the City Engineer and explain—"

"I'm through explaining," said Bill.

"Just this once," said the secretary. "Just tell 'em all about it and they'll fix it. It's a damn shame you were sent to the wrong departments. Why didn't you come to me in the first place?"

Worn and weary William dragged himself into the City Engineer's office after several city employees had misdirected him. It was after 4 o'clock and several clerks were getting ready to beat the 5 o'clock bell so they would catch the first elevator to the ground floor.

Bill meekly approached one of them with his oft-repeated tale of woe.

"You fellows must have figured that storm drain wrong," he said in a tone that indicated he was at fault instead of the City Engineer. "The water runs all over my back yard, has killed all my chickens and ruined my incu—"

"What's that got to do with us?" asked the clerk.

"I was sent here to make a complaint," said Bill. "I've been other department."

"Well, now, Mr. Brown," clerk, confidentially, "I'll what to do. Don't listen to this bull you get around th departments. You take my thing for you to do is to go and raise ducks."

Have you ever tried it? Tr locate the one who is respo mean, not raising ducks.

NEW YORK SEES FINEST MODES.

WORLD'S COSTUMERS DISPLAY THEIR VERY BEST.

The Gotham Looks at What Paris Has to Offer and Adopts it Only if She Approves—Beautiful Things Shown at International Fashion Show.

BY KATHERINE T. VON BLON.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The couturiers of the world are sending their most ravishing creations to the new fashion center, New York, and why not, since all Europe is in the throes of war, and even those who have the money have little heart for dressing? In the elegant little shops crowding the avenue one sees a marvelous display of simply thrilling clothes this year. Each window seems to vie with the other in presenting something more sumptuous, more electrifying than the other.

Seldom in any of these fastidious shops does one come upon anything which might offend the eye of an artist, for all the colors are chosen with an exquisite feeling for shading and harmony which make the Parisian creation. As one gazes at one window and then at another, one instinctively knows that Paris predominates and though one may "root" for home talent and all that sort of thing, the fact remains proved beyond doubt that the French have never been excelled in grace of design and beauty and in combining colors in a delectable manner in the creation of my lady's gowns.

I was forcibly reminded of this fact when I attended the international fashion show at Carnegie Hall, where thousands of persons gladly paid $3 a seat for the privilege of viewing the very latest and smartest creations from the hands of the French couturiers. I could not just fathom their reason for calling it international. It seemed rather a farce, as the houses represented bore such Parisian names as Callot Soeurs, Maison Bernard, Paquin, Cheruit, Poiret, Premet, Ferier, Jeanne Lanvin and others equally illustrious in the world of fashion.

This swagger fashion show was staged like some bewitching, musical revue. The settings, painted by a Viennese artist, were charming, representing a sort of wooded scene, of shadowy trees and ephemeral cloud effects, and beyond a castle of noble lines whose softly lighted doorway framed each lovely mannequin, as she stepped forth into the garden and circled the Italian fountain, whose sparkling waters threw a shimmering over the scene. The revue was lead off by a delightful little whimsy of fashion, a merry witch of a girl clad in a costume suggesting the magnificance and the insouciance of the modern fashion. In one hand she carried a gilded slipper and in the other a ravishing hat, about which she performed astounding dances and pirouettes.

It was to catch these first whiffs of the winter season's fragrance that New York waited breathless. Do not think because she views them that Miss New York necessarily accepts them. No indeed. Conservative New York calmly looks them over and decides just what she will accept. Mind you, not every edict from Paris does New York accept unconditionally. She wishes the ideas, the fashions and the general tone to come from the French capital, but if it is a bit too daring, a little too flaring, or unbecoming or trying, down comes Miss New York's foot, and it must be modified or it is consigned to oblivion.

Hence, while Paris sent a number of models with very wide skirts and pulled-in waists, Miss New York still clings to straight lines, and, in fact, insists upon having them. So Paris lets out the waists a few reams, makes the shoulders quite narrow and, behold, one has almost a straight line from shoulder to hem, a trifle slanting out it is true, but there you are. No curves.

Many of the skirts are very full, but most of them carry weights around the bottom to hold the fullness down and preserve the straight silhouette. One lovely skating costume shown at the Carnegie Hall show was of a soft green plush with very full skirt, edged with a broad band of mink fur, and made quite short to show the high, white kid boots, tipped with black patent leather. A loose sort of Eton coat with high cape collar of mink and wide flaring cuffs of the same, completed the costume, with which was worn a cocky fur turban, trimmed with a drooping cock's plume of deep green, reminding one much of the plumes worn by the Italian carbinieres.

Nearly all the costumes were swathed in furs, and many of them were of velvet or plush, but there were some handsome cloth gowns. One of midnight brown broadcloth was made with Russian coat trimmed with beaver bands on coat and skirt, and finished with a cape of beaver coming high about the face. A small military turban of fur was worn with this suit. The skirt of this suit was wide, but the skirt of the coat was so much fuller that the skirt itself seemed narrow in comparison. Another swagger suit was of white, heavy-ribbed corduroy, made with a Russian coat whose skirt fell below the skirt of the suit in back and about fifteen inches below the waist in front. This was handsomely trimmed with opossum and a large white hat of broadcloth trimmed with beaded flowers was worn with it. A pretty little cloth dress for afternoon was made of plum-colored material trimmed with wide bands of velvet, and over the filmy waist of chiffon, embroidered in gold, fell a short cape, reaching about to the waist, quite like the old-fashioned capes.

Unlike the summer just passed, the winter season promises more color. During the summer season New York women almost might have been said to have adopted a uniform of blue taffeta silk with chiffon sleeves, and worn with a blue or black hat. Whether for restaurant, street, calling or afternoon wear, it was ever and eternally blue taffeta gowns. One really felt conspicuous if one appeared in anything but the regulation costume. This winter different shades of green, midnight brown, deep blues even grays and wine colors are the vogue.

Featuring the rich blue so much in vogue for street wear, I saw in an uptown shop a stunning model made with long Russian blouse and tunic, and trimmed about the edge of the tunic and sleeves and neck with bands of astrachan of gray color. Just above the astrachan upon the tunic was a conventional design worked in gray steel, and on the waist the same motif was repeated.

Of gray corduroy, another model for the street was richly trimmed with gray fur on collar and cuffs, the collar being very high and falling in a point in the back. The coat was made rather loose, and in cutaway effect, fastened with two steel buttons over the breast, and swinging in two points down the back almost in cape-like proportions. The skirt was made in full-gored effect, but preserving the lines of the slender form, though falling in ripples from the back.

The majority of the suits that I saw in the fashion salons were made with long coats, but there were a few notable exceptions, so that the woman who really prefers a short-coated street gown may wear one and feel quite right. I saw one very charming little model, a deep blue velvet made with a coat reaching just below the waist line and with quite narrow shoulder seams and slim, straight effect. It sported a collar of chinchilla and a band across the front of the coat of the same fur.

The back of the coat, which was cut in loose folds, was held in slightly at the waist by cords and chinchilla buttons. A wider band of the fur finished the gown in front.

An afternoon gown of white chiffon was trimmed on the skirt with broadcloth and beaver bands, and the short broadcloth coat bore a design of beaver upon collar and cuffs. The coat was a belted model, with wide waist line.

Another gown particularly fetching was of blue velvet with bandings of skunk fur on the tunic, which was short in front and long in back; the under part and sleeves of the waist were made of rich black moire silk. The shoulder seams were short and the lines of the waist quite full, giving a long, slanting line.

The evening coats were especially ravishing at the Fashion Show, and also on the avenue. One in a shop near Forty-fourth street was of the most exquisite brocade in old blues and old gold, so soft it would have crushed in the hand like gossamer, lined with old gold silk, and made with narrow-shouldered yoke, upon which the skirt of the cape (for such it was) was gathered very full. Skunk edged the cape and a high collar of skunk bound it tightly at the throat.

Of coral pink paon velvet was another coat at the Fashion Show, shirred at the shoulders and falling in voluminous folds, and trimmed with rich gold embroidery. Many of the evening coats, wraps and capes are made of corduroy in delicate shades and trimmed with handsome furs. Many of these coats are lined with corduroy of contrasting shades. These mantles are really the newest thing in coats, and are made rather short and very flaring, and most of them are trimmed with fur about the neck and collar, and with few exceptions no fur on the bottom of the cape. Some of the coats are drawn in a trifle at the waist line, but so voluminous are the folds that very little flare is given.

I saw a lovely coat of black velvet and made with a top cape over the shoulders, luxuriously trimmed with real blue fox and fastened with cut-steel buckles across the front. Another dream of an evening mantle was of turquoise blue heavily embroidered about the waist which was slightly drawn in by shirrings, with silver embroidery, and white fox finished the collar and cuffs, while the heavy folds were drawn to one side and fastened on the side with great silver buttons. Another coat for the middle-aged woman was of white velvet heavily beaded in black jet and finished with skunk collar and cuffs. It was very striking. An oyster-colored corduroy mantle had a short cape of broadcloth over the shoulders edged with rich sable and a flaring collar of the same fur.

The evening gowns this year are exquisite creations, seemingly fashioned of a gossamer bit of cloud, a hint of blue sky and a suggestion of the spring fields and flowers; that is, they are mostly very diaphanous and airy and the color symphonies are chosen and made with fastidious taste.

One gown at the fashion show stands out particularly in my memory, and the girl who wore it was a beautiful little creature, radiantly wearing the gown and enhancing its appeal. She was one of those pearly-skinned blondes with a hint of warm color in her flesh and rich red lips and vivid flush in her cheek. Her hair was a wonderful sort of old gold shade. The gown was of a deep sea foam green, shading to more delicate tints of the same color. It was made with one of those little bodices which seem scarcely to deserve the name, so sheer and ephemeral are they. Just a few drapes of tulle and a mere band of brilliants across the shoulder to hold the gauzy green waist in place. The skirt was made with a tunic of tulle reaching nearly to the bottom of the dress itself, and a girdle of silvery material was loosely draped about the waist. The dress was quite short and rather full, revealing the silver embroidered hose and slippers and queerly contrasting with the rather saucy and debutancy demeanor of the gown, was the long court train flowing from the shoulders of heavily embroidered green tulle, like a stream of rippling water flecked with silvery foam.

Another striking evening gown shown in a Fifth-avenue shop was made with a draped skirt of turquoise blue velvet, with that unevenness about the bottom which characterizes so many of the new creations. The waist was fashioned of heavily-beaded crystal net, made with the waist rather high for a decollete gown, while the back was cut so low as to reveal all the shoulders and back almost to a normal waist line. The necklace worn with this, as is the fad of the moment, carried the pendant in back instead of in the front. Another gown at the Fashion Show made with the same high front and low-backed decolletage was of American Beauty velvet with trimmings of creamy lace veiled with silver. The lace was let in V panels in the full skirt and formed sleeve caps and a sort of little chemisette in the bodice.

A lovely corn-colored gown of handsomely-brocaded silk was made with a train hanging from the shoulders of a deeper colored tulle edged with brown skunk fur. Topaz brilliants trimmed the waist and were scattered upon the train.

Another charming gown in one of the shops was of pale pink faille silk embroidered in silver. It was made with draping over the hips, which fell in back into two irregular points, forming a small train. Across the bottom of the short skirt in front a wide band of gray fur accentuated the pink-and-silver color scheme. The pink tulle waist was made over a silver foundation and tiny bands of the silvery fur formed shoulder straps.

At an exclusive shop near Fifty-seventh street, which, by the way, it is predicted will be soon the swagger cross-town shopping street. I saw a particularly lovely evening gown of irridescent beaded material. In the evening it shone and gleamed with myriad delicate opalescent shades, and a blue and silver rose was the one decided note of color about it. It was draped in long clinging lines and with a train in two points. The sleeveless bodice was draped and held over the shoulders by straps made of delicate little beaded flowers.

An afternoon gown shown at the Fashion Show was of yellow chiffon and deep brown velvet with trimmings of skunk and the brown velvet showing on the under skirt. A sort of shoulder mantle of embroidered chiffon flowed gracefully, reaching in a point below the waist.

Another gown seen was of spangled green chiffon, over a wide tulle skirt of tulle whose edge was marked with a broad band of silver braid. A train fell from the shoulders, embroidered in silver on green tulle and edged with white fur. A panel of the same embroidered tulle marked the front of the gown, also banded with the fur.

WIRELESS TO FORD.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

Dear Henry: Many thanks for your kind invitation to join the peace pilgrims; but I am distressed to report that I cannot be of your party. To be honest about it I am afraid to ride with you. Even on a mission of good will. There's a reason. I hadn't owned one of your tin terriers an hour before it bolted wildly from the road and ran half way up a promising pepper tree. But for the promptness of the intelligent person who was drilling me how to steer the contrivance I might be dangling there yet. A fight between one of your road beetles and a pepper tree is doubtless inspiring but the next time I prefer to climb the tree first and when I get out on a stout limb I will place my thumb to my nose and defy the machine to the uttermost. Your cars are all right in some respects, but as pole climbers they are a dead proposition.

On another occasion when I said "Whoa" to the machine in a very impassioned voice, it positively refused to whoa. Instead it backed vehemently into a milk wagon and the language that dairyman used was dreadfully disrespectful. I wouldn't call my wife the names that man did me. He intimated that I ought to do my riding in a wheelbarrow and push it myself. Now a wheelbarrow is not upholstered and its movement is terribly slow, but it is safe. The incidents I am telling you about are some excuse for the apprehension that riding with you is not wholly safe. When we got to a nasty wet place in the ocean you might kill your engine and then I would have to get out and crank the boat.

That is always my job.

Or something might happen to the transmission. It is all right on dry land to crawl under a buzz-wagon and to lie upon one's back while watching the workings of its gizzard, but to get under a propeller in a soggy and tempestous sea is no job for a poet. Besides, I never can see when my eyes are full of salt water.

For another thing, I cannot understand why you call your peace craft Hoss Car II. For a man who has done what you have to our delivery animals to be riding in a Hoss Car seems like rubbing it in. It doesn't convey the impression that you are a man of peace.

Another question comes to me: Are you sure that you will find a welcome where you are going?

As near as I can make out you want me to go and see the King and the Kaiser, and use my influence to get them to shake hands and call off their dogs; but supposing the Kaiser looks me coldly in the eye and tells me to go to Helena, Montana; do I go?

I remember that when I was young, impetuous and gallant and lived in your own city of Detroit I one evening passed the home of a neighbor who was engaged in the Saturday night sport of beating up his family. The screams of a woman nerved me to deeds of daring. I rushed up the steps, opened the door and became a part of the scene. "Stay!" I roared to the tyrant. "You shall not strike this lady!" The man turned toward me in surprise. "You fool," he hissed. "She is no lady; she's my wife."

The woman also resented my intrusion. "Get out of this you sore-eyed pup," she exclaimed, passionately, "or I'll beat you to a pulp."

With that she gave me a mighty swat across the face with an umbrella, that almost blinded me. At the same time the irate husband landed a powerful kick in my esophagus, that doubled me up like a jackknife and sent me rolling down the steps and against the fence. As I tried to gather my legs together to run away the gentle lady shouted, "Knock his block off, Jack!"

Since that unfortunate night I have been a trifle leary of the job of peacemaker. When the disturbance gets so that it grates on my nerves I telephone for the cops.

It is always safe to tell your troubles to a policeman.

Furthermore, Henry, your party should be large and imposing enough without my presence. It is true that I might add some dignity and savior faire—whatever that is—but what's the use? If you could take Col. Bryan along you would need no other spokesman and your literary gents and sob sisters would only clutter up the deck. If you could shanghai the Oyster Bay colonel and exhibit him in a cage it might help some, but otherwise I cannot see that mere numbers will add to the cause.

At this distance I cannot imagine the King and the Prime Minister and the rest of the big guys knocking off their programme and meeting you with a brass band. Nor can I figure out an address of welcome on the part of Lord Kitchener, unless you come at him with a proposition to sell him a million cars at a hundred dollars apiece; fill them full of gasoline and firecrackers and turn them loose on the enemy.

Scaring a foe to death is just as good as getting rid of him in any other way.

Much obliged for the fifty bones you sent me recently. It comes mighty handy in the matter of paying taxes under our high-priced administration. Still, I think that any man who has to limit his road dissipation to one of your black beetles is entitled to a bonus. Nor is he in the frame of mind to preach peace.

If I can think of any other reasons why I should not join your Buttinsky crusade I will drop you a postal card later. Anyhow, you don't have to do it for advertising purposes.

So no more at present.

P. S. Can't 'Ford to go.

FORBES-ROBERTSON TOUR.

Veteran Star to Play in "Passing of Third Floor Back" this Month in Pasadena but not Here.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson is making a tour of the West, visiting those cities to which he did not say good-by on his farewell tour last winter. He will play in Pasadena the 13th inst., Jerome's "Passing of the Third Floor Back." He will not appear in Los Angeles at all, much to the regret of his many admirers, who wish he would withdraw his decision not to tell them another good-by.

It is now definitely arranged, so his management states, that this actor's performance of "Hamlet" at Harvard University, in April, will mark his final appearance in this country. This production will comemorate the 300th anniversary of the death of Shakespeare. The president of Harvard and the chairman of the department of English of that university invited Sir Johnston to appear there in Sanders's Theater, which is a replica of the famous old Globe Theater, London.

Mr. Forbes-Roberston includes San Diego among the western cities which he will visit. He will appear there December 9, 10 and 11. He will give a share of the proceeds of his first night's performance to the Belgium Christmas benefit fund.

Art of Gratitude.

woe from some people a few days ago who had befriended a stranger to this city. They gave me a long list of every tiny thing they had ever given her, every time they had taken her out driving or to the theater, and bemoaned the fact that "oh, she seemed so grateful at the time, but it's simply disgusting how she has turned round on us now."

And all the while I had a guilty sense of sympathy with that ungrateful woman; obviously she should have dedicated the rest of her life to expiating that kindness.

There are so many people to admonish us to be cheerful givers. But that, after all, is comparatively easy, if our circumstances are not too penurious. But if they could teach us how to be gently and consistently grateful, without too severe a strain upon our self-respect, modify our natural reluctance to puff up the giver with self-complacency not wholly warranted, they—and we—should be doing much more for the happiness of the world.

But it is very exacting. One has to be tremendously fond of anyone to thank them without a "but" for something we don't like. And if we don't happen to like the giver, it doesn't matter how worthy the gift, we still find gratitude highly irksome.

Many a marital happiness is wrecked on this rock of imperfect gratitude. Many a spouse wounds to the very quick by being "practical about this Christmas present business."

"Yes, you are a dear, old fellow to think of it, but you might have known I hate black furs. If you had only asked me, I could have told you that brown is my color. However, I can probably change it."

And the poor wretch probably spent tortuous days selecting those black furs with all the love of his heart. The next Christmas he is careful to discuss the matter practically beforehand, and probably ends by writing out a check with a cynical little smile.

Yet that same wife is the first to be shocked when her small son evinces base ingratitude for an improving book when he wanted a railway engine, and she will never fail to spin him a long lecture on the iniquity of ingratitude. And it is a happy child that does not have the awful obligation of his Christmas gifts thrown up in his face for months afterwards, when small misdemeanors happen themselves.

If we could bring ourselves to regard gratitude as leniently as we regard the truth, we should save ourselves a great many indignant emotions. Granted, it is a highly commendable attribute, but since we don't practice it really consistently ourselves, why exact it of others?

Or, if we are firmly convinced that ingratitude is the basest of sins, then, as we hope for heaven, let us practice gratitude with all our heart.

The fact is we are a lot of humbugs. We regard gratitude as an essential virtue in everybody else. We expect them to be eternally grateful for the most modest efforts on our part, demand amiable cordiality for a box of cheap handkerchiefs or a rattle for the baby, lifelong devotion for a social debut or an inferior job. "Why, I gave that wretched girl her coming-out party," remarks the society lady, with acrimony. "Why, that chap would have starved if I had not got him a job," sneers the prosperous business man.

Oh, well! After all, "gratitude is a lively sense of favors to come," and one observes that while the Bible is filled with admonitions about our duties to others, it says no word about compulsory gratitude.

And Wordsworth certainly said, "Alas, the gratitude of man hath oftener left me mourning"—not ingratitude, mark you, but Gratitude.

And in our greater moments we always disclaim any desire for gratitude, and the very nicest people we know obviously find expressed gratitude embarrassing, beg us not to thank them and assure us the pleasure and privilege were theirs.

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,

NOTED ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION.

STUDIO PARLORS, 621 S. BROADWAY.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 21 YEARS.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, investments, changes, talents, environment, about children, relatives, when and where to travel, what to seek or avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc., also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES of these events for the FUTURE.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Schumann-Heink, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Senator Smoot, Baron Rothschild, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Capt. Hobson, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Sembrich, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, etc. EXPERT PALM READINGS, READINGS BY MAIL.

DR. J. A. LARSON writes: "Your reading was the most satisfactory I ever had in my life. I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work is the most THOROUGH and RELIABLE of any reader in the United States."

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and in HAND readings has brought him a LARGE and SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention given. STRICT PRIVACY, HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and many years' experience can produce. HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

STUDIO PARLORS, 621 S. BROADWAY.

PERSONAL—

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

TO LET—
THE BELMONT APTS.
(formerly the Ivins.)
Figueroa at Tenth. Easy walking distance.

Almost everybody at the Belmont took advantage of the management's invitation for a visit to Universal City last Sunday afternoon. It took several large automobiles, seating nearly forty each, to convey the whole party to and from the picture-making city. Special guides, thoroughly familiar with everything of interest, conducted the big party about, and the whole afternoon was greatly enjoyed by the guests of the Belmont management.

Next Sunday afternoon those who live at the Belmont will enjoy an automobile ride to Sycamore Canyon, where a picnic dinner will be spread—and the Belmont serves some picnic dinners.

By the way, the Thanksgiving dinner given by the guests at the Belmont was a huge success. Nearly a hundred persons were seated about the big tables in the lobby, and the boards fairly groaned with the weight of the menu. Dinner was served at 3 p.m. and it was two hours later before the diners pushed back their chairs and, contented and at peace with all mankind, listened to witty stories and songs provided by talented members of the party. There were dancing and cards in the evening, which lasted until the Thanksgiving day of 1915 was of the past and a new day had been born. One lady said: "This is the pleasantest Thanksgiving I ever knew."

We've just a few doubles at $60 and up—and they will not be available many days.

If you are not entirely satisfied where you are, call and see what the Belmont can offer you. Talk with our guests and learn how they feel.

Automobiles.

THE LARGE VOLUME OF THE STUDEBAKER BUSINESS ENABLES US AT ALL TIMES TO GIVE SPLENDID VALUES IN USED CARS.

Hundreds of cars are offered us every month as part payment on new Studebakers. We thoroughly inspect each car, select only the best, and then put them through our shops. They are overhauled, repainted and in every way conditioned to make them good common-sense investments for you.

REMEMBER: [illegible]

WE SPEND THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS PUTTING CONCEALED GOODNESS IN USED CARS WHERE HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS WORTH OF DOPE, CORK AND PAINT WOULD MAKE THEM LOOK AND RUN AS GOOD—FOR A WHILE.

PRICES ARE SURPRISINGLY LOW.

ROADSTERS.

$125—Maxwell, a good little car.
$275—Studebaker 25, an economical, small, easy-riding runabout.
$350—Moon speedster. A beautiful looking gentleman's roadster.

TOURING CARS.

$250—Cadillac; foredoor body.
$250—Cadillac, 1911; demi-tonneau; Timken equipment throughout. Not overhauled, but $200 underpriced. A fine used car.
$275—Studebaker 20 touring car.
$350—Studebaker 30. A wonderful buy; new tires. Overhauled, repainted. A light, easy-riding car.
$425—Studebaker 25. One of the best small cars ever built.
$425—Buick, 1913; repainted. Good condition.
$435—Chalmers 36; new tires; overhauled and repainted. Priced away under the market.

CARS WITH STARTER AND LIGHTS.

$440—Detroiter, 1914. Just overhauled.
$475—Overland, 1914.
$550—Cadillac. Overhauled, repainted and new tires.
$550—Studebaker 35, 7-passenger. A light, economical car.
$625—Studebaker Six. You can't beat this value.
$700—Early 1914 Cole Six. Priced $200 under its real value.

It will pay you to visit our Used Car Department.

We sell honestly, for there is no place in Studebaker selling methods for misrepresentation, and a bill of sale given by Studebaker is a real bill of sale.

NO HUPMOBILES—

Did you notice that big ad that recently appeared in a local paper?

A long list of used cars—including every standard make, was offered—but not a HUP was mentioned.

Hup owners absolutely refuse to sell. Try to buy and find out.

Owing to new model sales we have an occasional Hup traded in—but buyers are already on our list.

Of course we have every other make—used cars that look like a million dollars—and sell ridiculously low—including

SALVATION FUND EXCITES CHINA.

MONEY RAISED TO FIGHT JAPS NOW BONE OF CONTENTION.

Contributors Demand Return of Sums Given, as There is a Suspicion the Entire Amount is to be Used in Aiding the Overthrow of the Republic.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 2.—Charges and counter-charges are made daily in the Chinese press concerning the use of the Salvation Fund which was started at the height of the boycott against the Japanese in an effort to provide money for the strengthening of China. There have been many statements made as to the sums subscribed. The promoter, Ma Tsau-son, set $50,000,000 as the goal which the fund should reach within six months. Some of the contributors understood that their funds were to be returned if the goal was not reached in the specified time.

With the appearance of the monarchical movement, contributions slumped and disgruntled contributors demanded their money back, saying that they did not care to continue their support of the fund on deposit in government banks.

No exact statement has been made as to the exact amount of money contributed, although it is generally reported that at least $5,000,000 Mexican was actually paid in. Some large subscribers refused to pay contributions when it became clear that the monarchy is to be re-established.

There is difference of opinion as to what disposition shall be made of it. Some members say that the fund must be kept going and devoted to the extension of Chinese industries. Ma Tsau-son recently printed a letter in all the Chinese papers saying that the fund was started with a good object, which has been defeated by the recent upheaval in politics, and that the money given to the fund must be returned to the donors. He also says that he will take legal steps, if necessary, to protect contributors.

Yu Ya-ching, the chairman of the committee which is handling the fund, and Ma Tsau-son have had much correspondence concerning the matter, most of which has been published. The chairman is seeking delay for further consideration of the demands made by subscribers who gave their money to help to strengthen the republic and have no sympathy with the movement to re-establish the monarchy.

A Convenient Fence.

[Pittsburgh Gazette-Times:] An old Maine sea captain has a fence about his home, so constructed that he can enter anywhere he happens to hit it, without pawing about in the dark to find the gate. The fence is built of the pew doors of an old church in one of the cape towns and the doors are so arranged that they swing on their original hinges at very frequent intervals.

PORT ITEMS.

Bringing the largest cargo of New York freight ever discharged at this port, the American-Hawaiian steamer Columbia arrived here today after a long voyage of forty-nine days from New York, via Magellan Straits. She has 3500 tons for this port, a large part of which is Christmas merchandise, delayed by the closing of the Panama Canal.

Steamers arriving from the north today were delayed by the strong gale last night. The Congress was two hours late and did not arrive until 6 p.m. The Yale was an hour late. The wind reached a velocity of forty-eight miles per hour and blew steadily at this rate from midnight until 2 a.m. The rainfall amounted to 1:23 inches.

Five steam schooners got away tonight for northern ports, after a busy twenty-four hours on the lumber wharves. There were ten vessels working cargo today and, in order to get out tonight, several of them worked overtime last night. The departures today were the Lakme for Eureka, Shoshone for Portland, and J. B. Stetson, Svea and Nehalem for Gray's Harbor.

GERMAN ARMY ONE BIG BATTERY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD (via London) Dec. 4.—Discussing machine-gun equipment of the German forces along the Russian front, Col. Clerget of the Russian army in the Russki Invalid states that the German army is becoming one great machine-gun battery.

It is the German aim, according to the writer, to instruct every common soldier of every branch of the service how to manipulate a machine gun in case of necessity. Even the teamsters and members of the sanitary corps, he adds, are receiving such instruction.

Another thing noted by Col. Clerget is the extraordinary rapidity with which the Germans are introducing automatic rifles.

The Germans' dislike for bayonet attack is responsible, according to Col. Clerget, for the change in German tactics.

ARTILLERY BUSY IN DARDANELLES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 4 (via London.)—An official Turkish statement issued today says:

"On the Dardanelles front there have been artillery bombardments near Anafarta by enemy cruisers; near Ari Burnu by a torpedo boat and monitor, and near Seddul Bahr by a monitor and an armored cruiser. The bombardments were unsuccessful."

HEAVY GRAIN CROP IN RUSSIA.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, Dec. 3 (via London, Dec. 4.)—The Ministry of Finances has presented to the Council of Ministers a summary of the economic situation in Russia which says that the grain harvest for the current year was 512,000,000 poods (a pood equals thirty-six English pounds), about 350,000,000 bushels above the five-year average.

Counting grain carried from the previous season, Russia has available for the current year 4,766,000,000 poods of grain and potatoes, equalling about 3,177,000,000 bushels, the excess of the available surplus over 1914 amounting to 789,000,000 poods, equalling about 526,000,000 bushels.

Deducting the probable consumption of the country, it is estimated that the new available surplus will be about 887,000,000 bushels. Reports regarding the winter crops are of the most favorable nature.

Since the beginning of the war, it was announced, the savings of the people have increased 499,000,000 roubles and now amount to 2,408,000,000 roubles.

"SAFETY FIRST" RUMANIA'S PLAN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Dec. 4, 4:28 p.m.—Reuter's Bucharest correspondent telegraphs the Rumanian military authorities have announced that all steamships, barges, tugs and other craft anchored in Rumanian ports belonging to foreign or private Rumanian companies, will be commandeered on Monday "in the interest of national defense."

Premier Bratiano, the correspondent says, has informed the Rumanian Senate he is unable to give explanations of the government's foreign policy or information concerning military supplies. This information is reserved "in the interests of national defense."

STEAMER CHASED BY SUBMARINE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The steamer Verona, which arrived today from Italian ports, was chased in the Mediterranean on November 19 by a submarine and the only reason that it escaped, Capt. Simone Gull said, was that a heavy sea made the submarine roll and pitch and slow up.

The chase took place when the Verona was about 110 miles west of the straits of Bonifacio. There was no flag on the submarine but it was the consensus of opinion on the Verona that she was a German U-boat.

KING PETER. BLAMES RUSSIA.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (via Sayville, N. Y.)—"King Peter of Serbia on leaving Serbian soil as a fugitive," says the Overseas News Agency, "sent the following telegram to Emperor Nicholas of Russia:

"'Serbia always has been devoted to Russia. Serbia sacrificed all the forces she had and shed her blood. Now, as an old man, I have to leave my country—my country whose destruction was caused by the Russian Emperor's evil counselors.'"

MORE DESERTERS AS STOWAWAYS.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—William Krappe and Albert Ohlaff, who claim to be deserters from the German army, arrived here as stowaways today on the freighter Oosterdyk.

Federal authorities took them in charge and it is expected they will be given treatment similar to that of Heinrich Schultz, the alleged deserter, who arrived in New York as a stowaway two weeks ago.

Schultz was first held for deportation, but later was admitted to the country.

JAIL FOR SELLING WAR MATERIALS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—George Frederick Priestley was sentenced in Bow-street Police Court today to four months in prison for dealing in war materials without a permit. Priestley's operations were brought to light by the censor, who stopped two letters addressed to men in New York named Page and Schreet. The letters contain an outline of an agreement with Schreet for the sale of 2,000,000 Mauser rifles.

TO DOUBLE PAY OF GERMAN ARMY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN (via London) Dec. 4.—Representatives of the Centrium party today introduced a resolution in the Budget Committee of the Reichstag in the pay of German soldiers. Privates in the pay of Geran soldiers. Privates in the German army now receive thirty pfennigs (seven and one-half cents) a day.

Calipatria.

PUMICE MINE ISOLATED IN SALTON SEA CRATER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CALIPATRIA, Dec. 4.—Mystery overhangs the apparent dynamiting of a ditch bank east of here last night and the flooding and isolating of what is claimed to be the only known available commercial deposit of pumice in the world.

Following within twenty-four hours of the publication of a story that the Calipatria pumice mine had obtained a contract to furnish pumice to the Bethlehem Steel Works for use in polishng projectiles for the allies, a sinister attempt by war enemies is seen.

Robert L. Laughlin, a mining engineer and former Princeton man, who is in charge of the works nine miles northwest of here, said tonight that some explosive had clearly been used in causing a flood over the road from a waste-way ditch. The character of the soil is such that when water is put on it becomes an oozy mud and he estimated that it will be three weeks before the big trucks which transport the pumice to Calipatria will be able to be used for shipments.

With the shut-down of the pumice works on one of the islands off Sicily, that of Calipatria is the chief source of supply for the world. It is taken from an old crater and was formerly an island in Salton Sea.

The water has receded through evaporation until water touches but two sides. Test holes have been put down showing pumice over all of 320 acres.

The importance of pumice in munitions factories is explained by the stress which is laid upon perfect symmetry and nonresistance that the projectile may be shot true over long ranges. The cost has tripled since the war. Armed guards have been stationed at the pumice mine.

Champagne.

HOW FRENCH PLANNED RUSH.

Each Part of German Sector is Carefully Mapped.

Men Knew Their Objectives Before They Started.

To Thorough Preparation is Attributed Success.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Nov. 29.—The battle of Champagne, according to information received from most reliable sources, was a series of assaults by different sections of the French forces, each of which had its particular object in view, arranged to harmonize with the general plan, but executed independently. The lines that were forced were those organized by the Germans after the battle of the Marne and perfected by a year of systematic labor to a point where their defenders had so much confidence in them that the officers in command, though anticipating an attack, were caught in their beds by the first lines of the French rush.

The trenches were not only fortified by every means that the war of trenches has developed, but the position was naturally strengthened by a line of heights north of Perthes from Souain to Tahure by the twin heights Mammelle Nord and Mammelle Sud north of the Mesnil, with the strong fortifications of excellent support, and were strongly organized. Resting on these heights were two positions about two miles apart, the first composed of three lines of parallel trenches in some places and five in others with barbed wire defenses between them. All the ground covered by these positions was also fortified with transversal and diagonal trenches permitting lateral and enfilating fire with redoubts so armored as to hold out and continue firing even after the trenches had been demolished. In the most exposed spots in level country there were labyrinths and networks.

Complicated as were these earthworks they had no secrets for the French staff. Every one of those trenches, redoubts, communicating trenches and labyrinths had been located, named or numbered and plotted on the General Staff maps, so that each sector knew exactly what it would find. The ranges of every part of those lines had been taken and when the artillery opened the three-inch shells fell with deadly precision upon the defense works, leveling trenches, demolishing redoubts and blockhouses with loopholes, blocking up communicating trenches and obliterating barbed wire entanglements. While the fire of the light field pieces covered all the ground covered by the first line and the supporting trenches as far as the second position the heavy guns attacked general headquarters and encampments further back, completely blocking railway traffic by the destruction of stations and making it impossible to bring up supplies to the trenches of the first position during seventy-two hours.

While the bombardment was in progress the officers explained to the men of each different sector what the general plan was and what part his particular sector was to take in it. The men knew from the maps that were shown them what they would find after they had leaped over the parapet of the first trench; they knew from their instructions what they were to do at each obstacle. They knew what their final objective was and when they reached it, though ignorant of what the adjoining sector was to do further than the columns were to meet at a designated spot. To this thorough preparation is attributed by the most competent critics the success of the first rush and the remarkable high proportion of prisoners taken.

SLAVS RECOVER LOST POSITION.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, Dec. 3 (via London, Dec. 4. Delayed in transmission.)—The Russian War Office today gave out the following statement:

"The situation is unchanged from the Gulf of Riga to the Pripet.

"On the night of the second the enemy, after a heavy artillery bombardment launched an attack upon the railway station at Old Podtcherevshi on the left bank of the Styr, southwest of Rafalovka, and our forces at first were repulsed, but regained toward evening the lost position. Our artillery by a concentrated fire on the village of Semki, on the left bank of the Styr above Czartorysk, threw the enemy into disorderly flight, causing them serious losses."

HERO FUND BONDS WILL BE SOLD.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Dec. 4, 9:55 p.m.—The trustees of the Carnegie Hero Fund, the Carnegie trust for the Universities of Scotland and the Carnegie Dunfermline trust have decided to sell at the current market prices the United States Steel Corporation bonds held by the trusts and invest the proceeds in bonds of the British government. It is explained that this decision was taken with a view of meeting the desire of the government that American securities held in this country should be realized in order to overcome the adverse rate of exchange. The bonds amount to almost 5,000,000 pounds ($25,000,000.)

GERMAN ENGINES FOR THE TURKS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

CONSTANTINOPLE (via Berlin and London) Dec. 4.—Immediately after the opening of railway communication with Berlin, which is expected before the middle of December, according to officials, the Anatolian railroad will receive from Germany a large number of locomotives and freight cars. These will be used in moving stocks of foodstuffs and raw materials stored at various stations in Asia Minor awaiting shipment.

TO COMMISSION NEVADA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The new battleship Nevada will be commissioned some time in January, the Navy Department announced today, and will be commanded by Capt. W. S. Sims. The Oklahoma, also nearing completion, will be commanded by Capt. Roger Wells.

AMERICAN SHIP SENDS "S.O.S."

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ATHENS, Dec. 4. — A wireless "S.O.S." call reached Athens this morning from an unnamed American ship, the message stating that she was being attacked by an Austrian or a German submarine south of the island of Crete.

Subsequent efforts to communicate with the vessel were fruitless.

The American Legation here sent a report regarding the matter to Washington.

The collier Caesar, which is in Eastern Mediterranean waters, may be in the vicinity from which the message was sent.

Word from the collier Caesar received in Washington and given out today was that she sailed yesterday from Port Said, at the entrance of the Suez Canal, for Alexandria.

MAY BE MERCHANTMAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The State Department late today had received no official information regarding the reported attack on an American ship in the Mediterranean.

Officials thought there was little possibility that the collier Caesar was the ship referred to in news dispatches attacked by a submarine and suggested that it probably was one of a small fleet of merchant vessels plying in Grecian waters under the American flag, owned entirely by Greek capital.

An attack on a ship of that status, it was said, probably would not confront the United States with a serious international problem unless there were Americans aboard.

It was said at the Navy Department that the cruiser Des Moines probably was nearer the scene of the reported attack than was the Caesar. Both reported early today that they had lost their anchors and suffered some other minor damage yesterday in a severe gale off Jaffa. The Caesar was to proceed to the south, however, taking refugees to Alexandria, while the Des Moines was on her way to Cyprus under indefinite orders, which might take her to other Mediterranean islands.

The disposition of navy officials was to regard it as impossible that any American warship had been attacked either through accident or otherwise.

It was said by officials that an attack upon one of the Greek-owned vessels of American registry might present a rather difficult problem, but that it was highly improbable that the United States would feel justified in making it an international issue.

RUSSIAN REPORT ON OPERATIONS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, Dec. 4 (via London, 9:17 p.m.)—The following statement was given out by the Russian War Office today:

"On the western (Russian) front an attempted German offensive in the region of Dvinsk, near Schischkuo Farm, northwest of Lake Sventen, broke down under our rifle fire.

"On the eastern front the situation remains the same.

"In the Caucasus there is no change."

FARRELL'S BUSINESS APPEAL.

Declares American Commerce will Require all Co-operation Possible after the War is Over.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—American commerce will require all the co-operation and systematic organization that its manufacturing, mercantile, agricultural, mining, transportation and financial elements can provide in the readjustment of world business following the war, reads an announcement by James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council, accompanying a call for the third national foreign trade convention, to be held in New Orleans, January 27 to 29, inclusive. The council, the announcement adds, has received reports to this effect from foreign markets in all quarters of the globe.

The convention, according to Secretary Robert H. Patchin, will devote its attention to the practical application of sound business principles to the problems of further upbuilding the American foreign foreign trade and particularly to protect it from discrimination.

The speakers will include Alba B. Johnson, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works; Frank A. Vanderlip, James A. Farrell, Willard D. Straight, Capt. Robert Dollar and others widely known in the business world.

SUFFRAGISTS AT BALTIMORE.

Mrs. Sarah Bard Field of Portland, Or., Arrives in Her Automobile from Wilmington, Del.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BALTIMORE (Md.) Dec. 4.—Mrs. Sarah Bard Field of Portland, Or., and Miss Frances Jolliffe of San Francisco, who are taking a petition for a national suffrage amendment, signed by more than 1,000,000 voters, from San Francisco to Washington, arrived here in their automobile from Wilmington, Del., today. They were met in the outskirts of the city by delegations from a number of local organizations and escorted to the City Hall, where they were received by Mayor James H. Preston.

A reception was given tonight in honor of the envoys. They will remain here until Monday, when they will motor to Washington. A large delegation of Baltimoreans is expected to accompany them and attend the hearing before Congress.

THE ARMY BILL.

Secretary Garrison Denies War Department has Prepared Measure Dealing with Reorganization.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Recent publication of what purported to be the text of an army reorganization bill prepared by the War Department resulted in a formal statement from Secretary Garrison today denying that the department had prepared or would prepare any bill dealing with the subject for presentation to Congress or to any congressional committee. He said the chairmen of the military committees of the House and Senate had requested him to submit suggestions concerning army reorganization and that he had done so in order "to enable them to formulate whatever measures may embody the legislative conclusions."

Real Estate and Development Section.

The Realty Market
SURVEY OF THE BROAD FIELD

Los Angeles Sunday Times

Part V: 14 Pages
THE EVER-HIGH TIDE.

XXXVth YEAR. SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 5, 1915. THE MART: Transactions in Houses and Lots. Bargains in Blocks and Squares.

FACT AND COMMENT.

No part of Los Angeles has advanced more rapidly in the past four or five years, or is now going ahead in a more substantial way, than the North Wilshire section, comprising the region lying just north of the Wilshire boulevard district proper and extending roughly from Park View street on the east to the western city limits.

In many parts of this vast and sightly residential territory there has been a complete transformation within a very short period. One bare tract after another has been gridironed with streets and covered with homes, until today the development in some places is practically continuous from Wilshire boulevard to Sunset boulevard. This progress is all the more astonishing when some of the serious obstacles to uniform development in the district are taken into consideration.

This part of Los Angeles, like so many other parts, has grown in an all-too-haphazard fashion. West of Vermont avenue, especially, is the situation unfortunate from a development point of view. No more beautiful ground for residence purposes is to be found in the city than that lying in the North Wilshire section, but probably no other district is so poorly served with streets and electric railway facilities. The district has continued to forge ahead in spite of these difficulties, a fact which attests as nothing else could the natural desirability of the higher northwest land for homesites.

An Obvious Remedy.

Prior to the beginning of the extensive building operations which have made the North Wilshire district what it is today, Temple street had come to be considered by realty men as a sort of northern boundary line of residential development. Builders ventured northward to the vicinity of Temple street and then stopped. Between Temple and the Sunset boulevard and Hollywood districts lay open fields, after one had gone as far west as Vermont. A few scattered clusters of cottages made up the sum total of development.

All this has been changed. Temple street, from being an arbitrary line of demarcation for developers and builders, has come to occupy the position of a thoroughfare. The subdividers have swept on past it until it is now banked on either side with fast-developing residential zones.

As the only street between Sunset boulevard and Sixth street that is dedicated on a continuous line from Broadway to the western limits of the city, it is, therefore, a natural route for a real traffic and travel artery. It is a poor public policy which would continue to hold back the proper utilization of such a street.

The Temple Line.

Thousands of residents in Northwest Los Angeles would be immediately benefited and building would be given a tremendous impetus if the necessary steps were taken to make Temple street the serviceable thoroughfare it ought to be. The question of the disposition of the expired Temple-street railway franchise is getting to be an old story. The railway company has since July been running the line merely on the strength of the city's willingness to let it operate and its own willingness to continue using tracks on which it has no legal rights. What the people who use the Temple-street line would have done without it, even in its present condition, it would be hard to say. Some settlement should be made at once of this franchise question. This should be immediately, followed by the extension of the Temple-street line to the city limits and the double-tracking of the route from Park View street westward. Those who use the present line are sick of the single track and the switching of cars that goes with it, and it is time their complaints were heeded.

Fill in the Gaps!

The development of the possibilities of Temple street as a northwest outlet offers absolutely no problem worthy of the name, and it is no credit to the city that this obvious method of benefiting so large a portion of the city should have been overlooked. Temple is now a serviceable street for all kinds of travel from Broadway to Hoover, where it stops dead short in the Bimini ravine. There is a gap from Hoover to Vermont avenue, only a few hundred yards to the west, from which point onward the street is for the most part usable.

The break from Hoover to Vermont could be cut through and improved at a comparatively small expense, and the cost of grading and otherwise improving another quarter-mile stretch of rough roadway about half-way between Vermont and Western avenues need be but a small item. For the purposes of extending the electric railway no real difficulties would exist were the improvement of the street itself to be finished.

Get it Started!

In the carrying out of these Temple-street improvements there would Industry's Newest Contributions to Southland Prosperity.

Branching Out.

WINDOW GLASS NEWEST PRODUCT OF SOUTHLAND.

Work Started on Large Factory at Torrance—Natural Gas Makes Possible Important Industrial Development—New Jersey Concern Plans Great Establishment. Can and Potash Plants Next.

ONE of the most important industrial projects launched in Southern California this year is that of the Hurrle Window Glass Company, which has just started a large plant at Torrance. Those who are laboring for the industrial advancement of this city and its vicinity are particularly interested in the new Torrance enterprise because it introduces an entirely new line of manufacturing into the Southland.

Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana have long controlled a large part of the window glass production of the country, principally on account of their natural gas resources. Wherever natural gas has been available in abundance for manufacturing purposes the window-glass industry has prospered.

The piping of natural gas from the Central California oil fields to Los Angeles and its metropolitan district has opened the way for several forms of industrial development. Natural gas, for one thing, has made it possible for this section of the country to compete with the established eastern centers in the manufacture of window glass, for practically all the ingredients of the product are to be found here in abundance. The Hurrle company, which is a close corporation with no promotion objective in view, has started out on a large scale and plans a continuous expansion as its market grows.

As announced in The Times of last Sunday, the plans of the company call for the eventual utilization of the whole of a five-acre tract purchased in the Torrance factory district. Work has actually begun on the first unit of this plant, comprising six out of the total of twenty or more structures contemplated. On this page is reproduced a perspective prepared from the working drawings for the initial group of buildings.

The main building, which is now under construction, will have extreme dimensions of 142x144 feet. Adjoining it there is to be started at once a structure 110x150 feet in size. Three smaller factory buildings and an office building complete the first unit. The construction will be of the mill type throughout.

INTERESTING PROCESS.

The process of manufacturing window glass is most interesting. The main building of the new Torrance plant will contain a tank sixty feet long, sixteen feet wide at one end and eighteen feet at the other, and having a depth of five feet. This tank, which will literally be a gigantic cauldron, will hold 400 tons of molten glass at a time.

The proportions of the ingredients entering into the product may be illustrated from the fact that in the creation of the 400 tons of the molasses-like substance necessary to fill the tank there will be used 320 tons of sand, seventy-five tons of lime, sixty-five tons of sulphate of soda, twenty tons of soda ash, 500 pounds of coal and varying quantities of minor elements. This when melted constitutes the "mix."

In actual course of operation 400 pounds of the "mix" are scooped up by a gigantic bucket at intervals of about twenty minutes and conveyed from the narrower to the wider end of the tank, where the temperature is maintained at 2500 degrees Fahrenheit. This, it may be explained, is the beginning of the "cooling-off" process, as the heat at the other end of the tank is kept at 3200 degrees. The terrific temperatures necessary

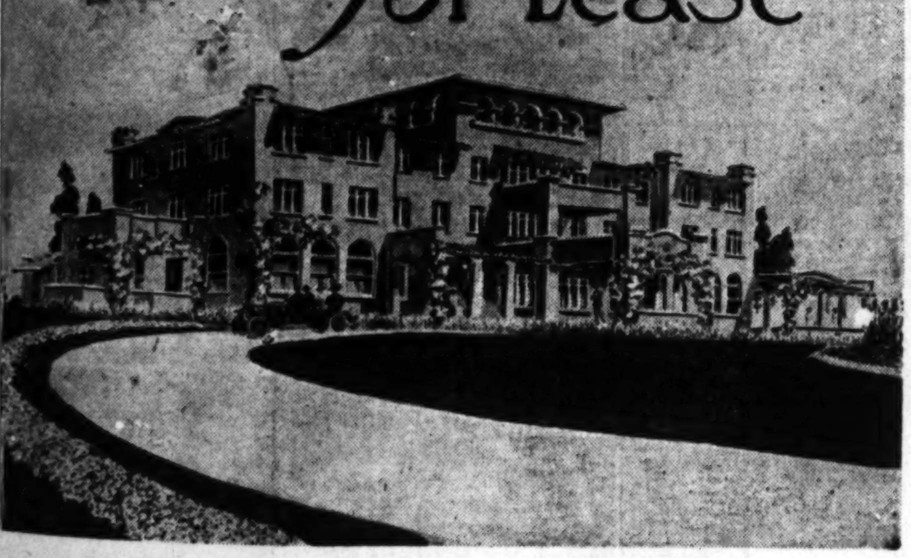
Hotel Mt. Washington for Lease



Situated on the summit of beautiful Mt. Washington amid romantic surroundings, tonic air and gorgeous scenery, this magnificent hotel is handsomely furnished and ready for immediate occupancy. Its appointments include elegant furnishings, Chickering Grand piano, Turkish rugs, etc.

Total number of rooms is 63, with 17 baths. Ballroom, billiard-room, two sun parlors and spacious ladies' parlor. Magnificent lobby and dining-room all on first floor.

The grounds comprise seven acres. Beautiful lawn and roses and rare shrubs scattered about in profusion. Tennis courts and croquet grounds add to its charms. It is truly one of the "dream spots" of Southern California.

By street car it is but 18 minutes from the heart of the business district—ten minutes by auto. The class of guests has always been desirable and profitable. The rent is very reasonable and the terms of lease attractive. Special inducements will be offered the right persons. Absolutely no information given on the premises.

PLANS SIGHTLY APARTMENTS.

ARCHITECT TO BUILD MODERN INCOME IMPROVEMENTS IN NORTH WILSHIRE DISTRICT

Convinced of the income possibilities of attractive and moderate-priced apartments in the close-in portion of the North Wilshire district, O. P. Dennis, of the architectural firm of O. P. Dennis and Frank Rasche, is planning two buildings of this type for adjoining sites on the west side of Vendome street just north of Temple.

One of the structures will be in the Colonial style, with porch columns giving it the effect of a large private residence. The other will have plastered exterior walls and a tile cornice. Both will be set well back of the sidewalk, on a line with the houses of the street.

Each building will contain two four-room suites, the larger apartments having southern as well as eastern exposures and being provided with large bay windows. Among the up-to-date conveniences will be furnace heat, disappearing beds, folding tables and other built-in fixtures and tile fireplaces. Garages will be erected at the rear of each structure.

Mr. Dennis recently purchased two large lots at the northwest corner of Temple and Vendome and these he has re-platted into three fifty-foot lots fronting on Vendome street. At the corner he has just completed a sightly two-story residence. The homelike apartments he plans will occupy the other two sites on Vendome.

ENLARGING STORE.

Quarters of South Main Street Furniture Man Being Doubled in Capacity—Leases Entire New Building.

Work has been started on the remodeling of a four-story building at No. 712 South Main street, which is to be occupied by a part of the expanding business of the Brent Furniture Company. The structure is 50x170 feet in size and adjoins on the north Mr. Brent's present store. The leasing of the extra space gives "Brent's" nearly double the present capacity.

The alteration work was planned by O. P. Dennis and Frank Rasche and is being carried out under their architectural supervision. New store fronts are being put in, new partitions installed and elevator service provided. The whole interior is also being redecorated.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA'S COTTON BEST IN WORLD.

Won Grand Prize at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, Ranking Over Products of the Old South and All Foreign Countries—Exhibit to go to the San Diego Fair.

BY P. H. MAGILL, JR.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA cotton was easily the feature of the California State section in the Palace of Agriculture at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. Designed merely to call attention to the most significant of the later developments of agriculture in California, the cotton display not only led in interest in the Golden State's own exhibits, but constituted one of the sensations of the exposition itself. To the utter amazement of all, Southern California cotton was awarded the grand prize for the best display of cotton and its by-products over the oldest cotton growing sections in the country.

From the time it was installed the exhibit attracted the attention of everyone. It is estimated that at least a million visitors inspected it. The exhibit was one of the most effective agencies of publicity California had at the fair.

The handling of the display was a good example of the exhibitor's art at its best. Flanked on either side by bales of snowy cotton and by manufactured cotton goods, stood an old-time spinning wheel that from morning till night turned lint into cotton thread. Mrs. Ella Swickard, who learned as a girl in Texas to fashion the insubstantial lint into strong even thread, was the manipulator of the antique machine.

Her deftness was the marvel of the visitors, most of whom had never seen a spinning wheel in use. While she took the cotton from the bolls and drew it out into thread on the wheel she lectured to the crowd. The cotton spun was sent to various Southern California schools to be woven. Among the exhibits in the booth were a number of towels woven by students in the Los Angeles schools.

COTTON'S MANY USES.

The highest grades of cotton were included in the exhibit. The by-products shown indicated the remarkable uses to which cotton and its seed may be put. Much interest was shown by the visitors in the demonstration of the war-time uses of the innocent-looking product. The lint from cotton is an ingredient of the deadliest charges used in the big guns in Europe.

Then there is the cottonseed cake, used after the oil has been extracted, for cattle food. From the oil is made soap, lubricants, and lard substitutes. A striking feature of the display was a single cotton plant bearing 250 well-formed bolls, the largest number on record.

WON FROM BIG FIELD.

The California cotton exhibit was largely from Imperial Valley, although the Palo Verde Valley was not only represented, but won its share of the honors. Most of the bolls used by Mrs. Swickard in her interesting demonstrations were supplied from Blythe, in the latter valley.

To win the prize it secured, California had to compete with such old-time cotton States as Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Missouri, as well as foreign countries like China, Cuba and the Central American republics. California also won fourteen individual prizes for cotton, and these represent as much of an achievement for the State as for the various winners themselves.

Gold medals were won by the Pacific Cotton Company, Calexico; S. H. Atkins, Brawley; California Cotton Mills, Oakland, and Mrs. Ella Swickard (hand-spun products.) Silver medals went to Mrs. Ella Swickard (for hand-spun products;) to C. L. Suites, Blythe, Riverside county; to Houghton and Simpson, Thomas F. Daly, and Wayne H. Compton of Seeley; and to W. E. Wiley, El Cen-

North-end Deal.

HILLTOP HOTEL CHANGES HANDS.

Stores and Two Apartments go with It.

Owner Receives Imperial and Riverside Lands.

Local Properties Pay Large Monthly Income.

The opportunities that await the discerning investor in North End income properties have been brought especially to notice during the past week by the decision of E. N. Smith to become the owner of property at Court and Hill streets. Mr. Smith is a heavy holder of California properties, owner of large timber acreage in the northern part of the State, and of ranch and urban holdings.

He has exchanged ranch properties in Riverside and Imperial Valley with Mrs. Eugenia D. Porter of this city for her extensive holdings at the corner of Hill and Court streets. The property covers a ground area of 140x225 feet and is improved with the Hotel Stevens, a four-story brick structure, 50x140 feet in size; one brick and one wooden apartment house and some small stores. The property is said to have an income value of approximately $1000 per month and to have been quoted in the past at $150,000. The exact valuation at which it was traded is not given out.

In exchange for the hill property, Mrs. Porter receives a tract of 717 acres in Pachappa, lying within the city limits of Riverside, and 250 acres of land in Imperial Valley, about seven miles northwest of El Centro. The valley land is improved. The Riverside land was purchased by Mr. Smith about five years ago, and is declared to be adapted to citrus grove development.

Mr. Smith intends soon to make additions to the Hotel Stevens building. He was represented in the exchange by Gage & Wachtel of El Centro. Mrs. Porter's interests were looked after by John D. Reavis and Oscar F. Peterson.

WILSHIRE ACTIVITIES.

Local Realty and Building Concern Reports Sales of Westside Houses and Residence Lots.

The Cooper-Pyle-Clopine Company reports having sold for Mrs. S. M. Cooper a ten-room white-plastered house at No. 337 South Serrano, Nellie Irene Kavanagh being the buyer. The place contains three baths and is finished in mahogany. The lot is 68x150 feet. The brokers report the price at $12,500. Other sales reported by the same firm follow:

For Frank C. Keach to Kate W. Swett, No. 260 South Normandie avenue, a two-story Colonial house of ten rooms, lot 50x150 feet, $12,000; for Amelia P. Smith, to S. M. Cooper, sixty-foot lot, south side of Ingraham street, west of Western avenue, on which the company will build for the buyer a two-story house; for Mr. Gird to Matthew Fecher, 60x150 feet, west side Normandie, north of Fourth street, on which company will build a ten-room house; for Sloan estate to Mr. Graypiel, twelve-room house at No. 611 South Hobart, lot 60x150 feet, $9500.

FOR SAN PEDRO STREET.

Substantial Building to be Erected in Northern Wholesale District for Local Concern.

The W. Ross Campbell Company, through R. C. Willis of its leasing department, has just closed a deal calling for the erection of a brick building on the west side of San Pedro street, just north of Third. The structure will be especially designed for the housing of heavy machinery, and will be occupied under a long lease by Harron, Rickard & McCone of San Francisco and Los Angeles. The property is owned by Florence Y. Boothe of Pasadena and has long been the site of a frame livery stable.

Mr. Willis also reports having leased a warehouse at No. 2035 Bay street for Vernon P. Gilbert to the Wheeler-Osgood Company, a wholesale sash and door concern with mills and plant at Tacoma. For the Nevin estate, the same brokers have leased a brick warehouse at No. 510 Molino street to Maynard & Davis, dealers in roofing materials.

BY MAIL, 50c.

We build houses, from the modern five-room plastered bungalow at $700 to the most elaborate dwelling. Our practical knowledge and being in a position to discount our bills, we can for a given quality of work discount our competitors' prices.

We make no charge for our architectural services if we build, or if we fail to satisfy you both as to price and design.

Our references are the people for whom we have built.

We make building loans.

We will build on our own lots to suit you.

For Sale—6 and 7-rooms, up-to-date, Wilshire district. Terms.

FOR SALE—
OWNER'S SACRIFICE.
10 ACRES, IMPROVED.

I want to meet the party who really wants 10 acres near Los Angeles; high ground, near foothills, level, extra-fine soil, abundance of water in concrete pipes, near fine schools, stores, churches and transportation; the owner of this ranch has gone east and will not return; he has telegraphed me to sell at the best offer. There is a $5000 first mortgage which was just renewed for 3 years at 7 per cent. This ranch is worth between $12,000 and $15,000; if you are a real buyer for such a property I will absolutely guarantee that you can buy this property at a surprisingly low figure. Might consider good mortgage, part trade, or could probably arrange terms. See in time and buy it right. There's hardly any better land anywhere than this. It will produce $25 to $1000 an acre, according to the crop. It will grow the finest apples, pears, peaches, plums and other fruits, alfalfa, hay, wheat, oats and barley. Apples pay as high as $1000 per acre; pears, $750; peaches, $600; onions, potatoes, tomatoes, celery, asparagus, etc., pay splendid profits; records are established as high as $1000 for asparagus and celery. It's equal to any land in California for profitable crops.

"LAND IS THE THING" IF YOU BUY

Buy this land now at $6 per acre and see it go to $100 and $150, even $1000 when improved. Absolutely perfect title, plenty of water, rich soil, splendid climate. The fortunes in California have been mainly made from land. The same in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Texas, Oklahoma and many other States. But they bought early. Buy 160, 320 or 640 acres and soon be independent for life.

Even if you do not farm this land you should make 1000 per cent. or more. Costs no more than government land, is better and you can take possession when you like. Pay 50 cents an acre cash, balance spread over 30 years if you desire. This is an unusual opportunity; it is unequaled. You can make yourself and family rich. We believe every section of this land will be worth $64,000 in time. The terms are so easy any one can buy and pay for this land.

You should investigate now. Neither the land or price can be obtained long. Call or write for full particulars at once.

SUNSHINE STATE LAND CO.,
404 Bradbury Bldg., Broadway and Third.

FOR SALE—
An orchard that will make you a living, NOW.
Forty acres in Sutter county, California.

LOCATION—Six miles from Marysville and five miles from Yuba City. Three-quarters of a mile from a station on the Northern Electric Railroad. Near schools and churches. Free mail delivery. Electric power. Well settled neighborhood.

SOIL—Well-drained and productive. Has produced five good crops of alfalfa a year without irrigation. Especially suited to deciduous fruits and vines. In an unparalleled raisin, peach, prune and almond district. Water can be had in abundance at sixteen feet. Cultivation keeps the ground moist throughout the year. Rainfall sufficient for crops without irrigation. Water from canal company's ditch available if desired.

IMPROVEMENTS—120 almond trees, 10 years old. These have paid the expenses of the place for the last four years. 700 almond trees, 6 years old. These produced a crop this year. 700 almond trees, 4 years old. 20 olive trees, 10 years old. There is a hundred-dollar crop on them now. 120 prune trees, set out last January. A family orchard of half an acre. 15 acres more unplanted is suited to fruits, almonds or other products. There is a 1-room California house.

PRICE—$15,000. Terms, if you want them. Trade, perhaps.

Further particulars may be had from
E. W. HAUCK,
Anaheim, Cal.

FOR SALE—NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY ORANGE and lemon groves; the Tapo ranch at San Susana in Ventura county, is being sold direct by the owners; Valencias, navels, lemons, walnut and apricots, practically frostless, southern exposure, with gravity water system, distributed in concrete underground mains. Only nine miles from present city limits of Los Angeles, and will be one mile from the boulevard running through the Simi Valley. If you are looking for the best get our prices, as they are RIGHT, and as we are not paying real estate company from 25 to 40 per cent. for selling expenses, you get the benefit of this, which enables us to sell at about that figure under similar groves in other districts. Easy terms. For full information, prices, terms, maps, etc., call, phone or write THE PATTERSON RANCH CO., Sales Dept., Oxnard, Cal.

FOR SALE—

I SELL THE EARTH.
R. S. BASSETT.

Reader, have you noticed the reports from the income from rice culture in California this season? The fortunate growers are receiving from $75 to $150 per acre, and cost of putting in rice is about $35 per acre; nice little profit that, one should pay for the land in from one to two years.

Yesterday a man that has just handled 245 acres near Corcoran told me that he got 45 sacks per acre, 110 pounds to the sack, and refused 2 cents per pound; now that would be $118.80 per acre. Now right across the street from this I have 173 acres, all fenced and cross fenced, flowing artesian well, house and barn, only one mile from good railroad town; will sell cheap. Must sell. I can deliver it for $75 per acre; part cash, balance time.

40-acre foothill ranch, about 35 acres good tillable land. 10 acres good level land, for alfalfa, balance good frui tland, plenty water near surface; good climate; price only $1600, $650.

About 40,000 acres, San Luis Obispo county, fine proposition for subdivision and stock, $20 per acre.

About 2000 acres, 25 to 30 miles from San Francisco, first-class vegetable land, price $200 per acre.

R. S. BASSETT, Room 208.
202½ S. Broadway.

FOR SALE—
YOUNG EUREKA LEMON ORCHARDS.
We have some fine young 1 and 2-year-old lemon orchards in tracts of 2 to 35 acres, which we are offering at attractive prices and on most liberal terms. The orchards are located in the Whittier foothill citrus belt, where they have the soil, climatic and water conditions necessary for success. If you are in the market for a choice investment, as well as a desirable location for suburban home, we shall be pleased to take you out by auto to see these properties. See RUSSELL or MAPLE, with EDWIN G. HART, 917-923 Union Oil Bldg., Los Angeles. Phones 10421, Main 2606.

FOR SALE—OR EXCHANGE—
I'M
STRICTLY UP AGAINST IT.
I'm nearly 60 years old—wife gone—children scattered—money all spent. All I have left is an equity in 20 acres of oranges and lemons at Glendora. I'm desperately in need of some cash for actual necessities. I know that my equity is worth just what some one will give me and assume encumbrance of $7500. Make an offer—anything to relieve this suspense and anxiety. Telephone 55009 for appointment. I'll take any cash offer or trade that will give me a little ready money.

FOR SALE—
I have two of the best investments in Southern California today, But I need money and MUST SELL. You can take your choice—a 4-year-old lemon or a 4-year-old Valencia orange grove, one hour's ride from 6th and Main sts. in the unmatchable Yorba Linda district. These will be sold on easy terms and cannot be duplicated for the money asked. No smudging. Abundance of water at a cheap rate. See me personally. G. H. M'GINNIS, 611 South Hill st. Home 10345.

FOR SALE—
FORCED SALE.
Valencia and Navel Orange Grove.
$450 per acre 20 acres of Valencias 5 years old. Trees very large. 17 acres navels, 10 years old. Fine soil, cheap water, beautiful location, as free from frost as anything in California. Think of these groves, worth $1000 per acre, being offered for $450. This is exact amount of bank loan. Get busy and double your money.

FOR SALE—OR EXCHANGE—9 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.
I have had nine years' experience in this city handling nothing but apartment-houses and hotels, and therefore have the history of every one west of Main street. Do you realize what this means to a prospective buyer? I have taken an option on what I consider the two best buys in Los Angeles. Rent on these houses have been $7.25 per room; I can get you a new lease for $5.50 per room and sell you the furniture for about 50 cents on the dollar. They are making money today. It won't take much of your time to have me call in auto and show them to you, so why not call me over the phone for engagement. You would be satisfied to have either of these places for your home.

FOR EXCHANGE—

TULARE COUNTY DAIRY AND HOG RANCH.

Good judges say I have the finest 160 acres of alfalfa in the San Joaquin Valley. Better yet, the ranch is stocked with the finest lot of cows, hogs and sheep you ever saw. The buildings, implements and equipment are new and modern, and wife says the bungalow, with all city conveniences, is a "dream."

Maybe you have investigated ranches that only promise big, but mine is actually paying well right now. I may not be able to write a winning adv. like some real estate agents, but believe me, I've got the goods and my ranch will stand the closest investigation.

I can show an income between $15,000 and $20,000 and want $60,000 for the ranch, stock and complete equipment. Might take a little less if you have nothing to trade, but would consider well-rented income property as part payment and take mortgage back for balance. Not particular about much cash. I've made my pile and will give some other fellow a chance.

If you are in dead earnest, tell me what you have to offer and I'll give full particulars and send some photographs that will make your eyes pop out.

L. B. TULLAR, R. D. 5, box 645, Los Angeles.

FOR EXCHANGE—

$64,000. SPECIAL 640 acres. To close estate I offer improved dairy and stock ranch in Fresno district, 2 miles from station; ditch water and pumping plant; 60 acres checked and in alfalfa; 125 acres more plowed; complete set of buildings. Improved dairies adjoining held at $200 an acre, and bring from $10 to $17 annual cash profit. Insurance loan of $32,500 for five years at 6½ per cent. Cash value $95,000, but will sacrifice equity for $31,500 in clear eastern. Photographs on request.

$30,000. 480 acres early orange land and stock ranch in Porterville-Mt. Campbell belt. Abundance of free water. Will take to value in Los Angeles improved or in $22,000 in clear eastern.

$7000. Clear. 20 acres raisin grapes near Etiwanda, on Pacific Electric and near Foothill boulevard. Want clear Pasadena residence, to equal or less value. Address EXCLUSIVE AGENT, K, box 411, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

FOR EXCHANGE— FRESNO COUNTY HOMES.

LOCAL AGENTS REPORT DEALS OF LARGE SIZE.

South Flower, North Broadway and Santee-street Properties Bring High Figures—Both City and Country Holdings Involved in Transactions.

The purchase by Mable V. Pritchard from E. W. Aleon of the Richmond apartments at No. 236 South Flower street is reported by Koster & Parker, who acted as agents in the transfer. The property consists of a fifty-four room frame apartment building, on a lot 40x120 feet in size, running from Flower through to Cinnabar street. The property, which was sold for a given price of $35,000 cash, is leased at $300 a month.

The same agency reports the exchange of the southeast corner of Sichel street and North Broadway, consisting of 189 feet on the latter street by 161 feet on the former, improved with four stores and a seventeen-room residence, and owned by L. A. Stahl, for the Miramar apartments, at No. 220 South Bonnie Brae, on a lot 50x195 feet in size. The Miramar contains fifty-four rooms and has been operated by the former owner. The exchange, according to the brokers, was made on the basis of $40,000 for each property. Constance Guytino and Hortense N. Johnson, owners of the Miramar apartments, were represented in the transaction by J. H. Crum.

L. A. Stahl and Mary M. Stahl have purchased, through Koster & Parker, the "Ben Stevens," a seventy-six room brick apartment building, at No. 953 Santee street, on a lot 50x149 feet in size. The property, which is said to be leased at the rate of $5472 a year, brought a reported consideration of $75,000. As part payment Mr. Stahl transferred to Ben F. Stevens and wife twenty acres of full-bearing lemons in Pacoima, and the southeast corner of Ninth street and Ceres avenue, in this city, the last-named property consisting of a lot 38x187 feet in size, improved with a cottage.

L. A. Stahl has also sold, through the same agents, the property at No. 2355 Thompson street to Bess Mayer. This holding consists of a lot 50x185 feet in size, running from Thompson to Toberman streets, and improved with a ten-room residence.

NUEVO RANCH SALES.

The James R. H. Wagner Company reports an increased inquiry for country lands generally, and the following recent sales in the Nuevo Ranch tract, for which it has the agency: To A. C. Nelson of Santa Ana, sixteen acres for $4800; to Henry Carter of Orange county, nineteen acres for $4900; to W. E. Hartford of Whittier, seventeen acres for $4200, and to H. C. Hardett, five acres planted to apricots, for $1600. Fourteen acres of the place bought by Mr. Carter are now in apricots and the rest will be set out to apricots and olives. Mr. Hartford will plant his land to the same fruits. The Nuevo Land Company, it is understood, will plant 670 acres of the ranch to apricots, peaches and olives, beginning the first of the year. This will make, it is said, a total of 1100 acres of fruit planted on the Nuevo Ranch within two years.

TO MANAGE TRADES.

William N. McKee, who has been handling exchanges and Orosi farm lands in the Title Insurance building for several years, announces that he has accepted the management of the exchange department of the Conant-Winstanley Company at 1108 Van Nuys building.

TO STAY RIGHT WHERE HE IS.

Pioneer Broadway Shoe Man Takes New Lease on His Present Quarters.

Entirely satisfied with business conditions as he finds them now and confident as to the future of the northern part of the retail district, C. M. Staub has taken a new lease on the present quarters of the C. M. Staub Shoe Company at No. 336 South Broadway. With him, as a sub-tenant occupying a part of his large frontage, will remain the Jack Lane millinery house. Mr. Staub made both announcements yesterday.

Mr. Staub opened his present store four years ago, after being burned out in the fire which gutted the Byrne Building at Third and Broadway, where he had been in business for fifteen years. At that time every inducement was offered to persuade the shoe man to jump to a location south of Seventh street, but he preferred to remain north of Fourth.

"They have been after me again, trying to get me to try my luck in the different new business centers they are trying to create," said Mr. Staub yesterday. "They knew my lease was up where I was and they came in squads. I gave them my answer when I signed a new lease with Willard Stimson, the owner of the premises I now occupy. The present retail center suits me."

STRAWS SHOWING HOW WIND BLOWS.

SIGNS OF PROGRESS IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA'S BROAD DOMAIN.

Good news came to the fifty or more families making their homes at Harbor Industrial City during the past week when it was announced that the Los Angeles Board of Education would establish and maintain a school in the park set aside for educational purposes in the new manufacturing center. It is understood that arrangements will be made at once for the housing of the children of the district in a suitable building.

C. E. Culberson, sales manager of the Los Angeles Investment Company, reports the sale of twenty-two houses in that company's various southwest tracts during the month of November. The total consideration received is given at approximately $60,000. Mr. Culberson states that a third of the places sold were purchased by eastern tourists here for the winter. In the New College tract, where nearly all of the houses erected have been disposed of, the company expects to start a number of additional places within the next few weeks.

The Consolidated Securities Company, which recently purchased from C. C. Stanton a tract of land midway between Van Nuys and San Fernando and on the line of the Pacific Electric Railway between these places, has announced its intention of developing on the property a new townsite to be known as Midway Park. The company has some 250 acres and will lay a part of the land out into five and ten-acre plots, the rest being cut into business and residence lots. The land is near to the developed areas of its part of the San Fernando Valley, being among the last pieces in the vicinity to be slated for subdivision.

California Cotton.

tro. Mary Atkins of Brawley secured a bronze medal.

WILL GO TO SAN DIEGO.

So successful was the exhibit that it is to be removed to San Diego and made a feature of the Panama-California Exposition of 1916.

Southern California cotton was selected by the State exhibit as a feature to be emphasized, because it represents a successful industry only five years old. The discovery that Imperial county could raise unequalled cotton and produce it at a profit was made so recently that the first bale was ginned in 1909. Most of the development in the Palo Verde Valley is even more recent.

The new enterprise grew so rapidly in the Imperial Valley that by 1913, 20,000 acres produced 22,000 bales of cotton, 500 pounds to the bale. In the next year the Imperial acreage had jumped to 50,000, producing 68,000 bales of cotton, worth, under normal conditions, $5,500,000. This year Imperial has a crop of 75,000 bales, worth 12 cents a pound. The Palo Verde people estimate that they will have 10,000 acres in cotton in 1916.

Imperial county, and that part of Riverside county lying in the Palo Verde Valley, are ideal for the production of cotton. Both areas have the climate of Egypt, with no rain to beat down the cotton and soil the lint in the boll. Both have a soil of wonderful fertility, and abundant water to force the plant to grow rapidly under the warm sun and produce the greatest amount of lint.

Like Egypt, these valleys produce the highest grade of long staple cotton, but so attractive has the market been for short staple cotton, and so heavy is the yield, that the planters have made this about 70 per cent. of their output. Practically all the Imperial cotton is either sold for manufacture in California or shipped to Japan, where weavers express a preference for it.

There is a growing movement in the Imperial Valley toward a greater production of long staple cotton, especially since the development by the United States Department of Agriculture of the Durango cotton, a variety that compares in fineness and length with the best sea island cotton and is a heavier producer than that variety.

FIND THE CHARM OF ITALY HERE.

EASTERN WOMEN, PREVENTED BY WAR FROM GOING TO ROME, COME TO WEST.

Among the winter guests in Southern California, attracted here when prevented from occupying their accustomed homes abroad, are Mrs. Andrew J. Davis and her daughter, Mrs. Arline Davis Ireland, with the latter's daughter, Louise, 10 years of age, members of a family of social prominence in the East. Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Ireland recently completed a residence in Rome, Italy, and had expected to take possession of it this autumn. The war entirely altered their plans, and they have just leased, through the agency of J. W. Wright & Co. of Pasadena, the sumptuous residence of Mrs. J. N. Burnes on South El Molino avenue, in the exclusive Oak Knoll district of the Crown City. The consideration of the lease is not stated, but other places of similar character bring from $1200 to $2000 per month, or $5000 to $8000 by the season.

The Burnes property is one of the show places of Pasadena and is widely known for its extensive gardens. The house is situated upon the highest point in its two-acre grounds, and commands a fine panorama of the mountains, the Pacific Ocean and the San Gabriel Valley.

This is the first visit Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Ireland have made to Southern California. They spent the summer at Bar Harbor and arrived here the first of the past week. They express themselves as charmed with what they have found here, and as being much surprised that there should be in America a land where the climate, the verdure, the mountains, the sea and all the countless attractions of Italy and Sicily are to be found in perfection and abundance.

ANNEX NUMBER TWO.

Wilmar Tract in San Gabriel Valley Enlarged for Second Time. Newest Addition is Under Way.

By a deal which is said to have approximated $28,000, the Janss Investment Company secured during the past week twenty acres of land directly adjacent to its Wilmar Acres tract in the San Gabriel Valley. The property is to be subdivided immediately into half-acre and acre tracts and placed upon the market as the second annex to Wilmar Acres, which was opened for sale during the last summer, and which was sold out in four months.

The Janss company's latest Wilmar acquisition is improved with full-bearing apricot and peach trees and large gardens of strawberries, raspberries and different kinds of vegetables. It will be subdivided into twenty-seven plots. Gangs of men will be started immediately installing street work, cement curbs, cement sidewalks, parkings and water. Two hundred 6-year-old palms have been secured by the company and are now being planted out, two to each plot. Five houses will be started within the next two weeks, following the plan of the homes recently built at New Ramona Acres by the same company, and sold upon easy payments. The new tract is within four blocks of a car line.

BUYS VALLEY ACREAGE.

The Janss Investment Company reports the sale of eight acres at North Lankershim Acres, improved with orchard and a house, to Edward Sharkey of Los Angeles. The price is given at $6000. Mr. Sharkey, it is said, will further improve the property as an up-to-date chicken ranch. The company also reports the sale of a six-room bungalow on East Forty-ninth street, and of a five-room house on Palomares avenue for $3600 and $2500, respectively, Mrs. Carrie B. Reynolds being the buyer in both instances. The same company reports having started four more houses in its Belvedere Heights tract in Boyle Heights.

CLIFFTON-BY-THE-SEA.

The Campbell-Bentley Company reports a growing interest in its Cliffton-by-the-Sea tract, adjoining Redondo Beach, due to the practical completion of a new $75,000 grammar school serving the subdivision and the construction near-by of the new Redondo horse-shoe pier. Recent sales of lots are reported to Miss Alice Sweeney of Hollywood and Miss Martha Tower and Miss M. E. Kelley of Long Beach. Lynn Spickerman has just completed a seven-room bungalow in the tract. Other places are projected for the near future. Cliffton is a part of Redondo, joining the older city on the south.

HIGHER PRICE ON WHEAT CROP.

BUYING ON HUGE SCALE IS CAUSE OF RISE.

Closing Quotations, Which are Virtually Tip Top for the Season, Represent Jump of Ten Cents on the Bushel—Provisions Average Higher.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Highest prices yet on the 1915 crop were reached today in the wheat market here as the result of an excited advance. Buying on a huge scale, said to be partly on orders from a foreign government, swept prices upward, 6¼ above the low point of the day. The close was buoyant at 1.16⅝ for December and 1.16⅛ for May, 2⅞@3 to 5⅛ higher than yesterday's finish. Corn gained ⅝ net and oats ¼ to ⅜@½. In provisions the outcome varied from 2½ decline to a rise of 22½. Closing quotations on wheat, which were virtually the tip top for the season, represented a jump of 10 to 13¼ a bushel as compared with a week ago. The buying fever at the end of the day formed a notable contrast to the weakness apparent at the start. Corn responded to the strength of wheat. Otherwise, though, the tendency was down grade, chiefly on account of fine weather and because of the outlook for larger receipts next week. Oats followed the action of corn. Provisions averaged higher despite a setback in the value of hogs. The bulge in grain was largely responsible for lifting the provision market.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—Wheat steady; no trading. Barley firm; December, 1.27½ bid, 1.31 asked; May, 1.38.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

Trading Confined to Oils and Mines. Yellow Pine Strong—Sunnyside Applies for Listing.

Oil stocks dominated the trading on the exchange yesterday with the high-priced securities in demand. Ten shares of Western Union sold for 97.50 and twice that amount of Associated brought the stronger price of 59.62½. Union was firm at 68.00 bid but Amalgamated declined somewhat at 81.75, 50 shares changing hands informally at that figure. Home Telephone common continued in demand at 23.50 with the preferred stock neglected. Among the mining issues Yellow Pine seems to be the favorite and 100 shares sold Saturday at 93. United Eastern was rather weak and sales were recorded at the low quotation of 3.90. Tom Reed was also off at 1.50 and 3000 shares of Consolidated Mines brought 1 cent a share.

The Sunnyside Mining Company, operating in the Oatman field, has made application for listing on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange.

SALT LAKE, Dec. 4.—Closing quotations:

[illegible]

COMMERCIAL.

Potato prices are soaring. All varieties of white potatoes were raised yesterday, northern Burbanks advancing 10 cents a hundred and Idaho Russets 5 cents per hundred. Rurals are now bringing $1.35 to $1.40 a sack and Salinas are selling for $1.85 to $1.90. Even higher prices are predicted for the near future and potatoes promise to be an expensive commodity this winter. The new crop of seed potatoes is in the local market, several cars arriving from the north Friday. Three grades were represented in the shipment, the Early Rose, White Rose and American Wonder.

Several changes were made in the meat and provision list Saturday. Steer hind-quarters are 1 cent a pound cheaper for both the number one and two grades, and loins are down 3 cents a pound. Dressed hogs were reduced 1 cent a pound and almost every pork cut declined in value including shoulders, loins, butts, legs, picnics, briskets, bellies, trimmings, backfat, jowls and hocks. There is an over-supply of hogs in the country at present and the reductions that went into effect yesterday had been expected for some time.

Butter extras were active on the Produce Exchange Saturday and a number of cubes were transferred at the firm price of 26 cents a pound. The selling price to the trade for both extras and firsts is now 3 cents higher than the board quotation. The market on ranch eggs continued sluggish with offers at 41. There seems to be little demand for fresh local stock at present as the supply is so small that dealers cannot count on the same for filling their orders. On the other hand, fresh eastern eggs are finding a ready market in Los Angeles and even storage stocks are exceedingly active. Extra eggs were a trifle stronger in San Francisco yesterday, moving up to 46½ cents a dozen. Interest continues to be manifest in the cheese offerings with the Oregon varieties and Swiss in heavy demand. Receipts were fairly heavy and totaled 89 cases of eggs, 46,020 pounds of butter, 1120 pounds of cheese, 2488 sacks of potatoes, 358 sacks of onions, 18 sacks of beans, 283 sacks of sweet potatoes and 4002 boxes of apples.

GOOD TIME TO BUY STOCKS and BONDS NOW

FACTS are like taxes, they are established—not guessed. Actual information beats all the so-called "hunches" that ever dropped from the blue sky.

We Buy and Sell ALL Stocks, including Mining, with Special Knowledge of the Oatman Field.

We derive exact information on all properties in the Oatman district, from experienced practical miners on the ground. Owing to the languid condition incident to the approaching holiday season, and the general depression registered in all stocks, this is the psychological time to pick up the good things in an advantageous way. Secure the FACTS and succeed.

Fact and Comment.

be no overlapping of expense with the assessments for the projected open-cut through Bunker Hill, as the tentative assessment district prepared for the latter scheme extends at no point as far north as Temple. No one would be called upon under any plan that might be devised to help pay for both projects.

It is not the purpose of the Fact and Comment man, however, to go into the financial aspects of the Temple-street improvement. There would undoubtedly be a loud protest against a special frontage assessment, especially for that part of the work necessary for carrying the street across the Bimini ravine. The improvement is important enough to warrant a wide distribution of the cost, so far as that is concerned, and undoubtedly some equitable way of handling the enterprise could be devised, if only it were properly agitated.

The first thing to be done at this stage of the game is to get some definite action from the city authorities on the disposition of the Temple-street railway franchise. The question of making Temple a real street from one end to the other can then be taken up.

GETS RANCH IN TRADE.

Local Investor Exchanges Apartment House, Five Flats and Large Lot for Improved Hemet Ranch.

The Cooper-Pyle-Clopine Company, Robert R. Crabtree and O. W. Davis & Co., acting as joint agents, have effected an exchange of a new two-story apartment house and five new four-flat buildings on Mission road, opposite Eastlake Park, the ground having a frontage of 341 feet, and a lot 120x150 feet in size on the north side of Washington boulevard, between Kingsley drive and Lennox street, all owned by Henry M. Jones, for the Bonita Vista ranch of eighty-eight acres, five miles northeast of Hemet, in Riverside county, owned by J. F. Cowan. Of the total area fifty-one acres are in oranges, nearly all full-bearing, and of the ranch twelve acres in apricots.

The money value of the three places involved in the exchange is given by the agents at $200,000.

Window Glass.

for the fusing of the materials is created by sprays of living natural gas flames played over the surface of the tank from both sides at once.

At the wider end of the tank "blowers" thrust rods into the sticky, fiery mass and twist them until balls weighing from twenty-five to fifty pounds can be gathered up. These are allowed to cool almost to the point of becoming brittle and are then stuck into the doors of a furnace generating a heat even greater than that in the tank.

At the proper time, the blower sticks a 60-inch blow pipe into the ball and, withdrawing it quickly, proceeds to blow the melted glass into a long cylindrical mould, much as a child blows a bubble. Then follows the process of rolling or flattening the rapidly hardening glass on special tables, a procedure so delicate that only skilled and highly experienced workmen can accomplish it.

Charles J. Hurrle, organizer and head of the company, is bringing a number of the best "blowers" and "rollers" to be found in the eastern glass centers to Torrance and these skilled workmen, with their families, will at once be added to the population of the factory town. More than 100 men in all will be given employment in the plant. Associated with Mr. Hurrle in the company are C. L. Bisbee of the Bisbee-Fishburn Company of this city, who is secretary and treasurer; and Julius Conrad, Arthur Asher and Adolph Sieroty, all of Los Angeles, who are directors.

FROM NEW JERSEY.

Exclusive announcement was made in The Times early in November of the plan of the Union Wax and Parchment Company of Bayonne, N. J., to erect a factory in Los Angeles. A perspective of this projected plant is shown in conjunction with that of the new Torrance glass factory. The transplanted New Jersey factory will occupy a site on Alameda street near Fiftieth, adjoining the large plant of the Pioneer Paper Company, from which it bought the ground and which will use the greater part of its products.

The new paper factory will cover a ground area of 260x390 feet and will consist of a main building with several connecting "L" wings at its rear. Local representatives of the company state that the plant will be in operation early in 1916. One hundred persons will be employed at the start.

The Pioneer Paper Company has been using a large part of the eastern concern's output of wax and parchment paper for several years and the latter concern was largely influenced to pull up stakes and come to Southern California by the assurance that a steady market awaited it in this city.

LARGEST ON COAST.

Plans for the mammoth plant to be built by the American Can Company in the Vernon industrial district are now being rushed to completion in the eastern offices of that corporation and this $300,000 industry, giving employment to 300 or more persons, will in all probability be started before the end of the present month. The magnitude of this factory is indicated by the fact that the main building will have dimensions of 600x180 feet. The plant will be the fourth and largest erected by the corporation on the Pacific Coast.

Application was made by the American Trona Company to the city building department during the past week for a permit to cover the construction of the first structure of the $300,000 group projected by that corporation at the harbor. The building, which will be started at once, is the power-house of the big plant. Draughtsmen are rushing work on the plans for other buildings of the group. The F. O. Engstrum Company has the contract to build not only the factory buildings at San Pedro, but others at Searles Lake, where the concern has extensive mineral deposits. The American Trona Company is seizing upon the opportunities created by the present elimination of Germany as a commercial factor in the world to engage in the manufacture of potash on a large scale. It will get all its raw materials at Searles Lake and plans to push an aggressive campaign for a world market.

BANKER BUYS HOME.

Joseph Price, retired banker of New Mexico, purchased during the week the nine-room residence at No. 556 South Norton street, through R. E. Ford, manager of the Wilshire department, of the Janss Investment Company. The consideration is reported at $8500. Mr. Price, on a recent visit, was so impressed with the city as a home place that he returned to his own city just long enough to close up his affairs, arriving in Los Angeles but three days before the purchase of the residential property here.

WILL BE UP-TO-DATE.

New Motion-picture Th Main Between Fifth and Have Many Fine Features.

One of the largest and most date motion-picture theaters jected in Los Angeles is that ing erected by Loewen brothers east side of Main street between and Sixth streets, on the site from Gen. M. H. Sherman for term of years. The house, honor of Gen. Sherman, will the "Sherman Theater," will der the management of lander.

The new photo playhouse provided with both rest and rooms and with parlors for and children. It will be with a large pipe organ ration, both exterior and be lavish. LONG RUN BY CONN WINS BIG GAME FOR PASADENA.

Varcoe of Pomona Fumbles After a Plunge Through the Line and Conn Picks the Ball up for an Eighty-yard Dash—Losers Gain More Ground than Winners, but Lack Wallop at Critical Times.

TUFFY CONN'S speed and Horrell's free-for-all tackling won a game for Pasadena High yesterday by a 7 to 0 score and Duffy [illegible] never drew a long breath throughout the entire performance.

Pete Varcoe, Pomona's captain and fullback, received the kickoff on his own 15-yard line and ran through the whole Pasadena team until Tuffy Conn, the safety man, tackled him at the fifty-yard line in the middle of the field.

PEPPERY.

From start to finish Pomona did most of the attacking, gaining a whole lot more ground than Seay's aggregation and threatening to score a few times during the festivities.

The first quarter was scoreless and played with mud. Vercoe ploughed through the Pasadena line for long gains but Seay's men held at all critical times. McConeghy at right tackle was the only man able to consistently gain for Pasadena.

STILL AT IT.

The second quarter found Pomona hammering away at Pasadena's line three and four yards at a wallop. On the thirty-yard line Pete Varcoe took the ball for a characteristic ram through guard.

He ploughed completely over the Pasadena aggregation for about five yards where he was tackled. The ball squirted from his grasp and into the waiting hands of Conn. Like a streak the Pasadena speedster was off around Pomona's right end. Needless to say, nobody caught him and he planted the pill between the posts. Horrell added a point.

A NEAR SCORE.

Pomona was not disheartened and again attacked the Pasadena line with vim and vigor. Just as the whistle blew for the end of the half a beautiful long pass to right end found that young man with a clear field and the ball. But he slipped in a chuckhole and sprawled on his face five yards short of the line.

The second half was a repetition of the first. Pomona on several occasions was within striking distance of the Pasadena goal but Seay's fighters managed to hold just as everybody was getting shivery.

OUT GOES MOORE.

The third period was saddened by an accident to Mistah Moore, the colored left tackle from Pasadena. McConeghy was drawn back for a plunge through the line. Moore plunged ahead of him and after opening a hole about five yards in [illegible] brought up short.

There was a moment of indecision and his brother Moore shot out through space, his head and his heels almost banging together as McConeghy rammed him in the sitting room with his head, nearly tearing him in two. Brother Moore was assisted from the field.

HELLO STEVE.

Steve Horrell was the whole team for Pasadena on the defense. Time and again he caught Pomona runners behind the line and he seemed to delight in grabbing them all over the field, usually getting his man on punts after passing the ball.

The game certainly showed that Tuffy Conn is not the whole Pasadena team when it comes to advancing the ball. The little half, aside from his long run and a marvellous catch of a forward pass did little on the offense.

HIT 'EM HARD.

McConeghy, drawn back out of the line, proved to be a whale of a plunger. Gard hit the line hard on split bucks and several other young Pasadena guys showed well on the offense.

The Pomona interference was of a very high order. Barnes ran well with the ball and Goodell ran back punts nicely. Quarterback Reynolds put up a very strong game. Avis and Parker both yanked passes out of the air with considerable ability.

THE PUNCH.

Perhaps the difference between the two aggregations lay in the fact that Pasadena always seemed able to come through at the psychological moment and do the work. Three times Pomona was held for downs within the twenty-yard mark and the winners at all times semed to be able to take advantage of the Pomona mistakes.

Certain it is that, aside from Conn's one long run, Pomona gained more ground than Pasadena and gained it more consistently. But Seay's men always seemed equal to any emergency that arose and that is the stuff of which winning teams are made.

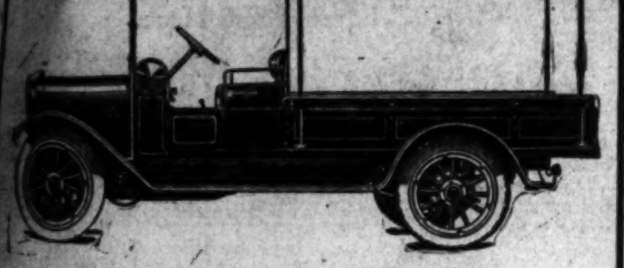
MEETING IS OVER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 4.—The Missouri Valley conference closed its annual meeting here today after deciding a college student will be considered a professional if he plays baseball for money during the summer.

Thanksgiving Day football games were allowed.



Reo 1500 Pound Truck
$1200 Here

ONLY a little over two months ago we delivered our first Reo 1500 pound "quick delivery".

Today they are in operation here in many different lines of work.

Laundry work—Grocery delivery—express and transfer—dry goods delivery—bakery wagons—hardware delivery—passenger stage—mining—all of these lines and more are successfuly using the Reo 1500 pound truck.

There's a reason for it, too. The experienced truck man is the man we can sell a Reo truck to the quickest.

He can appreciate instantly the pains that Reo Engineers have taken to make their truck simple and strong, easy to take care of, easy to operate; economical and reliable.

That is why we are selling so many of the Reo trucks—and why they are all making good.

And they are equipped with a reliable electric starting device that permits the driver to shut off his motor at every stop and save gas and oil and wear and tear on the motor.

The Price of Gasoline Soars Higher.

AMERICAN MOTORISTS FAIL TO STOP GAS CLIMB.

Price of Automobile Fuel Throughout Country Lifted Notch on Same Day—Crude Figure Boosted Develops New Wells as Guarantee Against Benzine Famine, and Autoist is Powerless.

BY AL G. WADDELL.

WHEN the price of gasoline is boosted, the American motorist pays increased tribute to John D. Rockefeller. Southern California automobile owners have wailed against the rise in gasoline, cent by cent, and they wonder when the lift will stop.

The Los Angeles motorist has one consolation, however. When the price of gasoline goes up here, it likewise goes up all over the country. How is it, the motorist asks, that all the companies raise the price on the same day?

The motorist wants to know the reason for the increased expense of operating an automobile. The reason is this: The price is regulated by the big oil companies. When they want to start operators boring for oil, when they wish to develop new wells, they raise the price of crude oil. When crude goes up, gasoline goes up.

After enough new wells have been developed, the talk about the scarcity of crude oil passes and gasoline drops 'way down. Gas was as high as 23 cents in Los Angeles at one time and it was predicted at the time that it would climb to 50 cents. As suddenly as it raised, it dropped. The bottom fell out of gas prices and it was as low as 10 and 11 cents before long.

When the last cent was put on gasoline here last Saturday, it advanced from 15 to 16 in Detroit. It went from 13 to 14 in Kansas City and from 19 to 20 in Baltimore. New York experienced a lift in the price also at that time. From 17 it went to 18. The price in Chicago is 16 cents and 18 in Indianapolis.

Phoenix, Ariz., experienced a jump of 2½ cents last week, from 20 to 22½. In Denver it went from 19 to 20 on the same day. The retail price at Salt Lake is quoted at 23 cents.

In Seattle the fuel is 15½ and in Portland it is a cent lower. The same condition exists here. San Diego pays 15½, while Los Angeles gets it for 15. Pasadena motorists pay 15½ and South Pasadena, just across the street, pays only 15.

The price is regulated locally, but the increase comes from the East. Experts claim that the price will reach 20 cents in Los Angeles about the first of the year. Some oil men deny this and others refuse to commit themselves.

When asked why gas is going up, oil men will say that it is on account of the war and alibi themselves with other cuts, but some refuse to try to explain the matter.

The oil and gasoline business in Los Angeles has reached such huge proportions that it makes a great difference to the motoring public when the price of gasoline goes up one cent, or even a half a cent. There are 175 service stations now in operation in Los Angeles. Six companies operate sixty-seven of them. The rest, 108, are operated by private owners.

MANUAL WINNER BY BIG SCORE.

ALL THE POINTS MADE IN THE SECOND HALF.

Field in Wet and Treacherous Condition—Riverside Team not as Heavy as Advertised—Warren Lamport Right There in All of the Plays—Picturesque Officiating.

BY JAMES DE CAMP.

The Manual Arts football team found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow yesterday. With a light drizzle settling over the field and a luminous arch of color spanning the sky they rallied in the second half and drilled through fighting Riverside for a 20-to-0 victory.

The Riverside players did not turn out to be the mastodons that rumor had described them as. Instead of being the heaviest team on the horizon they barely averaged 160. Manual took considerable heart after giving them the once-over.

Rain ceased falling by noon, but Mr. Pluvius had done his darndest during the morning. Fair-sized streams ran the length of the gridiron and numerous miniature mill-ponds graced the landscape.

Manual kicked off to Riverside and the argument began to unravel itself on the visitors' 40-yard line. During the whole first period matters seesawed back and forth, with both elevens fighting hard and no appreciable advantage in evidence. Running almost perfect interference Riverside landed on the Toiler's 20-yard line as the whistle blew.

At the beginning of the second quarter Manual received the ball on downs while on her 10-yard line. Ramey made about twenty yards around end, but Referee Irvine saw fit to penalize Manual to her one-foot line. Little of interest followed except an aquatic exhibition staged by Quarter-back Overman of Riverside. Wishing to display his versatility he tackled one of the puddles with disastrous results. The end of the half found the ball on the 20-yard line again, but this time it was in Manual's possession, twenty paces from her enemy's goal.

Fight, spelled in capitals, marked the start of hostilities in the second half. The Riversiders rowed up the field at a good clip, but lost the ball

TIGERS IN SHAPE FOR BIG SYRACUSE ELEVEN.

Two-hour Workout at Washington Park Finds the Local Football Warriors in Great Condition—Shipke and Kohler, the Cripples, Both will be in the Game Tomorrow Afternoon.

COACH PIPAL took his Occidental warriors out to Washington Park yesterday morning and for two hours chased them up and down the field. At the end of the workout he made the following statement: "That's enough for today."

Handling the ball was the chief element of practice. The team was run through signals for about an hour. Then Sam McClung stepped back and started in to punt. The linemen ran down on them and the backs caught them.

THE CRIPPLES.

Shipke and Kohler, the only two injured parties, were both out and apparently in first-class shape. Shipkey, who has been hobbling around with the aid of a cane for several days, showed a lot of zip in the workout.

Pipal believes that the postponement of the game is really more of a help than a hindrance to his team. It has enabled Shipke to get in shape and will give the Tigers a chance to work on a dry and fast field. Their only hope, it is conceded, lies in speed.

IMPROVED.

The Syracuse warriors will undoubtedly be in better shape by reason of the postponement. Had the game been played yesterday they would still have been suffering from the effects of the Oregon Aggie contest of the previous Wednesday, but with the extra two days they will be in fine condition.

Pipal apparently has no alibis to offer ahead of time and probably will have none afterwards. He has made one point entirely clear to everybody and that is that he has trained his eleven with a view to winning the game if such a thing is possible. He figures that his team has a chance.

NOT WORRIED.

The Tigers themselves apparently feel no quivering of the knees over the size and recognized ability of their opponents. Yesterday at the Pasadena-Pomona game Deems, Lenz, Daniels and several others seemed quite unconcerned at the possibility of facing a team so much heavier.

They have the advantage of being thoroughly warned ahead of time and are quite prepared to meet anything coming their way. Pipal has coached his guards, tackles and ends on the proper methods of handling their elephantine opponents and they think they can do the work.

ON ITS MERITS.

Certain it is that the game will be fought out on its merits as far as the Tigers are concerned. They are in wonderful condition for the last game of the season and if an Occidental win is a possibility at all, they will be in shape tomorrow to win it.

SYRACUSE TEAM IS ON THE WAY.

EASTERN FOOTBALLERS ARE COMING SOUTH ON DARK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 4.—Members of the Syracuse football squad, who arrived here this morning from Portland after being stalled for twenty hours at Redding by track washouts, left this evening at 8 o'clock for Los Angeles to meet the Occidental football eleven.

The Syracusans will meet the southern college Monday, the game having originally been scheduled for today. All of the easterners reported in great shape, after their tussle with the Oregon Aggies, and expressed confidence in whipping the Oxy crew. The same scrimmage line which appeared against the Aggies will be sent against the southern team though the back field will be shifted.

The boys spent a few hours today here enjoying the sunshine and the exposition.

DOUBLES TITLE MATCH CLASSY.

SINSABAUGH AND HERD WIN A FAST BOUT.

Five Sets Required to Bring Argument to End—Former's Game is as Good as Ever—Mrs. Bundy and Mrs. Doeg Defeated by Miss Sutton and Mrs. Widdowson.

Due to the inclement condition of the weather, there were but two matches played in the Los Angeles Country Club's tennis tournament yesterday. The few who made the trip out to the courts, however, saw some of the classiest tennis ever played in Southern California.

The big match of the day was that for the men's doubles championship, between Herd and Sinsabaugh and Browne and Wayne. Five long sets replete with thrills, were required to settle matters and decide upon Herd and Sinsabaugh as the supreme racquet artists of the quartette.

Sinsabaugh's accurate ground strokes were going as regular as ever. He was omnipresent, always on the spot when needed, and smashed with startling accuracy. Herd covered the net with his accustomed brilliancy and smashed away. The score of the match was: 6-4, 6-3, 3-6, 6-8, 9-7.

The other match was between Mrs. Widdowson and Miss Sutton and Mrs. Bundy and Mrs. Doeg. The former team won easily, with the scores of 7-5, 9-7. Mrs. Bundy did not appear to be up to form and Mrs. Doeg played a weaker game than usual.

CHRISTMAS MORNING
"A Bully Present"

First, make up your mind you've got to have a bicycle. Think what it will mean next Spring when the trout in the next county are hungry—next Summer when the gang goes on a two weeks' tour—next Fall when you want to get to the football field for practice—all the time when you want to get somewhere in a hurry.

Second, figure out who is most likely to give you a bicycle—father, uncle, rich grandmother.

Third, cut out this advertisement, paste it neatly on a piece of writing paper, sign your name and mail it.

Just a gentle hint, but it may work. Try it!

TUTTLE STUDIES STREET DANGERS.

THIRTY-NINE BARRIERS ALONG EXCLUSIVE AVENUE.

Mud Pots in Center of West Adams Show Marks of Many Motor Cars and Reveal Tales of Wrecks Unrecorded at Police Headquarters—Matter to be Taken Up.

There are thirty-nine barriers planted in the center of West Adams street between Grand avenue and Hoover street. Why they were put there no one seems to know. What good they are, no one will tell.

As ornaments they are about as much of a success as the Yale football team in the game with Harvard. As death traps, they are an unqualified success.

Rising out of the smooth-paved streets like icebergs in the Atlantic, cement curbs stick up about a foot and in the center soft mud provides a soft landing place for the wrecked motorist. On either side of these dangerous barriers it is almost impossible for cars to pass with any degree of safety.

Turning off of Figueroa street onto West Adams it is almost impossible to avoid one of the mud pots. If the street is wet, the car will almost certainly skid into the obstruction.

With a Buick "six" touring car, H. W. Tuttle of the Howard Automobile Company made some interesting experiments along West Adams street yesterday in company with Walter M. Rheinschild, who has taken the matter of the dangerous obstructions up with the City Council. It was discovered that practically every plot had been run over by many automobiles. It was found that it is unsafe for any but an expert motorist to drive on the street after a rain or after it has been sprinkled, and that there is great danger in coming out onto the street from Chester place or side streets, as there is no chance to get away from an approaching car.

From a resident of West Adams street it was learned that on Sunday night, two weeks ago, during the heavy fog, several cars ran into these barriers head on and a great deal of damage was done to the cars, including an electric driven by a woman.

Lower photo shows how half the street is sacrificed for the sake of unsightly mud patch, extremely dangerous on foggy nights.

BEARS LOOK TO THE SOUTH.

TIGER TROJANS AND HUNS TO BE ON SCHEDULE.

Refusal to Arbitrate Freshmen Rule and Distance of Oregon Teams Means Berkeley will Look to Southern California for Competition—Campus Games Needed.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Nov. 3.—With the refusal of California to allow the freshman ineligibility rule to go to arbitration, the possibility of spring sports with Stanford seems to have ended, for this year at least.

This, coupled with the distance of the northern teams and the expense of traveling, will make California look to the south for her competition. Especially will this be true in football.

SOUTHERN COMPETITION.

Students would like to see a number of the conference teams in action on the football turf next year. The larger colleges, Occidental and Pomona, would be sure of a welcome on the schedule. Games with U.S.C. will continue if a suitable agreement can be drafted.

Club competition has never proved very satisfactory here. The club players as a rule lack condition, and, though they have been able to put up good exhibitions for part of the time, they usually weaken toward the end and allow large scores to be run up. This is not only unsuccessful from the bleacher standpoint, but it does not give the team proper competition.

So there is a strong feeling in favor of collegiate competition football and track. And the place to look for such in the south.

WHAT OF IT?

This desire for collegiate sure to take very definite the time California begins the uling of her games for the year. It means that the go more than the required in efforts to bring about with southern colleges.

Next football season, and the track season, should dental, Pomona and U.S.C. Berkeley campus. Though overtures have been made colleges, they will be before general campus feeling has to do with it, and it has. not be surprising if negotiat begun as soon as Stroud ret Portland, where schedules northern institutions are bein Undoubtedly some solution found, for California is having southern teams play ley.

Sweet Sentiment Smothered.

COLLEGE DUKES DEMAND BAN ON MOTORS LIFTED.

Economical Coeds Resolve to Crab Automobile Game, Spring no Flower and no Taxi Dances to Help Male Students Get by, but Private Machines Invade Berkeley Campus.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERKELEY, Dec. 4.—Sentiments and 15-cent gasoline don't mix. Neither does the idle six, home in Pa's garage, seem to fit into the scheme of "no taxi, no flower" dances which economical coeds like to believe in, but would hate to see put into execution.

All of which prefaces the remark that between 15-cent gasoline and the abundance of automobiles which students have managed to buy out of their scanty allowances, the well-meaning sentiments of the coeds are having a struggle for existence.

Back in the pre-jitney age before folks had acquired the "jitney-jump" and while the ladies of our State university were still resoluting as to whether it was "nice" to ride in "jits" or not, some fair coed, whose "steady" had his own lil six, proposed "no auto" dances.

SOME RESOLUTION.

Being in the time of high-priced gas and $3.50 an hour autos, the resolution was a great success, for always, when Cholly clambered to the door, swearing at the taxi clock and resplendent in his fish-and-soup the fair coed would murmur, "Oh, Cholly, you know we have a sentiment against autos. I wish you hadn't. It's just too good of you," and then she would calmly suggest that as it was a bit early, "we might take a ride." Meanwhile, the clock ticked furiously, and Cholly prayed heaven that he would meet someone he knew and not be forced to have a scene with the driver.

But now things have changed. The "sentiment" still is used as much as ever, but it doesn't mix with cheap gas or numerous cars. Students with their own cars, or with Pa's close at hand, object to "no auto" dances.

At the junior "Prom" the recent big formal dance, everybody rode. Taxis, electrics, jitneys, fours, sixes, eights and twelves, everything and anything so long as it ran by gasoline or "juice" was in vogue. The lofty "sentiment" sailed skyward smelling of gasoline.

Each year the resolution is passed anew by the coeds, and each year it is becoming less effective. Many students drive to classes in their own machines. At all times a dozen or more late cars may be seen waiting around the campus while their owners are being educated. Close to the campus is a garage which is almost wholly kept up by student business. The managers declare that automobiles are becoming more common every year and that many fraternities are buying machines.

Although California does not boast of an auto club there seems but little doubt that it would rank very high among American universities if a census were taken of its auto-owning students.

HARRY'S WIFE PUTS HIM OUT.

Little Harry Goetz, one of the best known riding mechanics in the motor-racing game, has been drilled out of the speed profession on account of his wife. Goetz is now in Detroit building a fleet of racing cars which are to be used by the owner in the speed campaign of the coming season.

Following the sad death of Harry Grant, Mrs. Grant entered suit against the owners of the car in which Grant was riding when he received the injuries that caused his death. It was at that time that the owners of the Maxwell cars on which Goetz was working issued an edict that no married men should ride as either mechanics or drivers. This meant that Goetz would be relegated to the pits; but he jumped the lot and went to Detroit, where he opened up as a designing engineer, building a racing stable for E. C. Erbes.

FIRST PUT OVER.

The first ten of the Ideal tractors manufactured by the Pacific Metal Products Company of this city have been delivered to ranchers in Southern California. The ten tractors are the first of a batch of 105. Two of the machines were sold to ranchers in Orange county, three in Ventura county and the remaining five delivered in Los Angeles county.

A few new spark plugs are good trouble insurance.

MANUAL IS AFTER CLASHES ON TRACK

COACH FRITSCH IS HAVING TROUBLE IN FINDING COMPETITION.

Coach Fritsch of Manual is having the hardest time in the history of the school in arranging track meets for his speed demons.

From present indications it looks as if the only dual meets the Artisans will have with other high schools will be with Pasadena and Hollywood. These meets are assured, for Manual has made an agreement to meet both of these schools in all branches of athletics.

Manager Zollie of Manual has also sent a challenge to Poly in an attempt to bring the two track teams together. However, it is not expected that Poly will accept the challenge, as they have refused to meet the Artisans in a dual meet since they won the city championship two years ago.

Fritsch wants to send his team into at least six dual meets before the big events of the season come off, so he has been forced to go to the colleges for competition. Challenges have been sent out by Manual for meets with the Los Angeles Athletic Club, the U.S.C. freshmen, the U.S.C. varsity, the Occidental freshmen, the Occidental varsity, the Whittier College and Pomona College.

Last year the Purple and Gray tracksters met the Occidental freshmen and varsity combined and were not beaten until the last event had been pulled off. They were defeated by the L.A.A.C., the score being 51 to 60.

Fritsch figures to have a stronger team this year than last season, so if he runs up against the colleges of the south his prodigies will at least have a chance.

COACH SCHAEFFER GIVEN BIG OVATION AT RALLY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Dec. 3.—Coach Schaeffer spoke at the university meeting today at the request of the president. This is the first time that Schaeffer has made a public appearance on the campus since the rally preceding the disastrous 72-to-0 game. The meeting added another chapter to the extraordinary events of the past football season.

Thursday a group of Schaeffer's friends issued a four-page paper called Bear Facts. In it were many articles by alumni and students, praising Schaeffer and upbraiding the campus for its stampede after the Washington game. Schaeffer was eulogized and his enemies were thoroughly damned.

SCHAEFFER'S SPEECH.

And today, at the formal gathering of the students, Schaeffer made the following speech, after President Wheeler had spoken in his praise:

"You will not ask me to say much. I simply want to tell you what I have believed in as your football and baseball coach.

"First, I have believed in hard fighting. I do not think any man worth his salt who would allow his university to be defeated because he fought half-hearted or was afraid.

"Second, I have believed in clean athletics. I have tried to teach the football and baseball men that victory was always to be desired, but that honorable defeat is better than dishonorable victory, and that an athlete without character is a disgrace both to himself and to his university.

"Third, I have believed in the University of California. I have regarded the opportunity to serve her as the greatest opportunity of my life. No one knows better than I that my services have been feeble and very imperfect, but it has been my best.

"I resigned because I though that this year that would be my best service to the university. I leave without a shade of bitterness to anyone, for the university has done for me far more than I deserved. I have always loved the university and never more sincerely than I do today."

AN OVATION.

Both before and after the brief statement Schaeffer received a tremendous ovation. Students, recovering from the stampede of the early game, are realizing that they are losing a faithful servant.

Harvey Roney, a graduate of the class of 1915, has just been appointed alumni secretary. The appointment is the first under the new system made possible by the regent's recent $3000 appropriation for the use of the Alumni Association. Roney will devote his entire time to the duties of the office.

The conduct of the bond campaign last fall when the university electioneered for the passage of a bill authorizing the issuance of $1,500,000 in bonds has made the regents feel the necessity of a better organization among alumni.

BASKETBALL A MAJOR.

Plans were made tonight at a meeting of the Minor "C" Society for petitioning that basketball be made a major sport. If such a petition were granted by the Big "C" Society each team member would receive a block "C." Basketball has grown much in popularity in the last few years. Hundreds play the game.

FOUR CYLINDERS ARE HELD TIGHT.

MANY EUROPEAN ENGINEERS ON THE STAND WITH DOUBLE TWO MOTORS.

"The motor world owes a debt of gratitude to many American engineers, prominent among which are those of the Mercer," said a letter received last week at the Mercer factory at Trenton, N. J., and forwarded to George R. Bentel, the distributor here. "It is due to such scientific research as carried on at the Mercer plant that the four-cylinder motor has reached its high state of efficiency today.

Many of the European engineers cling to the belief that the tendency will be back to the four. The scientific application of all the known principles in motor building today shows that the four will do the work.

As a result of more than a year's experiments that took place in the laboratories and over thousands of miles of roads, the Mercer in the forthcoming type of car will use alloy pistons and connecting rods so balanced that the motor will not vibrate at the top speed of eighty miles an hour. To take out all the vibration an intricate and delicate set of scales were installed and the same care as used in the weighing of precious metals in a mint is employed in getting the balance into a Mercer motor.

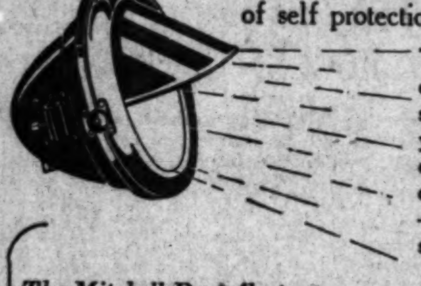
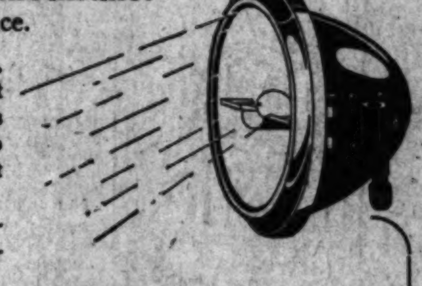
For Safety's Sake, Use De-reflectors!



—Don't wait till the law forces you to it—the instinct of self protection should induce you to install them at once.



This new law, which goes in effect January 1st, does not require you to buy dimmers—does not say that you must use less light—it only requires you to deflect the light in a certain way so as to eliminate that blinding glare which makes night driving dangerous.

—Here are the De-reflectors that Bullock's considers the most efficient of any yet constructed—

The Mitchell De-reflector

—Fits as a hood over the outside of the lamp. So shaped that all upward rays are reflected back into the lamp reflector and in turn projected onto the road. Eliminates glare and gathers the light rays into one shaft of light. Single Mitchell De-reflectors are purchasable for motorcycles and spot lights.

The New Dimmer Law

—Section 13 of the Vehicle Act of 1915 provides that motor vehicles shall carry at the front at least two white lights visible in normal circumstances 500 feet. These front lights must be permanently dimmed to prevent a dangerous glare, or so directed that their center rays shall strike the ground not to exceed seventy-five feet from the front of such vehicle. Law effective January 1, 1916. —From Los Angeles Examiner, Dec. 3, 1915.

The Miller De-reflector

—A De-reflector, not a dimmer. It stops the glare by reflecting all light to the upper half of the reflector, which in turn throws it down and out in a concentrated ray. Simple to install—fits inside of any parabolic reflector and is silver plated. Neat appearing—efficient.

PRINCELY PRICE PAID FOR "TWIN-SIX" RENT.

WHEN the first Packard "Twin-Six" reached Los Angeles, Harry Owens of Owens Bros. & Wells, proprietors of the biggest fleet of rent cars in Los Angeles, went down to Earle Anthony's gasoline emporium on Hope street and looked the first "twelve" over. Later in the week he took a tabloid demonstration and made a deposit that insured among the very first California deliveries, four Packard "Twin-Sixes."

As a consequence, Anthony last week delivered two of the fleet and a blue sign proclaims "Twin-Six" Packards for hire, for the first time anywhere in the United States, or the world, for that matter. But so far the blue sign has not been hanging out for the two cars are over-run with work and boast a "waiting list" like an exclusive club. It costs $35 a day to charter a "Twin-Six," but the Alexandria, the Van Nuys, the Hayward and the Angelus have plenty of patrons who travel in twelve-cylinder style and twelve cylinders is what they want.

QUICK ACTION.

The first day the first "Twin-Six" pulled up in front of the Alexandria, it was sighted by Norman James, prominent lumberman of Catonsville, Baltimore county, Maryland, here with Mrs. James on a honeymoon trip. "It's mine," he said. "I saw it first." And so it was for a trip to San Diego, which so delighted the honeymoon pair that they kept possession of the car to take them to Santa Barbara and on up the coast clear to San Francisco, much to the disgust of the next in line on the waiting list.

"I certainly have it in for the Packard factory," said James at the Alexandria, where he stopped on Friday for lunch on the way to Santa Barbara. "They sold me a "5-48" last year for $5000 and now they go and put out a car that I must admit has the edge over the "48" for a whole lot less money. When I get home I am going to see if I can't strike up some kind of a trade with my Packard dealer."

According to Harry Owens, the cars have equally delighted every one who has had possession of them so far. "We can't begin to take care of our "Twin-Six" calls with the two cars," said Owens yesterday. "But we are promised our two other cars late this month, and that will help us out greatly.

"Lots of people told us we were foolish to order the cars last summer, but we were convinced that if the Packard Company put them out they would be right. We are satisfied they are going to prove the most popular cars we ever put into service."

WANTS CAR.

"Every church should provide its pastor with a modern motor car," declared Rev. William Hovis in an address on "Pastoral Efficiency" before the conference of Methodist Episcopal churches in Milwaukee. "If John Wesley were to come here today he would demand the best motor car that he could command to do his work efficiently," said Mr. Hovis.

BUYS FOUR OF A KIND.

MRS. CECIL CUNNINGHAM HAVEZ last Tuesday accepted the delivery of the fourth car she has purchased from the local branch of the J. W. Leavitt Company in the last three months. The latest purchase of the pretty stage favorite, who is known to theater goers as Miss Cecil Cunningham, is a Willys-Knight limousine. Miss Cunningham, who has been a familiar figure of the Orpheum circuit for several years, and who is known as vaudeville's daintiest comedian, believes in the out-of-door life. She loves California and the last year has been spending her entire time here, refusing to play in the eastern theaters.

Her husband, who is a director at the Keystone Motion Picture Company, has also attained no little reputation as a writer of motion picture plays, several of which were written for his wife. She has done some motion picture work and her releases have been among the most popular Keystone subjects.

TRAINLOAD ON WAY TO CITY.

Shipments of automobiles to the Pacific Coast in trainload lots is still subject to comment on account of the infrequency, but for a line that has been on the market for less than two years and for an agency less than three months, it sets a record. There is now speeding across the continent a trainload of thirty-two carloads of Saxon automobiles headed toward Los Angeles.

In the short space of two years the Saxon Motor Company has advanced to seventh place among Detroit factories in point of output and tenth in all of the world.

Enthusiastic Support.

EIGHT-CYLINDER CAR DRAWS OWNER'S PRAISE.

FREQUENTLY one hears the question asked, "Is the multiple-cylindered engine, the eight, for instance, here to stay?"

If efficiency of power production, better performance, or smoother action are desirable from the motorist's point of view, then the eight-cylindered car can be considered as permanently established.

Ed F. Harris, manager of the Cole Motor Company, in commenting on the Cole "8" and its increasing popularity, says that "in several years of motor car selling he has never before seen enthusiasm such as is given by the owners to the Cole '8.'

"As an example, James W. Horne, managing director of the Kalem company of Glendale, accompanied by an expert mechanical engineer, attended the auto show. After looking over all the cars displayed Mr. Horne selected four cars to be given closer investigation and consideration. Of the four makes the Cole '8' was lowest in sales price—but this point was not considered in the investigation.

"Mr. Horne's expert made a thorough mechanical examination of these four makes, comparing all specifications. This resulted in the elimination of two cars, the Cole '8' being one of the two still left in the running.

"Mr. Horne and his engineer then requested a strenuous demonstration. During this demonstration ease of control, acceleration, motor power and fuel consumption were carefully noted.

"Some hills had to be made extremely slow on the high, others were rushed. Throttling down in the high on level running and pulling deep sand were made, among a number of other tests.

"Then, with all of the results of these trials in favor of the Cole '8,' Mr. Horne requested the names of Cole '8' owners. The names were furnished gladly, and on interrogation the reports which these owners gave were of such a character that, taken in conjunction with the mechanical investigation, resulted in the purchase of a Cole '8' by Mr. Horne."

NEW CONCERN.

The great demand of automobile buyers for the "Springfield" type of car, is emphasized by the announcement that a new concern called the Springfield Body Company has been incorporated with a capitalization of $1,000,000 to take over the business of the Springfield Metal Body Company. The new corporation will be headed by W. L. Fry, New York City; E. W. McGookin, Detroit, Mich.; Hindsale Smith, Springfield, Mass., and A. P. Smith, Springfield, Mass.

Reports to State officials from Iowa motor car dealers show that the farmers of Iowa have spent $26,000,000 this year for new cars.

PAIGE
The Standard of Value and Quality

And the Greatest of These is Quality

OWNERS of the seven-passenger Paige Fairfield "Six-46" tell us that Three Cardinal Points of Paige Supremacy first induced them to buy this car and now insure their loyalty to and outspoken satisfaction with this car.

The First of these is the Luxurious Comfort of the Fairfield "Six-46"—its full seven-passenger roominess, the unequaled ease of riding, the power and flexibility and reliability of the motor, the amazing and self-evident worth throughout.

The second of these Cardinal Points is the unrivaled Beauty of the Fairfield "Six-46"—its distinctive European streamlines, the smartness and elegance of the French hand-buffed leather upholstery and equipment throughout. The pride of ownership is universal in this magnificent car.

The Third and the Greatest of these Cardinal Points—in the judgment of Paige owners—is Quality. They have found that Paige Quality is builded, not only into every Paige car, but also into the ideals, the methods and the character of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company.

More Comfortable, More Beautiful, More Powerful—As Economical as Ever

Just as truly as first impressions are lasting impressions, you will always think of the Hupmobile as a big car—

A car of surpassing beauty—

A car of delightful comfort—

A really extraordinary value at its price.

Your first ride in it will show you performance that proves the car as good as it looks.

And your ownership will give you daily satisfaction in its economy and its never-failing service.

Please let us arrange for your demonstration at your earliest convenience.

Before you do ride in the car, we want to tell you of some of the things which make it, in our belief, the greatest Hupmobile yet built.

On the score of quality, and resultant durability and economy, it has been difficult to make improvements.

In proof of this, we need do no more than point to the Hupmobile repair cost record of less than ¼ cent per mile; and its well-known fuel, oil and tire economy.

The new car will go as far on a gallon of gasoline and oil, although its power is 20 per cent. greater.

The five-passenger model retains the generous proportions which set its predecessor apart from the usual five-passenger type.

Its riding comfort is even greater, because the cushions are two inches thicker, built of real curled hair and the finest cushion springs, and covered with genuine leather.

An inspection of the car, and a ride in it, will establish the car, in your estimation, for what it actually is—the best value in the market at anywhere near its price.

This car issues from the same factory—is produced by the same organization—that has made the Hupmobile famous for its sturdiness and economy.

Let us give you your demonstration now. Your order placed at this time will assure delivery of your new car when a car is the source of greatest pleasure.

TRACTORS FILL THE HORSE RANKS.

MILITARY WORK AND FARMING NOW BEING DONE BY MOTOR POWER.

Not only for military purposes, but for farm uses as well, on the continent, the countries have been forced to look to tractor power because horses have become so scarce. The English government recently held a test in which the leading makes of tractors participated. Basing its judgment upon the results, the English government ordered more than a hundred Bull tractors for immediate shipment.

The test so impressed the French government that the authorities are now arranging for a special appropriation for the purchase of a large number of Bull tractors for farm use.

BIGGER BUSINESS.

In a letter received last week from M. S. Bulkley, Southern California agent for the Autocar, now in New York attending the convention of Autocar dealers, is an augury for improved business conditions all over the country, especially in the automobile business. Reports brought in to the convention by Autocar dealers all over the country indicate a season of prosperity for all lines of business. The public is beginning to feel the bettered conditions, and the increased confidence because of this is having much to do with the improvement shown.

MORELAND TRUCKS FOR MEXICO.

Confidential Agent Representing Mexican Government Comes to Los Angeles Under Orders from Obregon and Returns with Truck on Way by Express—Local Man Accompanies Fleet as Military Driver.

WHEN A. Gonzales, one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens of Mexico, started for Los Angeles last Monday morning, it is a foregone conclusion that he did not think that his intended purchase of a fleet of Moreland motor trucks would be more effective than machine guns or that it would have an immediate effect in bringing the peace so long desired in Northern Mexico a step nearer. Gen. Alvaro Obregon desired some motor trucks. He needed them in his business and he needed them quickly, so the Mexican government, through Senor Gonzales, confidential agent in Northern Mexico, started the requisition for motor trucks with the "get busy quick" sign in the foreground.

As the product of Los Angeles' great motor truck factory has, through many foreign shipments, become well known internationally, the first thought of both Gen. Obregon and Senor Gonzales was of the local Moreland factory. Governments always deal at first hand with the manufacturers, and the location of this factory at Los Angeles was an important fact when the nearest point of immediate supplies was considered.

Soon after the arrival in Los Angeles of Senor Gonzales, who was accompanied by Clyde Martin of this city, he was in communication with the Moreland factory and learned that their needs could be supplied. As a result of his visit, in less than twenty-four hours from the time he arrived, two carloads of Moreland two and one-half-ton distillate trucks complete with bodies, and accompanied by an expert driver, were on the way by express, and in less than forty-eight hours from the time the order was given the fleet of trucks was being unloaded at Nogales.

The formalities necessary in passing customs had been quietly arranged beforehand, and the way the Moreland trucks went over the line was illuminative of the "neatness and dispatch" which may be looked for in the conduct of affairs under the new regime.

It was about this time that H. S. White, the Los Angeles driver, was beginning to estimate in his mind the difference in speed between bullets, spent and unspent, and Moreland trucks. In a night letter received from him by the Moreland factory he states that while he has not been in action as yet it may become necessary to test not only the speed of the truck but his own fighting abilities.

Motorists Spend Small Change Only on Auto Trip to San Francisco Exposition.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Dec. 4.—H. H. Hoffman and G. H. Sutterly of this city now hold the record for a trip from San Francisco to Redlands, a distance of over 500 miles, which they made in eighteen hours and thirty minutes in a stock Ford automobile. The automobile is owned by Mr. Hoffman, but was driven by Mr. Sutterly.

Out of this elapsed time must be taken two hours and a half for stops made at Modesto and at Bakersfield. Twenty-four gallons of gasoline were used on the trip and one gallon of oil. Mr. Sutterly is the sales agent for the Ford company here and he did not even take an extra inner tube.

The men left San Francisco at 8 o'clock in the morning. They reached Redlands at 2:15 the next morning. They spent two days and three nights at the exposition and the entire cost of the trip, including gasoline hotel bills and all expenses, was $35 for the two.

NO WHEEL STOP.

At an average speed of twenty miles per hour and without permitting the motor or wheels to stop, a Franklin stock model series eight touring car recently was run from New York to Chicago on less than one gallon of oil. The 1000-mile test was conducted by the Franklin factory to disprove the claim of competitors that the Franklin is an "oil-cooled" car. The demonstration was observed by representatives of the Automobile Club of America.

STOCK CAR IS EATING MILES.

HALF-WAY TO GOAL IS AUTO ON NON-STOP RUN.

String of Eights Feature of Organization—Driver Collects Rabbit's Feet When Car Smears Animal for Table Use on Road—Motor Does not Stop.

For two weeks, less one day, the non-stop Maxwell "25" has kept up its pace of more than 500 miles per day. To date it has covered more than 6000 miles without a mishap, excepting one punctured tire. The car has demonstrated remarkable economy and wonderful endurance.

This test run is being put on by the Lord Motor Car Company with a 1916 Maxwell "25" touring car, furnished by them out of stock.

It is a sanctioned event; and it is interesting to know that Earl Cooper, racing driver of Stutz No. 8 fame, whose mechanician in most of the big racing events during the past two years has carried No. 88, was appointed to act as temporary contest representative for the American Automobile Association during this non-stop run, and that when Harry A. Lord applied for an official sanction from the A.A.A. for this motor test and the papers were sent out from the East, it was discovered that the number of the sanction was eight eighty-eight.

Furthermore Carl Bohrman, who is one of the drivers of the non-stop car, who drew a night shift at the start of the run, on his first trip out with the car, struck a rabbit on the road and killed it. Likewise, on the second night out the same driver, within one-half mile of the same point on the highway, struck another rabbit and killed it. And both bunnies were injured in the head, only so that they were perfectly good for the table, to which use they were put. Needless to state Bohrman has been carrying a rabbit's foot with him ever since; in fact, he had enough rabbits' feet to supply all of the drivers with a lucky charm.

While the run is known as a non-stop run, it does not mean that the car cannot stop. The car stops to take on oil and gas and for the drivers to change reliefs with the observers but the motor is kept running. The world's non-wheel-stop record is much lower than the distance covered by the Maxwell to date as on a non-wheel-stop run, the car must keep moving all the time, even when taking on oil and gas and in case of a puncture, the run would be off.

TOURING SEDAN TOUR.

Earl V. Armstrong, president of the Chandler Motor Car Company of California, made a 1600-mile tour in one of the new Chandler touring sedans, returning last week. After driving up the Coast to San Francisco and touring throughout Northern California, the return trip was made over the inland route. Mr. Armstrong was accompanied by Mrs. Armstrong and his brother, L. M. Armstrong.

GREATLY IMPROVED.

Improved business conditions throughout Southern California are reported by Tom Wilkinson, manager of the Southern California branch of the United States Rubber Company, who has just returned from a visit to the various sub-branches in the southern section of the State.

WET WEATHER TIRE HIN

BY EDDIE LINGEN

Manager Los Angeles Branch year Tire and Rubber Com

Now that the rainy season is due, motorists are feeling the dread of wet streets and pavements, especially those who not driven cars during a rainy before. A few simple rules, ways borne in mind and followed will save numbers of accidents.
In driving along a wet street, always better to stick close curb within one or two feet sible, this being especially driving up or down a long incline. If, on account of cars parked against the curb or structions, it is impossible up close, the next best thing drive entirely away from the that is on the crest of the road down the center. If your car from you then, you will have a to turn around entirely before ting anything and stop right up with no broken wheels, if you were driving nearer owing to the natural slope road, your car will smash the curb with terrific force, and ly always will break a wheel considerable other damage.

THE NON-SKIDS.

Then, of great importance one's tires. For the average of driving that is done, about one-half sets of tires per enough tire equipment, and the non-skid tires and changing rear to front after worn smooth, can most always have new or new non-skids on the rear end car.
A good way to handle this, I to equip the rear end of This rule is made from the principle that makes it wrong ply your brakes when stop on a wet street. The to stop on a wet street is at a speed which will allow stop by cutting your gas and leaving your clutch in.

The trouble with putting on is that the sudden shock brakes grabbing, is enough the constant contact between and the street and gives it a to slide. This is not the case slowing down by cutting down engine speed, and one can come tically to a full stop by handling car in this manner, finding same time it will be a very currence for him to skid.

KAYS CAPTURES AMATEUR MARK.

At Wheel of Stock Premier Local Boy Makes Speed.

Time Made is Close to the Professional Record.

Car Carried Top and Glass Front with Fenders.

The amateur automobile record between Los Angeles and San Francisco over the valley route, is now held by J. Walter Kays of this city. Driving a stock Premier roadster, Hays and Harry Cline made the intercity run in [illegible] hours and 11 minutes.

The start was made from Los Angeles at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and Kays arrived in San Francisco at [illegible] minutes before six o'clock the following morning. Two stops were made on the trip, one at Fresno and another at Bakersfield, the two stops taking one hour and forty-eight minutes, thus making the total running time thirteen hours and eleven minutes.

With Harry Cline as companion, Kays started on the jaunt without any special preparation. No reinforcements for his car were made, as he intended to put it through as fast as possible in its ordinary shape.

J. Walter Kays,

Who with Harry Cline now holds the amateur Los Angeles to San Francisco automobile record.

THEY OPEN UP.

After leaving San Fernando, the boys speeded up, and travelled at top speed wherever the roads permitted fast going. At times the car rolled along at a speed of more than sixty miles per hour.

The Ridge route to Bakersfield was followed. A bad detour on the Tejon cut down their time over this stretch, but despite this they were in Bakersfield in four hours. A midnight stop was made in Fresno, and the last leg of the journey began. This was the fastest, as the boulevard is practically complete all the way from Fresno to San Francisco, with the exception of a short detour near Modesto.

One of the remarkable features of the record run was that the Premier had not been stripped. The record was made with top and glass front up and fenders on the car.

CLAIM TRUCK STORY PIFFLE.

POWER WAGON OPERATOR WRITES FROM ARIZONA.

Some Praise, Others Brand Tale of Climb to Mt. Wilson Summit with Eleven-ton Load as Fake. Many Wish to Witness Next Haul up Mountain Side.

Letters of inquiry concerning the feat of a Saurer truck in hauling a load of eleven tons to the summit of Mt. Wilson are being received by J. A. Stoner, manager of the Mack Motor Truck Company, from all parts of the country. Two of the writers challenge the story branding it as fake; but the others are congratulatory in tone and request more details.

One of the pair to claim misrepresentation writes from Arizona. He says: "I own a truck and have been using it in mountain work for the last year. There never was a truck built that could haul eleven tons up nine miles of mountain grade without boiling her head off. My experience has been that they will all blow up if put to six hours of steady pulling on a grade averaging 12 per cent., as you claim Mt. Wilson does. I say piffle."

From Leadville, Colo., came words of praise. "Permit me to congratulate you on the performance of the Saurer truck," the writer says. "I am gratified to know that such a task can be accomplished by motor. I have been operating a truck line hauling ore in this region for three years."

Stoner also has been notified by prospective truck buyers in several of the surrounding towns to let them know when the next load is taken up the mountain by the Saurer. They say they desire to be present and witness the demonstration. The next trip will be made as soon as more of the steel for the Carnegie observatory arrives.

Ottawa is to build a half-mile race track. Toronto and Montreal are in the half-mile track circuit.

ENGLISH WOULD BUILD MILITARY MOTOR ROAD.

THAT automobile dealers of Los Angeles will strongly indorse the movement to be started for the construction of a looped transcontinental highway to serve as a military road for the transportation of men and supplies, in the scheme of national defense, was evidenced yesterday by the statement given out by a prominent dealer here.

At Washington, the need for an improved highway connecting the Atlantic with the Pacific Coast promises to be a real issue. With the country-wide awakening to the same plans, Los Angeles, with its automobile prestige, will be in the van.

Clarence A. English, well known in motor car circles here as distributor of the King "eight," yesterday went on record as strongly favoring the new plan for national defense, pointing out that the time to act is now.

As announced in The Times by Harry Carr, it is generally agreed among army men that a great national roadway should be as much a part of the defense plan as the provision of guns. Now, with the full weight of the sentiment of auto dealers and owners back of the movement, a powerful impetus would be given it.

German roads, as well as the splendid highways of France, gave incalculable service during the first terrible rush of the war. It is probable that Germany built those roads for just such a contingency.

POWERFUL POWER BOAT ON TRUCK.

ALLEN BROS. FREIGHT ELEVEN-TON MOTOR CRAFT TO LONG BEACH.

The spectacle of a forty-two-foot motor boat weighing more than eleven tons being transported by motor truck and trailer attracted interested attention along the boulevard to Long Beach.

The boat, which was built by Karl Bishop at Sixteenth street and Third avenue, had been lying on the ways for six months while the owner was endeavoring to devise a method of conveying it to its natural element. Finally a special trailer with a capacity of eight tons was constructed by Allen Bros. and hitched to a five-ton truck. On these an immense cradle was built, arranged so that the boat would not be warped or injured in making sharp turns. The trip was negotiated safely and the boat is now engaged in the fishing trade.

"Why I Bought a Cole 8"

Nov. 20, 1915.

Cole Motor Company,
Los Angeles.
Gentlemen:

I bought a Cole 8 because investigation proved that it is the easiest motor car for a woman to drive; a genuine "high-gear" car at all times. It also offered unusual comfort and beautiful design. The Cole 8 is by far the best of all cars I have owned and driven.

Altho not an expert in mechanics, I know that the Cole 8 contains that same Quality which is only found in higher priced cars.

I am well satisfied with my selection.

Sincerely yours,

POLO PONY HAS NAME OF AUTO.

STUTZ IS KNOWN AMONG SPORT FOLLOWERS FROM MEXICO TO CANADA.

It is only fitting that the brown gelding polo pony, known from Canada to Mexico, should carry the name of Stutz. Foaled in May, 1909, weighing 1070 pounds and standing 14¾ hands high, this wonderful pony has already gained a reputation for his untiring energy at play and expert knowledge of the game of polo. He is quick and surefooted, will wheel and follow the ball without guiding, knows the game, and enjoys every move and play.

He was born and raised on Malcolm Moncreiffe's ranch at Sherman, Wyo. He was the best cow pony ever raised on this celebrated ranch. He was trained for polo under the personal supervision of Moncreiffe, and became his master's favorite pony. He was brought to California by James G. Carwile with fifteen other high-class ponies for sale. All are stabled at the old Baldwin race Arcadia. He is by far the the lot, and experts of international fame have pronounced him the piece of horse flesh ever brought California. His sturdy, stocky untiring energy and almost knowledge of the game have him very popular.

Stutz the car, and Stutz the defenders of America on track polo field, are enough to make sporting blood tingle in one's It is sturdy construction, performance, speed, strength untiring energy that produce ner. Both Stutz the horse and the automobile stand today in America.

Peculiar, Isn't It?

COACHES AND MANAGERS COME FROM POOR PLAYERS.

Stars on Gridiron and Diamond Often Fizzle Out When They are Given the Big Boss Job—Mediocre Athletes Become Regular Generals—Reasons Suggested for Peculiar Condition.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

STAR football players sometimes fall utterly as coaches, and by the same token, athletes who shine with special luster on the baseball field find it impossible to qualify as successful managers. In baseball, the manager bears about the same relation to the team as the coach does in football.

But there are many exceptions in both of these branches of manly sport. In baseball we have McGraw, Clarke and Jennings, great first as players and then as managers. Exceeding the genius of these, however, is Connie Mack. Connie, while rated as a high-class catcher, did not rank as a star of exceptional magnitude. Physically, he was not a great catcher. His value lay in his head-work, and behind the bat he displayed those qualities which made him the champion pennant-winning manager of recent years.

Per contra, there was Napoleon Lajoie, for more than a decade king of the second-base division. Batting and fielding considered, his equal probably never lived in that position. Still he was unable to win his spurs as a manager. Hal Chase's ability as a manager was in inverse ratio to his ability as a first baseman.

STRANGE.

Ned Hanlon and George Stallings, little more than medicore performers on the diamond, within the short space of [illegible] years provided the greatest [illegible] in the history of baseball by winning pennants, with [illegible] were never given a [illegible] first money. Frank Selee, [illegible] pennants for Boston and built up the great Cub machine of [illegible] is remembered only as a [illegible] manager.

On the gridiron, we see the pathetic figure of Hinkey. A bear in [illegible], his attempts at coaching have been lamentable. Ted Coy, the ninety-[illegible] power plunger of Yale, was a [illegible] from kick-off to touchdown as a coach.

Years ago, the University of California brought Butterworth, the great Yale kicker, to the Coast. He developed Ransom into a wonderful kicker, but failed to get general results. Speaking in the large, he was a failure. Later, King Kelly, the great Princeton line plunger, was imported. He, too, fozzled things. Billy Reed, great Harvard fullback, didn't shine when he went back and sold his coaching services to his alma mater.

Then there is the brighter side. Percy Haughton was some football player, and all agree that he has done some fine two-handed coaching of the Crimson. Then there is Alonzo Stagg. He was some casaba as a player at Yale, and for a good many years now has managed to hold his job as coach at the University of Chi.

FROM THE "BUSH."

Some of the best football mentors have sprung from comparative obscurity, meaning the "bush" college. In fact, one of them, "Speedy" [illegible], who pounded the Princeton team into shape, never wore a shin guard or whiffed the smoke of battle on a gridiron. Track was his forte. But the fact that he had never engaged in a tussle on the tanbark, did not prevent him from drilling considerable football into the Tigers. Observation had given him a wider grasp of football than most of those who have played it.

Ernest Lannigan, rated by many as the best coach in the history of Stanford, never played a varsity football game in his whole life.

Fielding H. Yost, who also was a wonder worker at Stanford, and later at Michigan, while a good player, did not attract attention outside of his own township until he took up coaching.

Walter Hempel, the man who ground so much football into the 140-pound Pomona eleven, that it held the heavy California team to a 5-to-0 score, and later swept through the season, did not owe his success to practical experience on the gridiron. He was a baseball player of ability, and learned his football from deep study and observation.

ANALOGOUS.

Examples of ability to produce and direct being divorced from the power of actual performance, are not confined to the diamond and gridiron. Take the stage for instance. A great playwright is not necessarily a great actor. In fact, he is more likely to be a regular ham.

A man may be a great fighter in the trenches with the courage to tackle a nest of machine guns single-handed, but the chances are that he would fail as a general. True, the ranks have produced some real leaders. At the same time, however, actual experience is not absolutely essential to military success. The biographers tell us that Oliver Cromwell and Julius Caesar never had any previous training for their jobs. And yet the records show that both Ollie and J. C. were some generals in their day and generation.

There are a number of reasons for these seeming phenomena on the diamond and gridiron—the same being both mental and physical, and partly due to training and environment.

SPECIALIST.

Usually, a star in football shines in one particular position, or in one special department of the game. He is drilled especially along these lines—trained in a groove, so to speak. After four years of this, he emerges a specialist. Later as a coach, he may have the mental grasp and versatility to master the game in its entirety, but the odds are in favor of his remaining a specialist.

In baseball, the star usually is temperamentally unfitted for leadership, and his training does not equip him to master the involved problems of successful management. The star is so good—usually so splendidly endowed physically—that he is not compelled to resort to strategy and subtleties. He just plays ball, executing his plays almost by instinct. His intelligence is of the hair-trigger variety. It meets and solves every emergency on the field as it arises—solves it with the speed of an electric spark. With him there is no necessity for previous planning; no sitting up late at night figuring out how to beat the other team.

As a result, he may finish his career with less actual knowledge of baseball than some inferior player who has been saddled with a handicap by nature.

Johnny Evers early in his career realized the handicap of physical frailness. And it was probably this realization that made him one of the smartest players in the game's history. He became a student of the game—a day student and a night student. While other athletes were out polishing up the mahogany, Evers would bury himself in a stack of newspapers and from the accounts of the games dissect the play of opposing teams, and contrive the best way in which to combat them. Meantime, he toughened himself physically, and has outlasted a majority of the large, lumpy athletes with robust constitutions. Unfortunately, however, Evers lacked the poise to qualify as a manager.

It was a comparatively weak arm and inability to hit that made Hap Hogan one of the best catchers in the history of the league, and later one of its smartest managers. Sounds sort of incongruous, but its the truth. Forced to overcome these natural handicaps, Hogan became one of baseball's closest students. If he depended on his arm alone, it meant that the opposition would run wild on him. He more than offset this by out-figuring the other fellow.

HAP'S CASE.

Realizing that he never could be a great hitter, Hap mastered the half swing—poking the ball just through or over the infield, or too close in to be handled. The certainty with which he could advance a runner bordered on the uncanny. He was the greatest, "squeeze" batsman in the country, East or West. His "double squeeze," his last play on the diamond, probably was the greatest ever executed.

Hap became great because the odds were against him.

It was not so much his natural ability as his headwork that made Comiskey monarch of the first sackers twenty years ago. Sluggers in those days were wanted at first base, and Comiskey wasn't a slugger. He offset this several times over by revolutionizing the defensive strategy of the position, playing away from the base and requiring the pitcher to cover on grounders toward right. Probably no other defensive play ever developed had as great an influence on the game as this one.

H. W. Stevenson and George Gray are to play a match game English style billiards 13,000 points for $250 a side, starting December 6 in London.

DROP FORGED QUALITY

The Buick Motor Company has the largest and most complete drop forging plant in the entire automobile industry. The Buick automobile contains more drop forgings than any other automobile selling at anywhere near its price.

This means, first, that Buick cars are better.

It means, second, that they are cheaper.

In the drop forge department of the Buick plant are nearly a score of great drop hammers. Several of these hammers cost $18,000 each. Wonderful equipment, and but a single instance of why Buick quality can be obtained at such low cost.

66,000 1916 six-cylinder Buick automobiles will have been delivered long before the end of the 1916 season. Never before have such a flood of orders—such appeals for more and yet more cars—poured into the Buick Motor Company. Buick success for 1916 has been instantaneous—overwhelming.

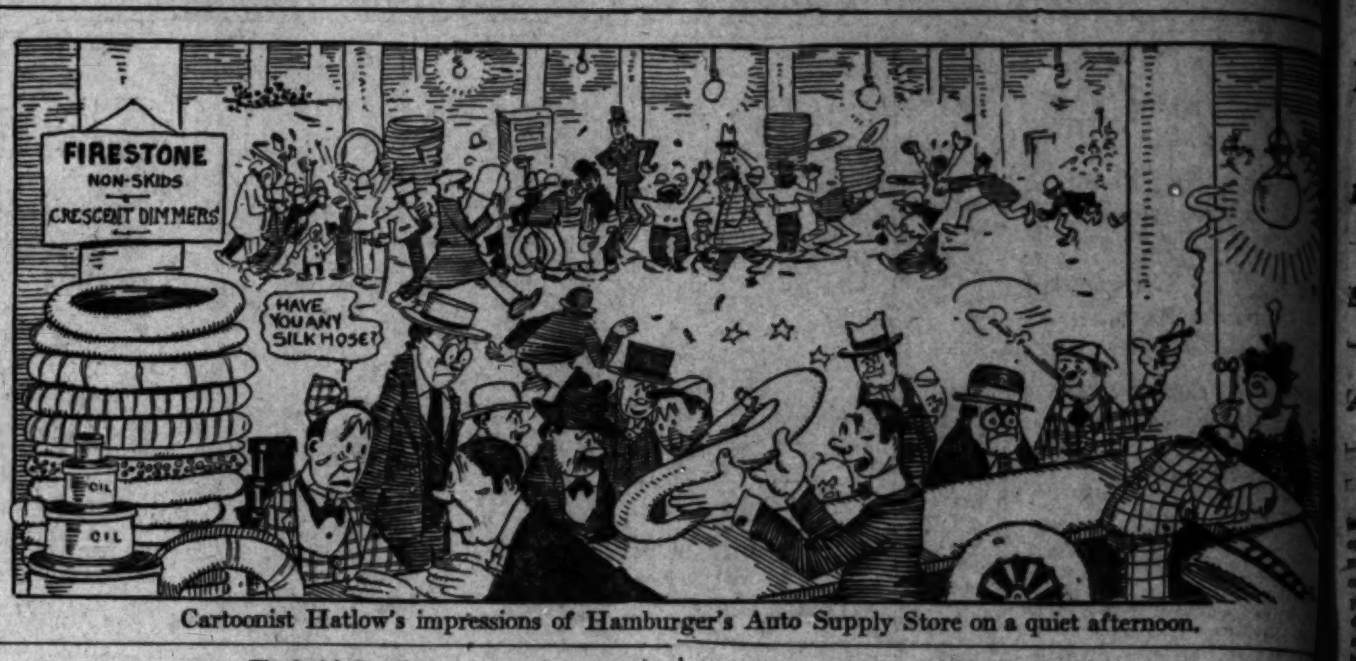
SAN FRANCISCO PORTLAND OAKLAND



Cartoonist Hatlow's impressions of Hamburger's Auto Supply Store on a quiet afternoon.

Wonderful Growth.

ACCESSORY INDUSTRY GIANT IN THIS CITY.

HAD some prophet made the statement ten years ago that in 1915 the motorists of Los Angeles county would spend $4,000,000 for accessories he would have been judged a fit candidate for Patton; but that is what happens this year.

With 40,000 automobiles registered in the county if each owner spends but $100 per year on his car, the total spent is $4,000,000.

A fair example of the great growth of the accessory business in Los Angeles is Hamburger's auto supply store. In 1909 there was a small counter in charge of one man. This was called the auto supply department. Today there are fifteen men employed in the department, which handles a large amount of the high-class supply business of the city and which carries the largest retail stock of auto supplies in Southern California.

Bob Granger, manager of Hamburger's auto supply store, is a veteran accessory man and under his management the department has doubled in the past three years.

The holiday trade among motor car owners and their friends is one of the biggest items in the accessory business. The Christmas present problem ceases to be when an auto is owned. The motorist can use anything in the accessory line from a can of graphite to a new tire or a set of imported robes.

Sloppy Battle.

WHITTIER HIGH BEATS SAN DIEGO AT FOOTBALL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA ANA, Dec. 4.—On a slippery field, Whittier High School this afternoon defeated San Diego High School, 7 to 0. The mushy surface handicapped the fast, light team of the bay city, but even at that it gave Whittier a close fight. Twice in the last half San Diego all but scored.

Not until the last half did San Diego seem to realize that its only chance to score on the slippery field against Whittier's strong defense was by forward passes. Though forward passes were hard to complete, they were pulled off often enough to keep the ball within striking distance of the goal line most of the last half.

Whittier had all the best of the first half. In the second quarter a ten-yard run by Tackle Beam around right end, a fifteen-yard spurt through tackle by McGill, a five-yard plunge by Stevens brought the ball to within two feet of San Diego's goal. Quarterback White took the ball for a low plunge between the center's legs, making the touchdown.

Beam, White, Jordan and Stevens, until recently a sub back for Whittier, starred for the Quakers. Beam failed on a try for a drop kick. Shaw starred for San Diego, with Sprott and Whalin doing excellent work at the ends.

The game was in the semi-finals for the Southern California interscholastic championship.

The Big Problem.

METHODS OF USED CAR DEALERS IS EXPOSE

BY PAUL G. HOFFMAN,
Retail Sales Manager Los Angeles Studebaker Branch.

ALMOST EVER since there has been an automobile business been the "trade in" problem. In 1910, approximately 15 per the purchasers of automobiles had a used car to trade in as ment towards the new car. Today it is estimated that 85 per cent. people in Southern California who can afford an automobile have sequently, 85 per cent. of the business of every dealer selling any car, the very cheapest, involves a trade. In other words, in order to car a used car must be sold.

It has been almost a universal practice on the part of the gard second-hand cars as a bugbear; a lamentable appendage to wise desirable business. The sale of used cars has been turned over men who were somewhat reckless of the truth. In fact, misrep doping and other practices crept in and have helped to give the a more vicious aspect than horse trading at its worst.

Irresponsible second-hand dealers found out that a little oil in the crank case will make a worn out motor run quietly—for that a few pounds of cork in a transmission or differential will quietness badly shot machinery and that a coat of paint will cover as to the misuse a car had been subject to. A clever second-hand make a few dollars in dope and paint do the work of hundreds honestly spent.

SELLING AS IS.

The reputable dealer who wouldn't stoop to practice what honorable has for the most part sold cars "as is." Almost invariably been the practice to have salesmen who were masters in the art of ing the wrong impression. In fact, the average high-class automob men refused to sell second-hand cars, believing that the business ducted along lines permitting the honest sale of used cars.

The deplorable part of this attitude on the part of better this second-hand business should and can be conducted in a fashion. Not only this, but it is a fact that a used car in honestly sold offers a common sense investment for the man financially able to buy a new car or who may not care to money one has to pay to get the first wear. The life of a modern is measured by hundreds of thousands of miles of good servi

THE SQUARE DEAL.

The proper conception of selling a car squarely is this—a put each car in such condition that he would be glad to tell a all about it and then sell it to him. If this is done, it isn't necessary special salesmen—every salesman will be glad to sell used cars used car sold will make a friend instead of an enemy.

It is the duty of the dealer to back up every used car he reputation. He can't do that except by thoroughly examining car before he offers it for sale; overhauling and rebuilding that sary. Only by such practice on the part of better dealers can hand business be elevated to the position it deserves. The be educated to a point where they will know that the same high govern the sale of new cars operate in the care of used cars. is an effort on the part of the good dealers in this direction business will inevitably work toward an aggravation of the confront the sale of used cars.

Latest information about the New Grant SIX from the Grant Motor Company, Findlay, Ohio

A Beauty Car

You will be surprised at the beauty of the new Grant Six.

Without question it is one of the handsomest cars of the year.

Its body not only has beautiful lines but correct and graceful proportions.

It is of the modified boat-line type. Smooth, unbroken lines from front to rear; no moldings; doors are flush and extra wide, "U" shape.

The finish is unusually fine. Body in Brewster green; fenders, hood and chassis in black enamel.

Seats are extra wide. A six-foot man can stretch his legs with comfort in both front or rear seat.

Cushions are soft and deep. Upholstery is luxurious. It is difficult to imagine greater comfort, more real luxury.

Grant Six carries five passengers with solid comfort. And the 1916 Six has finer steering gear, larger brakes, greater gasoline capacity, handsomer radiator—is refined and improved at every point.

A Wonder Motor

The Unit Power plant of the Grant Six excites admiration.

We urge comparison of the motor with any six at any price.

Grant Six motor is 3x4¼, overhead valves, exclusive Grant design—Replaceable tappets—noiseless. Unit Power plant.

Overhead valve motors are highest in cost—but they deliver the most power with the greatest economy.

Grant owners average 24 miles to the gallon of gasoline—900 miles to the gallon of oil.

And Grant Six throttles down to 1½ miles an hour and hangs on. Speeds up to 50 miles within a few blocks—and has the quickest getaway, the swiftest action you ever saw in a motor.

Rayfield Carburetor. Atwater Kent ignition. Allis-Chalmers Starting motor and generator. Extra large battery carried in steel basket under front of right running board splasher.

But—it isn't the specifications that makes the motor worth while; it's the motor that makes the specifications worth while.

We Suggest a Demonstration

Before you buy any car at any price get a road demonstration of a Grant Six.

That suggestion is based on the idea that you honestly want the MOST for your money.

Not the most in weight nor the most in showiness—but

The MOST in VALUE—the most in CAR worth.

Grant Six offers you the largest, roomiest body of any car below a thousand dollars.

It offers you the smoothest, most powerful motor.

It offers you the most substantial chassis—frame, axles, wheels, transmission, spring construction.

It gives you the handsomest body lines—and a thoroughly proven construction.

It is the SIX of economy and therefore the SIX of greatest luxury.

Its price is $795 complete.

Last season dealers couldn't get enough of them. The still greater value makes it safe to predict an even stronger demand this season.

Price quoted is F. O. B. Factory.

BURT MOTORS ABOUT OATMAN.

Prospecting Joy Riding is Now Desert Sport.

Sled Dogs of Klondike and Burros Pass.

Automobile Captures Busy Mining Center.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OATMAN (Ariz.) Dec. 3.—Gasoline is an important factor in the development and daily life of the busy mining town of Oatman. The motor has the same role at Oatman as played by the burro in the palmy days of Goldfield, and the sled dogs of the Klondike. The automobile has practically eliminated the burro from the activities at Oatman.

Occasionally there is an old-time prospector to be seen plodding across the desert with his burros; but the modern prospector motors among the "hills." With cars stripped like Phoenix road racers, carrying several spare tires, large gas, oil and water tanks, the prospectors load on pick and shovel and roll out among the hills in the early morning. After prospecting all day, the miners motor back to town at night.

GREATER SPEED.

With an automobile, it is possible for a prospector to cover as much ground in a day as he would cover in three weeks or a month with a burro. On all the roads out of Oatman there are automobile tracks branching off across the desert. In some cases the miners drive their cars as far up on the side of the rugged hills as possible, then strike out on foot with pick and shovel.

W. J. Burt, southern California agent for the Auburn car, was a visitor to Oatman the early part of the week and he said that he never realized the possibilities of the automobile in a mining camp before. Burt took a big Auburn touring car down there with him, which he piloted over the rough desert roads studying conditions first hand. Burt said that he found everything in the prospector's line from a Chadwick "ninety" to a cross between a Ford and a motorcycle.

HARD ON TIRES.

When asked how he liked the roads around Oatman, Mr. Burt said that on account of the hard surface and sharp rocks, the average tire mileage would not be more than 1000 or 1200 miles. He also said that it was necessary to travel either real slow or real fast on account of the sand [illegible] in the roads. At average speed the rough spots jar the rider too much to be comfortable and in time would shake a car to pieces.

The Los Angeles automobile man said that he was surprised to find Oatman so busy. His driver got the last bed in the town and the night they spent in Oatman they slept in their car.

During the day the visitors' cars and stages are the only ones seen in town, as the prospectors are out in the hills; but at night the one street of the town is blocked with motor cars of every description.

THE AUTO STAGES.

There are eighteen auto stages run between the ferry across the river and Oatman. The passenger fare is [illegible] per person. A charge of [illegible] is made for every trunk hauled the [illegible]seven miles. There are also as many stages operating between Kingman and the mining center.

About 100 persons arrive in Oatman daily. Among them there are many Easterners who stop over on their way to Los Angeles. The owner of the ferry across the Colorado has been in the business for twenty-five years. Heretofore he has ferried an occasional auto across the river and eked out a bare existance. He is now making from $150 to $200 per day. An average of eighteen cars daily are ferried across the river at $5 per car. To cross the bridge at Topock a toll of $3 is charged, and it is about [illegible] miles farther.

TONS OF FREIGHT.

There are tons of freight piled up at Needles and Kingman to be hauled out to Oatman, and a large fleet of trucks is busy freighting supplies over the roads. Mule teams are also used in freighting in the district and many truck owners have contracts for hauling hundreds of tons of goods at as high as $12 per ton.

While Oatman is the center of activity, Kingman and Needles are also busy with Oatman business. A great many visiting automobiles are to be seen in Kingman every day and it is hard to get a place to sleep. Every available bunk in the town is sold out every night at $1 per sleep.

NEW AMBULANCE FOR THE CITY.

LOWEST BID LANDS ORDER FOR CAR TO REPLACE OLD MODEL MACHINE.

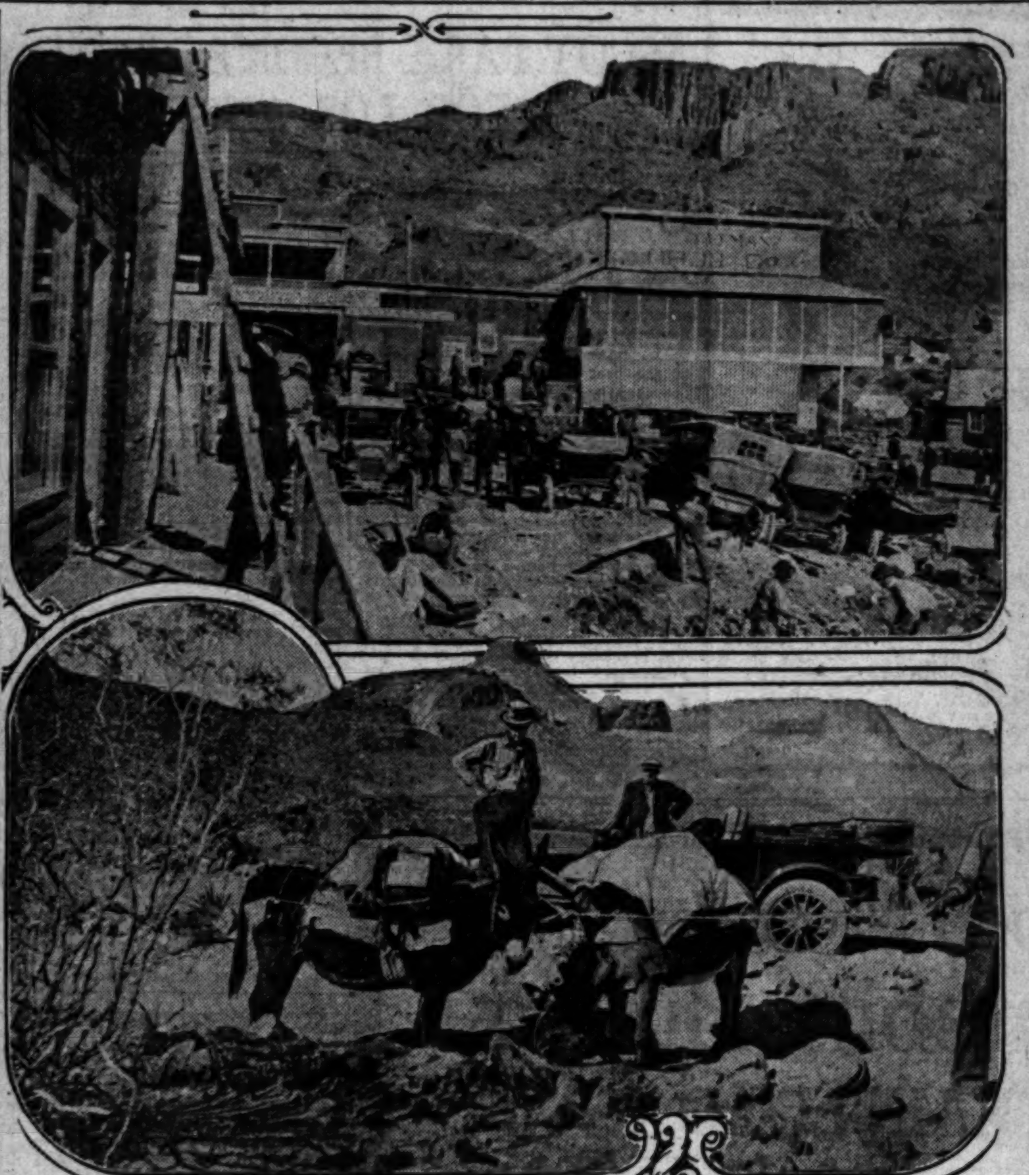
The new ambulance for the Receiving Hospital is to be a White. The Pioneer Commercial Auto Company, Southern California distributors of White products, have been awarded the contract by the City Council to build an especially-designed ambulance for the exclusive use of the Receiving Hospital. The proposal of the Pioneer company was the highest of those submitted; however, the question of financial stability of both the manufacturer and local representatives was taken into consideration in awarding the contract.

The chassis will be of the standard White ambulance type, with long wheelbase, insuring easy-riding qualities. The body for the new ambulance has been designed by Frank [illegible], chief mechanical engineer of the city of Los Angeles. Mr. [illegible] has incorporated some novelties in the arrangement of the interior equipment.

Delivery is promised within sixty days, at which time the old ambulance, which has been in use for several years, will be taken out of service.

FRUIT FOR WINTER.

The Haynes Automobile Company celebrated November 6 and called the day "apple day." It is an annual custom of this firm to remember its employees in some manner at about Thanksgiving season. This year apples were selected and each employee of the Haynes company was presented with a liberal winter's supply of Indiana's best apples with the compliments of the company.



The motor reigns at Oatman.

Scenes in the West's new mining camp, Oatman, Ariz., where the automobile has replaced the burro of Goldfield and the sled dogs of the Klondike, upper photo shows collection of cars jammed into Oatman's main street. Below the ancient and the modern prospector in the field.

GOODRICH FAIR-LIST TIRES

Oldsmobile

Never in history of the automobile industry has there been a car on the market, which has stood the gaff (on all kinds of roads, and in the hands of good, bad and indifferent drivers) like our "light" high quality four-cylinder OLDSMOBILE.

This, on the face of things, looks like too broad a statement to make. That this statement is true may be easily proven by your stopping any owner of our Model 1915 or 1916—(you'll find them on the boulevard, in the country or on the desert) and you'll get a report of continuous service, with a lack of trouble that will amaze you.

Our 5-passenger Roadster is admitted to be, by discriminating buyers, the roomiest and most luxuriously finished car on the market, regardless of price.

The proof of a car lies with the report of an owner, or your own personal exhaustive test of the car. Such a test may be made by appointment.

The price of all four-cylinder models is $1225, delivered.

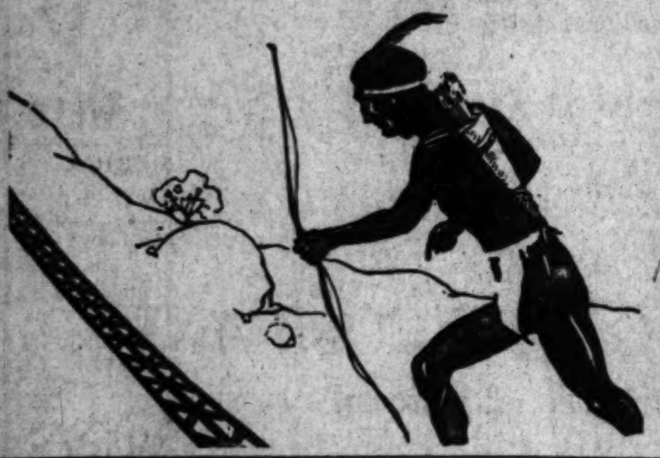
SAVAGE TIRES



You'd be foolish to buy a truck unless it were absolutely demonstrated to you that it was a paying investment.

You'll be equally foolish not to buy one if it can be proven that you are paying for it every year in the exorbitant maintenance cost of horse-equipment.

A good many business men have been convinced of the value of Denby trucks on just that basis.

Local Race Assured.

ASCOT PARK BECOMES LONG-HOPED-FOR LOS ANGELES SPEEDWAY SIT

BY AL G. WADDELL.

LOS ANGELES is at last assured of a speedway.

The Los Angeles Speedway will not be a million-dollar, two-mile plant. It will not be built after the pattern of the Indianapolis or Chicago speedways; but it will be a speedway nevertheless. The inaugural race is to be held December 26 with some of the best known racing drivers in the country appearing in the lists.

For years Southern California motor race enthusiasts have dreamed of a speedway. Road racing came and went and hopes for a speedway burned bright. But the brightest hopes went glimmering.

Just as the last and best looking of all local speedway propositions died a sorry death came the announcement that Los Angeles would have a speed trail that would rank with any in its class in the country.

SANCTION SOUGHT.

The Ascot Speedway Association is the organization behind the project. The speedway is already financed and application has been made to the American Automobile Association for a sanction for the inaugural race.

With substantial financial backing, the success of the project is assured. The men in the association are among the most prominent business men in this city.

Ascot Park has been leased for a period of two years. The lease was closed before the plans of the association were made known to even those closely identified with the racing sport. The track is to be torn out and a one-mile dirt speedway built in its place. The association has thousands of dollars to spend on the preparation of the course for the coming events and work has actually commenced on the course.

THE NEW COURSE.

It would be utterly impossible to make the mile track at Ascot Park safe. Realizing this, the Ascot Speedway Association is tearing out the track and completely reconstructing the course. The turns are to be widened and banked. The stretches are to be surfaced and macadamized so that there will be no dust. This will be a protection to the drivers and enable the spectators to see the racers on the complete circuit of the course.

The guard rail is to be set back several yards, ensuring the safety of the public, and the inside fence is to be removed. When completed, the one-mile Los Angeles speedway will rank with those at Des Moines, Iowa; Omaha, Neb.; Providence, R. I., and Oklahoma City, Okla. The Sioux City Speedway, where some of the most sensational races of the last two seasons have been staged, is but a mile and a quarter and built on the same plan as the proposed Los Angeles speed trail.

It is the intention of the management to hold a series of races on the course while the famous drivers are wintering in Southern California, ending the season with a great classic for a large purse, just before the drivers go East for the opening speedway events there. There are to be no long races. According to the schedule as announced by the speedway association members, the gramme of the opening meet wi some time trials, a five, ten and tw ty-five-mile event.

THE SNAPPY STUFF.

Short races on a mile cou recognized as the crowning fe of the speed game. There wi enough cars entered to make e event a real contest and there wi speed of the highest order.

With such men as Earl Co 1915 champion, with his fast R Barney Oldfield, with his French lage; Cliff Durant, with his D Special, and Jim Parsons, wit Stutz, all here now, and Eddie P of Mercer fame on the way to Angeles, a great card is promi hand. Then there is Eddie O'D with his Duesenberg, which c up so many races in the East. O' nell is now in San Francisco an in Los Angeles within a few day Rickenbacher is to be out Ruckstell.

TEDDY TETZLAFF BACK.

Teddy Tetzlaff is the come-b the racing game and Teddy wil card at the first race in wh appears on the new speedway. T is a lot of new blood ready and ious to break into the speed and the speedway will undo develop some new talent for the age-killing profession.

With the road-racing game d this section and no other race scheduled for the entire season, opening meet of the Ascot Spe Association should be the most cessful race on a closed cours staged in the West. The publ anxious to see the speed ma more and spread out on a mile co where the entire course is visib speed sport promises to come ba Southern California and outd previous attempts at motor- enthusiasm.

use to Let Bars Down on Summer Ball.

Applications Made for Membership.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CAGO, Dec. 4.—Members of the … Faculty Committee today … the death knell of baseball … intercollegiate sport in the con… In addition to refusing, by … heavy vote, to sanction summer … ball playing by their athletes, the … ittee voted to refer to each in… a resolution providing for … olition of the diamond sport … y, except for class contests. … most of the delegates voted un… instructions it is presumed that … colleges will support their reso… and that intercollegiate base… will be given up before the spring … starts. An objection by only … university, however, will force … sideration of the resolution by … committee and unless a special … ing of the committee is called … the reconsideration before its reg… June meeting the single objec… would have the effect of allow… one more baseball season.

SEVEN TO TWO.

According to conference custom the … ment of the delegates on the … tion was not given out. Secretary … F. Moran, Purdue representative, … d that the vote on the abolition of … collegiate baseball was 7 to 2 … for the retention of the summer … ball rule 6 to 3.

Advocates of the anti-baseball reso… argued that the abolition of the … would do away with 75 per cent. … the eligibility questions. They de… that baseball has become so … ercialized that its retention as a … sport was not desirable. That … baseball teams are rarely … amateur was another point … brought up.

… bolition of the game followed as a … al sequence the committee's re… to let down the bars on summer … ball. Minnesota this week voted … away with the sport and Illinois … resentatives were quoted as say… they would give up entirely if … were not a more liberal hand… of summer baseball.

NO APPLICATIONS.

There were no applications for … bership in the conference. It … been reported that Nebraska, … Dame and the Michigan Aggies would seek admission.

Reports that there had been tech… violations of the rule against … ball practice before September 20 … received. A committee was ap… to investigate. A committee … investigate the physical effects of … country running also was ap…

… Small of Chicago was elected … and Prof. Moran re-elected … Prof. Moran was chosen … to the meeting of the Na… Collegiate Athletic Association … New York December 18.

… secretary was instructed to … form eligibility blanks and … passed requiring all ath… their blanks in the pres… faculty authorities.

NOT STRONG.

… was not found strong in … the establishment of soccer … and golf as intercollegiate … and no action was taken. The … voted to require one day … football practice a week, but … to limit secret practice to … days.

… recommendation of the Manag… Committee the Faculty Committee … to add the javelin throw to the … programme. The Manag… Committee's recommendation that … conference indoor track meet and … meet be held at Northwest… March 17 and 18; that the out… meet be held at Chicago June 3, … that the tennis tournament be … at Chicago May 25, 26 and 27 … approved.

ING HIGHWAY.

… Transcontinental Road Boost… Meeting with Great Success En Route Across Country.

The Cadillac Eight which was sent … by the Cabrillo Commercial Club of San Diego to boost for a southern national highway from coast to coast has met with great success all along the route. The Cadillac party, which includes Wilbur Hall, journalist; B. … Burrell, United States engineer; Col. Ed Fletcher and W. B. Gross of the Cabrillo Commercial Club, is … for the establishment of a transcontinental route which will follow the Southern States and which will be open to cross-country travel throughout the year.

The route proposed calls for a highway from Washington, D. C., down through the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California to Los Angeles and San Diego.

HARD FOR AUTO THIEVES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Dec. 4.—Mayor G. P. Cortner and the City Trustees of Redlands believe that more severe sentences given the automobile thieves, who are caught, would result in less stealing of automobiles. "The judges are lenient in many cases," said Mayor Cortner, "and the result is that auto thieving is becoming a profession. Eight bicycles and one automobile were stolen in Redlands during the past week." Trustee C. A. Tripp is in favor of all automobile thieves getting the limit. "Many of them are turned loose with a warning," he said, "and it is not enough. They should have the limit and it would be a lesson to them and others. Some of them are so good that they can steal your car and over night change it so that you would not know it." The Trustees considered passing resolutions that the judges in the county show no leniency to automobile thieves.

FACTORY ADDITION.

The Bull Tractor Company last week shipped a large consignment of tractors to Argentina and another large shipment to Australia. This, combined with the fact that the Bull company has sold more than $4,000,000 worth of Bull tractors to farmers in this country, and the rapidly-increasing demand, has made it necessary for the tractor company to formulate plans for the erection of an additional factory to take care of the business.

Jackson

Model 68 Eight for $1785, f. o. b. Los Angeles

Is the most remarkable motor car value ever offered the American public.

Sturdy, powerful, roomy, it is all one can ask in a seven-passenger automobile.

The Jackson eight-cylinder motor is the last word in high speed multiple cylinder motor. Gear shifting is made negligible in this wonderful car.

Deliveries can be made in Los Angeles December 15.

1916 Jackson Four

$1085, f. o. b, Los Angeles

The season's greatest four. Accelerates and climbs hills like an eight.

High speed, high duty motor gives it the greatest power of any light four on the market.

Investigate this remarkable value. Deliveries December 15.

We also have several high-grade used cars which will be sacrificed for quick sales.

To Maxwell Owners:

If you own a 1916 Maxwell car, you have a Prest-O-Lite Storage Battery.

If you own a 1914 or 1915 Maxwell car (Model 25), you own a Prest-O-Lite or a Pumpelly Storage Battery.

At our Los Angeles Branch we are giving special attention to service on Prest-O-Lite and Pumpelly Batteries (the Pumpelly Company having been purchased by us).

Free Inspection and Service

We have complete facilities for the repair and charging of automobile starting and lighting batteries and invite you to bring your battery to us at any time, and as often as you wish for free inspection and advice. If your battery is in need of repair, we will loan you one to use while the repair is being made.

Our advice on your battery problems will be cheerfully given, no matter what battery you are using.

Thank your lucky stars

if you feel that way about it when you get good service from your tires, but there is a deeper and more understandable reason.

The tire that you and every other motorist undoubtedly want most is not the result of hit or miss efforts.

Some great factory has gone to the limit in giving you the best that human ingenuity can produce, and stakes its reputation on the result.

That's how Diamond Tires are built and the great factory behind them is the largest rubber factory in the world.

The horse-shoe was all right to nail over the barn-door, but for the garage four Diamond Tires on the wheels of your car constitute the best omen of good luck we know anything about.

"SQUEEGEE TREAD" TIRES

MILLER NON-SKID TIRES

TIRES with projection treads can't give you as much mileage as they should because the projections lessen the tread's bearing surface. And that lessens mileage.

Miller Non-Skid Tires not only prevent skidding but they have as much tread surface as a plain tread tire. The result is that they deliver 40 per cent more mileage than the ordinary tire with non-skid tread.

They give you a longer period of safety, too, because the non-skid device is effective almost as long as the tread lasts. As it does not project from the tread it wears no faster than the rest of the tread.

Miller Tires

on your car mean Peace on your Mind.

Sooner or later you, too, will see the fallacy of the "low-price-tire" talk. The sooner you adopt

Miller Tires

Geared to the Road

the quicker you will end Tire Worries and Extravagances.

The Proof of the Pudding is in the eating—so, we want you to be the "Judge."

You can't do yourself an in-"JURY."

And if you will just put on a "MILLER" on "PROBATION" the "VERDICT" will be "JUSTIFIABLE."

WILLIAMS IS POUNDED HARD.

IMPERIAL SLAUGHTERS TEAM FROM CALEXICO.

Kahler is in Good Pitching Form and Never in Trouble—Wilhoit Gets a Home Run by Sliding Cleverly into Home Plate—Butler Puts Ball Over Left-field Fence.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CALEXICO, Dec. 4.—Imperial tanned "Wilhoit's raiders" and gave them a terrible drubbing in today's game, which was played under a cold spell.

The Imperial bunch had their batting eyes and sent Lefty Williams to the woods in the seventh inning. "Dutch" Ruether went to the rescue, but Imperial was too far ahead and Calexico never had a chance. Butler, with one on, hit the ball over the left-field fence for a home run.

George Kahler was in grand form and had the Calexico batters at his mercy throughout the game.

Wilhoit in the ninth sent the ball far to center and never stopped running until he reached the home plate and was called safe by sliding cleverly.

The Calexico team did not play up to the standard and Imperial had an easy time of it. Sammy Bohne, Calexico's second baseman, was the star of the game. His hitting and fielding were the features. El Centro battles with Calexico at the local grounds tomorrow.

on downs in the center of the field. A tackle around play and three bucks gave Manual her downs by inches.

Jimmy Bluett started out with a 5-yard end run, but a 15-yard penalty was called. Perhaps this peeved Warren Lamport. He tucked the slippery pellet under his arm and bravely breasted his way to a touchdown. Jimmy Bluett missed goal, but nevertheless there was great joy in the hearts of the Toilers. Thus ended quarter number three.

At the very beginning of the curtain period Riverside fumbled the ball on her 30-yard line, and Brockman, Manual's right tackle, scooped it from the mud and registered another touchdown. This time James Bluett made the goal.

As the navigators lined up for the kick-off Riverside appeared crumpled and forlorn. Miller, the little negro at right end, was the only one having pep enough to offer any comment. "For de Lawd's sake, men," he called, "we am getting beat."

The beating became more decided than ever a few minutes later, when, following the interception of a pass by W. McMillan, Warren Lamport scraped the mud from his eyes, located the Riverside line and scored again. Warren kicked the goal himself. A number of subs then ran in and held the ship until time was called.

The officiating of the game was remarkable to the extreme. Never before had such an array of moguls been collected together. Ed Irvine and Al Waddell, as referee and umpire, respectively, dashed over the ocean of mud with much eclat, assuming heroic poses. Sid Neighbors made his blushing debut as head linesman and was very obliging. He even permitted the players to walk on his feet. Lieut. Wier as field judge occupied his share of the horizon.

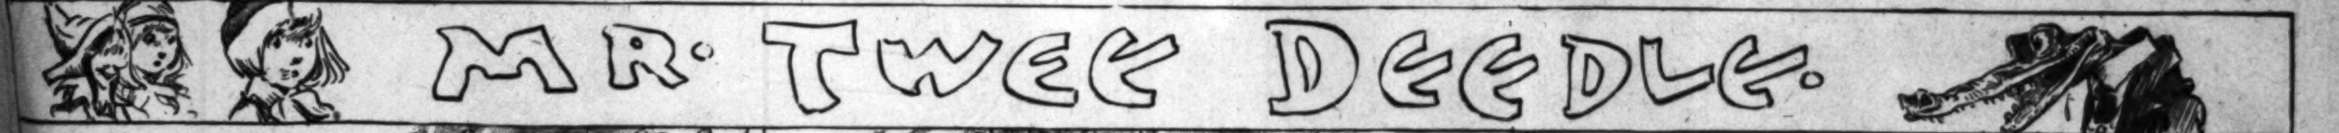
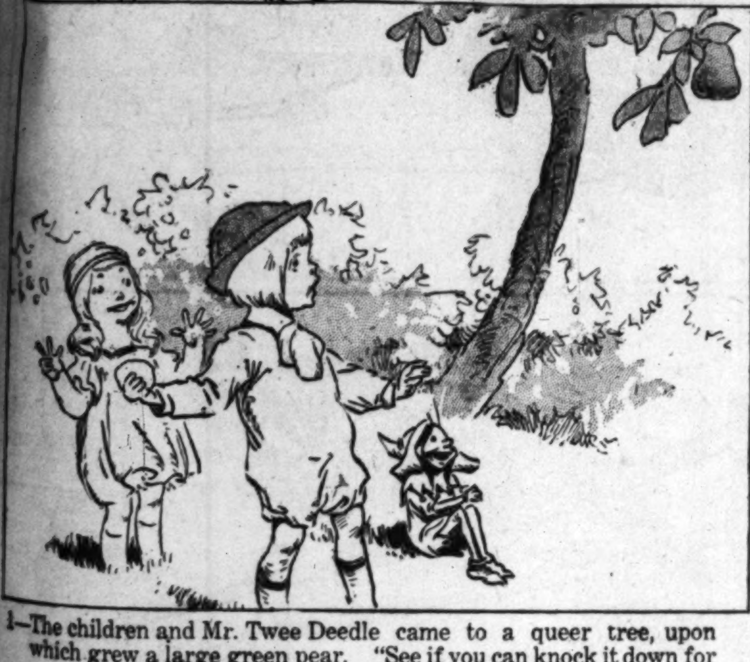
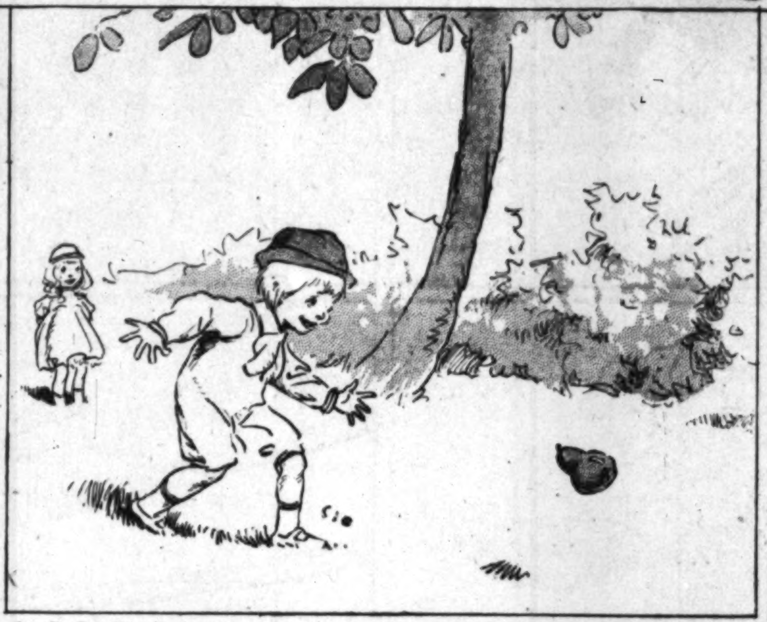
MR. TWEE DEEDLE.

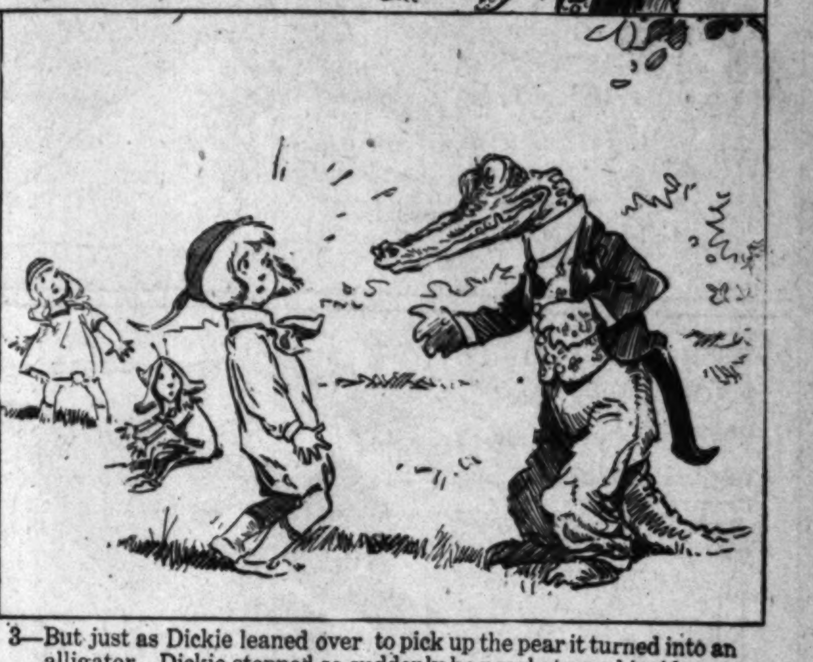




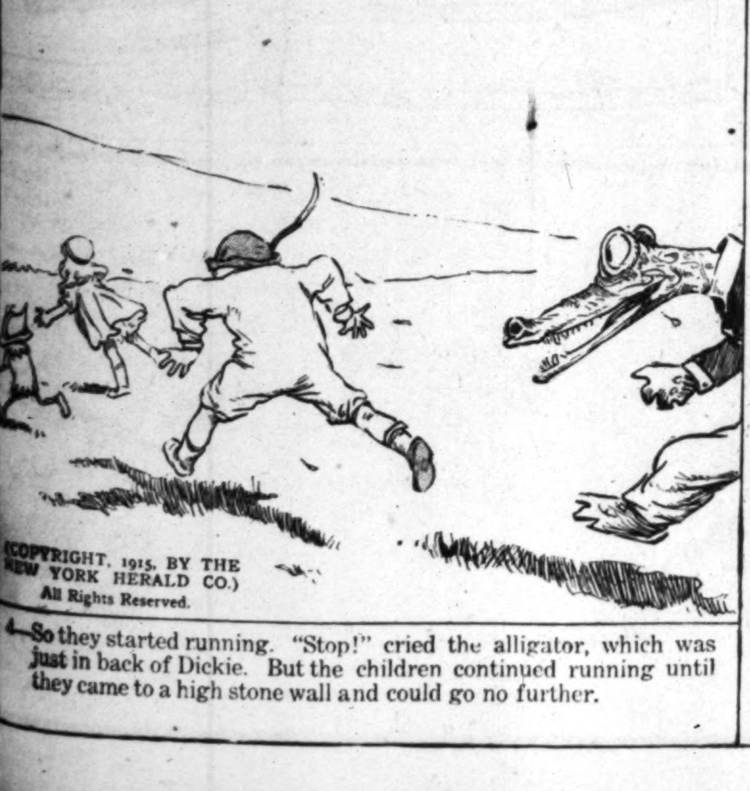
1—The children and Mr. Twee Deedle came to a queer tree, upon which grew a large green pear. "See if you can knock it down for me, Dickie!" cried Dolly.



2—So Dickie took a stone, and at the very first throw he knocked the pear from the branch. "Here it is for you, Dolly!" he cried as he ran forward to pick it up.



3—But just as Dickie leaned over to pick up the pear it turned into an alligator. Dickie stopped so suddenly he nearly turned inside out. "Run!" shouted Mr. Twee Deedle.



(COPYRIGHT, 1915, BY THE NEW YORK HERALD CO.)

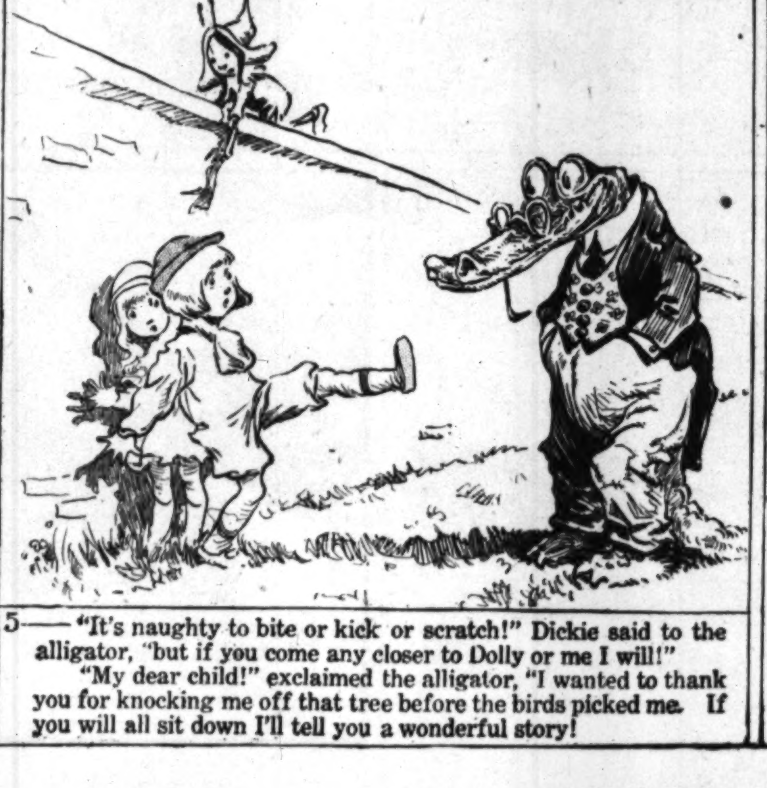
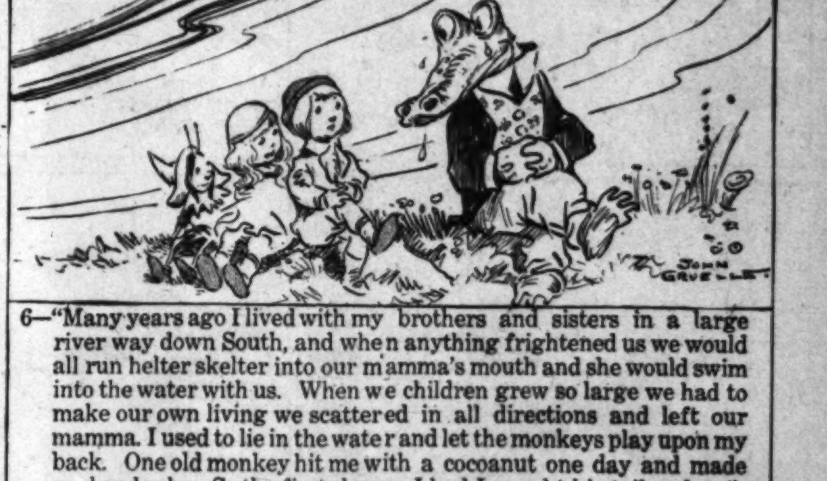
4—So they started running. "Stop!" cried the alligator, which was just in back of Dickie. But the children continued running until they came to a high stone wall and could go no further.



5—"It's naughty to bite or kick or scratch!" Dickie said to the alligator, "but if you come any closer to Dolly or me I will!"

"My dear child!" exclaimed the alligator, "I wanted to thank you for knocking me off that tree before the birds picked me. If you will all sit down I'll tell you a wonderful story!"



JOHN GRUELLE

6—"Many years ago I lived with my brothers and sisters in a large river way down South, and when anything frightened us we would all run helter skelter into our mamma's mouth and she would swim into the water with us. When we children grew so large we had to make our own living we scattered in all directions and left our mamma. I used to lie in the water and let the monkeys play upon my back. One old monkey hit me with a cocoanut one day and made my head ache. So the first chance I had I caught his tail and accidentally bit it off. This made the old monkey angry, and he went to an old witch doctor and asked him to bewitch me. So the witch doctor bewitched me and hung me upon that tree by my tail until some one should knock me down from the tree with the red stone which Dickie threw at me. The witch doctor hid the stone in the long grass so that no one might find it. As I have been hanging there for many long years I am getting very sleepy, for you must know a pear cannot go to sleep! Then the alligator's eyes filled with crocodile tears and he yawned a few times and rolled over on his side and was soon snoring loudly.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

EVERY DAY TABLE MANNERS.

Do you practice good table manners in your family? At this inquiry I am quite sure of an indignant response from a number of house mothers. I shall be informed that they give especial attention to training their children how to behave at meals and that they make a point of insisting upon as correct a demeanor when no company is present as when there are guests to be impressed.

Still I repeat my query, but accompany it with a little explanation. I don't mean to imply that any of your household eat with their knives or drink their tea or coffee out of their saucers, or do any of the crassly ill bred things of which one hears as occurring among persons who lack refinement. Perhaps I can explain my point better by a few illustrations which I take from my personal observation.

For example: I have been a frequent guest in a family of well educated people where the noise of their eating almost drowns their conversation. There is apparently no recognition that it is advisable to chew with the lips closed. On the contrary, the process of mastication is not only visible, but audible—painfully audible. No one seems to notice it but myself, and I am hardly in a position to speak of it.

If this case were an exception I might put it down to the idiosyncracies of this especial clan. But it is not.

"It makes me ill to sit opposite Miss Blank," said a fellow boarder to me at a summer hotel last season. "It's bad enough any time, but when she eats a banana I can see it—and hear it—go all the way down her throat."

"Why do you look at her?" I asked.

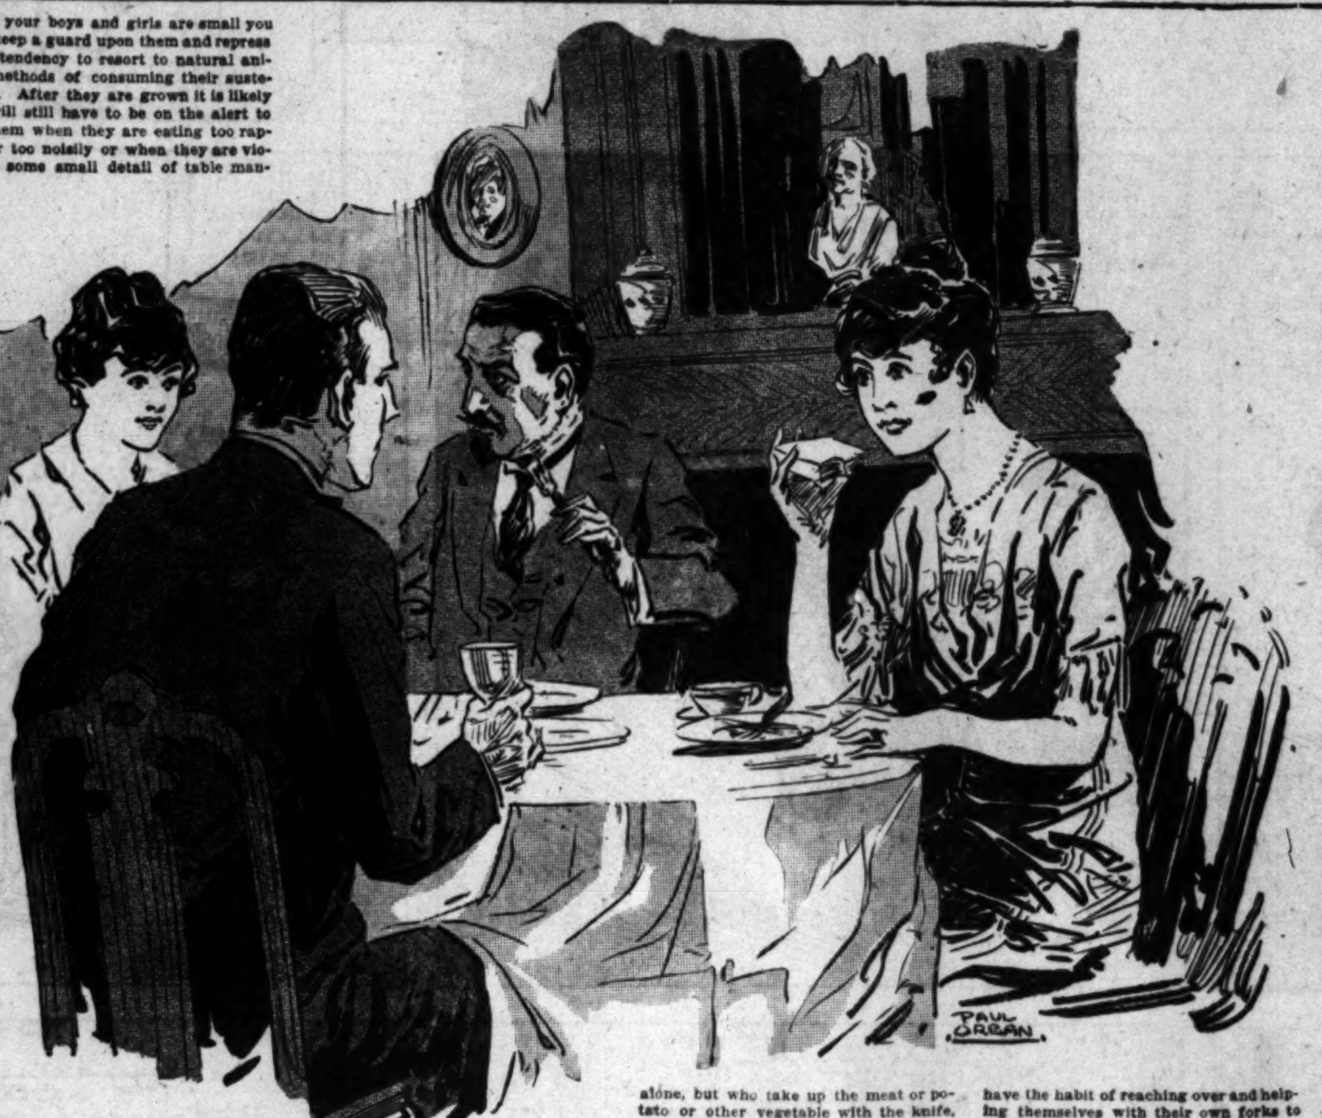
"I can't help it. There is an awful fascination about it, and even when I try to forget it the loud smackings attract my attention and I just have to watch her!"

How many persons eat soup noiselessly? If you have never remarked this, pay attention to it now. Even those who keep their mouths shut when chewing solid food sup their soup from their spoons with a loud and unpleasant sound.

Quiet eating is a rare virtue. Notice the eaters of fruit. Listen to the consumption of oranges—even with a spoon—or of grapefruit, or of grapes, or anything else. The pulp or the juice is sucked from the spoon or from the skin with no perception that the sound made may be deappetizing to the unfortunate person whose attention has been called to the incident and who must thereafter suffer from the infliction, unless it is within her power to check it. This is something you who are mothers of families may do if you will begin with your children in time.

I refer to the children, and yet I am not sure but what some of the grownups are as great sinners in this line—or greater.

When your boys and girls are small you may keep a guard upon them and repress their tendency to resort to natural animal methods of consuming their sustenance. After they are grown it is likely you will still have to be on the alert to tell them when they are eating too rapidly or too noisily or when they are violating some small detail of table manners. They drift into careless habits with alarming ease, especially when they are away from home at school or college.



But what can be done with those who are old enough to know better, who have reached an age where no one is authorized to reprove them, and who yet indulge in practices for which you would reprimand any one over whom you had control?

I know half a dozen persons who never seem to think they can get a satisfactory quantity of food on the fork by its help alone, but who take up the meat or potato or other vegetable with the knife, pile the load on the fork, scraping off the particles that cling to the blade, and then convey the tines with their heaped-up burden to the mouth. If the eaters were in great haste, with only a limited time for the meal, I could understand this course of action, but it is their common practice, when there is no need for haste.

At least two well born and in most respects well bred acquaintances of mine have the habit of reaching over and helping themselves with their own forks to tidbits from the dish of meat or fish which stands in front of the carver. The obvious course to most of us would seem to ask the person presiding over the dish to give a further portion, but not so with these friends. They prefer to pick and choose for themselves. The objection to their doing so would not be so great if they would use the utensil provided for serving, but when they employ the forks with which they have been eating the action rather interferes with the appetities of the onlookers.

Also I regret to say that I have seen the host do the same thing. Ignoring the carving fork which lay ready to his hand, he has picked with his own fork the morsel he desired, or, worse still, has taken it from the platter with his fingers.

The things to be eaten with the fingers are few and clearly defined. No one can criticise anybody for eating cold bread, dry sandwiches, Saratoga potato chips, crackers, and the like with the fingers any more than for following the same course with grapes, celery, or olives, to mention some of the more obvious articles.

The story is told of a man who came to Prince Metternich with letters of introduction. The bearer of these was represented as a man of rank and title, and was invited to a repast at the house of the prince. In the midst of the meal the host suddenly called out: "Arrest that man! He is an impostor!" The newcomer was cutting his olive and eating it with knife and fork. No gentleman of the class he claimed would have been guilty of such a display of ignorance of accepted usages.

On the other hand, many things are taken in the fingers which should be managed with the fork or spoon. We are amused when we see a man pick up a slice of pie in his hand and eat it, but we have constantly before us the spectacle of those who hold in the fingers large pieces of hot cornbread, dripping with butter and eat them, or strips of bacon, or segments of layer cake with soft filling, who peel and eat peaches, plums, and pears, flowing with juice, with the fingers instead of the fork, stuffing big pieces into the mouth with a carelessness of the feelings of observers which is hardly comprehensible.

I confess I can hardly understand the lack of perception of those who do these things, any more than I can understand the attitude of those who will lay a large slice of bread or a whole biscuit on the table or plate, spread it thickly with butter, and then proceed to eat it unbroken, no matter what the size of the portion.

A mortifying little incident occurred to me not long ago. I had invited a friend from out of town to take afternoon tea with me at a certain rather fashionable tearoom. Her choice of food fell upon English muffins and I ordered these. They came, hot and dripping with melted butter. I took it for granted that my guest would use the knife and fork provided for her, but not she!

She took the whole half muffin in her hand and gnawed pieces from the edge until she had consumed it all, interspersing mouthfuls with gulps of tea. Then she disposed of the second half in same fashion, with no sign that the least suspicion she was not foll the rules of polite society.

Yet she was a college gradua accustomed to associating with persons and to visiting in good She had not been properly trained childhood and had never thought to pare her own manners with those of ers who might have a clearer standing of what constituted re at table.

Do I seem unduly particular and in thus dwelling upon details? I say much more of the bad table m I have met.

There is the woman—it usually to be a woman, I am sorry to sticks the fork with which she has eating into her butter ball. She know better, for those are few travagant in their housekeeping not gather up the leftover butter and save it for cookery. Does she to think it might not be pleasant self, or for others to eat food cooked butter the eaters have thrust their into?

Of the same class is the one the individual fork or knife into mon salt cellar, or who dips radishes into the salt holder which come back on the table. I associate persons in my mind with those turn to the platter an uneaten food from their own plates, or for such portions to the plates members of the family. The poor children who have no right are usually the sufferers method of the elders with the they do not wish left uneaten.

My gorge rises, I acknowledge, see a fond grandparent feeding morsels from her plate with fork, or giving tastes of tea with the spoon she has herself sipping the brew from the cup. sanitary, as we all know when to think, and it is also suggestive pleasant. Why do we do this the other things to which I ferred?

It would be interesting to few notes on these matters. At the beginning of this talk I stated my that there would be indignant my question as to the kind of table ners practiced in your households. you would tell me if you have these or other shortcomings in the of your family or friends and give only some reason for such but a suggestion of how the faults overcome. I am sure this would help to a good many of the readers the Corner—for we all want to make best of ourselves.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

Needs a Warm Wrap.

"I HAVE been a silent, though ardent, admirer, of the Corner for some time. It is indeed a lovely way to get and give aid without humiliation (my hobby) We have some poor families near us who need so much help I have never been able to offer anything to the Corner and only come with a request now. There is a little girl of 10 years living near here who has to go three miles to school and needs a good, warm wrap for this winter and her parents are not able to buy it for her. Her mother has raised a few turkeys and would be glad to give one in exchange for such a garment. Thinking there may be some one who has an outgrown wrap and would be glad to make the exchange or a gift. I write to give the opportunity. If the wrap were given it would be best to send it by parcel post. Mrs. J. S. J."

I shall be glad to send the name and address of the kindly neighbor who makes the appeal. I am gratified to have her good opinion of the Corner—which to my mind is justified.

Wants Recipe for Butter Cake.

"Can you tell me how to make butter cake as it is called in the cake shops? It is delicious and expensive—80 cents. It generally is fine grained, yellow, baked in layers, with a soft, light brown icing looking something like caramel, but it tastes differently I am anxious to get the recipe.

"Mrs. S. D."

I cannot place the cake from your description. It sounds like pound cake or butter sponge cake, but I have never seen those baked in layers. Can some of our good housekeepers supply this recipe? I shall be happy to print it

* *

Canned Sweet Peppers.

"I am anxious to have a recipe for canning pimentoes or peppers. Can you send me one? I inclose a stamped envelope and shall hope to hear from you.

"Mrs. G. R. M."

As I have repeatedly stated on this page, it is impossible for me to undertake to send recipes by mail. If I once began doing this I would have no time for anything else. I am glad, however, to give you the following directions for canned sweet peppers which have been handed to me by some one who has tried the recipe and proved it good: Wash thoroughly, quarter the peppers, and extract the seeds. Place the peppers in a crock, sprinkling each layer of the peppers lightly with salt, and leave them for twenty-four hours. Take out any brine that may have flowed from the peppers and pack these tightly into large fruit jars. Into each jar put one teaspoon of salt and one of sugar. Fill the jars up with cold water, put on the rubbers and the tops, leaving the latter unscrewed. Set the jar in cold water, let this come to a boil, and continue at this for two hours. Screw the tops on tightly and put the jars away. Take special pains to see that the tops are securely closed.

Demand for Baby Carriages.

Here are three letters which may go together because of their resemblance to one another:

"Do you suppose any of your readers have a baby carriage for which they have no more use and would like to give it away? I cannot afford to buy one, having five children. The youngest is a baby of 6 weeks and my husband is not working. The baby needs the fresh air and sunshine and cannot have these unless I take her out in my arms, which is not only tiresome to me but gives the baby the bad habit of being held.

"Mrs. J. E. M."

"Has any one a second hand gocart for which she has no further use? Our baby is 7 months old and I haven't been able to get a carriage yet. We need one badly, so that the other children can take the baby out in the air. E. J. E."

"I have just had twins and am not able to buy a twin carriage for them. If there is some kind friend who would lend or give me one I would be most grateful. I know such carriages are hard to get. I have not been married for four years yet and have two other children besides the twins, so that you can see for yourself I have quite a hard time to get along.

"Mrs. A. J. F."

I hope that through the generosity of the Cornerites all of these may receive satisfactory replies and I shall be happy to supply the addresses of each applicant.

Doll Patterns and Magazines.

"In reply to an appeal you printed some time ago some one kindly sent a lot of nice new vegetables and these were delivered to me, but the name was either misspelled or else they were meant for some one else. Anyhow, I returned them to the freight agent. If they were meant for me I wish to thank the friend who sent them. Also there were some letters sent which were given to me, but I was afraid they were not meant for me, for my name is spelled with an i instead of with an o, as the name was on the letters. There was an offer made in the Corner to send some clothes to me or to this other person in order to make over for children. I would love to have them, as we have to do the best we can on little money, and it would help me with the children's school clothes and I am thankful for the kind offer. If some one would like a good rag doll pattern I would love to send one I have used for years. I make a doll and sometimes several from it every Christmas for some child. I will also make an old fashioned button box and pin cushion for some one who will send me a few pretty scraps to make these things. I get so lonely and would love to feel as if I were doing something for some one. My eldest little girl is 8 and the youngest is 3. I have a stack of magazines I would love to send to any one who would like them, but I'm sorry to say I could not afford to pay postage or freight on them. I do hope you will be able to advise me how to straighten matters out. M. A. P."

On receipt of this letter I wrote at once, advising what to do relative to the vegetables and letters and I hope my counsel was received promptly and was of service. Mistakes in the spelling of a name are easily made, and when it is only the difference of a single letter it is safe for the dweller in a small town who knows most of her neighbors to take it for granted that a parcel or a letter is for her if no one else claims it positively. The offer of the rag doll pattern will probably be accepted eagerly in view of the near approach of the holidays, and I think it likely that some one may care enough to have the magazines to be willing to pay for their transportation. I am sorry for the confusion about the name and will be careful in giving it again.

Has a Lovely Odor.

"There is a talcum or perfume—I do not know which—but it has a lovely odor, neither too strong nor too faint. It cannot be detected until one has passed and then I cannot express how good it smells. I have tried many talcums, but none has that odor and I am at a loss to know how to get it. Will some one be good enough to give me the name of this perfume?

"Mrs. G. C."

We cannot give the names of proprietary articles of any sort in the Corner, but I shall be glad to put this correspondent in touch with some one who may be able to answer her query. Personally I am so strongly opposed to the indiscriminate use of perfumes and have suffered so much from being in the vicinity of those who employ them, that I have little knowledge on the subject.

A Call for Music and Magazines.

"I would like very much to have some music. We are twelve miles from town and have few neighbors, so I often get lonely. But I have my music and a few magazines and books to read. We country people near here have much time for reading. I wish to have the address of some Cornerite who would like a letter occasionally. A girl is preferred. Reading matter of any sort would also be welcome. L. B."

I hope this request for reading and music may be gratified, and I am sure some girl will be glad to hear from her.

Wants Materials for Rugs.

"Please give my address to the sister who has pieces to spare and I will be glad to make an exchange of something of equal value. I wish the pieces for my aged mother to help her pass the hours. Also I would be glad of any old clothes to cut up and make into rugs, and would do them on half shares with the giver.

"Mrs. W. J."

Unfortunately the writer of this request fails to send the name of the "sister" who offered pieces. Has anyone else scraps to give away, or is there anyone who would like to go shares on the rug plan she suggests?

* *

Wants a Violin.

"If any one has an old violin which is no longer needed, I would gladly give in return some copies of a weekly story paper. G. A. McK."

Old violins are so much in demand, I can hardly hold out much encouragement one will be sent either as a gift or in exchange, but I am glad to print the request and hope it may be answered.

* *

Music and Silk Pieces.

"I would be glad to have some of the music and also the silk pieces offered recently by a friend in the Helping Hand. I would gladly send postage.

"Mrs. D. J. M."

Another failure to give the signature of the friend who made the offer, thus rendering it impossible for me to supply the address desired. I am sorry. Has any one else music or silk pieces to give Mrs. D. J. M.? I will put her address on file.

Boston Cream Pie.

"What I have always known as Boston cream pie is really a cream cake. Any good layer cake recipe will answer, but it must be in two thick layers. Put them together and cover them with a layer of the following cream: Into a double boiler put two cups of milk. When scalding hot add two eggs slightly beaten, seven-eighths of a cup of granulated sugar, one-third of a cup of flour, and a pinch of salt, and mix all these well together before adding them to the hot milk. Stir all until quite thick; then cool for fifteen minutes. When thoroughly chilled add two tablespoons of sweet cream and beat well with a spoon; then spread upon the cake.

"McB."

"I see a request for Boston cream pie and I think the following will be liked, as I have often made it: Make a rich pie crust and bake two crusts on large plates. For filling put one pint of milk in a double boiler with one tablespoon of flour wet with milk until smooth, three- a cup of sugar, a little salt, and well beaten. Flavor the mixture nilla and put it between the I have many such recipes, and proves of service to you I again. F.

Several other recipes for this peared in previous issues of the and most of them have spoken of cream pie as a cake. I am glad today not only one of these but which deals with a pie, as most derstand the term—that is, a with one or two crusts.

An Absent Minded Clock

An old lady who lives not me gave her only clock to a undertook to mend it for her and off and did not return it. So I am to ask for a watch or clock, for her. No matter how simple long as it keeps good time. suffers from rheumatism and is all winter. I would also like some wool pieces or parts of ing to be cut into pieces to finish begun some time ago. I have strips of linen, also wool pieces to weave into a rug. If any of the Cornerites can make use of them I glad to send them. Mrs. J. M.

In this day of cheap and good ought not to be difficult to fulfill lady's wish. It is hard enough to be matic and shut in without being know the hour of the day or night. the other request of Mrs. J. M. H. e a satisfactory answer.

Long Walk for Small Boy

"I have read in the Helping your aiding so many, and so I to ask for something for myself hope it is not too much. I am years old and have to sell papers be thankful if some one who has to give away would let me have it to walk so far for my papers have to quit the work when school if I can't get a wheel. If I could I would be glad to deliver the the giver in return. If it is not read the Helping Hand and am sorry that we have not something to those who are so much in need a few good papers I would be send to some one who is sick. may be able to help me out and have something more to offer

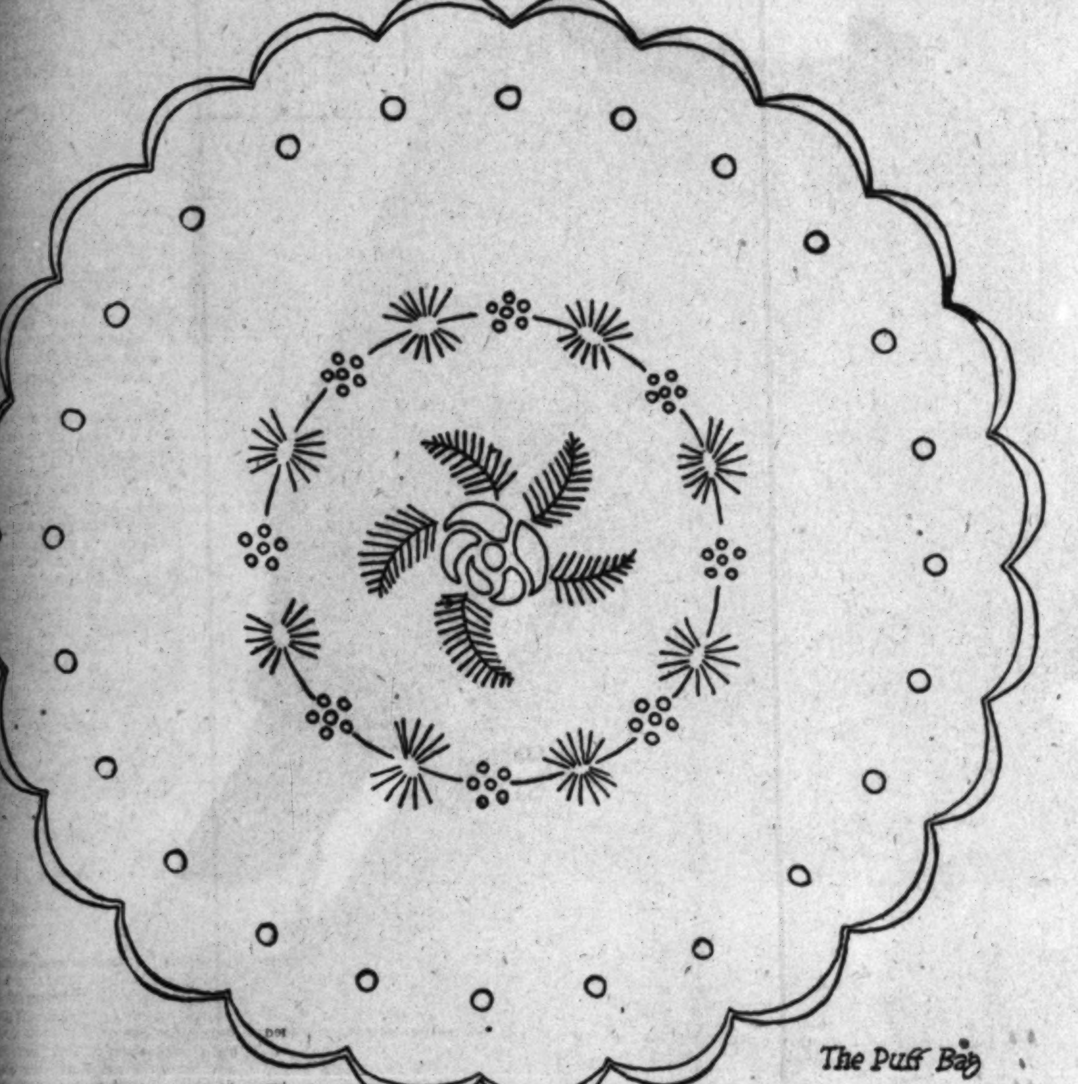
FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

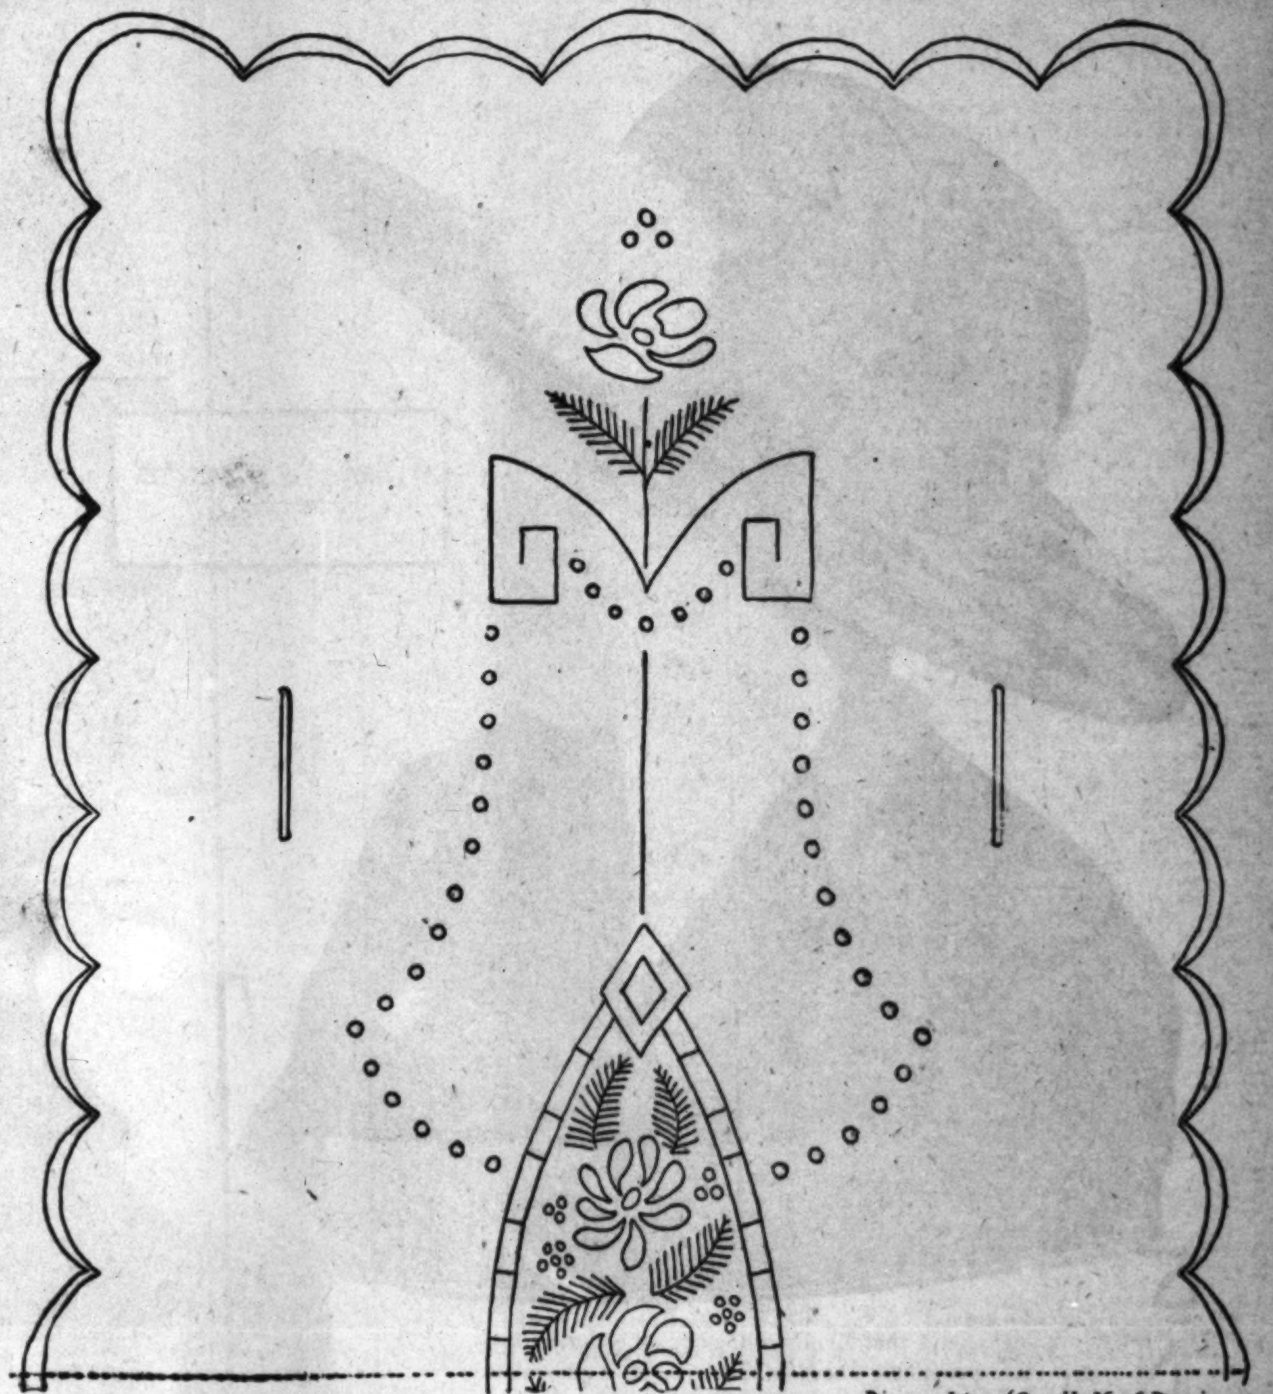
BY ADELAIDE BYRD

FOR PINCUSHION AND POWDER PUFF BAG

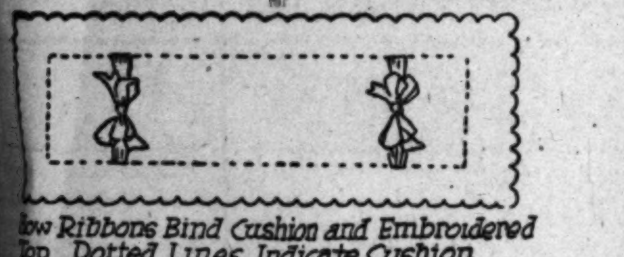
DESIGNED BY ELIZABETH MILLER



The Puff Bag



Pincushion (One Half of Design)



How Ribbons Bind Cushion and Embroidered Top Dotted Lines Indicate Cushion

HERE is something different in the way of a pincushion. Besides being new, it has the added feature of requiring less material and fewer embroidery stitches than the ordinary stuffed holder of pins. As a rule, it takes two pieces of material to make a cushion, but here is a cover consisting of one piece only. The one piece is laid across the foundation and is held in place by a piece of ribbon run through the two long slots indicated at either end of the cushion. The slots, by the way, are first outlined with running stitches and made into eyelets.

White linen is the best selection to make in the way of material for the cushion. After stamping the design on the same, embroider it in colors. You can use one color if you choose, but a prettier and daintier effect will be gained if a combination of colors is used. For instance, green can be used for the feathery leaves, single stitches being used. The petals of the flowers might be darned or worked solidly in pink. Yellow solid stitches can be used to fill in the center of each diamond, and for the various clusters of tiny circles French knots will prove to be appropriate.

A lacy appearance would be given the pincushion if the large circles connecting the center with the ends of the design were made into eyelets. However, if one is pressed for time French knots can be used here for eyelets, for it does take time to embroider eyelets.

The touch of black in embroidery land still holds good and would be just the thing to add richness to the complete design. Therefore, I suggest that you outline the double lines of the oval and the little lines between in black. Use black also for the diamonds and square scrolls at either end of the cushion.

An idea of the ribbon-fitted design can be gained by looking at the little sketch.

For concealing the inevitable powder puff that is a necessary accessory on every girl's dressing table, the bag for which the design is here given will prove an acceptable gift because of its convenience. I think every one of us feels relieved when, upon opening a gift, we find it is something we can use to our advantage. This may be a mercenary spirit, but, after all, it is the right spirit, for a useless gift means money and time wasted on the selection of the present. Take this design and stamp it on a number of powder bags. You will be surprised at the rapidity with which you can make a great number of them when you have one completed.

Since the design is similar to the one on the pincushion the same stitches will apply. After padding the scallops with darning cotton buttonhole them neatly.

As you no doubt suspected, the ring of circles is to be transformed into a ring of eyelets. Through the tiny holes baby ribbon or a white cord must be run so that the bag can be closed and hung on the side of the dressing table or bureau.

Work diligently on these articles so that you will be able to start in on the gift design you will find on this page next week.

Bazaar Trifles

IT IS always more or less of a problem what to make for the friend who is presiding over a fancy-work table at fair or bazaar. Each year brings novelties, however, to catch the pennies of the charitably inclined visitor.

Now there is a first-aid-to-the-injured Red Cross doll, whose voluminous blue chambray skirts and apron cover a large roll of absorbent cotton, some adhesive tape, an antiseptic gauze petticoat and a few safety pins.

A generous-sized bag for soiled collars and cuffs is made from blue-and-white striped shirting madras. It looks exactly like a miniature man's shirt, even to the pearl buttons in front. A soft collar turns over an embroidery hoop, which holds the neck or the opening of the bag handily open for soiled linen. The tails are virtually sewed shut to form the bottom of the bag.

A string bag of string-colored crash has the figure of an old market woman outlined on it in colors. Through an opening in her basket the end of a ball of string peeps out. The bag is held up by heavy twine cords.

A frock protector of black satin or sateen is lined with white satin. It has a high stock collar with long "tabs," which is to show above the coat and look chic, while at the same time protecting the light frock from the rubbing against the back of a dark coat collar and lining.

Just the Thing!

THAT'S what Polly said when she first saw them. "Just the thing to bring to Cora's kitchen shower."

They are a set of heavy muslin bags in three different sizes, each marked in green outline stitch with the name "Parsley," "Lettuce" and "Celery." You can imagine, if you are a good housekeeper, what they are for. If you have to be told, as Polly did, that they are to hold these green things when placed in the ice box, you will also understand how delighted she was to find such a novel way of using stitchery for a kitchen shower gift. The bags are large enough to hold a generous bunch of each green and tie with plain white tape. Be sure in embroidering them that you use a fast color cotton, as the frequent washing which such bags require would soon take the color out of ordinary cotton.

Children's Dresses

A MOTHER can scarcely resist adding a few touches of hand embroidery on a frock she makes for her children, and yet she feels that it requires so much time to do the work that she must forego the pleasure and let her machine make all the stitches. But by picking out a few simple sprays and letting them ornament a yoke or a panel, it would not take so long to embroider them on a dress. By using lace in combination with the hand touches it always looks as though there is more work on the frock than there really is. For instance, one dress which called forth much admiration has been made of finest nainsook. From the neck to the bottom in front there is a panel formed of two-inch strips of lace and tucked material. Along either side of the panel there are embroidered sprays and leaves—only a few, yet there are sufficient to give the impression that a great amount of handwork has been added.

Another darling dress had a shallow yoke on which a few butterflies were embroidered. The baby waist was gained by the addition of beading through which delicious pink ribbon was run.

Smocking is not to be forgotten when speaking of hand touches on children's frocks. For a child 4 years of age a very pretty dress might be made of natural-colored pongee. Use the diamond-shaped smocking to give fullness at the front and back of the dress and run some of it at the cuffs, so that the sleeves will be sufficiently full. Do the smocking in brown if you wish to gain a truly artistic effect.

Fur Imitation

YOU women who can knit and who are busy making sweaters should not grieve if your pocketbooks will not allow you to add the touch of fur so much in vogue this season. There is a substitute which can be used and which will prove just as effective. This is white angora wool. A very striking sweater made by a loving aunt recently was of French blue and had white angora collar, cuffs and white bands trimming the pockets. To complete the set a blue skating cap trimmed with a band of white angora wool was made.

A Practical Gift

BE IT ever so humble, the simplest kind of a cap worn by the housekeeper in the morning is called a boudoir cap. The name is improperly applied, but the woman wearing it should worry about that. As every woman wants to look her prettiest, whether at work or play, one cannot go far wrong if one selects a boudoir cap as a Christmas gift. It is one that is sure to be used—and that is something that cannot be said about every gift. Most adorable caps can be bought, but caps equally as pretty can be made at home for very little money.

For practical wear white dotted or blocked swiss is a suitable material for a cap. This can be ornamented or not, as one desires.

A very pretty cap can be made from net. Cut a circle of the net one-half yard in diameter. Turn a narrow hem all around the edge and sew by hand, using a soft silk in a dainty color. Allow for a ruffle of the material two inches in width. Cut a straight strip of net or use a band of lace and adjust it to the inside of the cap, stitching it to the under side of the shirred band. Draw the extra fullness in to fit the head for which it is intended, and after adding a rosette of narrow ribbon you will be more than pleased with the result.

Ribbon and lace can be combined successfully to fashion a cap. The entire cap should be made of alternate rows of ribbon and lace sewn together by hand. When placed on the head the stripes can run from front to back or from side to side. A ruffle of lace can be bound with ribbon or can be made of alternate rows of ribbon and lace. A truly old-fashioned bouquet can adorn the cap, if you will but take the time to make roses of ribbon and add a frill of lace.

Crepe de chine and velvet are appropriate materials to use for the making of the dainty headpieces.

As for trimming, one can hardly find a limit. Roses, pleatings of self material, loops of ribbon, medallions of lace and bands of fur are all at your service.

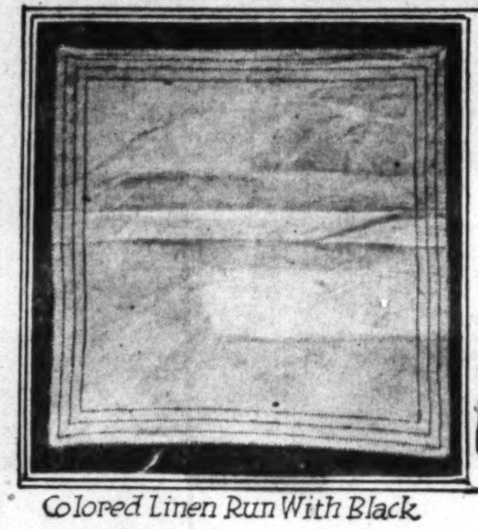
EMBROIDERED GIFTS

THERE is no reason why every woman cannot save money this year in preparing her Christmas gifts. By embroidering wearing apparel, articles for the boudoir and precious gifts for the baby a woman wins an enviable reputation for giving valuable and useful things.

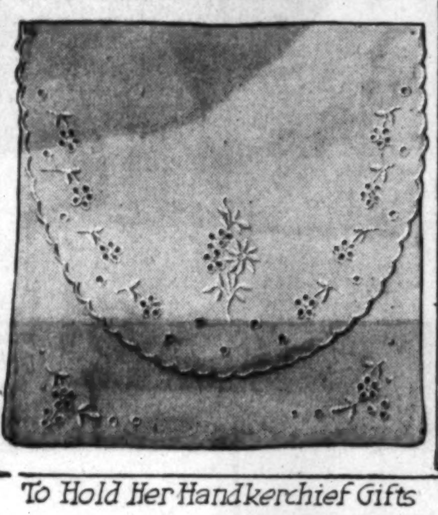
A New Apron

ONE of the newest as well as the prettiest aprons to be seen on the art needlework counter is made along the lines of the now popular fudge apron. It is not, however, of the crash usually used for these aprons, but of thin white batiste, entirely picoted around the edge and neck opening. Across the bottom a band of black-and-white striped lawn, the stripe running up and down, is stitched, the same material being used for the pocket. Between the stripes are embroidered in pastel colors small flower sprays with plenty of lazy-daisy stitches and French knots. A pink ribbon is run through eyelets, which are worked to give a somewhat high-waisted effect.

Handkerchief Ways for Christmas



Colored Linen Run With Black



To Hold Her Handkerchief Gifts

A Dainty Lace-Edged Model

"OH, GIVE her handkerchiefs! They're always good." Yes, handkerchiefs are always good, even if they are very often a last resort for the distracted gift giver. But if you are going to give her handkerchiefs let them be worth while. Any one can go out and buy a dozen plain hemstitched linen hankies, but not every one can afford to indulge in hand-made squares of linen luxury.

One woman of foresight uncommon prepares months ahead of gift time several dozens of odd little handkerchiefs, which she has made in odd minutes, and lays them aside for last-minute gifts or remembrances, which can be slipped between the pages of a Christmas card or booklet where just a little more substantial recognition of the merry season seems required. Somehow handkerchiefs are a happy step between the greeting card and the really truly gift, especially if the handkerchief is handmade. It is not "gifty" enough to make the recipient feel under obligations if she is unable to make a gift in return.

A pretty example of the hand-made handkerchief is shown in the dainty square of white or colored linen with overcast edge and hand-run border of black. These handkerchiefs are very smart, and cost a pretty penny in the shops. Just think, however, how many you could make from a yard of linen, at 50 cents or more a yard. In the colored linen the price is slightly larger, especially for the odd delicate shades, but a yard each of several different colors will make you several dozen handkerchiefs to be divided into twice as many gifts, as no one cares to give more than three or six handkerchiefs at the most for one gift. You can get nine twelve-inch handkerchiefs out of a yard of linen, and if the linen is wider, say forty inches, you can get sixteen ten-inch handkerchiefs by buying a yard and an eighth of material.

Since the edges in these handkerchiefs are merely rolled, there is no waste for wide hems. To roll the edge merely dampen the fingers slightly and roll the material with the thumb and forefinger of the left hand while you overcast with the black thread with the right hand. After you have overcast in even stitches around the handkerchief in one direction, reverse your stitches and overcast the other way to cover the first row of stitching, thus making the odd and attractive edge. The running stitches are very simple, but should be kept even. There should be as many rows as you like, but three will be ample for a small handkerchief. An initial may be added, but it does not look so well done in black, and for this reason is omitted.

The lace, or, rather, net-trimmed handkerchief is just as easy to make and equally pleasing to receive. Here the corners of the square are rounded off and the edge is bound with the narrowest possible piece of colored linen. If you are making both varieties of handkerchief, you might filch a few strips from the colored linen which you are using for the colored handkerchiefs to be run with black. You do this binding by running with the tiniest stitches the colored band to the white linen square, which should not be over nine inches. Trim the edges within a few threads of the stitching and turn the colored band in as small a turn-under as your fingers and thumbs can manage. Then hem it with invisible stitches the color of the binding. The net for the edging can be bought by the yard, and is merely overcast to the colored edge, allowing several extra inches for the corners, so that it will not pucker. This handkerchief will stand a tiny initial in white in one corner, should you care to add it, or the letter may be in the color of the binding.

A case to hold her handkerchiefs might be a welcome relief to the girl to whom you always give handkerchiefs. The case pictured is eminently practical and at the same time artistic. It is Madeira work, of eyelets and solid leaves, and daintily scalloped around the edge of the generous flap. These cases made slightly larger than the usual folded square of a handkerchief as it comes from the laundry are especially convenient for traveling, as they will hold at least a half dozen hankies, sufficient for the week-end trip, and the case can be laundered as easily as the linen dainties it contains.

When making your Christmas handkerchiefs don't forget the popularity of the glove handkerchief. Either of the two illustrated handkerchiefs can be made in glove size, and will be appreciated by the girl who dotes on novelties in any shape or form.

Christmas Neckwear

IN SEARCHING the shops for new ideas these holiday times one meets much that is fascinating and, moreover, easy for the maker of Christmas gifts to copy.

Neither the so-called Dutch collar nor its new high-built sister can claim exclusive honors this season. The low designs, having had more practice, have perfected themselves until one can find any shape or size to suit the fancy.

If one is thinking of the business-girl friend, organdie will prove most acceptable to her to liven up the simple serge dress. There is a pretty model whose picoted edges slope gently to meet the cut-off corners. A second smaller collar, picot edged also, overlays the other, and this is trimmed with tiny white buttons. Another has the inner portion edged with points which are hemstitched to an outer edge picoted in large scallops. One can have the picoting done for a few cents a yard at a shop which does hemstitching. These two models make excellent last-moment gifts, as after the picoting is finished, it is only necessary to attach the neckband. However, if one chooses, a little handwork may be introduced, such as a couching or darning stitch near the edge in colors appropriate to the suit.

Silk and moire ribbon are important factors in the high models. One of silk has wings of pique, which form the collar proper. In another the silk is used as the foundation. At the top is placed fur, and from under it falls a voluminous gathered lace jabot. Half a yard of lace should make this, with a neck length of ribbon, preferably pleated.

Still another is of softly pleated silk having a small lace collar, boned within an inch of the edge, which hangs over turn-over fashion. There is a small jabot to match. Wide-meshed lace with a decided pattern is used.

Handkerchief linen is in vogue now and is highly starched to display the dainty embroidery and to keep the shape desired.

One favorite and simple style is fashioned out of a double thickness of sheer linen, with points coming up high under the ears and buttoned closely in front with a jet button. This could be changed to a color to match the gown, and French knots or couching might be introduced around the neck.

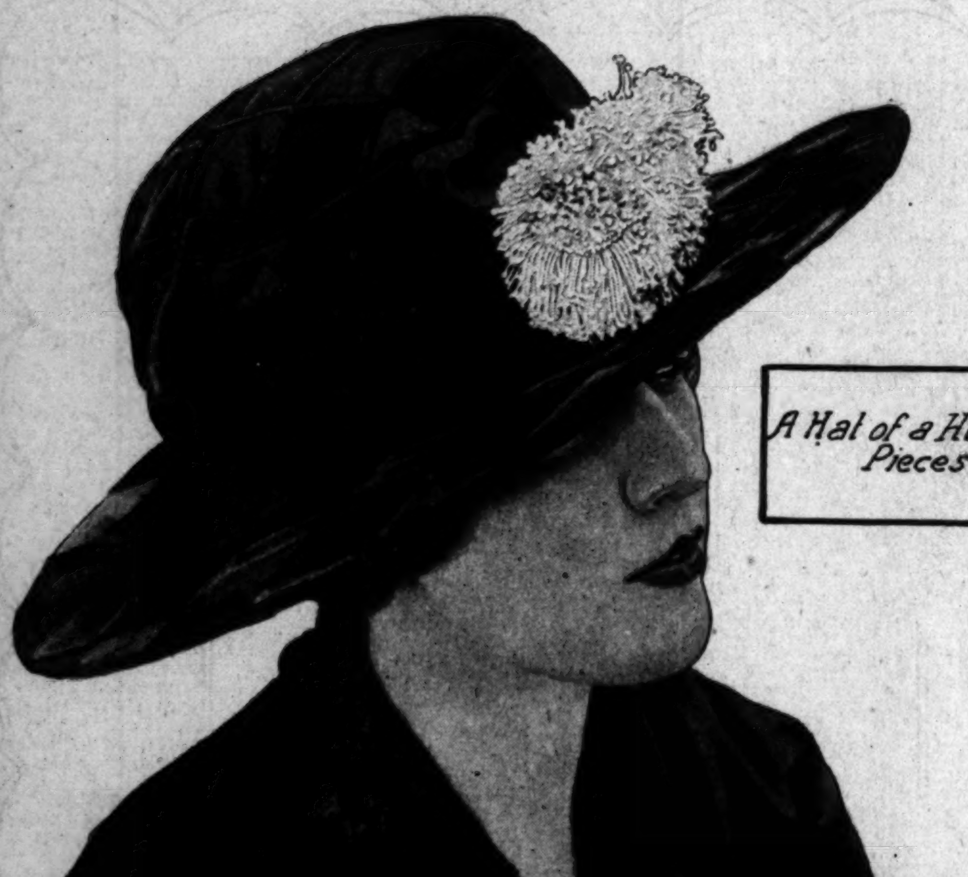
A collar and cuff set is unique and easily copied at home. The former has wide wings, embroidered in eyelets, and the stovepipe-shaped cuffs, richly embroidered, end at the top in flaring ruffles, embroidered also. This would prove the making of a gown, although it could be carried out in a less elaborate fashion by simply running dots or eyelets around the edge.

Altogether, though styles come and go, and machines usurp woman's place more with each coming year, dainty handwork still holds sway, and no price can buy the embroidered gift.

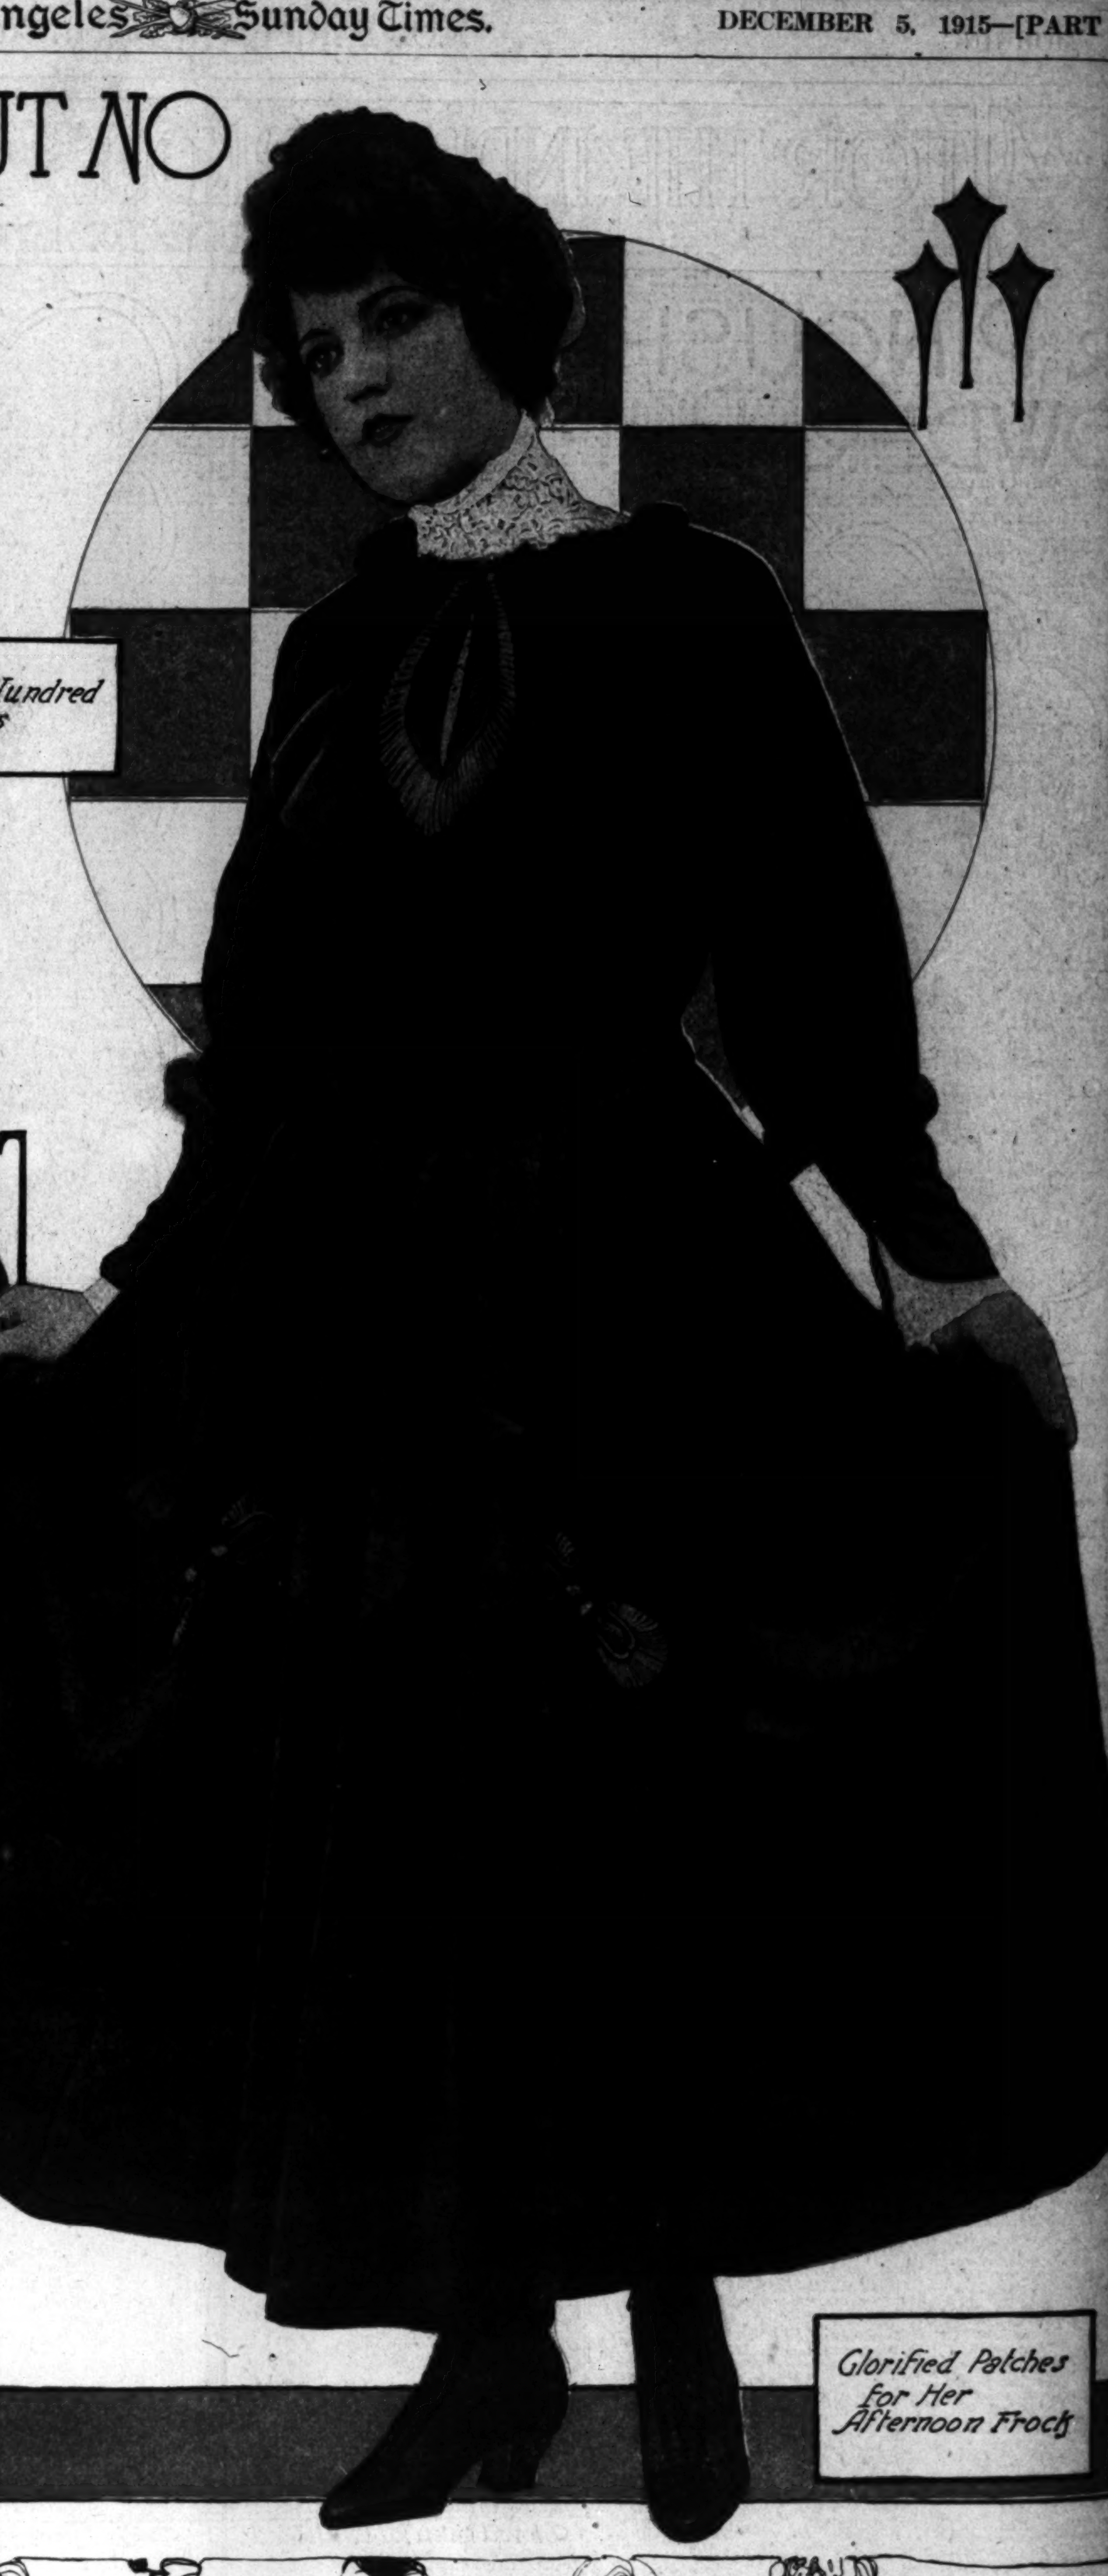
How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

IN PATCHWORK BUT NO PAUPER



A Hat of a Hundred Pieces



Glorified Patches for Her Afternoon Frock

NOW you might think that Mr. Up-to-the-Minute had come into Mrs. Up-to-the-Minute's boudoir with a sheaf of bills in his hand and a crushed look on his face and had said, "My dear, we are ruined. We must retrench. We will begin with your clothes, which are the largest item to be considered"; and Mrs. Up-to-the-Minute had acquiesced most reluctantly and had called in her favorite modiste and had hauled the patchbag down from the attic and had given the modiste carte blanche, with the pictured result of a patchwork frock and hat.

Whether such a situation was the ultimate cause for the pretty and startling combination offered, or whether it was designed simply to typify fashion retrenchment which we are told is rampant abroad, or whether it is a gauntlet thrown to Mrs. Up-to-the-Minute to see just how far her love for the novel will take her, is hard to say. But here you have it without question, a dress of alternate patches of broadcloth and velvet and a hat of smaller squares to match.

"What a beautiful opportunity or excuse to haunt the remnant counter!" the practical woman will say in opposition to the squeals of delight from her more prosperous sister over the find of something so "delightfully different, don't you know." Yes, it might be called a remnant costume. Very often to get rid of an odd color or material that will not match up or is slightly passe the shopkeeper will cut up whole bolts into small remnants at alluring prices. Here is an opportunity to combine several yards of lovely broadcloth with that narrow black velvet skirt you won't consider wearing. Can you beat this for ingenuity?

The frock pictured is of black velvet and bordeaux broadcloth in alternate patches. There is more velvet in the waist, which is quaintly joined to the full skirt without the least suggestion of belt or girdle. The high cut neck is filled in with heavy lace which runs up without a seam into a high choker collar fastening in the back. A narrow band of skunk fur is used around the neck and sleeves. The front opening at the neck of the bodice is finished off with a zigzag arrangement of old-gold braid, the same braid being used to form the ornaments at the corners of the patches in the skirt.

The hat is typical of the season's styles if it is patchwork. The patches are of the same black velvet and bordeaux broadcloth, but smaller and cleverly joined together by hand with black silk buttonholing. The ornament is one of the new fringe affairs which are making their way to the front of many of the newest millinery models.

It isn't often that the patchbag yields such a fruitful harvest as this original costume. What next, we say!

The Day of the Whirlwind

By William Watson

English Poet and Essayist

AS A NATION, as an empire, Great Britain is in danger. Why is it in danger? Because it is attacked by an enemy of unprecedented power and equipment, and is not even yet in a condition of readiness to meet him on equal terms. Why is it not in that condition of readiness? Because there has been no such leap and rush to duty on the part of the whole efficient manhood of the country as would have constituted a national act commensurate with the national need. Why has there been no such universal leap and rush to duty? Because the people as a whole have been unconscious both of any supreme outward necessity for it and of any urgent inward call. Why thus unconscious? Because there exist and have long existed among the English masses a pervading slackness and limpness of mind, a quite unnecessary, quite evitable backwardness of intellectual growth, an untilled, undeveloped, unawakened state of the faculties and the emotions with respect to the larger issues of human affairs; and these shortcomings, these entirely curable defects, have found the English, at the crucial hour, unable to rise with unanimity to the desired and needed mood, untouched by any adequate collective thrill, and imperfectly fed from those internal founts which are the sources of true patriotic impulse and consentaneous patriotic action.

Few tasks are harder, none is more thankless, than to convince the people of a great country of some of their most vital and urgent needs. Especially when that public, like the English, has developed a really abnormal sensitiveness to criticism, a hyperaesthesia which is not without its suggestion of neurosis.

With Erector boys can build steel models which are regular "giants"—skyscrapers 8 feet high, bridges 21 feet long. Notice the square columns of this model—they are exactly like the columns and beams of real skyscrapers. Erector builds hundreds of small machinery models, too.

ERECTOR

The Toy Like Structural Steel

Erector is the only construction toy with girders like real structural steel. The electric motor, free with most sets, runs many of the models—skyscrapers with running elevators, bridges with third rail cars, machine shops, saw mills, derricks, etc.

Nevertheless, it is high time that the masses of the English people should have it driven and hammered into their somewhat slow minds—for no gentler mode of introducing it will suffice—that it is very doubtful indeed whether the Germans are to be beaten at all.

Not comfortable and lulling assurances that all will ultimately be well—not rapturous praises of English heroism—not the fulsome compliments which Britons are always paying to themselves—not these things are needed, but plain, rough, ruthless, highly distasteful and unpalatable words setting forth the grim truth that the enemy is not in the least weakening in his efforts or his resolve; that the Allies are in imminent and grievous peril; that the foe is not only mighty in numbers, in organization, in equipment and efficiency, but mighty also in intelligence, in passionate love of country and a sublime willingness to fling away comfort, ease, even self, in order to crush his enemies and build the future greatness of his own country on the ruins of their power.

THAT is the spirit that makes Germany supremely formidable, the spirit that makes her an unprecedented menace and terror to English civilization. Are the English themselves showing anything comparable to that spirit? There is but one honest and truthful answer. They are not.

Consider that there are in Great Britain, purposely omitting Ireland, twenty million males of all ages and that four millions of them are of military age—or were at the beginning of the war. Have men between eighteen and thirty-eight years offered themselves for military service in anything even approaching that number? No.

What, then, is meant by a "splendid and magnificent" response to the call to duty? I should consider the response splendid and magnificent if at this moment I saw the country spontaneously denuded of practically the whole flower of its young manhood, their spare time given up to nothing but thoughts of their country's peril and to the work of fitting themselves for her service and succor.

Compare the situation with that in France. Where will be the glory of England if at the end of this conflict, and assuming that it ultimately goes well with the Allies, the English share in the work shall have been subsidiary, the English part that of a people who, with enormous resources in men and material, contributed but a fraction of what was forthcoming?

ONLY one social class in England has, relatively to its numerical inferiority, enormously outdistanced all others in the splendor of its heroic leap and rush to duty. It is that fortunate and favored class which can send its sons to Oxford or Cambridge, to Eaton or Harrow, to Rugby or Haileybury, to Winchester or Clifton. Are the youths of English universities and great public schools fashioned out of nobler clay than the youth of the laboring class? Not a whit. But they have been taught to know something of what England is, whence she arose, what she has dared and suffered, for what she has striven, in what she has prevailed, and—not least of all—what she has thought and dreamed and sung.

The enemy has already lived down the consequences of his tremendous initial blunder concerning the part which Belgium was to play in the drama of war. That blunder vitiated his whole strategy at the outset, and for some months largely nullified all his efforts. But he has lived it down! Think of the stupendous reservoirs of energy and determination that is implied in that rally from the disheartenment which his colossal error in starting must needs have bred. What word does justice to such spiritual resilience? I fear no poorer word than greatness will meet the occasion.

Let us hope that we may show something of the same marvellous rebound of spirit, if events should prove that we also were like some wayfarer who, journeying on a mission of life and death, finds presently that he has been misdirected in his course, and must turn back wearily to recover the road he quitted, and curse the leagues he lost.

ENGLAND and America? Annually throughout the Republic—on the Fourth of July—runs that visible and audible thrill, as of a nation intensely conscious of herself, tingling to her finger tips with such consciousness. No somnolence in America! No forgetfulness of what U. S. A. is and what part the Republic has played among the continents. Rather an insistent and aggressively flaunted recollection of it. Everywhere movement; everywhere the vivid, vigilant mind; often over-zealous in oblations to Mammon, but often serving other and nobler gods also. Facts, ideas, personalities, eagerly invited and sought after; sometimes with the curiosity that irritates and disconcerts, but at any rate with curiosity, which is the well-spring of all knowledge.

The hunters are up in America, said Sir Thomas Browne long ago. Yes—in another sense than he intended—the hunters are up in America, and one feels there that life is indeed a chase. The hunters are up, and from Hudson-mouth to the Sierras you hear their halloo. No danger of falling asleep at noontide with that shrill note resonant on the air!

But America is far off, and England is around and within us on the British Isles. Besides, England is "at last thoroughly awake" and, considering the langorous climate that appears to have been normal in at least one region not far from the apex of her social pyramid, one can scarcely be surprised if an equally drowsy air seemed sometimes to hang about its base.

WOMEN OF MARK

An Aunt to Uncle Sam

MISS JULIA C. LATHROP, head of the new Children's Bureau, is the first woman bureau chief Uncle Sam has ever had and the salary of $5,000 attached to this position makes her now the highest paid woman on the government payroll. She is a graduate of Vassar College and a member of its board of governors. After leaving Vassar she made a study of sociology, but it was in Hull House as an associate of Jane Addams that she found abundant material to demonstrate her theories. For the past twenty years she has worked "with her sleeves rolled up." She had herself appointed county visitor of the poor and assigned to the Chicago slums surrounding Hull House, and then went to work on the tenements.

During the great epidemic of smallpox, following the World's Fair, she labored incessantly to keep the pestilence from spreading. As a member of the Illinois State Board of Charities she has accomplished wonders. Her assignment was to visit the various state institutions for the dependent, the criminal, or the delinquent and she started a regular housecleaning of these institutions, whence had come charges that political appointees were maltreating the inmates.

To see actual conditions for herself, she became an inmate of one institution after another, ate their food, slept in their beds, and then made reports that could not go unheeded. Miss Lathrop has written, lectured, talked to small clubs and large ones, called neighborhood meetings and traveled to various state legislatures in behalf of some urgent reform; but she has the reputation of being a peaceful reformer, who has accomplished tremendous results with none of the bitter strife which usually attends such changes. Under her maternal eye the children's bureau is working for the conservation of the American child—its health and efficiency.

Lady Mayor of Philadelphia

WHEN the people of Philadelphia elected Rudolph Blankenburg to be their Mayor, they were also paying emphatic tribute to his wife. In fact, those who are wise politically say the Mayor could not have been elected without her.

"Seemed as if she had friends in half the homes of the city," said one chagrined leader. "Men who had gone along with us for years came and begged off because their wives thought so much of Mrs. Blankenburg. Cases of women that had been helped by her were cropping out all the time, and you can't get a man to vote against his wife's guardian angel."

It was Mrs. Blankenburg's life, as lived through forty-five years before the people of her city, that told. Her marble mansion in Logan Square has always been open to rich and poor alike whether their mission were to aid or receive benefit from the many public movements which she has projected and furthered. There has not been a civic movement undertaken by the women of Philadelphia in the last thirty years in which Lucretia Mott Blankenburg has not had a hand. She was a charter member of the New Century Club, founded in 1877, the most influential woman's organization in Philadelphia. In the same year she helped to organize the Society for Organizing Charity, and became one of its directors. She was one of the founders of the New Century Guild, one of the largest clubs for working women in the country. For sixteen years, until her resignation three years ago, she was President of the Pennsylvania Woman's Suffrage Association.

With all her public work, Mrs. Blankenburg puts housekeeping at the head of her list of duties. In all that she does, she is intensely practical, never relieving distress without trying to remove the cause. She has started hundreds of individuals and families toward self-respect by teaching them how to help themselves finding work if necessary, and often putting education within reach of the young. It is these folks who regard her almost reverentially, and their number is great in Philadelphia.

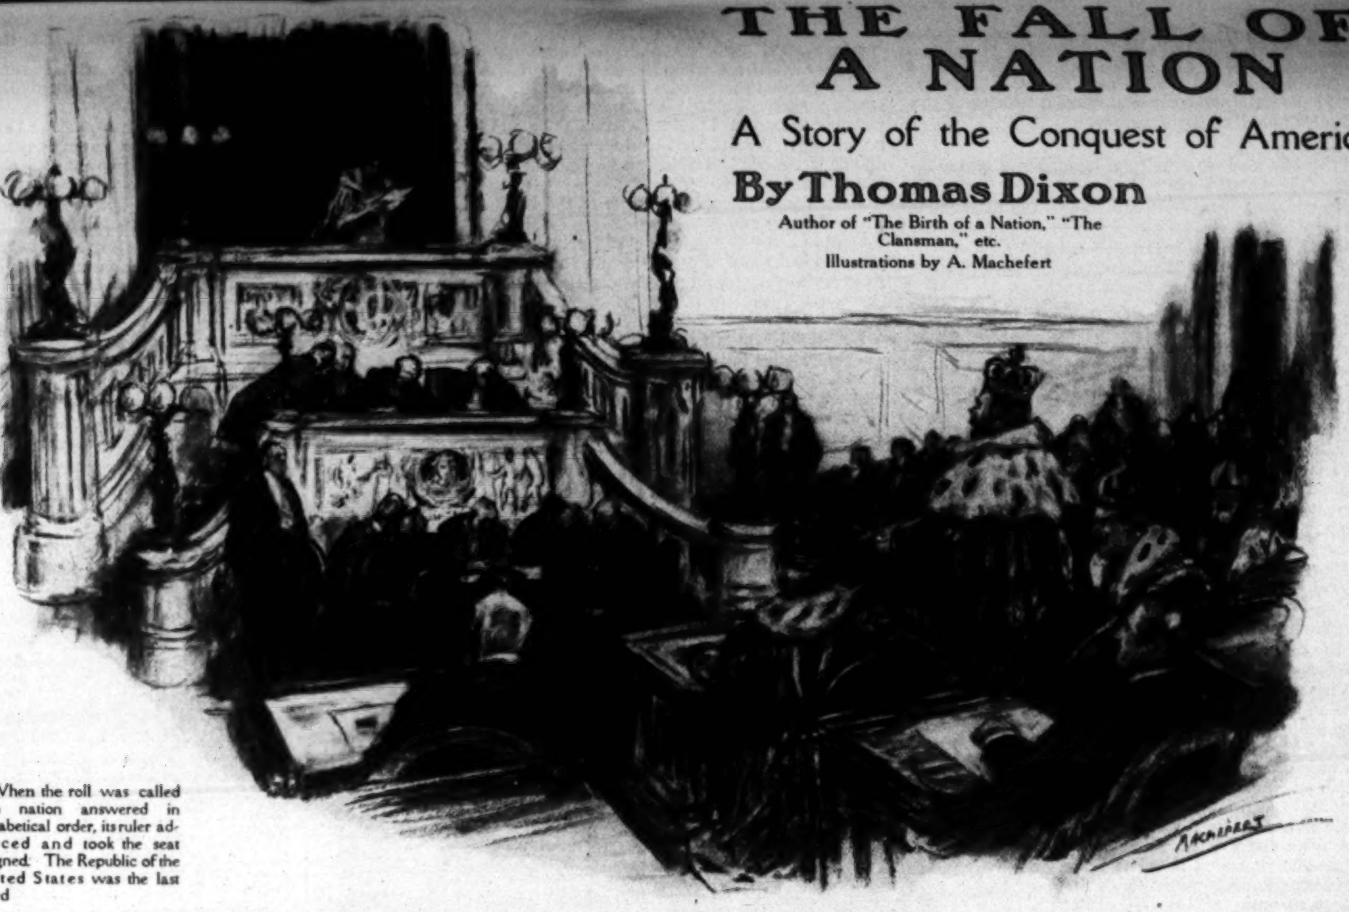
THE FALL OF A NATION

A Story of the Conquest of America

By Thomas Dixon

Author of "The Birth of a Nation," "The Clansman," etc.

Illustrations by A. Machefert



When the roll was called each nation answered in alphabetical order, its ruler advanced and took the seat assigned. The Republic of the United States was the last called

CHAPTER XIII.

THE caucus of the delegates of the Women's Convention was booked to meet at six o'clock. The House would hold a night session and the vote on the Defense Bill would be called between ten and eleven.

To prevent the possibility of any influence from Vassar's speech reaching the caucus, Waldron succeeded in changing the hour to three o'clock. He would prolong the discussion until six and deliver their orders to the members of Congress in ample time.

Vassar saw him whispering in earnest conference with Barker and Virginia, guessed instinctively a change of program and in ten minutes his secretary had confirmed his suspicions.

There was no time to be lost. He made up his mind instantly to throw pride to the winds and make a desperate personal appeal to the one woman whose influence in the crisis could dominate the councils of the opposition.

He called a cab and reached her hotel at the moment Barker was handing Virginia from Waldron's car.

An instant of hesitating doubt swept him as he thought of the possibility of a public refusal to meet or confer. He couldn't believe she would be so ungracious. He must risk it. The situation was too critical to stand on ceremony.

He raised his hat and bowed with awkward excitement.

"May I have a few minutes of your time, Miss Holland?" he asked.

She blushed, hesitated and answered nervously.

"Certainly, Mr. Congressman. Your speech was eloquent but unconvincing. I congratulate you on your style, if I can't agree with your conclusions."

Barker laughed heartily and Waldron's face remained a stolid mask.

"You will excuse me, gentlemen," she said to her associates. "I'll see you in ten minutes——"

She paused and smiled politely to Vassar.

"The ladies' parlor?"

"Yes," he answered, leading the way to the elevator, and in two minutes faced her with his hands tightly gripped behind his back, his eyes lighted by the fires of tense emotion.

HER control was perfect, if she felt any unusual stir of feeling. He marvelled at her composure. He had vaguely hoped this first meeting after their break might lead to a reconciliation. But her bearing was as coldly impersonal as if he were a book agent trying to sell her a set of ancient histories.

He throttled a mad impulse to tell her again that he had loved her with every beat of his heart every moment since they had parted.

"You know, of course," he began, "that in this supreme crisis you hold the balance of power in a struggle that may decide the destiny of America?"

"I have been told so——"

"It is so," he rushed on, "and I've come to you for a last appeal to save the Nation from the appalling danger her defenseless condition will present at the close of this war. My bill will place us beyond the danger line. If we are reasonably ready for defense no great power will dare attack us——"

"Preparation did not prevent this war," she interrupted sharply.

"Certainly not. Fire engines do not prevent fires. But our organized fire department can and does prevent the burning of the whole city. Preparation in Europe did not prevent war. But it did save France from annihilation. It did save Germany from invasion. It did save England from annihilation. The lack of it snuffed out the life of Belgium. I only ask that a million of our boys shall be taught to hold a rifle on a mark and shoot straight——"

"And that mark a human body over whose cradle a mother bent in love. I do not believe in murder——"

"Neither do I! I'm trying to prevent it. Can't you see this? Our fathers shot straight or this Republic had never been born. Your father shot straight or the Union could never have been preserved. Conflict is the law of progress. I didn't make this so, but it's true, and we must face the truth. You are the daughter of a soldier. I beg of you for the love of God and country to save our boys from butchery, our daughters from outrage and our cities from devastation!"

"I'm going to do exactly that by doing my level best to prevent all war——"

Vassar lifted his hand and she saw that it was trembling violently.

"Your decision is final?" he asked.

"Absolutely——"

"Then all I can say is," he responded, "may God save you from ever seeing the vision my soul has dreamed today!"

She smiled graciously in response to his evident suffering.

"I shall not see it," was the firm answer. "Your fears are groundless. I will be a delegate to the First Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World which this war will create."

He turned to go, paused, and slowly asked:

"And I may not hope to see you occasionally? You know that I love you always, right or wrong"——

She shook her head and gazed out of the window for a moment on the majestic shaft of the Washington Monument, white and luminous against the azure skies of Virginia. Her voice was tender, dream-like, impersonal.

"Our lives were never quite so far apart as now——"

He turned abruptly and left her, the sense of tragic failure crushing his heart.

CHAPTER XIV.

WOMAN'S political power was hurled solidly against an increase of armaments and Vassar's Bill for National Defense was defeated.

Waldron's triumph was complete. His lawyers drew the compromise measure which Congress was permitted to pass a few weeks later. It made provision for a modest increase of the Navy and the National Guard.

The banker's newspapers led the chorus of approval of this absurd program and the Nation was congratulated on its happy deliverance from the threatened curse of Militarism.

Waldron chartered two trains and took the entire delegation of five hundred women members of the Convention as his guests. He entertained them for a week at the best hotels and closed the celebration with a banquet at his palatial home in honor of Virginia Holland.

At the close of the dinner when the last speaker had finished a brilliant panegyric of praise for the modern Joan of Arc, the master of the feast whispered in her ear:

"Will you remain a few minutes when the others have gone? I've something to tell you."

She nodded her consent and Waldron hurried their departure. She wondered vaguely what new scheme his fertile brain had hatched, and followed him into the dimly lighted conservatory without a suspicion of the sensation he was about to

Changing the Custom

By Everett S. Treworgy

FOR many years I had followed the stale custom of ages in the matter of saluting my brethren on the street.

"Good morning, Mr. Hale. Fine morning."

"Yes, beautiful morning."

"Good evening, Mrs. Jebb. Going to get some rain?"

"Looks like it, doesn't it?"

Now everybody is tired of this and puts up with it simply out of moral cowardice.

I made up my mind one day that I would break through this inane custom of referring to the weather on the street, and say something else. I thought it might be as well to select the topic with some care, so all would go off smoothly on the first trial; otherwise the whole proceeding might be discredited, I should appear ridiculous, and nobody knows how many centuries more this old gray and wrinkled subject might be dealt out to us morning, noon and night.

After some thought, the related subject of foliage—vegetation, was selected, as making an easy transition from the weather, not being so abrupt a change as to be startling and thereby to subject my beneficent plan to the danger of miscarriage. We are proud of our shade trees in this old New England village, and I thought just for a starter I would say something like, "The trees are looking well, this spring."

Now some one may say that is too obvious a fact to call for any remark. But what is more obvious than the fact of its being a fine day? No sir, I submit that in the matter of obviousness no statement has anything on that vapid old chestnut, "It's a fine day."

I started for the postoffice without a misgiving, rehearsing my piece as I went. The first person I met was Uncle Tommy Welsh—a portly and dignified veteran of the Civil War, with side whiskers and a wooden leg. I waited till I got well up to him and then sprung it: "Our trees are looking well this spring, Uncle Tommy."

Uncle Tommy started, changed color slightly, cleared his throat and seemed to me to look injured.

"The trees?" he inquired, looking up and scanning the branches carefully as if looking for bird's nests.

"I say they are looking fine and green this spring," I repeated with some embarrassment and a furtive glance around.

"Oh, green, yes—they are!" he got out, gulping hard and eyeing me with suspicion. I wanted to move on the worst way, and so did he, but someway the right thing hadn't been said to allow a smooth getaway. I was almost tempted to say: "Pretty nice weather we're having," when no doubt we could have gone our ways easily, but I vowed I'd stick to my plan for one day at least. No good thing comes to humanity without effort and patience and a bit of courage.

Finally I looked at my watch and said I guessed I'd go and see what Uncle Sam had for me, and as Uncle Tommy offered no objection, we parted with no open rupture and with mutual relief.

When I had gone a few rods I turned to look back. Uncle Tommy had met Job Green, the cobbler. They were standing stock still and looking at me! I had an uneasy feeling as to what they were talking about. At last I was beginning to understand how Columbus felt when he observed people looking at him and pointing at their foreheads. At any rate I had diverted attention from the weather.

Going into the postoffice, I met Aunt 'Liza Wiggins, who is a little deaf and somewhat rheumatic. Feeling a little sore on the foliage question I decided to try something different on Aunt 'Liza. So I said: "Good morning, Aunt 'Liza; how's your rheumatism this morning?"

"Yes it is," she replied, "but I see the paper says rain."

The grin hadn't left the face of the clerk as he handed me my mail.

"This is a fine morning," he observed, by way of smoothing things over.

"Hm—, yes, I noticed it all the way down the street," I replied, with no effort to conceal my vexation. I was glad to find the street clear as I went home, for I had had enough for one day.

The next morning was rainy. I felt a little irresolute, but screwed my courage to the sticking place and started for the postoffice determined to try again. I saw Uncle Tommy approaching in the distance. Uncle Tommy also saw me and hurriedly stumped across the street! Now I didn't like that. Of course I would rather mention the weather than have a man avoid me that way! But how was I to know he would feel that way about it? Still, he may have had business on the other side.

Then I spied Job Green coming. Job suddenly had an errand down a side alley. Now, while I am not over sensitive, somehow two such co-incidences in quick succession nearly got my goat. My ardor for the new reform was cooled several degrees.

The clerk gave me my mail without a word, and never cracked a smile. Of course a clerk may speak or not, as pleases him; but when he usually speaks, you sort of expect it someway.

Coming out I met Abe Simpson, the barber. Before I could speak, Abe greeted me with: "Gettin' a little rain!" The voice sounded so good, it threw me off guard for an instant, and I answered: "Yes, a little wet for a change!" And then I weakly gave way, though perhaps I do myself an injustice when I say "weakly." It would be nearer the truth to say I surrendered to the inevitable: I bowed to the inexorable. And I have travelled the well-worn path ever since.

Tommy Welsh no more crosses the street at my approach, nor does Job Green turn down the alley. We all address one another about the weather in regulation form, and all goes well.

Country Town Sayings

By Ed. Howe of Atchison

A REALLY dangerous man tries to avoid trouble; he has been in it before, and knows that trouble is disagreeable.

As a rule, the possession of any considerable sum of money represents industry, saving and old age.

Half the people fear a crisis if a certain thing is done; and the other half fear a crisis if it is not done.

If a man offers you a good thing, you have a right to wonder why he does not keep it himself.

When a man takes a bitter medicine, he usually leaves a little in the spoon.

You can't always trust people; in fact, you can't always trust yourself.

What fierce, undying love you see on the stage; and what a tame variety there is in the audience.

Self-denial is easier and pays better in the long run, than self-indulgence.

Little jobs carefully tended have a habit of growing.

What a contemptible weakness charity is, when it is shown for the faults of those we dislike.

A hard-working man always seems to be lucky. On the same principle that luck usually breaks in favor of the best ball team.

They say an old fool is the worst fool; still, I know some young ones that would be hard to beat.

Ever notice that boys never tie tin cans to a bull dog's tail? A bull dog won't stand for such foolishness.

You can pick up a boy's school book, and find instantly where he is studying: every page he passed over is dirty.

the parlor door opened and the woman came out. Abijah pointed to the yarn slippers.

"Put them right on," he said, "and draw up another chair where it's warm. Now I'm a-going to get supper, for I guess you folks must be hungry. 'Twon't be what you're used to, most likely, but hunger's a mighty good sass, and I'll do the best I can."

It had begun to grow dark in the room. The old man lighted a pair of bracket lamps and in their soft, yellow glow he hurried from pantry to stove and back again while the strangers, from the warmest corner, watched him in silence. He cooked potatoes and fried crisp, brown pieces of salt pork. There were slices of bread, cut from an heroic loaf, and a pie of flakiness. When the tea was steeped Abijah drew out the table and put in an extra leaf. In honor of the occasion he laid his one white cloth and after the meal was spread, smoking in the lamplight, he felt something of hospitable pride.

"Bring your chairs right up to the table," he invited. "I hope you'll find things all right. If I'd knowed folks like you was coming I could of had something more."

They came readily enough to the meal and for the first time Henderson saw a sparkle of animation in the eyes of his guests. They were hungry, and he rejoiced as he saw the food disappear. He was quite happy now; his feeling of restraint was wearing away.

"Now you folks feel more human-like, don't you?" Abijah beamed as he pushed back from the table. "Nothing like a full stummick to kind of smooth out your trouble."

"You've given us an excellent meal." It was the woman speaking. "Did you really make that pastry yourself?"

"Pastry? Oh, you mean the apple pie! Yes, ma'am. Abijah Henderson's the chief cook and bottle washer 'round here. I'd kind of like it if I could have comp'ny to supper every night."

"Have a cigar, Mr. Henderson?" Some of the coldness seemed to have warmed out of the man's voice. Abijah took a slender black roll from the leather case that was held out to him.

"Well! Well!" He was eager, and yet there was an undercurrent of sadness in his pleasure. "I ain't had a good seegar in a dog's age."

"When can we get through to Elizabethtown, did you say?" Graham held a match poised as he waited for the answer.

"Well, it's a-blowing up some now." The old man stopped and considered. "If it clears tomorrer morning you can start soon's the sun gets up. If it keeps on blowing and drifting you might jest's well settle down to spend Thanksgiving right here—you can't travel through a blizzard."

Graham uttered a sharp exclamation. Red spots were on the woman's cheeks.

"Was you a-going fur?" Abijah could not resist the temptation to ask that much.

"Into the Adirondacks," answered the man, shortly. "We've got to get through. I'll buy a team that will go through, if necessary."

Henderson shook his head, slowly.

"IT ain't a question of money, mister," he said. "It seems like the Lord kept some things to Himself, so't money and such like wouldn't do no good with 'em. A blizzard's one of them things. Hossflesh nor human flesh can't make 'leven miles in a reg'lar blizzard, if we get one."

"But our plans!" The woman's exclamation was involuntary. It was Abijah who answered her.

"Your plans kind of depends on what the Lord does with the wind, ma'am. In the city I 'spose He ain't so close-like, but up here you got to figger along with Him. Then you feel all right and satisfied and peaceful. You can't go agin Him."

The old man had become deeply earnest. Here was a matter on which he took much thought. Then, almost as a glow of inspiration, came the realization that now was his chance to ask a great question and see if these beings from the top of the world could answer it. He noted that his guests passed quick and meaning glances back and forth, but that did not deter him. He knew that to them he was an uncouth old fellow, and he believed that they were right in thinking him that.

"I want to ask you something, mister, and it would be a mighty big favor to me if you'd tell me what you think." Abijah's voice trembled a little, just at the beginning, so much was he taken with the seriousness of his thoughts. "You've got book learning and mebbe you can help me out—I mean answer a kind of question. I'll 'spose a case to make it plain. 'Spose a man, or somebody, did something bad—I don't mean a little, measly thing, but something big that meant happiness, or—or life, to somebody else—and then 'spose he tried to make up for it. I mean the man that done the mean thing tried to make up. We'll say he couldn't make up to the one he'd done wrong to, but he wanted to square things up with the Lord.

"But what if this man didn't have no chance to do a big good thing? Then he'd start out to do a lot of little, good things, wouldn't he? 'Spose he says to himself, says he, 'I'll do ten thousand little, good things.' Now, mister, they's two points that puzzle me in a case like that, and I ain't never been able to figger out the right of 'em. In the first place, can you make up for a big thing by doing little things, and do you calc'late ten thousand would be enough? In the second place, and this here's a turrible sight harder'n the other to answer, can you ever make up for a thing? When a thing's done, is it done forever and ever, or can you make up by trying hard enough? Hey?"

Henderson's rush of words ceased. He looked from one to the other of his listeners, expectantly, leaning forward. Suddenly Graham leaped to his feet, sending his chair over with a clatter.

"Great heavens, man!" he cried. "I don't know!"

The woman drew a deep breath. Abijah, his hopes shattered, at once feared that he had offended.

"Now I didn't mean to get you het up like that!" he exclaimed. "Honest to goodness, I'm sorry! But I thought mebbe, having book learning and all that, you might help me out."

"It's all right." The woman's voice soothed like balm. "Mr. Graham is nervous, that's all. He isn't offended."

"No, indeed!" Graham spoke hastily. "You're right, Alice, I am feeling rather shot to pieces. I—I think I'll go to bed."

"Certain you can!" Instantly the old man was a host again. "They's a spare bedroom that's nice and warm right downstairs here—I was calc'lating to put you folks in there."

"We——" The man hesitated. "Mrs. Graham will take that room. She'll rest better alone. Just bunk me anywhere."

"Certain!" Henderson hastened to make assurance that it was all right while he thought how to satisfy this whim of his guests. The sloping-roofed chambers of his house were not furnished and there were but two sleeping rooms on the ground floor. "You can take my room—it's right warm in there, being off the kitchen, so—and Mrs. Graham, she can have the spare room off the parlor. I'll leave the parlor door open so they'll be plenty of heat."

Apparently they did not think at all of him in the slight bustle of going to bed. It was just as well, he decided, for they might learn that he was going to sleep on the kitchen floor, and protest. He did not want that. This new development gave him a peculiar pleasure.

So when the others had gone to their rooms Abijah sat down by the fire and smoked, wagging his head now and then as he muttered to himself—occasionally sighing deeply, or breaking into a subdued chuckle. It was midnight, and he had filled the stove with wood many times, when at last he rose and knocked out his pipe. He opened the pantry door and took up the stubby pencil that hung beside the calendar.

"One apiece for the hosses," he whispered, making two marks inside the square of the twenty-fourth. "Humans count five. So it's ten for the feet. Let's see. Feeding people is just plain right, so that don't count. But sleeping on the floor ought to be ten, I calc'late. Then I'll take off two for the seegar, and that leaves eight. Godfreys mighty, this has been a good day!"

Now the square was well filled with marks, so well filled that it seemed almost solid black. The old man stood looking at it, with head cocked to one side, when a slight sound made him spin around as though a knife point had touched his back.

Graham, wrapped in a wonderful robe of pale blue that glistened in the lamplight, was standing in the kitchen, looking at him. For the moment Abijah shuffled from one foot to the other, unable to speak.

AH! if you knew how vain are these delicious tears!
How little so divine and desultory a thing
As this hour's love, alas, will seem, remembering These tears, this hour, and this hour's love, in other years!

The chaplet of white fading roses, one by one,
Petal from petal falling on some pensive day;
Noontide upon the shining beach, while on the bay
A fisher's boat came slowly drifting with the sun;

Yes, and the vase of precious porcelain that you broke;
The day you lost that ring, the day you bought this gem;
You will remember these things, and, ah yes,
with them
The day that your heart answered mine before it spoke.

"What in the world——"

"Oh, nothing! Nothing!" Henderson had found his tongue. "Jest fixing up some accounts. 'Tain't nothing. Was they anything you wanted, Mr. Graham? I'd be mighty glad to get it for you!"

"Came out for a drink of water—couldn't sleep," explained he.

"Certain!" Abijah bustled to the sink. "Ain't your bed all right? If they's anything else I can do——"

"Nothing!" cut in Graham, lifting his glass. "Thanks! Now I'll go back. Don't forget to call us!"

Henderson's chuckle at the likelihood of oversleeping was still rolling softly out when the bedroom door closed behind his guest. Again he filled the stove with sticks and, bringing in an old horseblanket from the woodshed, lay down for a few hours of rest, his feet to the fire. It was six o'clock, and gray dawn, when he awoke and went about the task of breakfast, first having rapped on the bedroom doors.

At length they came out. Abijah stood with pancake turner poised and stared at the face of the woman. Some stress of sleepless hours had left her eyes bruised and blue beneath, but out of their depths shone a glory that was not to be denied by weariness of the flesh. She smiled at him, and he smiled, without knowing why.

Then he remembered that he had sausage and griddle cakes and smoking hot corn bread to serve. It was a silent meal, but one over which Abijah presided with satisfaction. A spirit of antagonism seemed to have gone out of the air and peace to have come in its stead. Toward the end of the meal Graham spoke.

"Will travelling be possible today?"

"Yes sir, I guess it will!" Abijah beamed with pleasure at the good news he had to give. "It's going to be clear and thawing a little towards noon. I been out to see them hosses and they've perked up a lot for a livery team. Shouldn't wonder if you could go on."

To this Graham made no answer. He stared out of the window absently as Henderson talked on, giving direction as to the drive and what to do should drifts be met or one of the horses get down. Then breakfast was finished and Abijah went reluctantly forth to harness the team.

An unpleasant thought began to trouble him. It was probable that Graham would insist upon paying him, even to the point of making refusal difficult. He had had some dealings with city folks and he knew their disposition to pay and pay, believing that all things might be paid for. He was struggling with the problem when the sealskin clad figures came forth from the house and climbed into the sleigh.

"YOU folks are going to be all right now." Abijah handed up the reins and talked fast to leave no room for mention of payment. "I want to say I've enjoyed having you here first class. You done jest right to come into the mountains for the holidays, and I hope you'll have a good Thanksgiving!"

His volley of words could not forestall the inevitable it seemed Graham, waiting patiently until he had finished, held out a gloved hand from which protruded the yellow end of a bank note. Abijah Henderson felt himself going rapidly down into a slough of misfortune.

"Give this away for me, Henderson, will you? I'll be much obliged to you!"

Abijah had expected other words than these with, at best, a perfunctory expression of thanks. As the meaning of what the other had said came fully to him he was lifted up by joy. It seemed impossible that this could be the proud-eyed man who had driven into the yard only the night before. The bank note crackled, speaking its reality.

"Thank you—thank you!" The old man's voice trembled. "They ain't nothing in the world I'd ruther of had you done than this! You're a mighty good man, Mr. Graham! You don't know how much this'll do for——"

But Graham had tightened the reins and the livery nags were half-way to the edge of the clearing. The woman turned her head. She smiled and waved her hand. Abijah took off his old cloth cap and swung it with vigor.

"Godfreys mighty, this is going to be a good Thanksgiving!" he told himself.

Then he stood and watched the back of the departing sleigh, with the sealskin capped heads showing above it, until the road turned and those who had come from another world disappeared among the ice and snow-encrusted trees. For a long time they rode through the woods in silence. It was the woman who spoke first.

"Thornton," she said, "when you come to the main road, turn toward Westport, please."

"You're going back, then?" There was no surprise, merely inquiry, in his voice.

"Yes." Her tones were rich with that quality which had so pleased Abijah Henderson. "It's not too late today—but it might have been. I'm going back to John. I am going to tell him the truth and be with him for Thanksgiving dinner—if he wants me."

For a little time he did not answer. Then his words came sharply.

"I'm going north—into the

Fruits and Their Uses—Candy Making

By Phoebe Burbank

WITH Autumn passing and Winter at hand, comes the association of long evenings spent round the cozy fireside. How to spend these evenings is often a problem, and candy making—the making of sweetmeats—suggests itself as an entertainment, an indoor sport, which never grows old and one which never loses its charm. That the charm is felt by both sexes is evidenced by the popularity of candy pulls each winter.

The making of candy by the amateur is, however, more than a recreation and can be made a fine art. It is usually the first branch of cookery essayed by the very young girl, whose "fudges" mark the first step in a culinary career, and encouragement in this particular branch of cooking will, in many instances, make the more prosaic side of the kitchen less irksome. Therefore, by all means, encourage the making of candy in the home. It provides an interesting and useful occupation that can be turned to very profitable account, as the many successful church candy sales each year will prove.

Another important feature of candy making at home is that the family is thereby provided with pure sweetmeats, which supply the natural desire for "something sweet." In the growing child this is a natural craving, and should be indulged rather than checked. Sugar is very necessary in the building processes of the body, as it provides heat and stimulates nervous energy.

In making candy use always the best materials. The food value of candy may be expressed by the amount of sugar contained—but the wholesomeness of the other ingredients must be considered, also the coloring, flavoring, nuts, fruits, gelatine, etcetera, must be of the finest quality, to obtain the most satisfactory results from the standpoint of health.

Sugar—The sugar used in nearly all candy is cane sugar. Beet sugar is very good, but it is not so sweet and will not produce so palatable a sweetmeat as cane sugar.

Colors—Pure coloring for candies is easily obtained nowadays, and in using, the amount depends on the shade of color desired. As the coloring varies greatly in strength and quality according to different makes, care must be observed until experience has taught the amount necessary.

Gelatine—Granulated gelatine is often used in making candy—and this also should be of the best make.

Nuts—Almonds, sweet and bitter, walnuts, peanuts, chestnuts, pinenuts, pistachio nuts, pecans, Brazil nuts and hickory nuts, are the nuts generally used. Many of these can be bought already shelled and require only washing and drying before being used. Where the nuts are cracked at home, care must be taken to hold the nut so the shell shall be crushed evenly—hickory nuts should be struck on the thin side, pecans and butternuts on the end. All fruits and nuts must be perfectly dry before using, as moisture would be fatal to the process. Almonds must be blanched and then dried in a cool oven.

Butter—The butter used must be pure and unsalted. On no account may butter substitutes be used.

Aloha Fudge—2 cups brown sugar, ¾ cup milk, 2 tablespoonfuls butter, 2 ounces chocolate unsweetened, 1 teaspoonful vanilla extract, ½ teaspoonful rose extract.

Put the milk, butter, sugar and chocolate into an enamel saucepan and bring slowly to a boiling point, then boil until it forms a soft ball when tested in cold water. Take from the fire, add flavoring and beat until creamy. Pour into buttered tins.

Stuffed Dates—Remove the stones from one pound of dates and stuff them with salted almonds. Close the dates, brush lightly with a little beaten white of egg, and roll in colored sugar, shredded cocoanut, or finely chopped pistachio nuts. They may also be stuffed with seedless raisins, marshmallows, walnuts chopped to a paste, preserved ginger and cherries (mixed half and half), pecans and cherries, finely chopped, figs, prunes or shredded cocoanut.

Date Balls—3 cups finest stoned dates, 1 cup black walnut meats (chopped), 1 heaping tablespoonful chopped preserved ginger, 1 tablespoonful preserved ginger syrup, grated cocoanut.

Chop the dates, add the walnut meats, ginger and ginger syrup, then run through a chopper. Make into balls and roll in cocoanut before putting in paraffine paper cases.—E. L. J., Chicago

Marshmallows—1 envelope Sparkling Gelatine, 1¼ cups water, 2 cups fine granulated sugar, few grains salt, 1 teaspoonful vanilla.

Soak gelatine in one-half the water five minutes. Put remaining water and sugar in saucepan, bring to the boiling point and let boil until syrup will spin a thread when dropped from tip of spoon. Add soaked gelatine and let stand until partially cooled; then add salt and flavoring. Beat until mixture becomes white and thick. Pour into granite pans, thickly dusted with powdered sugar, having mixture one inch in depth. Let stand in a cool place until thoroughly chilled. Turn on a board, cut in cubes and roll in powdered sugar. This recipe makes about one hundred marshmallows. Nuts, chocolate, fruit juices in place of part of the water, or candied fruits chopped may be added—or the plain ones rolled in grated cocoanut before being sugared.

Fig Bars—2 envelopes Gelatine, 2 cups cold water, 2 cups sugar, ½ pound figs, 3 tablespoonfuls sherry wine, ¼ cup chopped walnut meats, ¼ cup chopped blanched almonds, 1 orange, 1 lemon.

Soak gelatine in one cup of the cold water ten minutes. Force figs through a food chopper, add juice of lemon, juice of orange and grated rind of orange, bring to the boiling point and let simmer ten minutes. Put sugar and remaining water in saucepan and when sugar is dissolved add soaked gelatine. Bring to the boiling point and let boil ten minutes; then add fig mixture and boil ten minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from range, add nut meats and sherry wine. Pour into shallow pan, first dipped in cold water, and let stand over night. Cut in pieces two and one-half inches by one half inch. Roll in powdered sugar.—J. D., Cincinnati.

Ginger Crystals—1 envelope Gelatine, ½ cup cold water, 2 cups granulated sugar, 1 cup boiling water, ½ cup crystallized ginger, cut in small pieces, 1 tablespoonful lemon juice.

Soak gelatine in cold water ten minutes. Put sugar and boiling water in saucepan, place on range, and when sugar is dissolved add soaked gelatine. Bring to boiling point and let boil fifteen minutes. Remove from range and add lemon juice with one tablespoonful cold water and crystallized ginger. Turn into pan dipped in cold water, having mixture three-fourths inch in depth. Let stand over night, cut in oblong shapes, roll in fine granulated sugar and let stand to crystallize.

Chocolate Animals—Animal crackers, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup milk, ¼ cake bitter chocolate, yolk of one egg.

Beat egg yolk with beater, add milk, sugar and chocolate, and cook until a little dropped in water forms soft balls. Take from fire, place in pan of cold water until almost cold, beat until smooth, then pour over animal crackers and stir until they are pretty well covered. Take them out one at a time, spread over bare spots with knife and place on platter or paper to harden. Work quickly and they can all be handled before hardening. This recipe will cover ¾ pounds.—Mrs. W., Chicago.

Pineapple Sponge—Soak a package of gelatine in cold water for a few minutes, then add a pint hot water. Add a quart of Hawaiian pineapple cut in cubes. When this begins to harden or get jelly-like, add a pint of whipped cream which has been flavored with pineapple. Stir all thoroughly and turn into a mould. (Best after two or three days' keeping). It should be spongy.—Mrs. W. B., Waynesburg, Green Co., Pa.

Fruit-Filled Cookies—1 cup sugar, ¾ cup butter, 1 egg, ½ cup sweet milk, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Flour to make soft dough. Roll thin and cut. Filling: ½ cup dates, chopped fine, ½ cup raisins, ground very fine. To this add ½ cup sugar, one tablespoon flour (in sugar), ½ cup boiling water. Mix thoroughly and spread between cookies. Press edges together and bake in a moderate oven.—Mrs. W. H. B., Stillwater, Minn

KNOX YULETIDE DAINTIES

Soak 2 envelopes Knox Acidulated Gelatine in 1 cup cold water 5 minutes. Add 1¼ cups boiling water. When dissolved, add 4 cups granulated sugar and boil slowly for 15 minutes. Divide into 2 equal parts. When somewhat cooled, add to 1 part ⅛ teaspoonful of the Lemon Flavoring found in separate envelope, dissolved in 1 tablespoonful water, and 1 tablespoonful lemon extract. To the other part add ⅛ teaspoonful extract of cloves, and color with the pink color. Pour into shallow tins that have been dipped in cold water. Let stand over night; turn out and cut into squares. Roll in fine granulated or powdered sugar and let stand to crystallize. Vary by using different flavors and colors, and adding chopped nuts, dates or figs.

CHARMS and Why They Work

By H. Addington Bruce

Illustrations by
G. H. Mitchell.

IT WAS brought home to me recently that there actually is such a thing as "charming" diseases away. A friend and neighbor of mine in Cambridge, Massachusetts, a literary worker of international reputation, was discussing with me the general subject of the supernatural, concerning which he held decidedly skeptical opinions. But, in the course of our conversation, he observed: "I must tell you, though, of a curious thing that occurred in our family a few years ago. Our little girl was greatly troubled with warts, having so many on her hands that it amounted to a positive disfigurement. We tried all sorts of remedies, but they did no good. One day a caller suggested that we take her to an old fellow, who according to our informant, had the reputation of being able to charm away almost any ordinary malady.

"We listened politely, of course, and after the caller had gone my wife and I had a good laugh over the superstition of some people. However, the warts continuing, my wife, without a word to me, did take the little girl to the 'magician' of whom we had been told. The treatment he gave was simplicity itself. He merely took a penny, rubbed it over the warts, mumbled something, and then, handing the penny to the child, told her to hide it, and on no account to look at it afterwards. If she did this, he assured her, her warts will very soon disappear. As, indeed, they did. And this is not all. A year or so afterwards our youngest boy developed warts on his hands to almost as bad an extent as his sister had done. Again the customary remedies were tried, again they failed, and again my wife paid a visit to the 'magician,' who went through precisely the same rigmarole with an equally beneficial effect."

In fact, there can be no doubt of the possibility of curing warts by working on the imagination. Corroborative testimony may be found in the writings even of medical men. One eminent English physician, Dr. H. Tuke, tells of the experience of a relative of his, who had a large wart to which Dr. Tuke applied the usual local remedies without success. Later the wart was charmed away in a few days by a casual visitor. In another case the daughter of a surgeon, a friend of Dr. Tuke's, was troubled for a year and a half by a number of warts which all her father's skill could not remove. One day a caller, seeing the warts, asked her how many she had on her hands.

"I don't know," was her reply. "About a dozen I should suppose."

"Count them, will you," said he.

WITH an impressive manner, he wrote on a piece of paper the number of warts she counted, and, slipping the paper into his pocket, declared: "You will not be troubled by your warts after next Sunday."

According to Dr. Tuke, it is a fact that by the day named the warts had entirely disappeared.

Similarly, numerous instances are on record in which the use of charms has almost instantaneously relieved headache, toothache and other pains. The application of a piece of metal, properly inscribed and wrapped in silk, is said to be an excellent remedy for ulcerated teeth; while the carrying of a horse-chestnut in one's pocket is extolled as a preventive of rheumatism. So too, it would seem, the mystical manipulation of a pair of ordinary knitting-needles is of more or less curative value in rheumatic affections, as at least one instance of their successful use has been related on excellent authority.

In such cases decidedly, the result obtained was out of all proportion to the means used to obtain them. There were, indeed, no obvious connection between disease and remedy; the latter, from the standpoint of cold common-sense, being distinguished chiefly for its absurdity. And this is the situation with respect to most charms, whether they relate to the prevention or cure of disease, the averting of ill fortune, or the bringing of good luck. Nor is a superstitious belief in them confined to the ignorant and illiterate. It permeates all ranks of society, from the humblest worker in the fields to the monarch on his throne.

Royalty, for that matter, has in many instances had an extreme weakness for superstition; and, besides patronizing liberally the soothsayers and astrologers whose doings were narrated in my article, The Mystic Behind the Throne, would seem, judging from the stories told of various rulers, to place a special reliance in the use of charms.

WITH kings and queens thus setting the example, it is not surprising to find belief in charms widespread among the commonalty of the Old World. Visit any jeweler's establishment in London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Rome, Madrid, or St. Petersburg, and you will soon discover that a thriving trade is done in "lucky" stones, four-leaf clovers, miniature pigs, and all manner of jeweled charms. At the other end of the social scale, cheap talismans are sold by the thousands from pedlars' carts and coster's barrows. In Naples, as every tourist knows, there is an especially heavy demand for amulets giving protection against the Evil Eye, belief in which is almost as general throughout Italy—and a great part of southeastern Europe—as ever it was in medieval times.

Journey through the rural districts of England, and you will come across the horseshoe nailed above many a cottage door. In its stead, or supplementing it, you will occasionally find scribbled on the door posts mystical words supposed to have a peculiar virtue in guarding the inmates against disease; and, in the Austrian Tyrol, the names of the magic inscribed for the same purpose. In short, go where one may in Europe there is no lack of evidence that belief in charms is a widespread fact today.

Nor is the situation different in our own land despite its boasted enlightenment, which has signally failed to put superstitious beliefs to rout. My own researches, and the statistics gathered by other investigators, satisfy me that, at a conservative estimate, fully one-half the population of the United States places a certain credence in charms. The result is the same whether inquiry be made in isolated country places, or in populous cities. Nay, it almost seems as though belief in charms is more prevalent in and near large cities than in sparsely settled regions.

Only a few years ago—in 1903, to be exact—in the course of a libel suit brought by a Dr. Joseph Hageman against a Philadelphia newspaper, but withdrawn before all the evidence was in, it was clearly proved that Hageman was familiarly known among his patients as a "witch doctor," that he had sold charms purporting to serve as remedies for nearly every ill of man and beast; and that he had not had the least difficulty in disposing of his wares, which usually were composed of nothing more than little canvas bags containing slips of paper filled with a jargon of Hebrew, Latin, Greek and Pennsylvania Dutch. These were to be worn around the necks of the patients, some of whom were so firm in the faith that they wore them while testifying in the libel suit.

In New York cases have frequently come before the courts throwing a flood of interesting light on the extent and diversity of the belief in charms in the metropolis. Repeatedly "magicians" have been haled to the bar of justice for preying on credulous patrons of every station in life, residents of Fifth Avenue as well as dwellers in Avenue A. In one singular case the will of a Stanton Street woman was disputed because it was known that she had lived in constant fear of witches, and because, after her death, it was found that little bags, containing incantations against witchcraft, were sewn in her clothing. In Ridge Street there once lived a "witch" whose specialty was the sale of charms, at twenty dollars apiece, warranted to bring together married people who had drifted apart.

THESE, to be sure, are extreme instances, but everybody knows persons who believe in amulets, talismans and superstitious usages to the extent at any rate of refusing to sit thirteen at a table or walk under a ladder; who insist on solemnly throwing a pinch of salt over their shoulders if they chance to spill any; or who habitually carry in their pockets a potato, a horse-chestnut, a rabbit's foot, or a turkey's claw as a charm to prevent disease and bring good fortune. Such usages survive everywhere, notwithstanding the spread of education and the advancement of science.

Just why have they survived?

It is not enough to say, with some psychologists, that it is because mankind perversely clings to an innate fondness for the occult, the mysterious, the marvelous. To solve the problem one must go deeper than that; must recognize, in fine, that amulets and charms and talismans of every kind would long ago have fallen into disuse had there not been an element of truth in them.

PEOPLE, to put it otherwise, believe in charms because they know that they sometimes work. They do not, it is true, work with all the regularity and thoroughness that could be desired, but they do work often enough and satisfactorily enough to keep alive faith in them. The illustrative instances of charm cures cited here are typical of what occurs from time to time in all quarters of the globe. It should be added, though, that this does not necessarily mean that the cures are wrought by any supernatural powers inherent in the charms used. On the contrary, it may safely be said that, as the unbelieving have all along asserted, the charms as charms are utterly worthless. The secret of their results lies not in them but in the persons using them—and in their imaginative susceptibility.

This is sufficiently indicated by the fact that bogus charms are known to have effected cures every whit as startling and miraculous as any achieved by the simon pure article, prepared and used in accordance with all the traditional rites. For example, a Belgian peasant woman, suffering from an acute affection of the eyes, applied to a student for a charm to relieve her. The young man, who had no desire to gain a reputation as a wizard, protested that he knew nothing about charms.

"Oh, yes, you do," said she. "You must know everything about them, for you are learned and attend the university. So, come now, give me a charm, and I will give you a new coat in return."

The old woman knew that the student was poor and greatly in need of a new coat. What she could not know was that, after hastily thinking over her strange request, he decided that it would give him a capital opportunity to play a joke on her and perhaps teach her a lesson. Assuming a serious expression, he said: "Well, you are right, and I ought to let you have the charm you want. Fetch me pen, ink, paper, and some old rags."

When these were brought he wrote a few words, meantime muttering to himself an uncanny-sounding gibberish; folded the writing, rolled it in the rags, and handed it to the open-mouthed applicant, with the command: "Wear this, and in a day or so your eyes will be perfectly well. But on no account read what I have written, for if you do the charm will be spoiled."

Thanking him profusely, she hurried off with the bogus charm, which notwithstanding the conditions under which it had been manufactured, proved so efficacious that inside of forty-eight hours her eyes ceased to trouble her. She then loaned the charm to a neighbor similarly afflicted, and again a speedy cure followed. By this time, as the student had anticipated, she became tormented with a burning curiosity to learn what were the magic words he had written for her.

"Come," she said to her neighbor, "let us open the charm and examine it. It has done its work for us, and surely there can be no harm in looking at it now."

But she quickly had reason to wish she had let well enough alone. For, opening the charm, she discovered to her horror and dismay that it contained only the impious and terrifying phrase:

"May the Devil pluck out thine eyes and replace them with mud!"

In this case, quite evidently, the mere belief that the treatment prescribed was magic treatment had been sufficient to bring about good results. And herein is the explanation of the achievements of all disease-curing charms. When they actually do cure it is by virtue of the healing powers latent not in them but in the minds of those who believe in them. Modern scientific research has demonstrated that there is the closest possible inter-relationship between mind and body; that the state of the mind powerfully affects the health of the body; and that if only the right "suggestions" are implanted in the mind with such force as to exclude all contrariant ideas, there may follow in many cases marvelous alterations amounting to a complete disappearance of disease symptoms.

Hence the success of such faith-healing systems as Christian Science, the New Thought, and the Emmanuel Movement. Hence, also, the success of the charm cures which the credulous and superstitious attribute to supernatural virtues resident in the rag, bone, jewel or scribbled paper constituting the charm.

CURING by charm is thus essentially only another form—and, it cannot be too strongly emphasized, a very unreliable form—of psychotherapy, or healing by suggestion. So, likewise, suggestion is the main factor in the workability of the charms of good and evil omen. If a man is lucky after meeting a black cat or picking up a pin, it is not the cat or the pin that accounts for his luck, but the self-confidence begotten in him by the belief that he will be lucky. As an able student of psychology has pointed out:

"Other things being equal, that individual whose strivings for worthy things develop from the direct urgings of his belief in good luck will have better luck—that is, have more success—than he who is ever in doubt and fearful of the outcome. Positive faith begets a direct and unhindered activity never present when the mind is in doubt . . . .

Those who are expecting some good in life and are diligently striving under the inspiration of this sentiment, are more likely to find it than those who are always waiting or working in fear."

On the other hand, too much belief in one's good luck is likely to result in paralysis of effort and initiative, the believer futilely thinking that there is no need for striving since he will be successful anyhow. The same result, it goes without saying, flows from belief in omens of ill luck, which paralyze effort by suggesting the idea that no matter how one may labor he can never hope for good fortune.

Belief in charms, consequently, is a pretty dangerous thing. There are times, as we have seen, when they work. But there is always the possibility either that they will not work at all or that they will work too well. It is just as wise, therefore, to be on the safe side, and utilize other and surer means of attaining health, happiness and success.

Why You Swing Your Arms

IF YOU watch people walk you will note that nearly all of them move their arms. If they walk slowly the movement of their arms is scarcely perceptible; if they walk rapidly their arms generally swing vigorously.

Most people believe this swinging of the arms as they walk is merely a natural swaying motion caused by the movement of the body, just as the tassel of an umbrella will swing when one is walking with it, but this is by no means the reason. The swinging of the arms is natural enough, but the nature of it dates back to those unknown days when man was a quadruped of Darwinian theory.

Of course, when man was a four-footed animal he walked with his "arms" as well as his legs, and even today, after the thousands upon thousands of generations that have passed since he assumed an upright position, every time he takes a step his arm moves a trifle, involuntarily, as though desirous of taking a step in its turn, just as it did when man, then four-footed, pranced up and down the earth.

Many people can move their ears a trifle, many can move their scalps, and there is an abundance of hair scattered about our arms and legs, now useless, but still the remnants of the abundant coating of hair that once kept our anthropoid ancestors warm.

By keeping our minds upon it, we can hold our arms nearly motionless when walking, but let us hurry along, thinking of something else and our arms still swing proclaiming our descent from ancestors who walked on four limbs that kept time together.
